SENATORS VOTE 18-19 DRAFT

YEAR'S TRAINING BEFORE COMBAT DUTY PROVIDED

Deferment of Farm Help Approved.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—Voting to require at least a year's training for 18 and 19 year old American conscripts before sending them into combat, the senate today completed action on legislation lowering the minimum draft age from 20 to 18. The vote on final passage, after more than eight hours of furious debate, was 58 to 5. An amendment ordering deferment of essential farm workers also was approved.

Bill Goes Back to House.

The measure now goes back to the house for concurrence in amendments. Because of the senate's refusal to accept the version approved by the house a week ago, 345 to 16, final congressional action is unlikely before next month's elections.

The house bill contained no training requirement and the two measures therefore will automatically go to conference for adjustment. Most house members have gone home to campaign, it was explained, and there will be little chance for a conference agreement until they return after Nov. 3.

Vice President Henry A. Wallace named Senators Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.], Elbert D. Thomas [D., Utah], Lister Hill [D., Ala.], Warren R. Austin [R., Vt.], and Chan Gurney [R., S. D.], all of whom voted against the training amendment, as a committee to confer with a house group over differences in the bill.

Roosevelt Rebuffed.

Senate consideration of the bill was marked by the sharpest controversies over war legislation since Pearl Harbor. In adopting the training requirement by a vote of 39 to 31, the chamber delivered a severe blow to President Roosevelt's prestige.

Under this section, no conscript under 20 years of age can be assigned to combat service outside the continental limits of the United States until he has had 12 months of preparation.

For two days administration forces fought in vain to prevent adoption of this proviso, pleading with their colleagues to follow the dictates of the White House and Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, who asked that the army be given a free hand in the use of youthful conscripts.

Proponents of the measure asserted in reply that none of our allies permits its youngest soldiers to fight on foreign soil, presumably to insure that they receive adequate training.

Second Defeat in 10 Days.

Coming just 24 hours after the reading of a letter from the White House urging that the new draft measure be accepted without restrictive amendments, the senate's action was also the second personal defeat for Mr. Roosevelt in that body within 10 days.

The last controversy in which he attempted to intervene concerned an administration proposal for boosting social security taxes next year. On the same day the chamber received a White House letter asking for the increase, the chamber voted overwhelmingly to freeze the taxes at their present level.

Shortly before passage, the members shouted approval of an amendment outlawing the induction of men who have reached the age of 45 since registering.

Defer Farm Workers.

The amendment directing local draft boards to defer essential agricultural workers indefinitely was introduced by Sen. Millard E. Tydings [D., Md.] and requires that the deferred farm workers shall be reclassified as available for induction whenever they go to other work without first having obtained permission of the local boards. The vote was 62 to 6.

Other sections of the bill provide:

1. Granting of temporary deferments until the end of the semester for 18 and 19 year olds who are in the last half of the academic year at

DICE GIRL GUILTY; GETS 1-14 YEARS

Manslaughter Verdict Is Voted in 3 Hours.

BULLETIN.

Mrs. Eleanor Williams was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury in Judge Harold G. Ward's Criminal court at 1 o'clock this morning. The conviction carries a mandatory prison sentence of 1 to 14 years. The jury of eight women and four men deliberated slightly more than three hours. Mrs. Williams collapsed when she heard the verdict.

A jury of eight women and four men began deliberating the fate of platinum haired Eleanor Williams at 9:45 o'clock last night. The state asked the jurors to treat her as they would a man, to send her to the electric chair for the murder of Gordon McNaughton. The defense asked them to set her free.

Julius Sherwin and Francis Partlan, assistant state's attorneys, reviewed the killing of McNaughton, whom Mrs. Williams has confessed she shot to death last Aug. 6 when she found him in a hotel room with her blonde rival, Mrs. Dorothy Moos.

"Treat Her Like a Man."

Pointing an accusing finger at Mrs. Williams, Sherwin asked:

"Are we to forget law and order because she is blonde—by choice?—curled and beautiful? Or is she? Are we to acquit her because she is a woman?

"Treat her as you would a man," he said, "so that no one can say a lady can get away with murder in Cook county."

Emmett Moynihan and George Crane, Mrs. Williams' attorneys, asked the jurors to remember the treatment which she said she received at the hands of McNaughton.

The defense attorneys said she was mentally unbalanced when she shot McNaughton.

Statement Read to Jury.

Final arguments were interrupted when Moynihan accused the prosecutors of deliberately withholding from the jury a statement that Mrs. Williams, a dice girl, signed after the shooting. Sherwin promptly demanded that the hearing of evidence be reopened, so that he might read the statement.

Judge Harold G. Ward refused, but permitted Sherwin to read the statement to the jury.

Mrs. Williams, who is 25 years old, wept as the jury filed out to begin its deliberations. Earlier she had made her second appearance on the witness stand to add to the testimony which she gave Friday.

Mrs. Williams gave up her husband and little daughter for a three year romance with McNaughton, a night club frequenter who was once a pitcher for the Boston Red Sox baseball team. She shot McNaughton, who was 32 years old, when she found him in a room at the New Lawrence hotel, 1020 Lawrence avenue, with Mrs. Moos.

The policeman from whom she obtained the gun, Barney Towey, recently committed suicide after being dismissed from service.

Sen. Wayland Brooks came back yesterday to his home congressional district—the 10th. He came not as an apologist but as a man who had been elected to high office on the basis of promises and pledges—and as a man who had kept those promises and pledges.

Sen. Brooks has changed since many of the women he addressed in the Edgewater Beach hotel last saw him. His close cropped black hair has become pepper and salt. He spoke with a new confidence, dignity, and authority. In a straightforward speech, in which he attacked no one and ignored the attacks upon him, he spoke as one might to a friend.

Deplores "Hurricane of Hate."

"The last two years have been trying and exciting years as the passions and actions of the world rose and burst into flame," he began. "We have been caught in that hurricane of hate.

"I think most of us had hoped sincerely and honestly this time would never come. So much did I hope it that I pledged to myself and to the people of this state to build the greatest possible defense for this country that we might remain a free nation, the haven and hope of the rest of the world, but unembroiled in the ancient hates of the old world.

"There wasn't any question of my position. I had explained it definitely. On that position I was elected to the United States senate. I am proud to tell you that up until the attack on Pearl Harbor I kept my pledges in every detail, saying always as I cast my vote, 'I speak and I vote on this measure in keeping with my promise to the people of Illinois.'

"When I went to the senate, I asked to be placed on the appropriations committee, for there and there alone could I hear the testimony, much of it in secrecy, as to the actual status of our armed forces. In every instance I approved the requests made; in many instances I voted for more.

"I voted for more millions of dollars in two years for the defense of our country than was voted from the time of George Washington. I voted for more than the President asked for before Pearl Harbor.

"I did not want war, but when my nation is attacked, I am attacked. I was one of the first to say: 'All discussion is over. Now we must use every ingenuity, every inventive power, our genius, our strength, our blood, and our courage to win.'

"I want to say to the mothers, the wives, the sisters and the sweethearts of my state of Illinois that Wayland Brooks did not want to get into this war."

Lyons Tells "Kelly's Blunders."

All Republican candidates from the 10th district were there to honor Brooks, but it remained for a noncandidate, Richard J. Lyons, former state legislator, to disclose certain new maneuvers in the Kelly-Nash machinations to defeat the senator.

"It's very strange," he told the women, "when the Democratic machine of Cook county moves out of the county, but that is what it has done now.

"If there was ever a doubt about the election of Brooks, the mayor's trip downstate cinches his election. It's the greatest bungle Kelly ever made."

OUST GHORMLEY IN SHAKEUP OF NAVY COMMAND

Halsey Takes Charge in Solomons.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

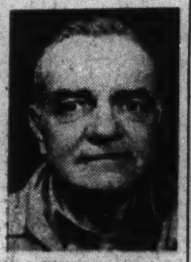
Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—The American naval high command in the South Pacific has been thoroly overhauled as a result of the grave reverses the United States has suffered in the Solomon Islands campaign, the navy department disclosed today.



Vice Adm. William F. Halsey.

In the most drastic shakeup in American command since Pearl Harbor, Vice Adm. Robert L. Ghormley, supreme commander of the land, sea, and air forces in the South Pacific, with headquarters in New Zealand, who has been in charge of the battle of the Solomons, was deposed. No announcement was made of Ghormley's new duties.

He has been replaced by Vice Adm. William F. Halsey, who distinguished himself in command of task forces and carrier operations in the Pacific. He was decorated for his services as commander of the raid on the Gilbert and Marshall Islands and commended for services in other Pacific actions.

Pye Goes to Newport.

Vice Adm. William S. Pye, who has been commander of a Pacific fleet task force, has been recalled to the noncombatant post of the presidency of the Naval War college at Newport, R. I., where he will replace Adm. Edward C. Kalbfus, retired.

Command of Pye's task force has been given to Vice Adm. Herbert F. Leary, who was in command of naval forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur. His second in command, Rear Adm. Arthur S. Carpender, will succeed to the command of the small naval force under MacArthur.

Vice Adm. Leary is regarded as one of the best fighting men in the navy, but one of the poorest naval politicians. For this reason, according to informed observers, he was sent to Australia to share MacArthur's exile, being given but a few ships.

Naval forces of the area were placed under Adm. Ghormley at New Zealand. Military experts charged that the creation of a separate command in New Zealand was intended to clip the wings of the hero of Bataan so that there would be no revival of the demand that he be appointed supreme commander of the American war effort.

Congress Ready to Act.

Today's shakeup was regarded as a clear demonstration of the folly of operating two commands in overlapping areas. However, the administration did not carry its reorganization to what many experts believe is the logical conclusion—consolidation of the south and the southwest Pacific commands under MacArthur.

The navy department announced the reorganization as several members of congress were preparing to demand overhauling of the navy command and the speeding of unification

KING CHRISTIAN X. OF DENMARK REPORTED IN SERIOUS CONDITION

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 25 [Sunday] (AP).—A special bulletin issued in Copenhagen, Denmark, early today said King Christian X., who was injured last week when he fell from a horse, had taken a sudden change for the worse and was in a serious condition.

The 72 year old monarch had been reported improving rapidly since the accident, but about 7 o'clock last night his heart developed an abnormal action.

His physician administered a stimulating treatment which resulted in a slight recovery, but his condition was regarded as serious enough to warrant a special bulletin.

Navy Sinks 2 Jap Ships in Gilbert Islands

MARINE PICTURES.

Washington, D. C. Oct. 24 (AP).—U. S. navy forces, raiding far north of the Solomon Islands, have sunk two enemy patrol vessels, damaged a destroyer, and damaged one merchant ship, the navy reported today.

The action took place in the Gilbert Island area, 1,100 miles northeast of Guadalcanal Island and 1,500 miles east of the big Japanese base on Truk Island.

The two small patrol vessels were sent down by gunfire near Tarawa Island in the Gilbert chain. An enemy destroyer and merchant ship were damaged by fire from naval guns near the same island.

Just what American units took part was not disclosed by the navy. It was indicated, however, that they were part of a reconnaissance force which ran into the Japanese and engaged them. No heavy enemy forces were encountered, the navy said.

"There have been no reports of any new action in the Solomon Islands area," the communique said.

Bomb Jap Plane Tender.

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Oct. 25 [Sunday]—(AP).—A large Jap seaplane tender was believed destroyed at Rabaul, New Britain, by allied bombers, the high command announced today.

The seaplane tender was one of the targets picked out by a flight of heavy bombers which again struck at the harbor of Rabaul, where Jap ships have concentrated presumably for an impending assault on Guadalcanal.

Today's communique said the second assault, made at night, resulted in a hit amidships with a 500 pound bomb on a seaplane tender of the Nisshin Maru class of 17,600 tons.

Destroy Jap Bombers.

The communique also reported the destruction of at least two and probably four Jap bombers in a raid on Lae, vital Jap base on the north coast of New Guinea, and a raid by 12 Jap planes on Darwin, northern Australian port, which caused "only slight damage."

WREST CONTROL OF SKIES FROM NAZIS, ITALIANS

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 24 (AP).—The British 8th army cracked thru German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's El Alamein line before dawn today, front line dispatches said tonight, after opening the long expected allied offensive with the aid at sea of a fleet of new type American made light warships and with American airmen in the thick of the desert battle.

What is likely to be the decisive battle for the Mediterranean was joined with the axis forces last night in the light of a full moon when Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's allied army moved forward along the front 80 miles west of Alexandria.

[The RAF's biggest bombers rounded out a three days assault on northern Italian cities and ports yesterday with a daylight raid on Milan from bases in the British Isles. Observers considered these raids as part of the African offensive designed to cut off the flow of supplies and reënforcements to the axis desert army. Story on page 18.]

Advices from advanced air bases tonight said allied airmen already appeared to have clear cut superiority in the air war even before the outset of what doubtless will be a tough, bloody struggle.

Navy Slashes at Matruh.

Joining with the army and air forces to make the attack a three element offensive, naval forces of Britain's powerful Mediterranean fleet timed a slashing bombardment of Rommel's advanced seaside base at Matruh, 90 miles behind the Alamein front, with the forward surge of guns and tanks.

Reports from Alexandria, Egypt, British naval base, described these as sleek, speedy "Mediterranean greyhounds" which dashed close inshore—so close they could see planes over the inland landing fields—and poured round after round of shells into axis installations.

Catching the enemy unawares, the seacraft met with no response from shore batteries and escaped a three hour aerial bombardment later without casualties and with only minor damage to one boat, it was announced.

The British were chary about giving details of the first day and night of an action in which it was their obvious objective to shove Rommel back from the Nile doorstep.

Larger Objective Seen.

To observers it seemed that a larger, secret objective might be to open the way in North Africa for a blow at the axis in its European strongholds by clearing 1,000 miles of the southern shoreline of the Mediterranean.

The official communique said only that fierce fighting developed immediately and was continuing. News of the action was almost entirely from dispatches of front line correspondents.

An Associated Press correspondent at an advanced allied air base said pilots returning at dawn from an all night blasting of the enemy's air bases and concentrations had seen the British forces already pouring thru a gap in the German and Italian lines.

It was evident, however, that the heavy fighting between tanks and anti-tank guns had not yet been joined, for Rommel's tanks were seen rushing up to meet the attack.

The eighth army, bigger and better equipped than ever before, thanks to the pouring in of American material and man power, attacked after the heaviest artillery barrage ever seen in the desert, the correspondent said.

Hint Yanks in Fight.

There was no definite word that American troops actually were participating, but American tank crews were known to have been in readiness for some time after initial combat experience, and it was not likely that they would be left out of a battle in which all available strength must be made to count.

Over the battlefront, American and allied fighters and fighter-bombers

CREDIT TRIBUNE EXPOSE FOR 99% GAMING CLEANUP

Courtney, Cahn Say Guzik 'Scoop' Started Drive.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

One year ago today THE TRIBUNE announced that financial secrets of the Guzik-Nitti gambling syndicate had come into the newspaper's possession. A series of stories followed in which Guzik's own records were made public.

Yesterday State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney and Bertram J. Cahn, president of the Chicago Crime commission, said that during the year the backbone of the gang had been broken and 99 per cent of the gambling in the city and county had been suppressed.

THE TRIBUNE told how the organization, founded by Al Capone, had collected $100.000 from slot machines during July, 1941. Guzik's records were published showing that the syndicate had gross receipts of $322,966 in one month from its ventures in the territory outside the city. The Guzik documents showed "kickouts"—graft payments—of $24,480 for the month of July, 1941.

Papers Given State's Attorney.

Day by day for a week THE TRIBUNE gave the public and the authorities facts and figures on the cash transactions of the outlaw band known as "the syndicate." The Guzik papers were turned over to the state's attorney.

Courtney and Cahn said the last year was one of intense activity in which 12 grand juries participated. While no indictments were voted against the principals—Jack Guzik, an ex-panderer, Frank [The Enforcer] Nitti, a terrorist; Murray Humphreys, and Ed Vogel, the slot machine chief—the authorities made considerable progress, Courtney and Cahn asserted.

A résumé of the year's activities as prepared for State's Attorney Courtney by his staff listed the results as follows:

"In re: City of Chicago.

"1. The November, 1941, grand jury started an investigation of gambling and called before it, among other witnesses, Mayor Kelly and Commissioner Allman. Mayor Kelly was amazed. The grand jury demanded the abolition of the morals division [of the police department].

Mayor Complies with Order.

"2. Mayor Kelly did abolish the morals division.

"3. The December, 1941, and January, 1942, grand juries continued investigating the morals division. As a result charges were preferred by Commissioner Allman against Capt. Martin McCormick, Sergt. Tom Lee, and Patrolmen Fred L. Trauth and James E. Kehoe, which charges the city civil service commission heard or failed to hear.

"The decision of the civil service commission was protested and Mayor Kelly, a year after he was amazed, said he would read the record. He couldn't find time so he appointed a committee. It seems he was too busy running the service men's center and making downstate political speeches, in addition to officially rewarding Officers Kehoe and Trauth with promotion.

"4. As a result of the abolition of the morals division, district captains were charged with responsibility. Complete lists of gambling places in each district were given to the captains thereof. Each captain had to report to the grand jury on known and suspected gambling places.

Handbooks Begin to Close.

"5. Operation of handbooks began to disappear in November, 1941, and thruout 1942 there has been a minimum of 'sneak' gambling in Chicago.

"6. Nerve centers were gutted out and many thousand telephones were removed.

"7. All arrested persons were subpenaed to appear before the grand jury and were interrogated with regard to their activities. Nine hundred seven such persons actually testified before the grand jury. At least an equal number were interrogated in the state's attorney's office without appearing before the grand jury.

"In re: Cook county.

"1. The November, 1941, grand jury interrogated Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien. Chief Lester Laird had already quit or been fired for association with William Skidmore. Lieut. Fred Hager failed to answer his subpena before the grand jury and has not been heard from since.

Suppress Slot Machines.

"2. Slot machine activities in Cook county were suppressed with the exception of one flareup in the summer of 1942, which resulted in the dismissal of Lieutenants Andel, Mulhausen, and Leviton. The Guzik-Vogel syndicate has scattered and only two members thereof were arrested, viz., Collectors Moon Smicklus and Nicky Visco.

"3. The mayor of Skokie was indicted for admittedly allowing gambling operations in Skokie.

"4. Edward Brink, who operated in Harvey, was convicted and fined. Lipschutz and Cunningham, who operated slot machines in Lyons, were arrested and fined. Blazer, who operated in La Grange, was indicted but not apprehended. These men were not collectors for Vogel but are suboperators.

"5. The handbooks in the county have been suppressed."

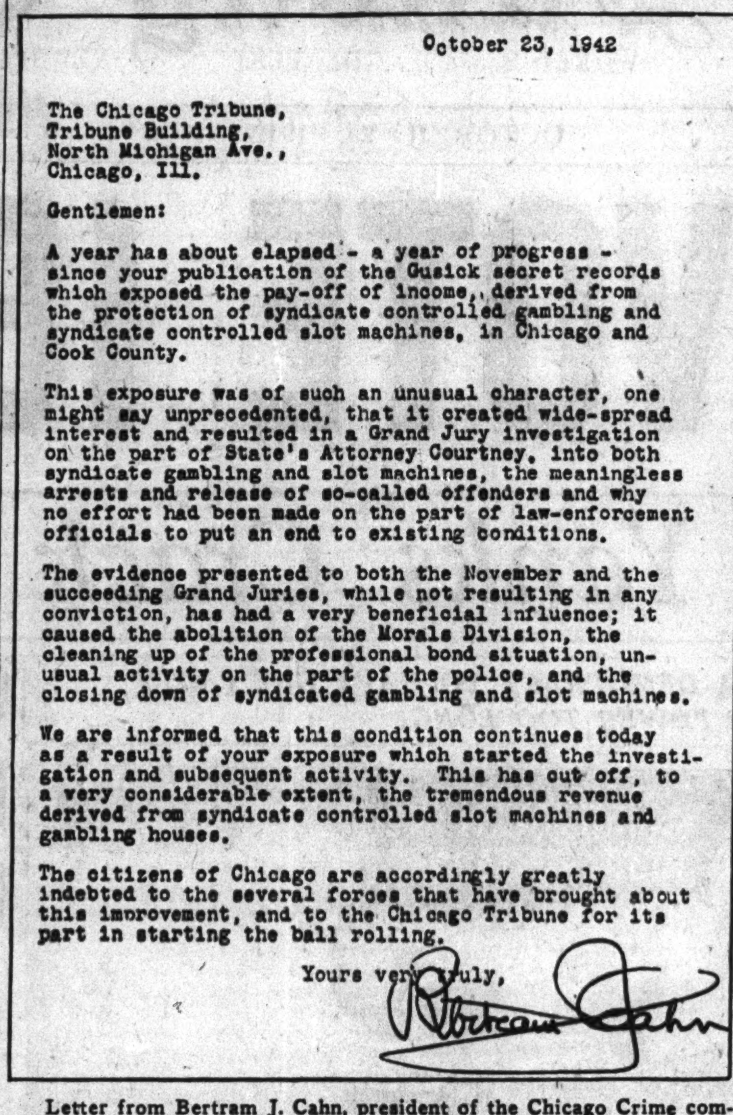
Hail Tribune for Progress.

President Cahn of the crime commission said there has been a year of progress in the fight against crime and gangsters due to THE TRIBUNE'S showing of the income and disbursements of the gangsters.

"The evidence presented to the November and the succeeding grand juries, while not resulting in any conviction, has had a very beneficial influence," Cahn wrote. "It caused the abolition of the morals division, the cleaning up of the professional bond situation, unusual activity on the part of the police, and the closing down of syndicated gambling and slot machines.

"We are informed that this condition continues today as a result of your exposure which started the investigation and subsequent activity. This has cut off, to a very considerable extent, the tremendous revenue derived from syndicate controled slot machines and gambling houses."

Letter Praises the Tribune



October 23, 1942

The Chicago Tribune,
Tribune Building,
North Michigan Ave.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:

A year has about elapsed - a year of progress - since your publication of the Gusick secret records which exposed the pay-off of income, derived from the protection of syndicate controlled gambling and syndicate controlled slot machines, in Chicago and Cook County.

This exposure was of such an unusual character, one might say unprecedented, that it created wide-spread interest and resulted in a Grand Jury investigation on the part of State's Attorney Courtney, into both syndicate gambling and slot machines, the meaningless arrests and release of so-called offenders and why no effort had been made on the part of law-enforcement officials to put an end to existing conditions.

The evidence presented to both the November and the succeeding Grand Juries, while not resulting in any conviction, has had a very beneficial influence; it caused the abolition of the Morals Division, the cleaning up of the professional bond situation, unusual activity on the part of the police, and the closing down of syndicated gambling and slot machines.

We are informed that this condition continues today as a result of your exposure which started the investigation and subsequent activity. This has cut off, to a very considerable extent, the tremendous revenue derived from syndicate controlled slot machines and gambling houses.

The citizens of Chicago are accordingly greatly indebted to the several forces that have brought about this improvement, and to the Chicago Tribune for its part in starting the ball rolling.

Yours very truly,

Bertram Cahn

Erred on Birth Date; Police Captain Fights Retirement

Capt. Daniel A. Lynch of the Irving Park police, whose impending retirement in 1943 was announced Friday by the civil service commission, will ask correction of police department records so that he may work another year, he said yesterday. Capt. Lynch explained that by mistake, when he filled out his police department application 37 years ago, he gave March 27, 1880, as his birth date when it should have been 1881. He said he will provide a birth certificate to prove that he will be only 62 years old next March instead of 63, the age of automatic retirement.

They Look Alike Until..

ST. CLAIR VITAMIN CAPSULES
X BRAND VITAMIN CAPSULES

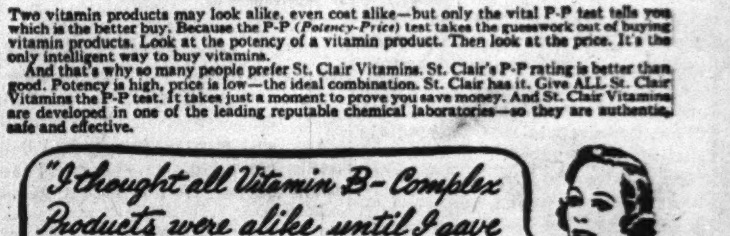
Two vitamin products may look alike, even cost alike—but only the vital P-P test tells you which is the better buy. Because the P-P (Potency-Price) test takes the guesswork out of buying vitamin products. Look at the potency of a vitamin product. Then look at the price. It's the only intelligent way to buy vitamins.

And that's why so many people prefer St. Clair Vitamins. St. Clair's P-P rating is better than good. Potency is high, price is low—the ideal combination. St. Clair has it. Give ALL St. Clair Vitamins the P-P test. It takes just a moment to prove you save money. And St. Clair Vitamins are developed in one of the leading reputable chemical laboratories—so they are authentic, safe and effective.



"I thought all Vitamin B-Complex Products were alike until I gave St. Clair the P-P test"

B_1 (Thiamin) 1500 gammas or 500 U.S.P. units
B_2(G) Riboflavin—1000 gammas or 333 U.S.P. units
B_6 (Pyridoxine)—250 gammas
Calcium Pantothenate—1000 gammas or micrograms
Niacin—10,000 gammas or micrograms

ARE YOU TROUBLED WITH . . .
• Nervousness • Constipation • Weakness • Fatigue • Neuritis • Loss of appetite • Skin disorders • Faulty memory

It's a scientific fact now—backed by clinical evidence—that whole, natural Vitamin B Complex is superior in helping to prevent and correct the above symptoms when due to mild lack of Vitamin B.

St. Clair is whole, natural Vitamin B fortified to probably the highest potency on the market. Yet the P-P test shows you save up to $2.50 per 100 capsules. St. Clair Natural B Complex is only $4.50 for 100 days supply. Let this natural Vitamin B Complex help give you the pep and vitality you need to enjoy life. Order now. 1,700 EXCHANGE OLD NICKELS FOR NEW AT TRIBUNE

More than 1,700 persons called at THE TRIBUNE's public service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and in Tribune Tower yesterday to exchange old five cent pieces containing 25 per cent nickel for the new nickelless ones. By 3:45 p. m. the supply of 5,000 nickels was exhausted, John Gillespie, director of the offices, said, and announced that a new supply is expected Tuesday. The first supply of new nickels reached Chicago on Friday.

Old nickels totaling $42 were exchanged at the offices for currency or other coins. In delivering yesterday's editions, Tribune drivers collected $164 in old nickels from newsstands.

Most persons asked to exchange only two or three nickels in deference to the limit of five set because of the small supply, Gillespie said. Several evidently were coin collectors for they asked for new nickels with the mark of a particular mint, Denver, San Francisco or Philadelphia.

Except for the larger mint marks, the design of the new coins is the same as that of the Jefferson nickels.

CHRISTMAS MAIL FOR TROOPS LOST WITH SHIP AT SEA

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—The army postal service announced today that 4,986 sacks of United States mail bound for American armed forces in the British Isles had been lost in the sinking of a united nations cargo ship.

The war department said that the lost mail was deposited in the United States during the latter part of September. Mails reaching the New York port of debarkation army post office later than Oct. 3 were not included in this particular shipment.

The war department said that announcement of the loss should enable persons who mailed Christmas gifts and other classes of mail to Great Britain during the approximate period indicated "to be guided accordingly." Previous announcements said gifts for men overseas should be mailed before Nov. 1.

NO TRACE FOUND OF RICKENBACKER IN 3 DAY SEARCH

Planes, Ships Continue to Scour Pacific.

HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 24 (AP).—Three days of intensive search by all available army and navy sky and sea forces failed to uncover a trace tonight of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, American ace of World War I., and the crew of a big army plane that disappeared over Hawaiian waters.

Searchers hung their hopes on finding Capt. Rickenbacker and his crew of perhaps nine men floating on life rafts that the plane carried. This type of aircraft sinks quickly. But aviators in the Pacific war have been picked up from similar rafts weeks after their planes have gone down.

Wife Is Confident.

While military authorities talked little about the quest beyond saying it was continuing with all available forces, the greatest note of hope came from Rickenbacker's wife in New York.

"Eddie will turn up," she said. "He's too old a hand to get lost in any airplane now."

Rickenbacker survived the crash of an airliner near Atlanta, Ga., two years ago and returned to the air as soon as his broken bones were healed. Others among the passengers and crew were killed. In the first World war Rickenbacker shot down 21 German planes.

On Tour for Arnold.

He was in the Pacific on an aerial inspection tour for Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, army air force commander, similar to his recent trip to England.

His plane was last heard from on Wednesday evening, when the pilot radioed that only one hour's supply of gasoline remained in her tanks. Indications were the craft was apparently lost on a flight from Oahu Island.

Brief army announcements did not give the location of the search, but hunting forces came from the southwest Hawaiians.

Names of the plane's personnel were not made public. Army officers here said at least 10 persons were on board for the flight, including the crew.

PUBLIC TO GET SECOND RATION BOOK BY JAN. 1

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—The Office of Price Administration announced tonight that printing of 150 million copies of the new universal ration books designed to handle and ration program which arises, will start in a few days. War ration book No. 2 will be in the hands of the public, OPA said, about the first of the year.

Two complete ration programs can be handled for at least six months by the new book, first of a series of three or four to be issued.

Each book contains eight pages of 24 coupons. Half the pages are colored red, half green. Every coupon bears a number and a letter. Coupons in the top row bear the numeral 8, the second row 5, the third row 2, and bottom row 1. The combination of color, number, and letter will permit great variation in use. Under a point rationing system, for instance, a stamp numbered 2 might buy two pounds of a rationed commodity, the stamp number 5, five pounds. Different colored stamps could be used for each commodity.

BROOKS STANDS ON HIS 2 YEAR SENATE RECORD

Keeps Pledges and Helps Push War.

Sen. Wayland Brooks tomorrow will enter the final week of a campaign which he believes will answer affirmatively this question:

"Will Illinois voters return to the senate a man who has kept all his pledges, has actively supported legislation to further the war effort and assist the armed forces, and who before Pearl Harbor opposed aggressively all measures he believed were leading this nation into war?"

When Brooks took his senate seat two years ago he did so solemnly and with the knowledge he was facing a serious handicap. He had great work to do and the time was short.

He was a freshman senator and lacked even the advantage of having been elected to a six year term. Filling out the term of the late Sen. J. Hamilton Lewis, Brooks had been elected for only two years.

Senator Speaks Out.

And by all the rules he should have been seen, not heard. Instead, knowing the country was in danger, he spoke out. Mr. Brooks' two year record in Washington has made senatorial history. Time and again he has spoken out with the crusading zeal he inherited from his father, the Rev. Jonas Gardner Brooks, a circuit riding Wesleyan Methodist minister.

The same courage with which he faced enemy bullets in Belleau wood and before Soissons as a marine corps private, and later as a lieutenant, stood him in good stead when he upset senate tradition.

In his campaign, Brooks pledged that he would do everything in his power to develop the strongest national defense, and, if possible, to prevent this country from becoming a shooting participant in the war that had embroiled Europe.

"When I took my seat," he said in Chicago this week, "I was interested primarily in our military equipment and defenses. I knew that the only way to learn first hand what the government was doing was to get on the committees handling vital matters.

On Important Committees.

"Railroads, the telephone, telegraph, radio, and all channels of communication are important to defense. I therefore sought and received appointment to the interstate commerce committee. I got on the appropriations committee to learn what we were doing about defense equipment. I was appointed also to the agriculture, war department, independent offices, and deficiencies subcommittees, of which the deficiencies was most important.

"It is to this committee that every branch of the government must go for additional money over the regularly appropriated sums. I sought out officers of the army, navy, and marines for independent and individual information and recommendations on the needs of the armed forces. By this means and by service on the committees I learned how inadequate were our defenses."

Brooks joined repeatedly with other senators—and later took the lead himself—in appropriating sums exceeding those recommended for national defense by the bureau of budgets and approved by the President.

"And I opposed measures I believed dangerous," the senator continued. "I opposed the lend-lease bill. I opposed arming our merchant ships and sending them into enemy waters, loaded with the contraband of war.

"I opposed extension of the draft because I believed it and these other measures were part of a program that was leading us toward shooting participation in a foreign war."

Here Brooks called attention to the Republican national platform of 1940, which said the party favored aiding those countries which were fighting for democracy and whose ideals most nearly resemble our own.

"I fulfilled all my pledges to help build our defenses," said Sen. Brooks. "I said I was willing to vote money to those nations, some of them now our allies, to help them defend themselves.

"But I did not want to help build a system wherein one man would distribute this appropriated aid. Such a system would make that one man the director of the war."

Votes for War Measures.

The senator then replied to charges frequently made that he is a complete isolationist.

"No one who will vote funds to help other nations defend themselves is a complete isolationist," he said. "I was opposed only to this nation becoming an active participant. When congress had debated and passed the lend-lease bill and our policy had become established I voted for the first and second lend-lease appropriations amounting to 13 billion dollars. Those were not the acts of a complete isolationist.

"And when the attack came I said that all discussion of avoiding participation had ended. I voted to declare war on Japan. I called for national unity. I voted for every measure to further our fight toward victory. I voted for war on Germany and Italy."

Sen. Brooks has consistently voted for measures intended to improve the lot of those called to active military service. He introduced the original amendment to provide free postage for service men.

He helped pass the bills that increased the pay of service men and increased the allotments to their dependents. He also helped lead the fight to insure the immediate payment of those allotments to prevent their loved ones from becoming destitute by unwarranted delay.

Record on Poll Tax.

It was his courage and alertness that eliminated the necessity for payment of poll tax by soldiers and sailors from eight southern states in order that they might vote.

When the soldier vote bill was passed by the house it was hinted by senators from the poll tax states that the measure would not be allowed to pass the senate if it should contain any provision for knocking out the poll tax.

The senate committee on privileges and elections therefore worked out an amendment satisfactory to the poll tax state senators and thus the bill came to the senate. Meanwhile Sen. Claude Pepper [D., Fla.] indicated that at the proper time he would introduce an amendment eliminating the tax.

Pepper had this amendment printed. It was generally understood, however, that the Pepper measure would be presented only after the committee amendments had been considered and that the poll tax senators would urge it not be pressed, first because it would tend to delay the bill and, second, because Pepper had another bill pending before the senate judiciary committee covering the poll tax issue in general.

Forces Poll Tax Showdown.

When the bill was called up, therefore, Brooks acted. Presenting the body of Pepper's prepared amendment as a perfecting amendment to the first committee amendment, Sen. Brooks halted all consideration of the bill itself until the poll tax matter was disposed of. A perfecting amendment is not subject to further amendment, nor can any other measure be substituted for it.

Replying to charges that he misappropriated Pepper's amendment, Sen. Brooks says flatly: "I did not cross out any name nor substiute my name for any one else's name on that amendment. Any reproduction that may have been circulated, purporting to show my handwriting on a copy of that amendment, is false. No substitution was made by me or any one acting on my authority."

It is believed now that a senate clerk, working from a printed copy of Pepper's amendment, substituted Sen. Brooks' name before sending the measure to the printer for inclusion in the Congressional Record.

From the very first, Brooks' acts in the senate have been those of a statesman. They early earned for him the regard of such distinguished senators as Hiram Johnson [Cal.], Charles L. McNary [Ore.] the Republican floor leader, Robert A. Taft [O.], Arthur H. Vandenberg [Mich.], and Arthur Capper [Kas.]. And his appointment to the important committees and subcommittees on which he served is eloquent testimony of the esteem in which he is held.

Sen. Brooks is a native Illinoisan, having been born 45 years ago near Wyanet in Bureau county. The Rev. Mr. Brooks moved the family to Dixon when the son was 5 years old. After attending grammar school there and in Peoria, Kewanee, and Neponset, he was graduated from the Wheaton High school and was a freshman at the University of Illinois when the war interrupted his schooling in 1917.

In June, 1918, during the battle of Belleau wood, Brooks won recognition for bravery and was decorated by Gen. John J. Pershing with the distinguished service cross and was commissioned a second lieutenant. Before the engagement ended he had won the Croix de Guerre and the American navy medal. The following month, while one of the command of 97th company, 6th marines, Lieut. Brooks was gravely wounded.

Retired as a first lieutenant, he later was awarded the Purple Heart. Serving with him in World War I. were the Rev. Mr. Brooks and two brothers, Lawrence and Russell. The latter died in service overseas.

After the war, Sen. Brooks completed his law course at Northwestern university. In 1926, when Chicago was in the grip of lawless prohibition era mobs and street shootings and kidnapings were almost daily occurrences, Brooks was appointed an assistant state's attorney and served seven years. He earned a reputation as a fearless prosecutor.

After completing his service in the state's attorney's office, he resumed the practice of law. He also owns and operates a farm in La Salle county, which has given him first hand and practical knowledge of not only the farm problem as such, but the all important man power problem in its relation to the production of food, one of the most vital weapons in every war.

Shortly after his return from France, Brooks married Miss Gertrude Ackerly. They have one son, named for the senator's late brother, Russell Brooks.

BROOKS LEADING STRAW POLL IN 21 MORE CITIES

New Canvass Gives Him 3 to 2 Margin.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

As the campaign swings into its final nine days of activity, straws collected in 21 new downstate cities in today's table of the Tribune straw vote, continue to indicate a rising tide for the Republicans. A total of 105,578 straws has been given in 12 days' tables on the senatorship, and each of the tabulations has indicated the trend, with some changes in percentages, up or down, as the poll has progressed.

Sen. Wayland Brooks [R.] has 59.6 per cent of the 4,743 straws from 21 new cities in today's results. Raymond S. McKeough, his Democratic opponent, has 40.4 per cent. In 1940, the same cities on election day gave Brooks 55 per cent of their combined vote. The straws indicate a jump of 4.6 percentage ponts for Brooks in this group of cities over his 1940 poll on election day.

Poll Covers 164 Cities.

All told 164 downstate cities have been covered in the tables. Of 53,404 straws collected, 58.6 per cent have been marked for Brooks and 41.4 for McKeough. In these same 164 cities in 1940, Brooks on election day got 53 per cent of the combined vote. The straws thus indicate a gain for Brooks of 5.6 percentage points over election day, 1940, in these 164 municipalies.

New Chicago straws, 2,836 of them, in today's table bring Brooks' percentage down a trifle. He now has 45 per cent of Chicago's total 44,467 straws given in 11 days' tabulations. Yesterday his share of the Chicago straws was 45.1. When elected in 1940, Brooks got 44 per cent of the vote cast in Chicago, so in the straws he is indicated to be up one percentage notch.

Three new Cook county suburbs in the table with 698 straws give Brooks 54.7, where in 1940 he had 56 per cent of the votes on election day. In 29 suburbs, out of a total of 7,707 straws, Brooks has 59.2 per cent; McKeough, 40.8 per cent. Two years ago Brooks had 61 per cent of the combined vote cast in these suburbs.

Balanced Table Presented.

Today's table is pretty well balanced, the proportion of straws from Chicago, the suburbs, and downstate being almost the same as the share of the total Illinois vote each of these areas cast in the 1940 election. The totals are:

The straw totals:

	Brooks. Straws.	Brooks. %.	McKeough. Straws.	McKeough. %.
Chicago	20,034	45.0	24,433	55.0
County suburbs	4,565	59.2	3,142	40.8
Total	55,847	52.9	49,731	47.1

If these percentages are applied to the vote cast on senator in 1938, the last off-year election in these three divisions, they indicate a projected plurality in Chicago, home of the Democratic machine, for McKeough of 139,000 and a plurality for Brooks in suburban Cook county of 44,000. This would indicate a Cook county plurality for McKeough of 95,000. Downstate the straws give Brooks an indicated plurality outside Cook county of 266,000, which would give him a projected plurality of 171,000 in Illinois.

Vote May Be Larger.

The percentages, of course, are subject to change as the straws come breezing in. Whether a larger vote will be cast this year than in 1938, or whether it will be lighter due to the absence of many voters in the armed forces or in war plants outside their home cities, is a burning question among the politicians. A large increase of registration, especially in rural downstate, is regarded by many as indicative of an interest in the election that may swell the total vote above the 1938 mark.

The high registration downstate, almost a quarter of a million greater than the total vote cast in 1938, spreads over the heavily Republican northern counties, into the central corn belt and westward thru the military tract, and in southern Illinois, largely Democratic, into Egypt. The poll indicates it is reflected in the straw voting.

In Lake county a series of straw canvasses indicates that Brooks is running well in the industrial vote. Three polls were made in Waukegan. One downtown among afternoon shoppers on streets and in stores, gave Brooks 58 per cent of the straws. Another at the Johns-Manville plant on the lake front as the afternoon shift quit and the night shift came on gave Brooks 47 per cent; McKeough, 53 per cent.

Brooks Gets 56 Per Cent.

A poll at the Johnson Motor plant at the afternoon shift hour change was 50-50. The three polls combined gave Brooks 56 per cent of 766 straws. He carried Waukegan in the 1940 election with 54 per cent of the actual votes.

Four separate polls were taken in North Chicago, three of them factory canvasses. In this industrial city a store to store canvass of shoppers gave Brooks 62 per cent of the straws. A poll at the American Can company plant gave him 80 per cent of 40 straws. At the Abbott Laboratories, where blood received from Chicago is processed for the Red Cross, Brooks had 63 per cent of 112 straws. A poll at the Fansteel Metallurgical plant gave Brooks 65 per cent of 52 straws cast.

Of a combined total of 285 straws, 66 per cent were marked for Brooks. In the 1940 election Brooks lost the city, getting 35 per cent of the votes.

In Highland Park, in Lake county, Brooks got 66 per cent of 285 straws collected in the shopping district. In 1940 he carried this city with 68 per cent of the votes, the straws indicating a small drop for him.

More Returns from Tribune Poll

Below are additional tabulations in the state-wide straw vote being taken by The Tribune on the principal candidates for United States senator in Illinois. The tabulation shows the number of straws cast for Brooks and McKeough in the Chicago wards, Cook county towns outside Chicago, and downstate cities, and the percentages for each. For comparison the official election percentages by ward, city, or village on the 1940 Brooks-Slattery race and the 1938 Lyons-Lucas race also are included. The total Illinois percentages for 1938 and 1940 include only the figures for the cities in which this year's poll was taken.

UPSTATE CITIES BOOST DEWEY'S N. Y. POLL LEAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 24.—Buffalo and Rochester, respectively the second and third largest cities in New York state, showed heavy gains for Thomas E. Dewey in partial returns tabulated today in the New York News gubernatorial poll. The Republican nominee also improved his lead in New York City over John J. Bennett Jr., Democrat. Dewey's state-wide advantage has now reached a new peak of 59.3 per cent compared with Bennett's 35.9 per cent and only 4.8 per cent for the American Labor party candidate, Dean Alfange.

Thus far 28,314 straws have been tabulated in the state-wide poll, and of this total 13,795 were taken in New York City. Only 240 straws separate the two contestants in this metropolis.

Upstate, Dewey's gain in strength over his actual showing in 1938 remained constant, despite an average fractional drop from his 71.9 per cent of the previous day. He now has 10,438 straws, or 71.4 per cent to Bennett's 4,027, or 27.5 per cent, and Alfange's 1.1 per cent upstate. The totals for upstate and the city, in straws tabulated to date, follow:

State-Wide Straws.

Dewey	16,844
Bennett	10,193
Alfange	1,377

The gubernatorial poll results, which were tabulated yesterday, included Dewey's home town of Pawling and President Roosevelt's home town of Hyde Park, both in Dutchess county. In Hyde Park, the President's neighbors cast 10 straws for Bennett, 12 for Dewey, and one for Alfange. Hyde Park went 9 to 6 for Dewey against Lehman in 1938.

Lincolnwood Gets First Priority for New School

The first priority rating for construction of a school in Cook county has been granted by the War Production board for a new 15 room elementary school in Lincolnwood, Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools, announced yesterday. He said construction of the school, which will have a capacity of 300 students, is to start within a few weeks. The five acre tract is bounded on the east by Prairie avenue and on the south by Farwell avenue.

G. O. P. TRIUMPH INDICATED FROM COAST TO COAST

oters Seen 'Reasserting Their Common Sense.'

Y ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Rep. J. W. Ditter.

As the election campaign heads into ts final week there is increasing evidence that the Republicans will sweep the nation in the balloting on Nov. 3.

The Republican victory, as forecast by the latest information from all states outside the solid south, will embrace marked gains of Republican senators, congressmen, governors, and other state officers and members of legislature.

While the political battle waxes hotter on the platform, on the air, and in the newspapers as the G. O. P. presses the attack on the party in power at Washington and in numerous state capitals the only matter really remaining in doubt is the extent of the prospective Republican victory.

Democrats Resigned to Loss.

The Democratic national leadership, which started out a few weeks ago predicting gains of Democratic seats in both houses of congress which would be an incontestable vote of popular confidence in the Roosevelt administration's conduct of the war, has lapsed into silent acceptance of defeat. From the precincts of the Democratic national committee comes the unofficial admission that the Democrats will lose "15 to 20 seats" in the house, with no estimate of the result in the senate.

The most trustworthy information available indicates that the Republicans will gain 5 or 6 seats in the senate and at least 30 or 40 seats in the house. If the Republican trend which is visible in all parts of the country should prove to be a Republican landslide, the Republicans undoubtedly would gain more than the 52 seats necessary to give them control of the house.

Pin Hopes on Pacific Victory.

The one hope to which the Democratic leaders in many states are now clinging, according to the results of interviews by Tribune correspondents, is that a victory for American arms will be won in the Pacific and will influence the electorate to cast a vote of confidence in the administration.

In the light of the latest estimates from impartial sources it may be stated that the Republicans will sweep Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Wisconsin, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Kansas, California, Colorado, Oregon, South Dakota, and Wyoming.

Republican gains of lesser proportions may be expected in Delaware, Connecticut, Idaho, Missouri, Oregon, and Washington.

Michigan in Doubt.

Revised estimates place the result of the senatorship contest in Michigan in doubt. Sen. Prentiss M. Brown [D.] may win reëlection over his Republican opponent, Judge Homer Ferguson. Also in doubt are the battles for senator in New Jersey and Nebraska.

Rep. J. William Ditter [R., Pa.], chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee, said that a recently completed survey of the political situation from coast to coast indicates that the Republicans will gain not less than 35 seats in the house. Such a gain would give the Republicans 201 of the 435 seats, 17 short of a majority. Asked to what he ascribes the Republican upswing, Rep. Ditter replied:

"It is simply a reassertion of the common sense of the American family. Wars are not won by ideologies, or by theories or by philosophies. Wars are won by hard work, by common sense, and, as Winston Churchill said, by blood, sweat, toil, and tears. I say conservatively that we will gain 35 seats.

Bad News for the Axis.

"The notable Republican victories that will be announced on election night will be bad news for Hitler, Mussolini, and Hirohito. The election of Republican congressmen, senators, and governors will mean to these European and Asiatic gangsters that the war will now be prosecuted with vigor and efficiency unimpeded by New Deal social experimentation.

"It will mean to our enemies that there has come into being a strongly Republican congress determined to uphold our army and navy, to speed their equipment, to see to it that our fighting men get what they want and get it promptly. We are determined to take politics out of war and put fighting in its place.

"It will make clear to Germany, Italy and Japan that the Constitution of the United States has not been suspended; that we have not abdicated our basic freedom even for the duration of the war; that state socialism will be destroyed in America, and that there has been restored that foundation upon which government of the people, by the people and for the people was erected by our forefathers."

According to the testimony of the majority of the Democratic as well as the Republican leaders I interviewed in a survey of the political situation in 30 states, there are two outstanding reasons for the impending defeat of the party in power. One is the dissatisfaction with the conduct of the war by the Roosevelt administration, which permeates all classes and conditions of the population and weakens the Democrats even where they are the strongest—in the large cities where boss-driven political machines and the labor vote long have been the mainstay of the New Deal.

New Deal Loses Farm Vote.

The other reason is the widespread reaction of the farmers against the Roosevelt administration because of the prolabor course it pursued in legislation to curb inflation. The President's Labor day speech and succeeding acts and utterances convinced the farmers that the administration was bent upon establishing a statutory ceiling on farm product prices while placing no real ceiling on wages. Their conclusion that the President was coddling labor at the expense of agriculture has cost the administration the farm vote in this election.

In virtually every state I toured I found Democratic leaders ascribing their troubles in this election to these two causes in the main. Other reasons included the drift of working men to war industries in other states or communities in which they are not qualified to vote; the long distances traveled to and from war industries which make it inconvenient or impossible for workers to vote, and the prosperity of the war workers which makes them less interested in voting.

The dissatisfaction with the conduct of the war, as described by Democratic leaders themselves, amounts to an indictment of the administration for the Pearl Harbor disaster, the destruction of our air force in the Philippines 10 hours after Pearl Harbor, the tragedy of Bataan, the long series of reverses in the South Pacific for which the Coral sea and Midway victories but partially atoned, and the loss of 500 merchant ships to axis submarines off our Atlantic coast.

G. O. P. NOMINEES TO CONFER WITH 3 TAX EXPERTS

The problems of local taxation and financing will be discussed at a conference tomorrow morning in the La Salle hotel, attended by all the Republican nominees and three civic tax experts, John T. Dempsey, chairman of the Republican county central committee, announced yesterday.

Newton C. Farr, president of the Civic Federation; Arthur R. Keiser, chairman of the tax committee of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, and Morgan Fitch, past president and chairman of the taxation committee of the Chicago Real Estate board, will survey the problems facing the county and offer their solutions.

"The conference is the logical step by which to acquaint our Republican candidates with the views of these highly qualified men and their organizations," Dempsey said. "We are going to be ready to put a sensible program in operation."

Report Czech Arms Plant Workers Slain by Nazis

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP).—A Reuters [British news agency] dispatch from somewhere on the German frontier said today that all the workers of one department of a Skoda arms factory in Czecho-Slovakia had been reported shot together with their families for anti-German sabotage.

DOOM NEARING FOR KELLY-NASH, BROOKS ASSERTS

Cheering Crowd of 2,500 Hears Machine Rapped.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 24 [Special].—Sen. Wayland Brooks, addressing a cheering crowd of 2,500 Republicans and Democrats tonight denounced the Kelly-Nash political organization as a "rotten machine" and predicted that it soon would meet its doom.

He spoke in the Elks club auditorium after an introduction by Gov. Dwight H. Green, and his speech was carried by a score of downstate radio stations. He spoke under the auspices of the Sangamon county regular Republican organization.

In predicting that the organization was near the end of its rope, Brooks asserted that the people would revolt on Nov. 3 and that the election would be a powerful blow toward its disintegration.

Calls Story Sordid.

"Its story," he said, "is the sordid story of all such crooked political combinations. Sooner or later they fall to pieces under the weight of their own abuses of power, their betrayal of the people."

Turning to the campaign activities of one of the machine's titular leaders, he said:

"Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago, head of the political commandos directed by the rotten machine, declares that political activity is treasonous for loyal Americans. Meanwhile, he rushes around the state to bolster up the waning powers of his organization.

"In his attempt to control Illinois' representation in congress he uses the war to attempt to deny people true representation. The Kelly-Nash machine and its subservient candidates have no issue; therefore, they are charging all who would vote for the preservation of our two party system with disloyalty and with aiding Hitler."

States His Prewar Stand.

Of his record in connection with the war effort Brooks declared:

"The whole world is now plunged into the worst armed conflict in the history of mankind. I pledged that I would do everything in my power to keep our country out of the shooting wars growing out of the ancient hatreds of the old world. I kept my word to the people in every detail."

This statement met with loud applause and shouts of "You're right, that's it, you're right!" Brooks continued:

"As a member of the appropriations committee of the senate, on which I made certain to get a place, I obtained the information about the state of our national defense. And I voted more millions for national defense than they ever asked for—more millions to build up our national defense than all our government cost since the day George Washington took office."

Halted by Applause Again.

He was halted again by applause, then added:

"And I voted that way before Pearl Harbor, at that!"

Speaking again of the machine, he said:

"They cry for allegiance to the President. Well, as a soldier of World War I., I know something about allegiance. We as citizens owe our allegiance to the President.

"I voted great powers to the President—did it because of the war. I know what it takes to fight and win a war. But when the war is over, I'll fight to take those powers back again for the people."

Gov. Green went all out for Brooks in his introduction, declaring:

"Senator Brooks has been a great credit to the state of Illinois. He has had the courage to vote and to speak in the senate during the last two years as his conscience as a soldier in World War I. and a commanding young statesman dictated to him."

Meets Well Wishers on Road.

Repeated evidences of the senator's overwhelming popularity with men and women in all walks of life were revealed earlier today during his motor trip from Chicago to Springfield.

All along the route he met smiles of welcome, hand wavings, and hand clasps from well wishers. Farmers, merchants, gas station operators, and men and women who run little roadside stands all had words of encouragement for him.

Talk at Luncheon

WAR BOND GOAL: 60 MILLIONS FOR 6 NEW CRUISERS

Enough war bond sales to build six cruisers is the objective set by the Illinois War Savings staff for October, according to Norman B. Collins, state administrator.

Concurrently, the navy recruiting service is carrying on a campaign to recruit enough men to man the six cruisers, Collins stated.

"Sales of war bonds in Illinois this month are running approximately $2,000,000 ahead of the comparable period in September," said Collins, "but it will require energetic measures during the remaining month-end war bond 'V-days' to attain our goal."

The six cruiser goal will require $60,000,000. This is $2,500,000 in excess of the October quota set by the Treasury department and can be attained by coöperation from wage earners and large individual and institutional buyers, Collins said.

400 IDLE IN MINE FIRE.

NEGRO CHURCH LEADER CALLS FOR G. O. P. VOTES

Hails Brooks; Blasts U. S. Suit Against AP.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 24.—Dr. D. V. Jamison, president of the National Baptist convention, today called upon Negroes to vote for Republican candidates for congress as the only way for colored people to secure justice and freedom.

Speaking before the New York state Baptist convention in Union Baptist church here, the Negro church leader said Negroes cannot hope to obtain constitutional rights from the Democratic party because it is controled by the solid south of racial discrimination and segregation.

"I unreservedly indorse the appeal of Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro council, to colored voters in the north to elect a Republican majority to the house of representatives, which will elevate Rep. Joseph Martin [R., Mass.] to the speakership instead of Rep. Sam Rayburn [D., Tex.], who represents a poll tax state," he said.

Southern Restrictions Charged.

"The Democratic party is controled by the solid south more than ever today and the only way for the colored people to secure justice and freedom from 'Jim Crow' segregation, abuse of soldiers in southern camps, denial of equal educational opportunities, adequate health services, employment in war industries, and protection in colored communities is to return to the Republican party.

"We stand back of the National Negro council's indorsement of Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.], who gave the colored man his greatest gift since Abraham Lincoln promulgated emancipation, by his successful support of the anti-poll tax amendment to the soldier's vote law. We call for the election of such Republican candidates as Thomas E. Dewey for governor of New York, John Bricker for governor of Ohio, Edward Martin for governor of Pennsylvania, and Albert W. Hanks for senator from New Jersey because his opponent, Sen. William H. Smathers [D., N. J.] voted against the anti-poll tax amendment."

Denounces Suit Against AP.

Dr. Jamison denounced the New Deal anti-trust action brought against the Associated Press as dangerous tampering with freedom of the press, declaring the department of justice might better serve the country by halting lynchings. He added:

"It is most fitting and proper as the spokesman for millions of churchmen and women in all sections of the country, many of them already denied the fundamental right to exercise their franchise, particularly in the southern states, that religious people should look with grave apprehension upon any action by the government such as its recent suit against the Associated Press, which might subsequently, by court decision, lead to governmental regulation in the publication of news.

"It appears that the United States department of justice could better serve the public interest thru the initiation of legal steps to implement the 13th, 14th, and 15th amendments to the constitution and guarantee the rights of all Americans to vote regardless of race, creed, or color. It would be most timely for the justice department to ferret out the perpetrators of three recent lynchings in Mississippi—two of them 14 year old boys."

BROOKS WILL GET WIDER EDGE THAN IN 1940: LOWDEN

G.O.P. Senate Gains Seen by Former Governor.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oregon, Ill., Oct. 24.—Reëlection of Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.] and substantial Republican senate gains in the Nov. 3 balloting were predicted today by former Gov. Frank O. Lowden. Lowden advocated the election of a Republican house as a means of bolstering public confidence in the government.

Frank O. Lowden.

Illinois' governor from 1917-'21 sat before a fragrant wood fire in his English type manor house on Sinnissippi farm near here and talked of the war, the elections, and the threat to the nation's food supply inherent in the farm labor shortage.

Beyond the diamond paned windows the Rock river slipped along among low hills, brilliant in yellows, crimsons, and browns of autumn.

Feels Man Power Shortage.

These rich acres—4,500 of them—which make up the Lowden fields and grazing lands already are feeling the man power shortage. But it is not this that most concerns the governor of World War I. days. With him the direct prosecution of World War II. comes first.

"The two great parties are almost equal in strength," he began. "Both are committed to the prosecution of the war to a successful finish. In my opinion, it is to the best interest of the country that the Republicans should have a majority in the next house.

"The senate, undoubtedly, will remain Democratic, tho we shall, I think, make substantial gains. The spectacle of a Republican house and a Democratic senate uniting in every well considered war effort would, I think, restore the confidence of the people in the various war activities of the government.

Indorses Brooks Candidacy.

"I shall unreservedly and wholeheartedly support the Republican ticket," he added.

The veteran leader warmly indorsed Sen. Brooks' candidacy, adding:

"I believe Brooks will win by a larger majority than he received in 1940. He has made a spectacular record in his two years as a young senator. He has gotten things done and the people know this. It would be outrageous if they did not send him back."

UNION MEMBERS URGING REMOVAL OF TAX ON FOOD

Milk Drivers Call for Votes on Issue.

Officials of the Milk Wagon Drivers union disclosed yesterday that members have been urged to use their contracts with the public to aid in the campaign to eliminate the sales tax on food. They said that the public must be instructed to vote "Yes" for the proposed amendment to the state constitution on Nov. 3, or the proposal will be defeated.

"In the great clash of the Republican and Democratic candidates, the movement to get the sales tax lifted from food has been virtually forgotten," said Thomas J. Haggerty, secretary treasurer of the union.

"Unless our drive is successful, there is danger that hundreds of thousands of voters will not be alert to vote on the amendment and that it will for this reason alone be defeated."

F. Ray Bryant, business representative of the union, said that the proposal and explanation as they appear in the first column on the ballot are apt to confuse the average voter.

Haggerty said that the milk wagon drivers have a special interest in elimination of the tax. Over the period of seven years that the sales tax—officially the retailers' occupational tax—has been in effect, many consumers have refused to pay it. Rather than lose customers, some drivers have paid the tax out of pocket, he said.

THE PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO SECTION 1, ARTICLE IX, OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF ILLINOIS:

EXPLANATION OF PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The proposed Section 1 of Article IX of the Constitution differs from the present Section 1 of Article IX only by reason of the addition of the second paragraph, which is entirely new and which provides that the General Assembly shall have the power, in imposing an occupation or privilege tax, to exempt the business of selling food for human consumption, and gives the General Assembly the power to define the word "food."

ABSENTEE BALLOTS WILL GO TO 10,000, BOARD ESTIMATES

Absentee ballots are being mailed out of the board of election commissioners office at the rate of 1,500 a day, mostly to men in the armed forces all over the world. Carl Schroeder, in charge of the operation, said that Oct. 29 is the deadline for applications for absentee ballots. Approximately 10,000 will be used, he said.

Sen. Wayland Brooks will be the guest of honor at a breakfast in Springfield today which will be attended by labor officials and other civic leaders of central Illinois. After the breakfast, a conference will be held.

Representatives of the Non-Partisan Women's committee will tell why they have chosen Peter B. Carey, Democratic nominee, to support for sheriff on radio station WBBM from 9:45 to 10 p. m. tonight.

More than 500 members of the Chicago Board of Trade Non-Partisan league, another Democratic organization supporting Carey for sheriff, have volunteered their services as watchers at the polls on Nov. 3, Carey's office reported yesterday. Carey announced that at 3:30 p. m. today he will reveal his plans for improvements in the administration of the sheriff's office over radio station WJJD. The office has been held by Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien, also a Democrat.

WAR VET GROUP CALLS M'KEOUGH SLACKER IN 1917

Leaders in 11 Bodies Ask Support of Brooks.

Officials of 11 war veteran organizations last night issued a joint statement describing the Kelly-Nash-McKeough machine as a group of "platform patriots" and branding R. S. McKeough, the Democratic nominee for senator, as "a slacker in the first World war."

The statement was issued after a meeting held in the Morrison hotel. It denounced the frantic attempts of the Democratic machine to smear Sen. Wayland Brooks, the Republican nominee, with whom many of the veterans served in the first World war.

"Look at the records of these Kelly-Nash-McKeough platform patriots who are shouting about their loyalty and love of country," the statement said. "They wrap themselves in cloaks of patriotism and parade as the copyright owners of all things American. Yet they and their boys in the back room continue to do business as usual.

Ask: "Where Was McKeough?"

"What loyalty did McKeough offer to his country in 1917? Four and one-half million American young men were willing to make sacrifices for their country. But McKeough was not one of them.

"The present crisis calls for men in the congress of the United States whose hearts are with—have always been with—the young men on the fighting fronts; it calls for leaders who know first hand what it has cost to keep America free.

Rap Political Opportunists.

"McKeough was found wanting in 1917. Now he brings out the flag and drapes it about himself while he parades at the head of the motley army of political opportunists and shouts about loyalty until tears come to his eyes."

Signers of the statement were: Fred Emich, president of the Wounded Veterans of the A. E. F.; Frank Prete, chairman of the Distinguished Service Cross association; Abraham Greenfield, past state commander, Veterans of Foreign Wars; William F. Waugh, past state commander of the American Legion; William M. Devine, past Chef de Gare, Voiture 220, Forty and Eight; Ed Dowling, past commander Marine post, American Legion; Glenn Suthers, chairman Service Men's league; William Richards, past commander Military Order of the Purple Heart; Ed Clamage, chairman Past Commanders club; A. W. Kuehne, chairman Disabled American Veterans, and Col. James White, chairman of the Service committee of the Spanish American War veterans.

WOMEN DEMOCRATS HEAR M'KEOUGH AND KELLY AT LUNCHEON

More than 2,400 members of the Federation of Illinois Woman's Democratic clubs, about 50 from each ward, attended a luncheon in the Hotel Sherman yesterday for candidates of the Democratic party in the Nov. 3 elections.

R. S. McKeough, candidate for United States senator; W. D. Forsyth, who is running for state treasurer, and Benjamin S. Adamowski, candidate for representative at large in congress, were the principal speakers. All three lauded New Deal policies, urged "the continuance of patriotic Illinois standards set by Lincoln and Douglas" by an overwhelming Democratic vote on Nov. 3, and repeated their attacks on THE TRIBUNE.

Mayor Kelly prefaced the candidates' speeches by calling the federation members "minute women of the country" and urging support of President Roosevelt.

NAVY DAY JOINED WITH OPENING OF A NEW STATE ST.

Dual Celebration Planned in Chicago Tuesday.

The official end of the city's "Burma Road" and the official opening of a renovated and repaved State street will be joined to the customary pomp and ceremony of Navy day in Chicago Tuesday. The State Street council and the Navy League of the United States, co-sponsors of the program, expect it to be the biggest Navy day celebration in the city's history.

The program will include a parade of more than 6,000 sailors, marines, coast guardsmen, and WAVES from Columbus drive to the city hall by way of State and Madison streets, the public induction of two squads of potential navy flyers, and a banquet in the evening at the La Salle hotel with Adm. Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States fleet, as special guest.

Symbolic Reopening.

When the parade reaches State and Madison streets it will pause for the symbolic reopening of the street which has been identified with Chicago's history for 110 years. Cables stretched across the intersection will be cut by Sheldon Clark, president of the Navy league, assisted by coast guardsmen.

"We will be very proud to have State street opened by representatives of the Chicago area's great numbers of naval units," David Mayer Jr., chairman of the board of directors of the State Street council, said yesterday. "The street has been torn up for a year and a half, but we are pleased to report it has been completed long before it was expected."

Green, Kelly to Appear.

Besides Mayer, participants in the opening ceremony will be Gov. Green, Mayor Kelly, George M. Weichelt, president of the Navy day parade committee; Elmer T. Stevens, president of the State Street council, and Barrett Wendell, chairman of the Illinois Navy day committee.

Fifty men will be inducted into the naval air forces by Lieut. Comm. Carl G. Olson, senior member of the Chicago naval aviation cadet selection board, at the reviewing stand on the La Salle street side of the city hall.

The parade will include recently enlisted naval aviation cadets, midshipmen from Abbott hall, marines and sailors from the Navy Pier, and coast guardsmen and their equipment drawn by jeeps. Fourteen navy planes from the Glenview training base will circle overhead and a display of fireworks is tentatively planned by the council.

Several Bands to Play.

Music will be supplied by the band and drum and bugle corps from Navy Pier, the Chicago Police post of the American Legion drum and bugle corps, and bands from the University of Chicago signal and radio school, Abbott hall, and the Board of Trade post of the American Legion.

The parade will start at 10:30 a. m. The line of march will be from Columbus drive north on Michigan avenue to Randolph street, west on Randolph to State street, south on State to Jackson boulevard, west on Jackson to La Salle street, and north to Wacker drive, where marching units will disband.

OVEROPTIMISM ON TIRE OUTLOOK HIT BY JEFFERS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—Rubber Director William M. Jeffers spoke out today against overoptimism regarding the tire situation but said "everything possible is being done to keep this country on rubber."

Nation-wide gasoline rationing will not be postponed from Nov. 22, Jeffers said, adding there would be no exception in rationing for petroleum producing states.

The 35 mile speed limitation will apply to trucks and buses, the same as private automobiles, he continued. However, the speed limit may be increased some time in the future, he added, but emphasized the word "may." He described as "erroneous and misleading" reports that the rubber problem "has been licked and that tires for all will be available by Nov. 15."

DENOUNCE F. D. R. AIDS FOR FARM PRICE FLAUNTING

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—The senate agriculture committee today summoned the top command of the administration's economic stabilization program to appear Monday and answer complaints that statutory provisions to protect farm prices were being ignored.

The committee called Stabilization Director Byrnes, Price Administrator Henderson, and Secretary of Agriculture Wickard to testify after Senator Clyde M. Reed [R., Kas.] voiced strenuous complaints against policies being pursued. Other committee members joined in Reed's protest.

Declaring that he was "thoroly outraged by the lack of faith" in the administration of the program, Reed said he was aware the "dictatorship idea had made a lot of progress, but I'll be damned if I thought it had progressed to the point where the plain language of a law passed by congress could be ignored."

Chairman Ellison D. Smith [D., S. C.] commented, "You remember what Bismarck said—'You can pass the laws, but let me administer them, and I'll fix you.'"

LEND-LEASE RISES TO 643 MILLION RECORD IN MONTH

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—Lend-lease goods transferred and services rendered reached a new monthly high of 643 million dollars in September, Edward R. Stettinius Jr., lend-lease administrator, reported to President Roosevelt today.

This compares with approximately 600 million dollars in July and 565 millions in August. Of the total for September, 544 millions represented goods transferred — exported and awaiting export.

More than 75 per cent of these transfers were shown as military items and represented the highest dollar volume of such items to be provided under lend-lease in any month to date. Fifty-eight per cent of the August transfers were military items.

Community Fund Drive Nets 41 Pct. in 3d Week

Forty-one per cent of the $3,750,000 goal of the twelfth annual Chicago Community Fund campaign was reached yesterday at the close of the third week of the drive, Charles Y. Freeman, general chairman announced. Total gifts from all sources totaled $1,525,015.

"I'm planning an 18th Century Interior. Tell me..."
Better than that, we'll show you in Charm House

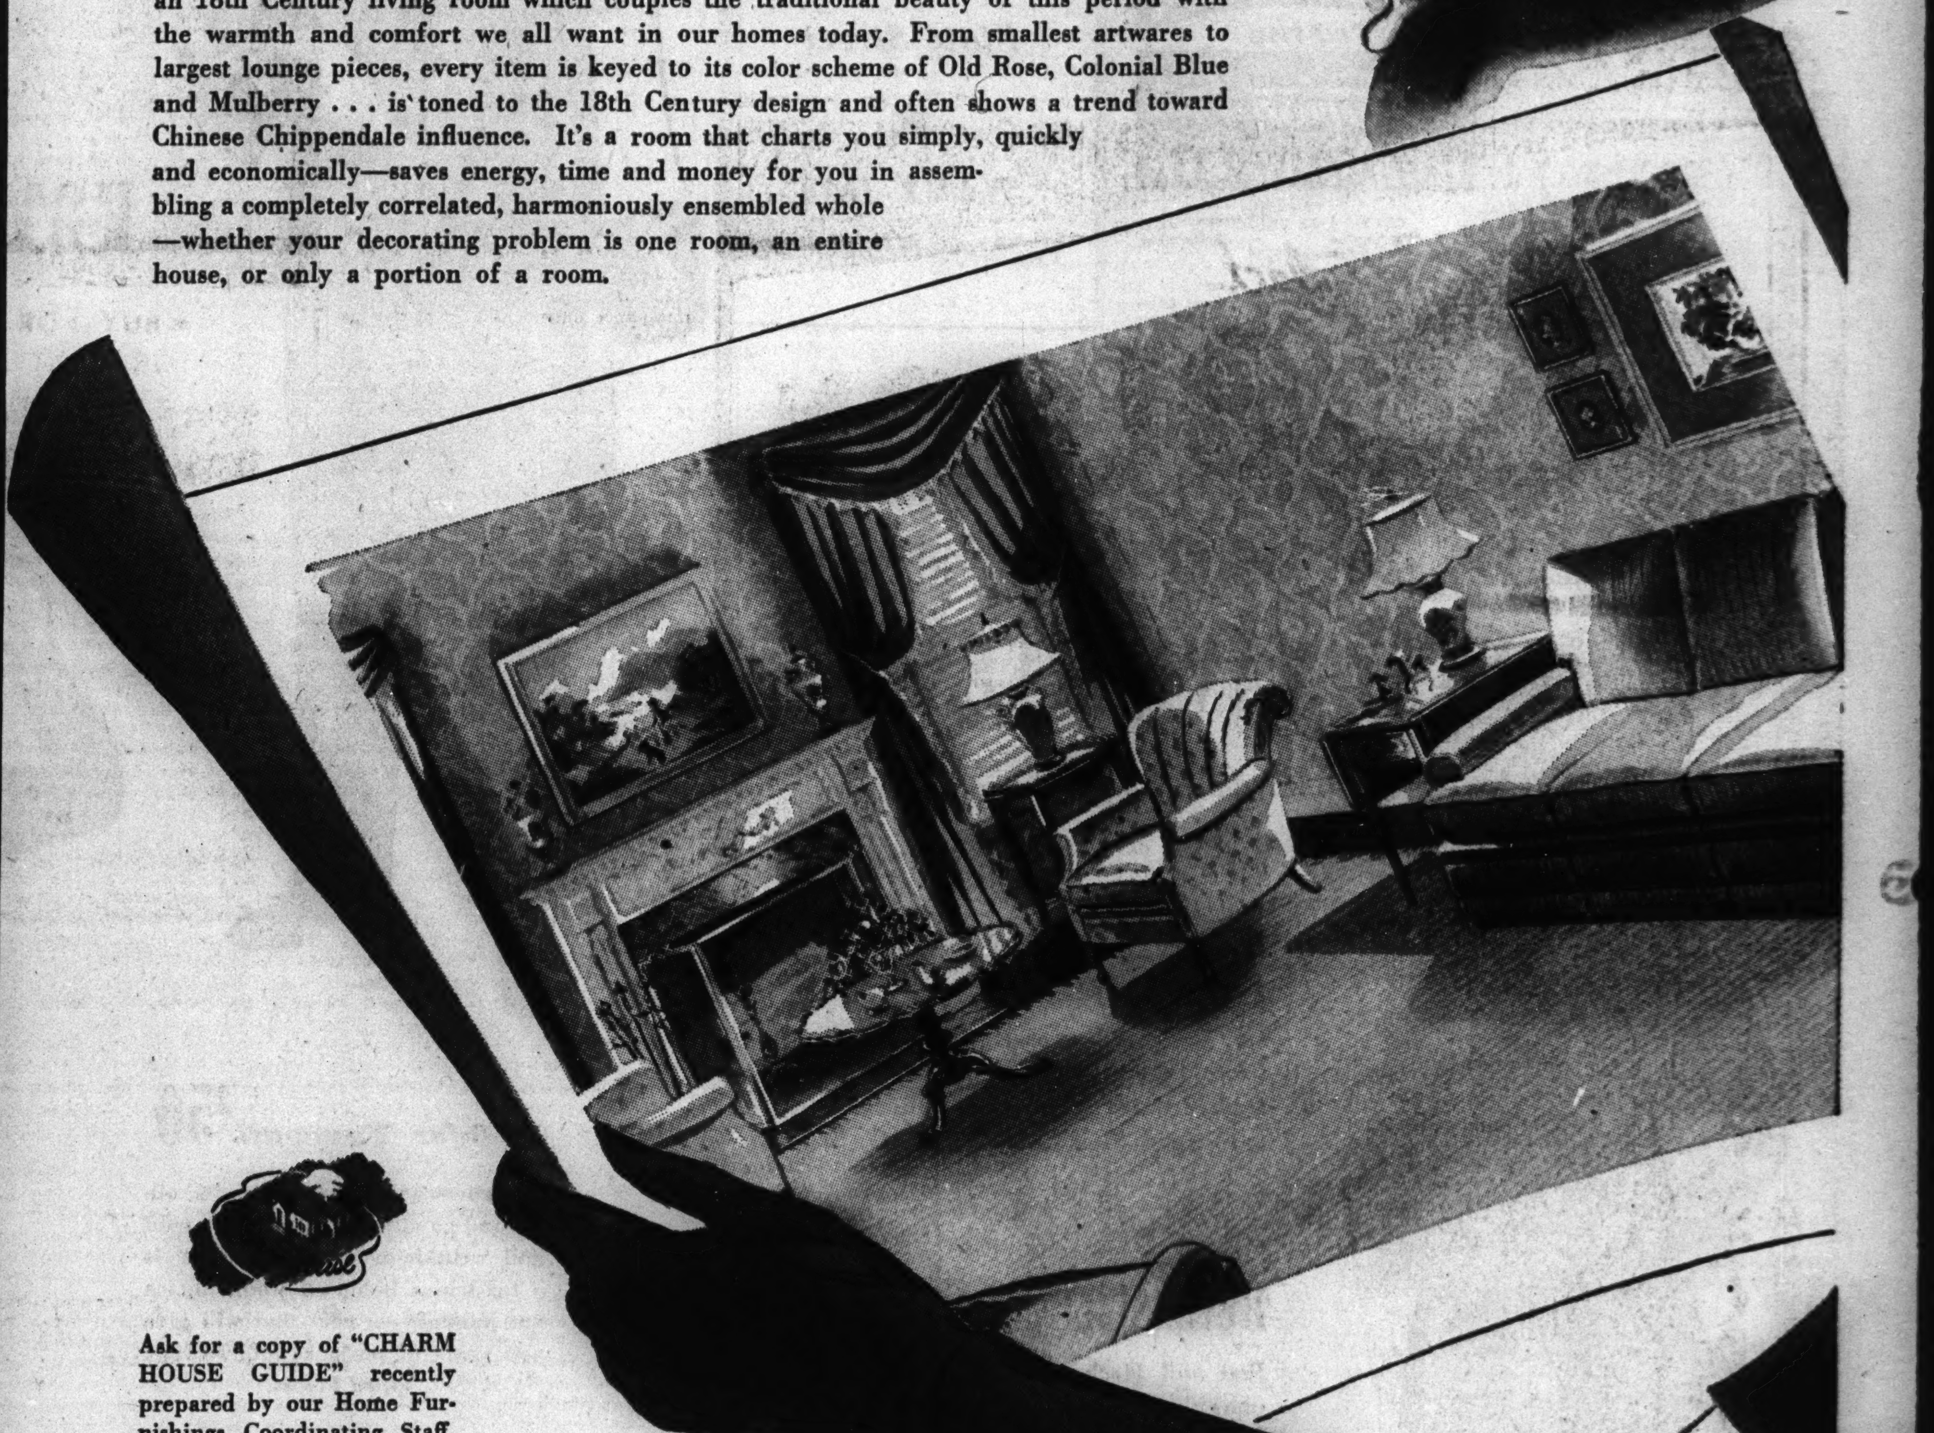
Wieboldt's Charm House illustrates 18th Century at its best. We show you, for instance, an 18th Century living room which couples the traditional beauty of this period with the warmth and comfort we all want in our homes today. From smallest artwares to largest lounge pieces, every item is keyed to its color scheme of Old Rose, Colonial Blue and Mulberry . . . is toned to the 18th Century design and often shows a trend toward Chinese Chippendale influence. It's a room that charts you simply, quickly and economically—saves energy, time and money for you in assembling a completely correlated, harmoniously ensembled whole —whether your decorating problem is one room, an entire house, or only a portion of a room.



Ask for a copy of "CHARM HOUSE GUIDE" recently prepared by our Home Furnishings Coordinating Staff. It tells you about colors, design and trend—as well as other helpful decorating information. Your copy is ready at your nearest Wieboldt store.

You'll want to relax comfortably in the grouping before the fireplace of our 18th Century Living Room. The fireside chairs in comb-back style are copies of fine English chairs and have down cushions (amazing at their price, $49.50 each.) The soft-ivory-colored mantel, in Adam design (made expressly for Charm House) has facing and hearth that's a photographic reproduction of real Italian marble, ($49.95). The Charles of London style sofa ($129) is inexplicably livable and "loungy," having fine spring cushions. This is another room which proves that Charm House lets not one phase of home furnishings coordinating go undone . . . that it's truly an at-your-fingertips decorating service. NAVY OFFICERS ATTEND W-G-N'S 'H. M. S. PINAFORE'

Col. McCormick Relates a World War Anecdote.

W-G-N presented the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "H. M. S. Pinafore," as the Chicago Theater of the Air program last night in anticipation of Navy day, which will be next Tuesday. Guests in the studio audience included officers and men of the American navy and representatives of the royal British navy.

Among the guests were Rear Adm. John Downes, commandant of the 9th naval district, and Mrs. Downes; Capt. E. A. Lofquist, chief of staff of the district, and Mrs. Lofquist; and Sheldon Clark, president of the Navy league, and Mrs. Clark.

Anecdote of First World War.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, in a brief speech welcoming the guests, related a personal anecdote of the first World war.

As a line officer attached to the staff of Gen. Pershing, Col. McCormick said, one of his duties before the arrival of American troops in France was to call at the French war office daily for news. Usually the information he obtained was routine, he said, but once he received a piece of real news.

"The French decoders had decoded a German wireless from Spain giving the names of certain American ships in the harbor of St. Nazaire," Col. McCormick said. "So I came home and wrote my report of about four lines and then began reading some improving book. But I began to get worried. I knew that the information that the Germans had learned the names of American ships in the St. Nazaire harbor should get to the navy as soon as possible, and then I got cold feet.

Finds Way to Tell of Message.

"There was no naval officer at our headquarters. In fact, the only American naval officer in Paris at that time was the naval attaché at the embassy. I had no business to go over and see him; I could see that. In the orders and regulations applying to me there was no reference to the navy. So far as we knew, there wasn't any navy.

"But I had a happy thought. Everybody in Paris was calling on everybody else. So I decided to call on the naval attaché. He was a captain and my superior officer, so that was a proper thing for me to do. So I called on him and we talked of four or five things. Then I said, 'It was pretty fine of the French to decode that German message, wasn't it?' 'I don't know what you are talking about,' he said, so I told him the whole story. He took it very nicely and said he would look into it.

Attaché Returns Call.

"Four or five days later he called on Mrs. McCormick and me at the hotel. We talked about everything in the world, excepting this one subject. I accompanied him to the elevator. There he said that the information I had given him was quite correct. 'I asked why the French navy hadn't given it to me,' he said, 'and they said it was because the French army hadn't given it to them. And,' he said, 'the army hasn't given it to us officially yet.'

"And now for the tragedy of it: They caught the person who was involved and shot her. It was a woman."

Attend W-G-N Broadcast in Recognition of Navy Day

WOMAN'S DEATH HELD SUICIDE.

U. S. REFUSES AID TO STRICKEN VET OF PEARL HARBOR

Hospitals Reject Him on Technicality.

Niles, Mich., Oct. 24 [Special].—Altho Earl Hendershot, now 19 years old, of this city, was a soldier in Hawaii when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, he has been refused admission to the Veterans' hospital at Dearborn, Mich., despite violent and recurring nervous spasms requiring hospitalization and attributed by local physicians to shell shock.

This was revealed today by a survey of circumstances attendant upon the issuance of a formal appeal by the Berrien county board of supervisors to Michigan congressmen and to congress as a whole for legislation providing proper care for service victims of this war.

The board took this action, it was learned, after Hendershot's illness became a local scandal when he returned to his home last July after receiving an honorable discharge from the army and a discharge "in poor physical condition" from the Letterman General hospital, San Francisco, Cal.

Stricken in Public.

The resolution adopted by the supervisors states flatly that Hendershot is a shell shock victim and says attacks "came on him in the theater and on the street in the presence of hundreds of shocked spectators."

Hendershot now is a temporary patient in the state neuropsychiatric hospital at Ann Arbor, but county officials said today they got him admitted there last month only after a six hour siege of the institution while the ex-soldier waited outside in an ambulance under the care of two policemen.

"It seems there is no place where this boy can be taken care of," said Dr. H. W. Pritchard, local physician who attended him before he was taken to Ann Arbor. "We have done everything we can to get him admitted to the veterans' hospital, but they will not take him because they do not regard his illness as service-connected."

On Duty During Attack.

County board records show that Hendershot enlisted at Detroit, July 21, 1941, and was sent to Hawaii by the army where he was on duty at the time of the attack. After 11 months and 17 days of service, he was given an honorable discharge July 7, 1942, with a character rating of "excellent" and a notation that his physical condition was "poor when discharged."

"The boy was all right when he went into the army," Dr. Pritchard said, "and he was not ill until he went thru the terrible experience of the Pearl Harbor bombing. His attacks are typical of shell shock. I cannot understand a soldier being abandoned in this condition and we are doing all we can here to get him taken care of."

The resolution says that during the summer the American Legion and the sheriff's department "conveyed this shell shocked war veteran to the United States Veterans' hospital in Battle Creek, where he was denied admittance." Application for Hendershot's admission to the Veterans' hospital at Dearborn also brought a refusal.

"We referred the application to Washington, where it was disapproved," Dr. C. H. Smith of the veterans' administration in Dearborn said. "They took the position in Washington that the boy's condition existed prior to enlistment. There is nothing we can do about it, as under the law veterans of the present war cannot be admitted unless suffering from service connected disability."

Dr. Smith said the Detroit American Legion has filed a claim for compensation in behalf of Hendershot with the adjutant general's office and that this may result in placing Hendershot in a different classification.

Expenses of Hendershot's treatment have so far been borne by the Berrien county board which has guaranteed to pay his bill at the state hospital for the next three months.

PARK RIDGE HERO GIVEN MEDAL BY GEN. MacARTHUR

Gen. MacArthur has awarded the silver star to Lieut. Theodore I. Pascoe, 28 years old, 23 South Park Ridge avenue, Park Ridge, for gallant conduct in a Flying Fortress when it was attacked by 15 Japanese Zeros, it was announced yesterday by the army.

Lieut. Pascoe, a bombardier, also has been awarded the purple heart since he landed in Hawaii on the day the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. He is the son of Mrs. Mildred Pascoe and enlisted in the air corps in September, 1940. He was commissioned a year ago.

He is a graduate of Maine Township High school and Carelton college, Northfield, Minn.

FRANCE 125,000 WORKERS SHORT OF NAZI DEMAND

VICHY, France, Oct. 24 (AP).—A tabulation made in the German-occupied zone showed today that France has supplied only 25,000 workers for Germany and still is 125,000 short of the number demanded for the release of 50,000 French war prisoners. Of this 25,000, the survey said, all but 17,000 had gone to Germany up to Oct. 4 [when the labor recruiting drive was stepped up by Pierre Laval] and, by chance, the 25,000th worker happened to be one who already had worked one year in Germany and was home on leave. This suggested the possibility of duplications.

It was announced that the seventh trainload of war prisoners since Oct. 1 had returned to France from Germany. Germany has to release one prisoner for each three skilled workers going to Germany.

However, the seventh trainload, which arrived at Compiegne today, brought 600 prisoners who were released for reasons of health.

Chicago Boards Authorize Buying of 655 Auto Tires

Rationing boards in the Chicago area last week issued certificates allowing the purchase of 412 grade 1 and 243 grade 2 automobile tires, Michael F. Mulcahy, area rationing director said yesterday. Mulcahy said that permits also were issued for the for the purchase of 1,077 truck tires, 896 truck tubes, and 712 automobile tire tubes.

OUST GHORMLEY IN NAVY SHAKEUP; HALSEY IS CHIEF of army and navy commands on all fronts as a result of the reverses in the Solomons.

Succeeds to Command in the Solomons.

Members of congress were disturbed by reports of division in command between army and navy forces in the Solomon area. The division, it was believed, caused the campaign to be launched before plans were properly drawn, prevented the most efficient employment of the forces employed, and hampered the movement of reënforcements and supplies.

The first public indication that all was not well in the Solomons, altho there was much whispering of disaster in the capital, came when the navy announced early this month that three American cruisers had been sunk without firing a shot at the Japanese on Aug. 7. The announcement was made two months after the vessels were sunk, altho the Australian government announced the loss of an Australian cruiser two days after the engagement.

Fourth Favorite Removed.

The loss of at least 12 warships in the battle of the Solomons has given this country its greatest naval reverse since Pearl Harbor. Reported American losses include three American cruisers, five destroyers, and three transports, and the Australians lost the cruiser Canberra. Losses of the marine landing forces have not been reported.

Members of congress indicate the belief that the full story of the Solomons has not yet been told and that the reorganization of the navy high command in the south Pacific may have repercussions in the naval high command here.

The replacement of Vice Adm. Ghormley marked the removal of the fourth high naval officer who has stood high in the White House favor in the war.

Stark "Kicked Upstairs."

Adm. Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations at the outbreak of the war, was shorn of his most important duties in the hope that he would take the hint and resign. When he failed to do so he was kicked upstairs and sent to London as naval representative.

Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, former commander in chief of the fleet and commander of the Pacific fleet, was removed from command pending an investigation of the Pearl Harbor disaster.

Rear Adm. Wilson Brown, former White House naval aide and former superintendent of the United States Naval academy at Annapolis, who was in command of a task force in the Pacific, has been transferred to a housekeeping post in the Boston navy yard.

Rear Adm. Arthur S. Carpender (left) and Vice Adm. Herbert F. Leary. Adm. Carpender will command Gen. Douglas MacArthur's naval forces, and Adm. Leary succeeds Adm. Pye.

BANDITS HOLD UP CAFE.

Police yesterday were investigating the robbery of a restaurant at 139 North Kedzie avenue in which two armed men forced Helen Brooks, the cashier, to hand over $20.

HALSEY BORN IN NAVY; TRAINER OF CARRIER FLYERS

New Commander Has Had Wide Experience.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—Vice Adm. William Frederick Halsey, 60, now in command of the battle of the Solomons as supreme commander of the united nations forces in the South Pacific, was born to the navy.

He is the son of the late Capt. William Frederick Halsey, United States navy, who died in 1928. The admiral was born in Elizabeth, N. J., Oct. 30, 1882. He was graduated from the naval academy in 1904 and was in command of a destroyer at the time this country entered the World war.

During the war he won the navy cross for distinguished service as commanding officer of the U. S. S. Benham and the U. S. S. Shaw, engaged in the exacting and hazardous duty of patroling submarine infested waters. During 1920 and 1921 he continued in command of destroyers.

In 1922 he was appointed naval attaché at Berlin with additional duty as naval attaché in Norway, Sweden, and Denmark. In 1924 he returned to sea duty.

Commanded Air Base.

In 1933 and 1934 he attended the army war college. Then he qualified as a naval aviator at Pensacola. From 1935 to 1937 he was commandant of the Pensacola Naval Air Station. In 1938 he became commander of Carrier Division 2, Aircraft Battle Force.

He had charge of organization and training of new aviation squadrons for the new aircraft carriers Yorktown and Enterprise, and on May 31, 1939 assumed duty as commander of carrier division. 1. On June 3, 1940 he received the rank of vice admiral.

Adm. Robert Lee Ghormley, former commander of the south Pacific area, was born in Portland, Ore., Oct. 15, 1883. He was graduated from the university of Idaho in 1902 and the naval academy in 1906. He won a letter of commendation from the navy department and a distinguished service medal from the war department for his part in aiding in the transport of troops in the World war.

Friendly with Roosevelt.

He was assistant chief or staff of the United States fleet in 1931 and 1932. He commanded the battleship Nevada in 1935 and 1936 and was fleet operations officer in 1937.

In 1938 and 1939 he was director of the navy war plans division and later became assistant chief of naval operations. In these posts he became well known to President Roosevelt. In 1940 he was sent to London as special naval observer. In 1941 he was made vice admiral and last spring was placed in command of the south Pacific area.

Vice Adm. Herbert Fairfax Leary, who has been placed in command of an important Pacific task force, was born in Washington, D. C., May 31, 1885 and was graduated from Annapolis in 1904. He also came from a naval family, being the son of Rear Adm. Richard Phillips Leary.

He won the navy cross for his services in the World war and after that conflict was a member of the allied naval armistice commission. He has served in various commands at sea and in Washington and abroad at diplomatic posts. He was assigned to Australia this spring.

"A Sailor's Admiral."

Adm. Leary is known as a "sailor's admiral," having a deep interest in the welfare of his men and in removing barriers between officer and enlisted men. Old line admirals have viewed his efforts toward this end with suspicion.

Vice Adm. William Satterlee Pye, who was succeeded by Adm. Leary, was born in Minneapolis June 9, 1880, and graduated from Annapolis in 1901. He won the navy cross in the World war. He served thru the grades to captain in 1923 and rear admiral in 1934. He was vice admiral commanding battleships in 1940 and second in command of the battleforce in 1941.

Adm. Edward Clifford Kalbfus, to be replaced at the naval war college at Newport, R. I., by Adm. Pye, is 65 today. He retired just before Pearl Harbor and was recalled to active duty at the war college. He was born at Mauch Chunk, Pa., Nov. 24, 1877, and graduated from the naval academy in 1899.

Served in 6 Wars.

He participated in the Spanish-American war, the Philippine insurrection, the Cuban pacification in 1905, the Mexican occupation in 1914, and the World war, as well as the current war. He has served in many high naval posts.

Rear Adm. Arthur S. Carpender, who has succeeded Adm. Leary as MacArthur's ranking naval officer, was born in New Jersey in 1884, and was graduated from Annapolis in 1907. He was awarded the navy distinguished service medal in the World war. He has had submarine training and was made a rear admiral in 1940. In his new post he will hold the rank of vice admiral.

CUBAN POLICE CHIEF LEAVES FOR U. S. TO AID IN FIGHT ON SPIES

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 24 (AP).—Gen. Manuel Benitez, chief of the Cuban national police department, left for Washington, D. C., today to "work out still closer coöperation between Cuban and United States authorities in the fight on spies and fifth columnists."

He was accompanied by Mariano Faget, chief of the police anti-espionage bureau, and Israel Castellanos, chief of the police identification bureau.

Cuba has cracked down on German, Japanese, and Italian elements, sending many to concentration camps and keeping others under vigilance.

ENVOY GETS PACT FOREGOING U. S. RIGHTS IN CHINA

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today handed to the Chinese ambassador, Dr. Wei Tao-Ming, for the consideration of the Chinese government, a draft treaty designed to accomplish the United States government's proposed relinquishment of extraterritorial rights in China.

The state department said this was pursuant to this government's announcement of Oct. 9, saying it was prepared promptly to negotiate a pact providing for the giving up of extraterritorial privileges and for settlement of related questions.

The British government on the same day made a similar announcement.

CAN YOU QUALIFY
for one of these Army Openings?

If you have wondered where you can best fit into the Army, read about the special opportunities now open for direct enlistment.

If you can qualify for one of these jobs, you may soon earn increased ratings, pay up to $138 per month and a chance to serve your country right where you are needed most.

We are building the most powerful Army in all history. Hundreds of thousands of specialists are required to man and maintain the mighty engines of war now coming off our production lines.

If you are one of these, now is your opportunity. Pick out your place in this list, and talk it over with the nearest Army Recruiting and Induction Officer.

Men 18 and 19 — The Army offers you a special opportunity —to choose any one of 13 branches—Air Forces (including Aviation Cadets), Armored Force, Cavalry, Chemical Warfare Service, Coast Artillery (Antiaircraft or Harbor Defense), Corps of Engineers, Corps of Military Police, Field Artillery, Infantry, Medical Department, Ordnance Department, Quartermaster Corps or Signal Corps. No other age group is entitled to this same chance. Upon enlistment in the Infantry, assignment may be requested for tank destroyer training.

Radio and Communications Men — In this modern war of movement, swift, reliable communications are necessary keys to victory. Men who know radio, telephone, telegraph and electronics are URGENTLY NEEDED. Direct enlistment is open in the Air Forces and Signal Corps. Age limits — 18 to 49, inclusive, for the Air Forces — 18 to 44, inclusive, for the Signal Corps.

Skilled Mechanics of All Types — Battles are won today by mechanized power — on land, sea and in the air. Men with mechanical skill have a wonderful opportunity for service and promotion. Direct enlistments are now open in the Air Forces and Ordnance Department. Age limits — 18 to 49, inclusive.

Specialists — A fighting Army needs many men skilled in special work. A partial list includes: Opticians — Gunsmiths — Athletic Directors — Bandsmen — Jewelers — Riggers — Draftsmen.

Pilots, Bombardiers, Navigators — Your country must rule the air before the victory is won. Our planes and men have proved they can do it — as soon as we get enough of both. Men 18 to 26, who can qualify, now have the opportunity to get the world's best air training and appointment as Flight Officers or Second Lieutenants in the world's finest Air Force.

Glider Pilots — One of the newest and most thrilling arms of the Air Forces — for men 18 to 37, inclusive.

Parachute Troops — Packed with action! Specialist's pay and a real opportunity for high adventure and rapid advancement. For men 18 to 32, inclusive.

Men 45 to 49, Inclusive — A limited number of enlistments are open for men who can qualify as skilled technicians, mechanics, specialists, or for administrative work.

General Enlistment — For the Army Unassigned — open to all men 18 to 44, inclusive, who do not now occupy a key position in a vital war industry. Enlistments except for men 18 and 19 must be cleared through your local Selective Service Board.

Enlisted Reserve Corps—At present, there are special opportunities for "Affiliated Units" in the Corps of Engineers, Ordnance Department and Signal Corps. Maintenance Companies, Battalions and Regiments are being formed by units of workers from the same plant — to work together for victory just as they have worked together in peace.

There are also opportunities to enlist in the Enlisted Reserve Corps for pre-induction training.

FLYERS SAY JAPS 'DIE LIKE FLIES' IN 5 DAY BATTLE

Yanks Wipe Them Out on Guadalcanal Beach.

A UNITED STATES ARMY BASE IN SOUTH PACIFIC, Oct. 19 [Delayed]—(AP).—Japs are dying like flies on Guadalcanal as United States forces pound them on all sides in the five day old battle of the Solomons.

That's the story brought back by bomber pilots who returned from a mission there today. Capt. Carl Wuertele of Denver said American land forces had advanced 16 miles up beach, and that crafty marine corps jungle fighters caught a Japanese landing force of several hundred men and exterminated them on the beaches.

Americans have regained control of the air, the pilots said, and fighters now average better than one Jap fighter or bomber shot down each hour.

Yesterday eight enemy bombers and 11 Zeros were shot down. The previous day [Saturday] resulted in a bag of 14 Jap bombers and 12 Zeros.

U. S. Losses Light.

Flyers said the Japanese tried two land attacks but both were repulsed with heavy losses. United States losses have been surprisingly light.

Army infantrymen have deployed into the mountains and are driving the Japs toward the marine corps lines, where mortars and machine guns are mowing them down, observers declared.

Flying Fortresses based here have repeatedly bombed Jap supplies, Lieut. W. W. Thompson of Little Rock said marines told him last night that a huge portion of the enemy supplies on the beaches had been destroyed by American bombs.

Jap Zeros continue to attack our Flying Fortresses, but they haven't managed to shoot down a single one. Of this, a pilot observed, "it must be discouraging to them to repeatedly attack and never shoot one down."

Sink Jap Transport.

On Oct. 16 our Flying Fortresses sank one Jap transport and started many big fires among Jap supplies on the Guadalcanal beach, including a vast blaze in a gasoline depot. They downed two Jap fighters and shot down a four motor Jap seaplane. The Japs managed to salvage some heavy artillery, and have emplaced it in the mountains.

The attack surprised the Japs, who were seen hurriedly unloading the smoking transport offshore.

Maj. Philo Rasmusen of Salt Lake City dropped two heavy bombs on the transport. Huge flames shot into the air and scores of small craft around the vessel sank immediately. The ship itself was seen to sink later.

Overshooting the target on his second run, Maj. Rasmusen's bomber missed another ship, but the heavy bomb landed in a coconut grove at the edge of the beach and apparently hit Japanese gasoline stores. Flames from this fire were visible 50 miles.

Shells "Old Stuff."

The American held airfield at Guadalcanal is kept under constant bombardment in the daytime, and at night the Jap sea forces sneak near enough inland to toss over shells.

Lieut. Thompson said, "We had hardly set our B-17 down on the field last night when an 8 inch shell came whistling in. That's old stuff to the marines now. They just hit the dirt until the shell explodes, then continue whatever they were doing."

Lieut. R. E. Scott of Indianapolis said one navy flyer in the early part of the attack trucked load after load of bombs out to sea and dropped them on Jap transports and landing barges.

Army Lieut. Edward Robinson of Ferndale, Mich., climbed out of his plane and said when this is over they ought to send every one of those marines at Guadalcanal back to the United States and let them live like millionaires for the rest of their lives.

"They are the toughest and most fearless men I've ever seen," he said.

Jap Pilots Weaker.

Those marines look like youngsters in their late teens, but no tougher army ever took to the field. They are adept at jungle warfare and fearless to the man.

The concensus of returning United States flyers is that the Americans on Guadalcanal will be able to destroy the thousands of Japs poured in there in the last few days.

Veteran pilots say the Jap pilots seem to be getting weaker. Apparently the best flyers were thrown into the early stages of the battle. They are thinning out rapidly and less experienced pilots are taking their place.

All returning flyers say the peril of American troops on Guadalcanal still is acute, but there has been a slight change in their favor.

In sending out his bombers, Col. L. G. Saunders, commander of this base, told the pilots they were taking a desperate chance, but that something had to be done to relieve the pressure on Guadalcanal land forces. The Flying Fortresses went out and pasted Jap landing barges and gun emplacements and all returned safely.

U. S. FLYERS TELL HOW THEY HIT 10 SHIPS AT RABAUL

Surprise Japs in Raid at Low Level.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Oct. 24.—In one of the most successful raids yet staged on shipping in Rabaul harbor, giant American Flying Fortresses flew so low that enemy anti-aircraft guns and searchlights could not be brought to bear on them effectively.

These 60,000 pound airplanes, designed primarily for 30,000 foot bombing, swept across the harbor at mast height yesterday, probably sinking four vessels and damaging six others. One enemy destroyer and one cruiser, and two large transport or cargo vessels were believed sunk.

The low level attack may have baffled the Rabaul defenders, who are accustomed to being shellacked from altitudes which give them a better chance to use their anti-aircraft equipment.

Jap Turns Out Light.

Maj. William Benn, the unit commander, who flew with Capt. Franklin Green of San Antonio, Tex.—the star performer in today's raid—told today of being caught in a beam of light as he was rounding a point on a hill when coming in at low level.

"He held us in his light for a time, then turned it out," Benn said. "He either thought we were one of his own flying boats, or else he feared we would open fire on him."

Capt. Green and his crew made things more than uncomfortable for four ships. From a height of a few hundred feet he laid his bombs close beside a large cargo ship. In another run made on a cruiser Green scored two extremely near misses. Oil appeared on the surface of the water and the ship took a heavy list, he said.

Green's bombardier, Lieut. David Anderson of Newton, Mass., also let go on two other ships, scoring two direct hits on one and three near misses on the other.

Fire Lights Up Harbor.

"We counted six explosions on the last ship Anderson hit," Benn said. "The resulting fire lighted up the whole harbor. We could see it 80 miles on our way home."

Benn said that altho the anti-aircraft fire was heavy the only damage to the American Flying Fortresses was two bullet holes in one plane.

Lieut W. R. Gowdy of Chicago, on his first mission over Rabaul, attacked a large cargo ship from low level, scoring one near miss just back of the bow and several near misses offside.

Capt. Carl Hustad of Minneapolis, Minn., straddled a ship with several bombs, some falling on one side and and some on the other.

Capt. Kenneth McCullar of Batesville, Miss., one of the stellar performers of Maj. Benn's squadron, dropped bombs from a high level. He rang up two direct hits and one near miss on a large merchant vessel which is presumed to have sunk, and hits and near misses on a destroyer, also believed now to be on the bottom of the ocean.

Lieut. William Thompson of Canton, O., dropped his bombs very close to two large cargo vessels, inflicting damage on both.

Maj. Allan Lindberg of Westfield, N. J., whose bombardier is Lieut. David Turner of Flagstaff, Ariz., also damaged two ships by near misses.

"This is the best raid on Rabaul we've ever had," Maj. Benn said. "Those Japs who bombed Port Moresby really got us mad."

SHIP LAUNCHINGS REACH ONE A DAY ON PACIFIC COAST

Portland, Ore., Oct. 24 (AP).—The Portland area, breeding ground for Henry J. Kaiser's shipbuilding miracles, is launching ships at the rate of one a day.

Wednesday. The Williamette Iron & Steel company put a mine sweeper in the Willamette river Wednesday. The Kaisers played a double header Friday, launching a liberty ship at the Oregon Shipbuilding company yards—where the 10 day Joseph Teal was built—and a tank landing ship at Kaiser, Inc., in neighboring Vancouver, Wash.

Today Kaiser's third yard hereabouts, Swan Island, put on its premier launching, sliding a commercial tanker into the Willamette.

Before 10 days are up the Oregon Shipbuilding yards will launch three more liberty ships, the Commercial Iron works will launch a sub chaser, the Albina Engine & Machine works will launch a sub chaser tanker, and the Willamette Iron & Steel company will launch a mine sweeper.

Named for Marine Hero.

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—The destroyer Daly was launched at Staten Island today. It was named for a marine sergeant major who, the navy said, led a World war attack in France with the cry, "Come on you . . ., do you want to live forever?"

Build Ship in 31 Days.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 24 (AP).—The Liberty vessel Thomas Sim Lee was launched today, 31 days after its keel was laid, to make what officials of the Bethlehem-Fairfield Shipyard, Inc., called a new shipbuilding record for the east coast.

RANCOR DIVIDES ARMY AND NAVY, ANALYST WRITES

Bitter Criticism Marks War in Pacific.

BY HANSON BALDWIN.

[Military Analyst of the New York Times.]

New York, Oct. 24 [Special].—Army, navy and marine ground and air forces are working together in close harmony in combat areas in the Pacific, but behind the lines there is some friction and considerable mutual criticism.

In advanced operating bases in the Solomons, sailors and marines are more or less indistinguishable in khaki. Mistaken identity is easy; not infrequently a lieutenant commander is addressed as major, and vice versa. One of the best moves the navy ever made, from the point of view of psychological reaction, was the adoption of khaki as a working uniform.

One uniform and one fighting service with a common tradition and common interests are the answer to our defense problem. Combat experience in the Pacific has shown that a separate air force would probably only serve to add friction and complications to a setup that already is too divisive in character.

Criticism Is Rife.

Behind the fighting fronts, one encounters time and again thruout the Pacific bitter criticism by one service of the other, not among ground troops but by regular officers of medium and junior grades of the army air force and of the navy.

The causes of this bitterness have their roots in prewar days—the so-called "Franklin Field mentality." Football, sports, and other rivalries between the service academies at West Point and Annapolis have too often been carried into the services.

The prewar and postwar agitation for a separate air force has also created much friction and bitterness.

MacArthur Is Scapegoat.

The Philippines campaign gave vent to some of the accumulated bitterness of peacetime years, partly because of the personalities involved, partly because each service sought a scapegoat.

The criticism of Gen. Douglas MacArthur started in the Philippines and has increased behind the scenes since then, and much of the army has joined this chorus.

On the other hand, some officers in the army, particularly the army air corps, have criticized, often unjustly, navy leadership and navy technique, and have made no secret of the fact that many army flyers consider the surface ship a "dead duck."

Friction Over Midway.

The event that caused much friction was the battle of Midway and the way the news was handled about that battle. There was no real joint communique, and personal and eye witness accounts of the action filtered out piecemeal.

The army flyers who participated at Midway returned to Hawaii long before the fleet, and gave their stories to the public first. Sincerely, but mistakenly, they believed they had accomplished a great deal more damage than they actually had; the impression got abroad that the army's land-based army planes had done most of the work. Actually, the reverse was true. The navy's carriers did the job; altho the army pilots showed their traditional courage and skill, their rôle was minor.

The navy saw many of its pilots die at Midway. The task forces returned to port and read the misleading accounts of the battle printed in the Honolulu papers and cabled from the mainland—and saw red. And for a time it definitely hurt the navy's morale.

Articles Stir Up Fuss.

Recent articles like those by Adm. Thomas C. Hart, and interviews like the one given by Lieut. Comm. John S. Thach irritate the army and carry on the "feud" needlessly.

Too stringent censorship has had an indirect effect upon public morale; some think, too, that it can be and has been used to hide inefficiency. The delay in the dissemination of battle news from the Pacific theater is primarily the fault of navy high policy.

Losses are announced only by Adm. Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet, and they have often been so long delayed that the public has learned to keep its fingers crossed whenever a naval communique is published.

ATS GIRLS INFORMED COMRADES 'IN ARMS' IS JUST ARMY TERM

LONDON, Oct. 24.—British soldiers and their uniformed girl friends in the auxiliary territorial service must remain comrades "in arms" in the military meaning of the term wherever the commanding officers so decree.

In certain army corps areas officers have gone out forbidding Tommy Atkins from walking arm in arm with an ATS girl. It was pointed out that ATS girls are instructed during their training that walking arm in arm with a soldier or a civilian is unmilitary.

Officials at ATS headquarters said there has been no general order forbidding such closed rank walking, the matter being left entirely up to the discretion of the general officers commanding in various areas.

6,000 MILE AIR FERRY CROSSES AFRICAN JUNGLES

Planes Delivered Daily to Near East Army.

LONDON, Oct. 25 [Sunday]—(AP).—United States and British aircraft by the thousands have been delivered to the middle east during the past two years over a 6,000 mile ferry route across equatorial jungle and desert from west Africa.

The air ministry, in lifting the secrecy from one of the greatest jobs yet done by the united nations, disclosed that the service which started on the basis of two or three convoys a week now operate daily with a negligible loss in planes and personnel.

Bombers, transports and fighters make up the stream of aircraft moving to the front with fighters carrying extra fuel tanks for the longer hops.

Starting from a great west coast assembly base, each journey takes 24 hours' flying time, exclusive of stops at fields where engines are checked and planes refueled.

Many Emergency Fields.

A tremendous job of pioneering and organization has changed the once perilous trips into fairly routine journeys along a route spotted with many emergency landing fields with good meteorological service.

United States and British civilian air companies have contributed to the ferrying operations, while natives by the thousands carved intermediate landing areas from dense jungles.

Western keystone of the service is a harbor town which had only a small airdrome when the program was launched two years ago, but now has one of the largest and best equipped airports in the world.

In addition to handling warplanes, the air lifeline has been extensively used by communications planes carrying official mail and personnel.

100 Poles on Route.

Among the increasingly large number of pilots working the route are nearly 100 Poles who have flown more than 1,000 planes across Africa with only a 2 per cent loss.

Altho the hazards now have been greatly reduced, the vast operations have produced many stories of adventure such as that of the young RAF lieutenant who was forced down in a trackless jungle in a flaming plane.

Burned and hurt, he was taken by natives eight miles to a French outpost, where he stumbled into the officers' mess, drew himself up with great dignity, saluted, said "Excuse me, gentlemen," and then fainted dead away.

Pilot Prefers the Air.

"We cross what I believe is one of the most interesting stretches of country in the world," one pilot said. "It is crammed full of lions and other wild animals. I prefer to stay in the air.

"The most boring part of the trip is a stretch of more than 2,000 miles over the Sudan which is nothing but barren desert all the way except for two stopping places. Once we arrive at Khartoum [in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan], we reckon the trip is as good as over, since from there it is a straight run up to Egypt."

ORDER SCRUTINY OF ALL PACKAGES SENT BY AIR MAIL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—The postoffice department today ruled that no package may be accepted for transmission by air mail until it has been examined by a postal employé to make certain no inflammable, explosive, or other unmailable matter is inclosed.

Postmaster Gen. Frank Walker issued an order that to be handled by air mail every sealed package, parcel, or other sealed article, except ordinary letters, must be indorsed to provide for opening for postal inspection.

The department recommended that the employé who opens such package have another employé as a witness and said it was desirable that the sender of such packages present them unsealed so the contents could be examined before the packages are sealed.

Eight Missing Tokio Raiders Believed Prisoners of Japs

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—As many as eight of the men who bombed Tokio may be in Japanese hands, it appeared today on the basis of an enemy listing which, checked at the war department against its records, seemed to correspond with names of flyers the army lists as missing.

The Berlin radio broadcast a Tokio dispatch listing the names of an additional four it said were taken prisoner in the air raid on Japan April 18.

Correspond to Records.

Earlier this week, after the Japanese had announced a first list of four captives, Secretary of War Stimson said these names corresponded to records and explained that some of the planes which bombed Japan might have been forced down in occupied China.

Today's Tokio list, together with the names as they appear on army records, follows:

Lieut. Robert J. Meade of Cleveland, O. [Lieut. Robert J. Meder, Lakewood, O.]; Lieut. E. J. Nielson, Hiram, Utah [Lieut. Chase J. Neilson, Hyrum, Utah]; Lieut. Robert L. Hite of Texas [Lieut. Robert L. Hite, Earth, Tex.], and Lieut. George Barr of Long Island, N. Y. [Lieut. George Barr, Queens Village, Long Island].

Mother Declines Comment.

At Cleveland, Mrs. John Meder, mother of Lieut. Meder, said the war department has communicated with the family four times since the Tokio raid, but declined to discuss the communications.

Today's report was first word of Lieut. Barr's wherabouts received by Mrs. Charles H. Towns, Queens Village, with whose family the flyer had lived since the death of his mother. Mrs. Towns said Barr telephoned from Texas April 6 to tell her not to expect to hear from him for a while, and not to try to communicate with him.

"I am going on a special mission with Jimmy Doolittle," he said. "Wish me luck."

Mrs. Towns said that after the raid on Japan she made every effort to communicate with him but her letters were returned stamped "change of address due to official orders."

The Office of War Information announced that it assumed joint responsibility with the war department in the maintenance of secrecy concerning details of the raid.

Tells of Capture

Huntington Park, Cal., Oct. 24 (AP).—Miss Coral Houston, a Methodist missionary who returned from China aboard the exchange ship Gripsholm, said four and possibly five crewmen of a United States bomber who landed in occupied China after the bombing of Tokio were captured by Japanese.

"I was in Japanese occupied territory," she said yesterday. "About 10 o'clock on a Saturday night we heard a plane in distress overhead.

"Next morning, Chinese officials sent by the Japanese puppet government searched our mission. In the afternoon, we learned that an American bomber had been forced down in the river.

Informer Is Slain.

"Two of the men in the plane went to a village and offered to give the Chinese money to lead them to free China. The Chinese were about to help them when the village head man informed the Japanese, and the Americans were captured.

"The enraged villagers killed him. The other men in the plane—some said two, some said three—were captured the same day. Two nights afterward we heard the Chinese guerrillas had failed in a rescue effort. They had planned to set a fire and get the Americans out.

"Japanese officers praised the prisoners. 'These men are very brave,' they said. 'They will not tell where they came from, or anything'."

Miss Houston did not learn of the Tokio bombing until she was taken to Shanghai in June to await repatriation, she said.

SOLDIER DOOMED TO GALLOWS FOR SLAYING GIRL, 8

Bastrop, Tex., Oct. 24 (AP).—A court martial at Camp Swift today sentenced Pvt. George S. Knapp, 38 years old, to death by hanging for the murder of Lucy Rivers Maynard, 8.

Brig. Gen. Robert S. Spragins, court president, read the sentence to Knapp 59 minutes after the court closed to decide its verdict. Knapp's only comment was: "When will the hanging take place?" Gen. Spragins informed him the court could not decide upon the time of execution.

Knapp, a St. Paul, Minn., draftee, had confessed picking up the little girl in an army truck as she was walking home from school Oct. 6.

ARGENTINA TAKES DIG AT U. S. 'GOOD NEIGHBOR' POLICY

Foreign Minister Tells Close Ties with Chile.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Oct. 24 (AP).—Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu of Argentina said tonight the ties between his country and Chile, South America's insolationist powers, never were closer; and, in a remark obviously directed at the United States, asserted both are determined "to command respect for our respective sovereign decisions."

The speech was considered generally to have been inspired in part by the recent Boston speech in which Sumner Welles, United States undersecretary of state, accused Argentina and Chile of tolerating spying.

It also was considered significant that he spoke during the presence here of Joaquin Fernandez, Chile's newly designated foreign minister, who is en route home to assume his new post. He has been ambassador to Uruguay.

Slap at Sumner Welles.

"One of the rules of good neighborliness consists of refraining from disturbing the peaceful and productive cultivation of one's heritage," Ruiz Guinazu said in what was taken to be a reference to the good neighbor policy of which Welles long has been a champion.

Ruiz Guinazu declared that Argentina and Chile never were closer than today as a result of "our similar viewpoint in the conduct of international relations, our common hope for peace, our loyalty to the pledged word, our immutable and actively expressed determination to command respect—without aggressive boasting—for our respective sovereign decisions."

Bury Old Rivalries.

He conceded that Argentina and Chile had had their past differences and rivalries.

"Our routes follow parallel courses and never again will conflict," the foreign minister said.

"We profess deep affection and loyal friendship to all sister nations. We desire peace: We have shown that.

"But our love of peace, it is well to say, does not originate in feeble cowardice, in love for ease, or in the urge to pursue a sensual life of pleasures and appetites. . . . We know we must keep our military forces ready to protect and command respect for our own rights."

Morgenthau Visits Lord Nelson's Flagship Victory

"NEW" TIRES FOR OLD
—yours by the magic of modern science

The next "new" tires you get will almost certainly be your old tires recapped

Up to now, you may know very little about tire recapping. In other years, you probably "turned in" your old tires when they began to wear thin and bought new tires in their place. But now, with our rubber supply cut off at its source, tire recapping is the first step in the solution of one of America's toughest wartime problems—how to keep essential cars rolling.

Sooner or later, your turn will come to have a worn tire recapped. If the old tire is sound and if the job is done right—your recapped tire will give you many extra thousands of safe miles on the road. This is one time when you mustn't "take a chance." A good job of recapping and a bad one may look alike—but there are vast differences in performance. How can you be sure?

Go to a man you can trust

—just as you would if you were buying diamonds! Remember, you are choosing between a sound investment and a doubtful one. A reliable recapping job takes time, skill, care—the right materials, machines, methods.

That's what you will get from your Goodyear Dealer. You can rely on his judgment and ability. He has the experience and equipment to recap your tires safely—or he can have the work done for you at a Goodyear recapping plant, by factory methods with Goodyear materials.

Here's how RELIABLE recapping is done

Your old tire is first inspected inch by inch, inside and outside. Then it is carefully buffed, to shape the tread evenly and keep the tire in balance. Next, cement is applied to the old tread, and new tread is rolled on, under machine pressure, to form a smooth, firm bond and avoid separation later. The tread is then "cured" in a powerful hydraulic mold, under uniform heat. Finally your "new" tire comes out, fresh and tough and resilient—ready for many months of careful driving.

"Too little! Too late!"

Don't wait until your tire is worn too thin or seriously damaged. Consult your Goodyear Dealer as soon as the non-skid tread is worn smooth. Only tires in sound condition can be recapped. If your tires go beyond the danger point, they go to the scrap pile!

★ SEE YOUR GOODYEAR DEALER WITHOUT DELAY ★

● He's a man you can trust! If you are eligible now for recapping, he will help you prepare your application to the rationing board. Have him inspect your tubes as well as your tires—a tube failure can ruin a tire. When you get a New Tire or Tube Certificate, get long-wearing Goodyear Tires and LifeGuards. Quality tires and dependable service mean more to you now than ever before.

Let your Goodyear Dealer help you reduce tire wear and prolong tire life, every day you drive. Have him perform these vital services: Inspect your tires, inside and outside, at regular intervals . . . check and correct air pressure at least once a week . . . "cross-switch" your tires, when necessary, to even up wear . . . check brakes, wheel alignment, wheel balance . . . and do all the things that contribute to maximum tire mileage.

See your Goodyear Dealer soon—and often. You can depend on him for reliable service at reasonable cost. Ask him, also, for your copy of Goodyear's FREE booklet, "How to Make Your Tires Last Longer."

REDS HURL BACK NEW NAZI DRIVE IN STALINGRAD

Repulse 2 Divisions and 80 Tanks.

MOSCOW, Oct. 25 [Sunday]—(AP).—The Germans threw two freshly reenforced infantry divisions, 80 tanks and "large" air forces against Russian positions in Stalingrad yesterday, the soviet midnight communique said today, but after fierce hand-to-hand fighting the Nazis were thrown back with heavy losses in the 62d day of seige.

The new attack, launched after fresh troops were brought in to replace nearly 10,000 which the Russians said they had killed in two days, was directed at the factory district in the northern part of the battle torn city.

In this area alone, the communique said, more than 1,500 Germans were killed yesterday and 17 tanks destroyed.

Capture 150 Nazi Tanks.

The heaviest enemy losses, however, were in a southern sector of the Stalingrad front where one soviet formation was said to have killed 7,000 men, destroyed 57 tanks, 100 guns, and 26 planes. The Russians also captured 150 German tanks which had been disabled in previous engagements and were being used as firing positions.

Heavy fighting was continuing both northwest of Stalingrad and south of the city.

In one sector northwest of the city, the communique said, soviet troops "made a slight advance, overcame enemy mine fields and barbed wire entanglements, and broke into enemy positions."

The Germans launched four counterattacks, but were forced to fall back after losing about 250 men.

On Defensive in Caucasus.

Farther south in the Caucasus, the Russians were on the defensive both in the Mozdok area and along the Black sea.

The communique said, however, that all attacks were repulsed and the positions remained unchanged.

Previous reports said that because of wintry storms and cold weather at Stalingrad the Germans had shifted some of their weight into the Caucasus. They were reported to have crossed a "water line" southeast of Novorossisk in a push along the Black sea.

[The Germans claimed gains in difficult forest battles northeast of Tuapse and the capture of a dominating mountain. Torpedo boats were said to have raided Tuapse, hitting two warships. Further gains were claimed at Stalingrad in house to house fighting. For the third time, the Germans said they had advanced to the Volga river. They claimed also to have taken "the greater part of the Red October works." Russian attacks north of the town were described as weak and futile.]

Nazis Mass Troops

The high command acknowledged that the enemy had accumulated superior forces below that fallen naval base, but said counterattacks checked the Nazis after they crossed the stream, probably a mountain fed tributary of the Kuban river.

The Germans have been attacking there repeatedly with the aid of Rumanians in an effort to break thru a mountain spur down to the sea and advance on a string of ports starting with Tuapse. The river crossing was their first major gain in several weeks.

In the other vital Caucasus battle sector at Mozdok, a powerful German force including three armored divisions of 45,000 men was reported concentrated for an attempt to break thru toward Ordjonikidze and Grozny. Dispatches said the Germans still were checked in the Terek valley.

The Black sea fleet, which earlier this week sank a Rumanian destroyer, a 13,000 ton transport and three auxiliaries, was reported to have bombarded an occupied port on the Black sea, scoring hits on objectives and causing several fires. Sinking of two Nazi transports in the Baltic sea also was reported.

U. S. PATROL PILOT RIDDLES ENEMY PLANE IN INDIA

NEW DELHI, India, Oct. 24 (AP).—The United States command in India reported in a communique today that on Oct. 18 a twin-engine Japanese plane was believed shot down by an American fighter on patrol near Digboi, Assam. The plane was hit heavily in both engines and was smoking badly when last seen passing into a cloud below, the communique said.

Strafing attacks on four railway stations north of Mohnyin, Burma, and bomb raids on freight cars between Myitkyina and Moguang as well as raids on Japanese occupied towns west of Myitkyina on Oct. 17 also were reported. A building at Washawng, believed housing enemy troops, also was riddled in a low level attack the same day.

Soldier Wedding

The first soldier wedding at post unit No. 2 of the Army Air Force Technical Training Commands Chicago schools, formerly the Congress hotel, took place yesterday when Marie Baldridge, daughter of Mrs. B. Baldridge, 7024 East End avenue, became the bride of Pvt. Edgar McCullough of Wausau, Wis., who is stationed in the personnel office of the unit.

Capt. Walter Oberholtzer, post chaplain, performed the ceremony in the office of Maj. C. P. McCormack, unit No. 2 executive officer, since the unit has no chapel.

Attendants were Diane Collier of 7024 East End avenue, bridesmaid, and Sergt. Travis Hill of Beuna Vista, Va., a chief clerk in one of the school squadron orderly rooms, best man.

3 PULP MILLS SHUT BY WPB; CURB SHIPMENT

West Coast Paper Materials Affected.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—The war production board today ordered the shut down of three big pulp mills on Puget Sound and prohibited all shipments of pulp from the Pacific coast to the east except types used for explosives and rayon. Both actions take effect Nov. 1.

The WPB said no domestic paper pulp of any grade may move east in November, and "there is every prospect that west coast shipments may be eliminated for the duration, with the exception of deliveries for essential war purposes."

The paper manufacturing industry, which has obtained a considerable part of its supply from western areas now afflicted by shortages of man power and pulp logs, was advised by the WPB that it must make "considerable readjustments in its use of wood pulp."

Output Normally Goes East.

Approximately 1,100 men will be released for war industry by closing of the three mills. These are the Tacoma, Wash., mill of the St. Regis Paper company; the Anacortes, Wash., mill of the Scott Paper company, and the Tacoma, Wash., mill of Rayonier, Inc. All three are producers of paper pulp normally shipped east.

"The action may be extended to other areas in which critical shortages develop," the WPB announcement said.

"It was decided that definite steps must be taken to make sure that the shortage of man power and pulp logs would not imperil the production of high alpha and dissolving pulp going into essential nitrating, rayon, and photographic uses."

Lend-Lease Pulp Excluded.

The only pulp production permitted along the entire Pacific coast in November and December will be that for high alpha and dissolving pulp, pulp for lend-lease and export requirements, and paper pulp for the production of paper consumed by the far western states.

COL. M'CORMICK TELLS U. S. PLAN TO REDUCE PAPER

New Attack Is Described Before AP Members.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 24 [Special].—Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, today told Wisconsin members of the Associated Press, publishers of most of Wisconsin's daily papers, of a government plan to reduce the use of print paper for newspapers to 65 per cent of its present volume.

This may mean a cut so great it would destroy the industry, Col. McCormick said. He also discussed the government's suit against the Associated Press and its membership.

The answers to the government suit will be filed soon by the Associated Press and by THE TRIBUNE, Col. McCormick said.

Wide Publicity Recommended.

"My recommendation is that the Associated Press answer be well publicized," he said. "We should call on every one we can reach to resist this brutal attack on our industry.

"When the government began its threat to sue the Associated Press I made a preliminary study of the law and concluded there was no possible basis for the suit. The threats were made in order to elect a certain member. When they were made they were not meant to be pushed. They were so patently ridiculous the attorney general had either to back down or go thru with it.

"The government has no hopes of winning. If it won, it would destroy the Associated Press.

New Attack Described.

"There is a new attack now, a threat to restrict the use of paper to 65 per cent of its former use. The excuse is to relieve man power. It is a poor excuse. Pulpwood is largely cut by farmers. It is their cash crop. It is a winter crop that occupies time when they are otherwise idle. This is so in Canada and it is so in your own Wisconsin woods.

"Once the wood is at the mill, there is very little labor used. The machines run 24 hours a day and they need very little attention. The men are old hands. Few are subject to the draft.

"Newspaper publishers are not large employers of labor in the large sense and they have a big percentage of men who are old in the industry."

NAZI PLANES SINK 2 AMERICAN SHIPS SAILING TO RUSSIA

New York, Oct. 24 [Special].—German torpedo planes sank two medium sized United States merchant ships in the North Atlantic in an attack on a convoy bound for Russia about mid-September, the navy department announced today. One vessel sank within two minutes with the loss of 22 crew members. News of the sinkings followed the navy's announcement Friday of the loss of two American ships last July along the same route.

The enemy flyers who made the September attack gave the crewmen of one ship no time to lower lifeboats. Despite gunfire from the ship the flyers sent three torpedoes crashing into the hull.

The other ship sank in 20 minutes after having brought all her guns to bear on the attackers in a futile effort to drive them off.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1942.

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press and that cannot be limited without being lost.—Thomas Jefferson.

SOME GALLIVANT AND OTHERS DIE.

Mrs. Roosevelt made her triumphant entrance into London while Americans were reading disquieting news from across the Pacific. American marines and infantrymen are fighting on Guadalcanal against heavy odds and many of them are dying. As Mrs. Roosevelt was landing in England the Japanese were landing on an island only 30 miles from Tulagi. The navy department has conceded the loss of the cruisers Astoria, Quincy, and Vincennes and of the Australian cruiser Canberra and of several destroyers without inflicting any compensating loss on the enemy. How many men were killed in these engagements has not been revealed.

Hanson Baldwin of the New York Times, who returned recently from a first-hand survey of the Pacific front, says: "Our ships were surprised like sitting ducks; none of them had a chance to get off more than a few ineffectual salvos. They were surprised despite the fact that a report sent by one of our planes of the approach of the Japanese cruisers had been received the afternoon prior to the night action."

Mr. Willkie's world tour was intended to spare him the ignominy of seeing his arch rival in New York win the Republican nomination to the governorshp. Mrs. Roosevelt's trip has a similar but even less respectable excuse. The hope is that, there and here, attention will be focused on her and not on the black news from the Solomons. No other explanation of her trip makes sense. Already it is apparent that her progress thru the British Isles will consume the time of officials, soldiers, and working men who have no time to waste on such folderol.

These joy rides require the use of planes and perhaps of ships as well, which are greatly needed elsewhere. The equipment which was used by Mr. Willkie and Mrs. Roosevelt is needed in the Solomons to save the lives of our fighting men and the honor of their country. For lack of these planes and ships as reënforcements we may be losing the battle of the Solomons and the marines who died there will have died in vain.

The party in power in Washington has indulged in social climbing to a degree never before seen in our country. The White House has become an asylum for crowned heads. The suspicion will not down that important military decisions have been made with a view to winning favor with these royal visitors, even at the expense of American interests. The social activities of the party in power and its attempts to distract attention from its ghastly military blunders deserve the contempt and repudiation of the American people at the polls.

A BRAKE ON FUTURE INFLATION.

In every family circle over this week-end there will be frank talk about the household economies which are going to be necessary because of the tax measure signed by the President last week. Many cherished plans will have to be modified and comforts must be curtailed, for the government expects to collect in taxes from the people in this one year more than was spent by our government during the first World war. Vast as is the sum that will be collected in taxes, it is only equal to one-third of what will be spent. A huge remainder will have to be obtained by borrowing.

The war savings bond plan occupies a key position in the treasury's financial program. It is an ingenious plan. It has been adapted to enable employés to save systematically. The small purchaser can buy the bonds in confidence, since the treasury stands willing to buy them back at any time at what he paid for them plus interest. The longer they are held the higher the rate of interest.

The right to present the bonds for redemption at any time after two months is most desirable from the standpoint of the investor, but it may have dangerous consequences. These war bonds are being purchased by many persons with the idea of turning them in to buy automobiles, houses, washing machines, furniture, and many other things as soon as the war is over. Much of the money invested in war bonds therefore is just deferred spending money.

Thirteen billion dollars' worth of war savings bonds are now outstanding, and if the war lasts another two years and the present rate of purchase is maintained, nearly 35 billion dollars' worth will be outstanding at the end of the war. Thirty-five billion dollars' worth of bonds will be payable by the government upon demand. Moreover, under the new tax law the government is obligating itself to refund a portion of the victory tax after the war. In addition, a large amount of the war debt consists of short term obligations which are reissued as they fall due. The treasury department has said that its policy is to continue to finance the war with short term obligations bearing a low rate of interest.

By persuading people to buy war bonds with 10 per cent of their income, the government is reducing the volume of current spending and preventing inflation. But with the bonds convertible into cash are we being made safe from inflation now, at the expense of being sure that it occurs after the war? An expert of the commerce department, Dr. Thomas K. Hitch, points out in the October issue of Current Business that war bonds have in them the potentials of a postwar inflation boomerang. He says that unless the treasury's war bond issues are "immobilized by one of a number of possible means, inflation will remain a potential threat, particularly in the immediate postwar period."

THE TRIBUNE believes that war bonds are the finest investment any American can buy, and has promoted the sale of them by the many means which are familiar to our readers, but it has been aware of the dangerous postwar condition which they might create. It was because of this that THE TRIBUNE sent one of its representatives to Washington several months ago to present to the treasury a plan for circumventing the hazard. The plan contemplated that the government, in coöperation with the insurance companies, would sell annuities to the people, all of the premiums to be invested in government bonds during the war. Each individual would be encouraged to provide for his old age by a contract with one of the licensed insurance companies, the whole plan being underwritten by the government. Any one could buy as large an annuity as he cared to pay for. As many persons are making more money now than ever before, they would be encouraged to anticipate their premiums for several years. When any policy holder stopped paying there would be no cash refund, but the policy would be paid up on the basis of the amount already paid in.

The advantages are many. This plan would encourage every American citizen to begin at once making provision for his old age. The benefits would be definite and contractual, and not as under social security, subject to change upon the whim of congress. The government would obtain the funds which it needs to finance the war, but its debt would be long term and only moderate amounts would fall due in any year. Thus a large part of the postwar debt-funding job could be done during the war. The plan would give the great insurance industry an important part to play in the war effort. To the extent that by such a plan many people were encouraged to make provisions for their old age, the amount of old age relief the government will have to provide in the future would be reduced.

THE TRIBUNE has had no indication that the treasury was giving favorable consideration to this proposal, but it is hopeful. The article in the October issue of the commerce department monthly shows that the problem for which we have suggested a solution is at least perceived in one corner of the government.

THE AMERICANS.

The minutemen who fell at Lexington April 19, 1775, were 19 in number. These were their names: Jonas Parker, Robert Munroe, Samuel Hadley, Jonathan Harrington Jr., Isaac Muzzy, Caleb Harrington, John Brown, Jedediah Munroe, John Raymond, Nathaniel Wyman, killed, and John Robbins, Solomon Pierce, John Tidd, Joseph Comee, Ebenezer Munroe Jr., Thomas Winship, Nathaniel Farmer, Prince Estabrook, Francis Brown, wounded.

These men who fought in the service of a nation that was still to come into existence testify to the particular genius of this country to command the loyalty of men from many lands. The minutemen with few exceptions were the fruit of immigration from the British Isles and Europe, but there was a diversity of national origin. English, Scotch, Irish, Dutch, German, and French strains were represented. The Irish alone claim 150 of the militia as their countrymen.

When the name Lexington reappeared 167 years later in another war for national existence the names of the fighting men again told of north and west European ancestry, but there were significant additions. Southern and eastern Europe, the Balkans, and the Scandinavian lands had lent new strengths to the United States. Stanley Johnston, in "Queen of the Flat-Tops," the history of the U. S. S. Lexington's unforgettable career until she sank beneath the waters in the far-off Coral sea, tells their names.

A glance thru his pages reveals Sherman, Seligman, Gilmore, White, Ault, Dixon, Heine Junkers, Ramsey, Duckworth, Hansen, Aquilla Dibrelle, McDonald, Flatley, Vejtasa, Leppla, Thach, Sellstrom, Onia B. Stanley, Haynes, Edward [Butch] O'Hare, Gayler, Henry, Rolla Lemmon, Peterson, Lovelace, Vorse, Lackey, Eder, Brett, Aurand, Sterrie, Quigley, Mazza, Haschke, Hurst, Wampler, Forward, Bash, Steffenhagen, Georgius, McGowan, Brandt, Horne, and Hulegerd. There were, too, McCuskey, Ewold, Markle, Wheelhouse, Jorgenson, Brunnetti, John J. Powers, Terry, Wolke, Nealy, Healy, Wadsworth C. Trojakowski, Hauser, Raring, and many other brave men, living and dead.

Even an incomplete compilation shows how the loyalty of men from many lands who fought as minutemen 167 years ago has been sustained. The men who fought the Revolution established on this continent a land so free and fair, so hospitable to the homeless and dispossessed, and of such abiding promise that it could command the hope of men and women who knew it hardly better than as a promise beyond the oceans. The rolls of the U. S. S. Lexington tell how a faith pledged on Lexington common has been fulfilled. The men who fought in the Coral sea had, in the time of their fathers, their grandfathers, and of ancestors more remote, become the Americans who uphold America, even to laying down their lives for her.

THE ELECTION MUST NOT BE STOLEN.

The Chicago Bar association has called upon its members to volunteer as polls watchers in the Nov. 3 election. The association is one of the sponsors of the Joint Civic committee, which in previous elections turned out an army of good citizens to guard against vote frauds. These efforts were rewarded by clean elections in 1940 and in this year's primary. The last wholesale frauds occurred in the mayoralty election of 1939, when Dwight Green was counted out by the Kelly-Nash ballot thieves.

The need for vigilance in the approaching election has already been clearly shown by advance preparations made by the Democratic machine to load the polls lists with dummy voters registered from floaters' hotels. More than two hundred of these places are being investigated following the discovery by Bernard S. Black, state lodging house inspector, that there were 45 false registrations from one and 7 from another.

The bar association intends to give special training to its polls watchers so that they can be vigilant against the tricks of the machine thieves. The suggestion of Attorney General George Barrett that all watchers inspect the draft cards of suspected voters and hold them for the FBI if they are not carrying cards in compliance with the law can be adopted with profit. This is a simple test and it will cover every male voter under 65.

The people want an honest vote, and they can get it if they volunteer as polls watchers or, as private citizens, report any irregularities they witness to those delegated to watch.

PROBLEM FOR STATISTICIANS.

A reduction of 40 per cent in automobile accident insurance rates has been promised in almost all the states, if not in all of them, and there has been a sharp reduction in automobile accidents and fatalities. The explanation is to be found in the decreased use of automobiles and in slower speeds. The question remains, however, which of these influences is the more important.

We don't know whether statistical analysis is capable of determining just how the credit is to be divided. The problem is one to which statisticians can profitably devote their time. If it can be shown conclusively that a 35 mile speed limit is the principal reason for the saving of life, the fact ought to be known to guide legislatures after the war.

ON AN UNCHARTED BEACH

SOMEWHERE IN THE NORTH ATLANTIC, Oct. 24 [Wide World].—They wouldn't have noticed Hedy Lamarr, unless she was carrying something to eat—that's how 11 United States airmen summed up their plight while they were marooned four days on an ice-bound Greenland peninsula.

It was providential even that they reached the peninsula alive. It is an uncharted little thumb of beach jutting from a glacier. And they reached it with gasoline for only a few minutes flying still left in the tanks.

The plane—a Flying Fortress—had become lost in fog and rain over Greenland. Ice weighted the wings. The crew was endangered by the sea below, by jutting peaks and glaciers around them. They were bracing for a dive into the cold north Atlantic.

Then the rain slackened, the fog lifted a bit. Down below the tiny peninsula pushed into the sea from the base of a 3,000 foot glacier. A small section of its beach was flat and covered with gravel.

Down swooped the big bomber. Out piled the shouting, jubilant airmen, slapping each other on the back, congratulating the pilot. It was good to be alive. But jubilation faded when the flyers took stock of their predicament.

Lieut. J. C. [Jack] Meyer of Forest Hills, N. Y., told the story.

The pilot of the Fortress was Lieut. Howard Teague, Lieut. J. H. Reedy was co-pilot, and Major Putnam commanded the flight.

"We encountered bad weather as we approached the ice cap" [glaciers which sometimes tower 8,000 feet high and cover all Greenland except its coastal regions], Meyer related. "We had intended to fly overland to our destination, but fog and rain forced us to hug the coast.

"Visibility was so poor we sometimes had to fly at 50 to 150 foot altitudes, dodging icebergs and lofty little islands along the shores. About this time we got a radio report that the landing field we sought was entirely closed in by fog.

"We had just enough gas left to reach either Iceland or Labrador. We contacted Iceland and learned it was closed in, too. Then we were informed the weather was clear over an emergency field a few hundred miles distant at the end of a fjord in Greenland. Assuming we soon would break out of the bad weather, we headed toward this field.

"Our wings started icing up. We found several fjords, all right, but couldn't identify any of them by landmarks described over our radio.

"Every one realized we were lost. We tried to retrace our course. The fog got so thick it occasionally came right down to the surface of the water. The icebergs and islands made flying extremely dangerous.

"Once an island with a mountain about 1,200 feet high suddenly loomed up directly in front of us. Our pilot gave her the gun and the plane shot upward. We were so close that our ship was climbing parallel with the slope of the mountain. We finally cleared the mountain by only 20 or 30 feet.

"We kept on climbing," Meyer continued, "until we were up 4,000 feet and flying entirely by instruments. We reëstablished radio contact with a Greenland base and learned our position should be near the right fjord.

"Our gas was getting dangerously low. Then came that big break. We found that little beach. We put down at 11 p. m. The first thing we did was tie down the plane. We decided to wait until morning before contacting the base by radio."

It was a barren, desolate area, in which the plane landed. There wasn't a living thing in sight except an occasional seagull or seal. Sometimes there were sweeping gusts of rain and the wind shrieked—or occasionally blew in bursts.

"We had only one sleeping bag with us," he continued, "and there was no heat in the plane. It was cold. We didn't have very heavy clothing and we kept as warm as we could by huddling in the plane.

"Next morning we took inventory of our food supplies. By rationing one meal a day we found we had enough to last a week. We had a crate of onions, some grapefruit, some apples and some kippered herring we had planned to give the boys stationed in Greenland; and some tinned meat and a small supply of emergency rations of concentrated chocolate and a beef and bread mixture, in cans. We found a stream of fresh water.

"We played poker and blackjack to pass the time and stood watches, looking out for boats and planes. Much of the time, tho, we just huddled together in the plane trying to keep from freezing. The weather continued rainy and windy, but we were still in good spirits. That night, however, was pretty miserable and we didn't sleep until far into the morning because of the cold and our cramped positions."

On the second day the group again established radio contact with a Greenland base but because glaciers and mountains interfered with radio communication they couldn't obtain an accurate bearing on their position. That afternoon the sun peeped out long enough for the navigators to take a sun shot.

"But as luck would have it," Meyer related, "the direction of the sun was parallel with the coastline instead of at right angles, and we couldn't determine on what particular section of the coast we were marooned. Then, for the first time, we realized we were in a serious predicament.

"The weather got worse the third day. There was more rain, wind, and sleet. To make matters worse, the kippered herring we had eaten the night before made us all sick.

"That day we tried to shoot some seagulls with our pistols, but we couldn't get close enough for accurate firing. One man even fired a machine gun at a seagull on the beach but he missed, too. We tried to fish with the remains of the kippered herring for bait but no fish bit.

"By radio we learned that day that we were about 250 miles from a Greenland base and that searching parties would be out looking for us as soon as the weather cleared.

"We each had half a grapefruit to eat that day. One of the halves was left over and we cut cards to see who would get it. Our rations were arranged so that we each were to get an apple the following day. I swapped my next day's apple with the winner of the extra half grapefruit. Later I considered that one of the best trades I had ever made, for we were rescued the next day.

"The following morning, around 5 a. m., I heard a boat whistle and aroused the others. I grabbed a Very pistol to shoot a flare and we all started running to the tip of the peninsula.

"We saw 15 or 20 natives of Greenland who had just landed from a boat. Maybe you think we weren't glad to see them."

The owner of the boat was a Dane who spoke English. Over his radio he had heard the flyers' conversations with the base and had started looking for them.

"We went aboard his boat, dried our clothing and got warm for the first time since we were forced down," Meyer said. "And we ate our first good meal in many days. It was seal liver and certainly tasted good. We took turns sleeping in the bunks of the little ship.

"The weather cleared and in the afternoon some Americans in a flying boat landed on the bay. That night a coast guard cutter, the same one, incidentally, that Adm. Richard Byrd used on one of his polar expeditions several years ago, arrived and we went aboard. All night we carried gasoline ashore to refuel our plane. We took off the following day and flew without mishap to our Greenland destination. Two days later we returned to our home base."

AN OVERWORKED TERM—"CONSTIPATION."

SOME persons make a fetich of constipation—trusting too implicitly in the preachments which come to us from many sources. We have been led to believe that a couple of evacuations daily are essential to health. If they do not occur naturally, we rush for a laxative.

EPSOM SALTS
Shaw

The truth is that once good bowel habits have been established, assistance will rarely be needed. Nevertheless in some cases—for example, illness with confinement to bed or disorganization of the routine by unusual circumstances—help may be necessary.

Altho we cannot rule out entirely the absorption of putrid matter from the alimentary tract, we can say that this factor is not responsible for much trouble. If assimilation is reasonably normal, few bits of undissolved protein, carbohydrates, and fats will reach the colon. As a rule, only in this locality will fermentation arise.

We must recall that in the first part of this reservoir the contents will be liquid, gradually becoming firmer as the outlet is approached. One bad effect of a cathartic is to force "unprepared" particles into the bowel. As a result, we are likely to enhance bacterial growth rather than lessen it. Thus it is that, subsequent to such a procedure, the patient may complain of additional gas and foul smelling stools.

Nature has provided what is known as the "gastrocolic reflex," which becomes aroused shortly after the morning meal. The digestive apparatus has rested for 12 hours or more. Food entering the stomach then accelerates the passage of material into the rectum and a mounting sense of pressure carries its own message.

More often than not, marked irregularity is the result of bad hygiene. We fail to obey the impulse and, after a time, the stimulus will dull and finally disappear. In consequence, the lower colon will dilate and become overdistended with fecal matter—requiring considerable effort to empty the receptacle.

We sometimes forget that the character of the excretion will vary with the diet. It is possible to avoid roughage so completely that scarcely any will remain. In other words, the greedy bowel will absorb almost everything that is eaten. This explains why we employ balanced menus with generous quantities of fluids and vegetables to provide a jelling substance which will hold water and create bulk.

Of course, we may indulge in so little exercise that the abdominal muscles will refuse to coöperate. But straining at stool is neither wise nor necessary. Pressure exerted upon the organs within the pelvis may lead to congestion.

If a medical aid is insisted upon, the most useful preparation is senna. This will increase the activity of the colon without disturbing the small intestine. A tea can be made of the pods and taken at bedtime. The amount may be varied until the proper dosage has been determined. But the individual should acquire faith in a fixed schedule which will not include the use of drugs.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed, attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

NO FORESIGHT.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—It's becoming rather boresome to hear the pre-Pearl Harbor war mongers giving themselves credit for "foresightedness."

I am one who took a great interest in the subject, who read every printed word, and listened to every radio address on the much debated question of intervention or isolationism. Not once did I hear any member of the "Fight for Freedom" or other war minded committees mention danger from Japan. Always they hammered away at the need for rushing every man, every gun, every plane, and every dollar to Europe to help defeat Hitler. As far as they were concerned, Japan just didn't exist. To those of us who derived our ideas from travel and actual knowledge of conditions in the world, Japan has always been a major threat, and for this reason, we groaned and wrung our hands at the plans for removing the fleet from the Pacific to the Atlantic. [Certainly, no one of us was sufficiently smug to believe we had a two ocean navy.]

To say that the administration expected the Pearl Harbor attack—and that's what calling them "foresighted" in the matter of war equals—is to make rather a serious charge against them. For if they knew it was coming, why weren't our guards up? No. I can't believe them guilty of such considered negligence.

FROM A DAR LEADER.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—This is to express my appreciation of the editorial, "Godless Communism," in THE TRIBUNE Oct. 4. This editorial analyzes the attitude of the Communist party toward our own country more logically than anything that I have ever read on the subject. All those who love God and country should read it attentively and take it to heart.

HE AND WHO ELSE?

Lawrenceville, Ill., Oct. 18.—In today's Voice of the People is reproduced a button with the inscription, "I Helped Japan." I think I am entitled to have this pinned on me for selling all my scrap nearly two years ago, some of which no doubt was turned over to Gen. MacArthur early this year by the Japs.

SILENT MAC.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Could some one enlighten me by telling me what Congressman McKeough did to help in the war of 1917? I have the record of Sen. Brooks for that war. I want to vote for the man who helped to win that war on the battlefield, not in a swivel chair.

Congressman McKeough doesn't seem to want to talk about the last war. I wonder why?

BRIDE WANTS HER RECEPTION.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—"A Reader," today objects to the burden wartime wedding receptions put upon guests who must buy gifts. She says it seems "poor taste" for marrying couples to have large receptions.

Doesn't she realize that couples married during wartime are facing enough heartache and misery with the knowledge of almost immediate separation without foregoing the very things that may make their wedding seem normal? A reception is one of them. Couples nowadays would rather have the laughter and good fellowship of their guests than gifts, altho it's only human nature to expect gifts from those closest to them.

I expect to be a war bride in a very short time and even tho my future husband may only be home on furlough nine days [he's stationed in Alaska], I still hope to have a reception. Not for the gifts I may receive but just so there'll be music and laughter enough to make me forget I'll be saying "good-by" in a few days. And, too, so that I'll always have memories of a normal wedding in heartbreaking times.

MOVIES AND CONSERVATION.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Most housewives do save grease and tin cans. But, hard as it is to believe, some haven't yet begun to do so. A thought occurred to me: Why couldn't theater managers show a single feature program one morning, with the "price" of admission a pound of grease, or a dozen properly-prepared tin cans? Perhaps this is just the inducement some housewives who have been lax in this respect need. And once they have gotten into the habit, they'll undoubtedly keep it up.

STEAL CHILD'S FOOTBALL.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Three high school hoodlums deliberately took my 13 year old son's football away from him in Hamilton park, 71st street and Normal boulevard. Rather than have a few neighbors chase him off the street with his football, I sent him to the park, only to have these youths snatch it and run. One wore a Tilden sweater.

ADELAIDE HORNUNG.

COMMANDER IN CHIEF.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—While Mr. Roosevelt has at times referred to himself as "commander in chief" in his public addresses, it is probable it has been with no intent to deceive. Such a position is not in existence. He is, according to the Constitution, the "commander in chief" of the army and navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several states, when called into the actual service of the United States."

The rights and privileges of the President as commander in chief are very sharply defined and determined. He is not commander in chief of the "armed forces of the United States."

To illustrate: There has been discussed the formation of an air force, entirely separate and distinct from either army or navy, but coequal with these departments. If such an army were formed, the President would not constitutionally be commander in chief inasmuch as it would be neither army nor navy.

C. L. BUTLER.

REDEEMING A CONSTITUTIONAL PLEDGE.

Columbus Junction, Ia., Oct. 20.—We are pleased that the house of representatives has passed a bill to allow our Negro citizens the Constitutional privilege of voting in federal elections. A Constitutional amendment gave them this right. How can a state annul it?

Our Constitution promises equal rights to all, and special privileges to none, but it takes many more votes to elect a congressman in the north than in the southern states. In 1934, South Carolina cast 22,054 votes and elected six congressmen. The same year Iowa cast 862,253 votes and elected nine congressmen. It took 20 times as many votes to elect one congressman in Iowa as it did in South Carolina. This is a great cheat and should be stopped.

SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you be good enough to advise approximately what allotment a single person on reaching the age of 65 would receive from social security board, that is one who had been earning an average of $28 to $30 per week since the social security plan was adopted?

Will watch for your answer in your paper.

A. M.

The federal social security act, adopted in 1935, offered to match state appropriations for various forms of help to needy persons. Illinois took advantage of the old age assistance to persons in need, but has not yet acted to take its share of certain other contributions. The act also provided pay roll taxes to pay unemployment compensation and to pay old age insurance regardless of "need," both of which are now operative in Illinois.

Each fully insured individual who has reached the age of 65 receives benefits based upon his "average monthly wages." It is hardly practicable for us to give complete instructions for the calculation, but, as examples, if a person has been "covered" by pay roll taxes for three years and makes $100 per month, his benefit, if single, will be $25.75 per month, and if married, $38.63. If covered five years, the figures will be $26.25 and $39.38.

A 65 year old wife gets supplementary benefits, sufficient to bring her primary benefits, if any, up to one-half of her husband's. Dependent children under 18 are similarly eligible to supplementary benefits.

Under the 1939 amendments, benefits to widows over 65, widows with dependent children, etc., supersede the original provisions for lump sum repayment to the estates of deceased employés.

A 130 page pamphlet entitled "Social Security Act as Amended, 1939, with Explanation and Charts of New Provisions" has been published at $1 by Commerce Clearing House and is available at bookstores, but the principal source of information will be the social security board, whose offices are listed under "United States of America" in the telephone directory. RIGHT TO PROPERTY.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A husband and wife having four children purchase a piece of property and build a house on same. There are no debts against it and title is in joint tenancy between husband and wife.

1. Can the wife or mother before her death sign her part [2] or give her part to one of the children unknown to the husband or father? Does not her husband have to sign for her part, such as an agreement?

3. The oldest daughter claims mother gave her the mother's part. She [daughter] has paid taxes on property altho she receives rent for same. This daughter has papers changed to her name and her father's name with her husband as third party. Is this right?

G. S.

1. Not by will.

2. By conveyance executed and delivered during her lifetime, she could convey her one-half and the survivorship feature, except that if the property is occupied as a homestead, then the signatures of the spouse is necessary.

3. You might check up at the recorder's office. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TITLE PAPERS.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—When my husband and I purchased our house the papers were first made out as articles of agreement for warranty deed. Later on we received our warranty deed. It was made out in statutory form. But I didn't see the discrepancy, as both our names were on it. Since my husband's death I have found out that this error was made.

1. Whose error was it?

2. What necessary steps do I have to take to get clear title? There are four children, all of age, the oldest a stepchild of mine by my husband's previous marriage.

3. If the stepchild refuses to sign off with her husband, for a certain settlement, can she force a sale?

E. S.

1. If you gave your attorney instructions to obtain the title in joint tenancy and he did not carry out your instructions, then it was his error.

2. It would be necessary to probate the husband's estate, in order to get a clear title in your name. See an attorney to obtain this also deeds from the children.

MRS. ROOSEVELT VIEWS 'BLITZED' AREA OF LONDON

Faces 200 Reporters at Press Conference.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was conducted thru bomb blitzed areas of London today by King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth. Cheering crowds lining her route waved small American and British flags.

Earlier, at her first press conference here, she faced a barrage of questions ranging from whether prohibition was returning to the United States to whether she had a ration card and a gas mask.

Mrs. Roosevelt is staying in Buckingham palace rooms which bear traces of Nazi bombing—the windows are temporary because the original glass was shattered by a bomb blast.

The London press suggested tonight that American troops mount guard over the palace at least one day during Mrs. Roosevelt's visit. United States army officers said that had not been done before and that they had no precedent, because this is the first time the wife of an American President had visited Britain.

Visits St. Paul's Cathedral.

After meeting the chiefs of the British women's services at a palace luncheon, Mrs. Roosevelt set out in an automobile with the king and queen. Her first stop was at St. Paul's cathedral, where the party was greeted by the dean, the Very Rev. Walter Robert Matthews.

Mrs. Roosevelt stopped a few minutes at the memorial tablet to Pilot Officer William Meade Lindsley Fiske III., of the American Eagle squadron of the royal air force, who was the first American to die in action in this war—on Aug. 18, 1940.

Then she went to the city air raid precautions center, where she met the lord mayor of London, Sir John Laurie; then to bomb scarred streets in the east end, and on to a large shelter, where an honor guard of United States army officers and men awaited her.

Mrs. Roosevelt and the king and queen visited Guildhall, talked with civil defense workers, and had tea with the lord mayor and the mayoress before returning to the palace.

200 Attend Press Conference.

Two hundred newspaper men and women attended the press conference at the American embassy. Mrs. Roosevelt, entering with Ambassador John G. Winant, remarked that it "looked much more like one of my husband's conferences"—she usually having about 50 women at her press conferences in Washington, D. C.

When asked about the possibility of prohibition coming back, she replied:

"A very active group is for it—more active than usual since the proposal that boys of 18 be taken into the army. I doubt very much that the group will be successful."

She said she is interested in everything the British women are doing in the war effort and added that it is hard to say whether American women will be conscripted.

War Welding Two Peoples.

She declared that the war is bringing the American and British people together, with a "resultant greater knowledge of each other's problems, hopes, and aspirations."

When some reporters wanted to know if she had been issued a ration card and a gas mask, she replied:

"I don't have either. Of course, I do not have to use a mask at home."

After Monday morning, Mrs. Roosevelt will cease to be a palace guest, the tradition being that a person can be an official guest there only three days. From then on she will be visiting there as a friend.

[Another London dispatch said Mrs. Roosevelt "scooped" her press conference by announcing in her syndicated column that she is visiting London on the personal invitation of Queen Elizabeth.]

BROWDER WASN'T THERE; REPORTER DISCOVERS WHY

Earl Browder wasn't one of the husky men in room 116 at the Hotel Sherman yesterday. The men were quite definite about that, altho the hotel clerk had told a reporter that Browder might be in room 116 if the Communist leader had come to town as reported.

Convinced that Browder wasn't there, after the men had announced they wouldn't let him in if he came, the reporter left and learned from further inquiry that Browder is expected to arrive today. The reporter found out who the men in the room were, too:

William E. Keith, assistant adjutant of the Illinois American Legion, and some Legion post officers, getting ready for a convention.

WIN WAR, PEACE, REVIVE FREE U. S., LEGION DEMANDS

Chief Would Banish Regimentation.

The American Legion will extend every effort in the next few years to the gaining of three objectives—to win the war, to win the peace, and to return to the country its form of government, Roane Waring of Memphis, Tenn., national commander, said last night.

Waring spoke at the final session of the annual conference of post commanders of the first and second divisions of the Legion in Illinois, yesterday at the Sherman hotel.

"Our primary interest is in winning the war," Waring said. "Then we are just as interested in winning the peace, and our third objective is to see that this country comes back to its fundamental principles, and is again a government 'of the people, by the people, and for the people.'"

Assails Labor Disputes.

Waring assailed disputes between labor and industry, or among labor groups, as wartime delays.

"Any group, labor, capital, industry, or political, that prevents the necessary material from reaching the men at the front is a saboteur and a traitor and should be treated as such," he said bluntly.

"We should have military men selected for military tasks, business men for business tasks," he continued, "and let the college professors and the social workers go back to the confines of their institutions."

War of Annihilation.

Waring declared the Legion is opposed to any negotiated peace, and favors a dictated peace following the complete annihilation of the axis powers. "That's the only kind of peace that will prevent another war next generation," he declared.

Waring said he realized the need for surrender of individual rights and personal liberties to a certain extent during the war, but added, "when the war is over the American Legion is going to stand for going back to the fundamentals of our American forefathers."

BRITISH SMASH THRU AXIS LINE AT EL ALAMEIN

Believe Goal Is Conquest of All North Africa.

strafed and bombed air fields all day yesterday and last night, striving to pave the way for the land offensive by knocking out the enemy's battered air force. RAF medium bombers and naval aircraft jolted Rommel's front lines with an uninterrupted series of attacks yesterday and showered troop concentrations in the El Daba area, just behind the front.

Down Nine Enemy Planes.

In 439 sorties—raiding missions by single planes—allied fighters shot down nine axis aircraft.

Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, new commander in the middle east, and his field commander in Egypt, Lieut. Gen. B. L. Montgomery, chose cool weather and moonlight nights when the desert is virtually as light as day to set in motion their mixed forces of British, Americans, South Africans, New Zealanders, Indians, Poles, "Fighting French," and Greeks.

Back of the lines were imposing American establishments for the repair and servicing of war machines.

Believe Supply Battle Won.

It was believed that Alexander was satisfied that he had won the battle of supplies in the weeks since Sept. 1 or he would not have started an offensive at this time.

British records showed the axis had lost 193 planes this month, compared with British losses of 85, and that allied submarines in the same time had sunk at least 10 supply laden ships, while allied bombers and torpedo planes accounted for many more in assaults on sea trains and bases in Sicily, Greece, and Crete.

The British now have 1,000 miles to go to reach Tripoli or 230 miles to get to the Libyan border.

The all-Mediterranean nature of the present struggle has been recognized by the Germans, who are reported to have made Rommel the generalissimo of Italian and German land, sea, and air forces not only in the present battle but also for any campaign they may attempt thru Syria or the middle east.

Would Aid Convoys.

It was clear that if the British once cleared the southern shore of the Mediterranean they would be in a much better position to use that shortened route for their convoys not only to the middle east but to Russian and Chinese supply lines and India.

Altho the battle was centered in the narrow coastal corridor between the sea and the Qattara depression, it was expected by observers that it would soon spread as the British have repeatedly sent raiding expeditions deep into the desert interior.

That the Germans were watchful was indicated by a "Fighting French" announcement of two air raids on their position in the Kufra oasis, 500 miles south of Tobruk and just to the west of the Egyptian frontier.

Africa at Stake: Nazis.

BERLIN, Oct. 24 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The German news agency Transocean said today that offensive operations begun yesterday by the British on the Egyptian front were the start of a large scale effort to shatter axis positions thruout North Africa.

Transocean said "competent British military quarters" in Cairo, Egypt, felt this offensive would decide the fate of the Mediterranean and added that Berlin had known for some time that small United States tank units have been coöperating with the British 8th army and that it is believed they are taking part in this offensive.

These dispatches tied in with an earlier estimate by the agency's military correspondent, Gen. Count Stillfried, that such an offensive had been expected by the German high command and axis forces had been strengthened to meet it.

MILAN ATTACKED BY BIG FORCE OF BRITISH BOMBERS

French Say RAF Hits City Near Vichy.

LONDON, Oct. 24 [Sunday]—(AP).—A large force of RAF Lancaster bombers made the first British daylight attack on military objectives in Milan, Italy, yesterday, it was authoritatively stated here early today, several hours after the Vichy news agency charged British bombers had machine gunned Montlucon, in unoccupied France near Vichy.

The RAF in its newest assault, a 1,200 mile round trip affair, thus was carrying on without intermission its new campaign against the traffic and industrial centers of northern Italy. On Thursday and Friday nights the British heavily bombed Genoa, Turin, and Savona.

Milan, latest Italian city to be raided, is the home of the Caproni bombers and other industrial works.

Raid Called Successful.

A communique said preliminary reports showed the raid was successful, but acknowledged three bombers were missing. The air ministry said the attack was pressed home from a low level.

The path of the huge bombers across Europe was traced during Saturday afternoon by a series of alerts in unoccupied France and Switzerland.

The heaviest bombers in the RAF's arsenal Friday night attacked Genoa and Turin for the second night in succession in a 1,500 mile round trip. Savona, a port 25 miles west of Genoa, was added to the RAF calling list and the Italians broadcast that the damage was notable.

Genoa Still Smouldering.

Three bombers were lost on the mass flight in nasty weather. Genoa still was smouldering from the destruction of the night before.

The successive attacks in forces by upwards of 100 bombers obviously were timed to prevent the axis from rushing material and men across the Mediterranean to the African front.

29 Killed at Genoa.

A Rome communique yesterday claimed that "no serious damage" was caused in the Friday night raids on Genoa and Turin, but admitted "damage was more notable" at Savona. Casualties in the raids were listed by Rome as follows: Genoa, 29 killed, 121 injured; Savona, 13 killed, 46 injured, and Turin, 1 dead, 10 injured.

Many persons were reported injured Friday night at Genoa "in consequence of excessive crowding in a shelter," which was taken by the British to indicate that something like a panic was touched off in that city by the RAF raiders.

Following up the raids on northern Italy, British fighter planes yesterday raided targets in Holland, northern France, and off the French coast.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

A. O. C. writes: "So far I haven't read anything in your column about the C. B.'s. Doesn't that branch of service have any use for skilled men?"

ANSWER: The enlisted personnel of the "Seabees" [naval construction battalions] is recruited from experienced construction workers between the ages of 17 and 50. This is the only unit where defective color perception is not a bar to enlistment, but applicants must be able to pass substantially the same physical examination as required by the naval reserve of the regular navy. In each company, there are unskilled men enlisted in the ratings of first and second class seamen. The remainder of the company includes a wide variety of trades and occupations, such as machinists, carpenters, electricians, shovel operators, crane operators, pipe fitters, steel workers, painters, draftsmen, and photographers. No previous naval experience is required. Qualified men, including foremen and superintendents, are enrolled in Class V-6 of the naval reserve with acting appointments in ratings from third class petty officers to chief petty officer and with equivalent pay and dependency allowances. At present qualified structural iron workers and riggers, carpenters, cooks and bakers, and several thousand laborers are being sought. The work of this branch is to construct, support, and maintain docks, shore stations, and naval shipyards thruout the world, and to recruit, equip, and maintain the men in these units. The Chicago office is in room 262, 225 South Clark street, or contact any navy recruiting office; if none is convenient, we will send you interesting descriptive material on request.

G. B. writes: "I have just managed to get the wheat threshed, but the third cutting of alfalfa is still in the windrows; 300 acres of oats left to cut, 150 acres of oat hay to get in; 100 pigs to feed twice a day. In addition I have a number of cattle to feed out. What I want to know is, isn't there some way to keep the draft boards from raiding our farm help? Every time I get a good man, they draft him."

ANSWER: The farmer is just as much entitled to file the 42-A form for occupational deferment of his help as is the industrialist. If the farm is producing for the open market the foodstuff required in support of the war effort, then the farmer and his help are "essential men engaged in an essential civilian occupation."

R. A. W. writes: "I have had over 10 years of competitive shooting in skeet meets thruout the country with an average score of from 97 to 100. Could I qualify for an instructor in the armed forces?"

ANSWER: Yes. Apply at the nearest office for naval officer procurement if you have a college degree, or at any navy recruiting office for a specialist rating.

J. C. writes: "We are 52 uncomplaining men from Chicago stationed at a new camp here in the lonely, dusty, wilderness of Oklahoma. One of our greatest headaches is coat hangers. We can use a lot of them; also books and magazines for our day room. Can do?"

ANSWER: Maybe our readers "can do." Address Special Service Officer, 347th Ordnance Motor Transport Company, Camp Gruber, Oklahoma.

RARE STAMP GIFT FOR F. D. R. STIRS TEMPEST IN CUBA

Probe of Imperforate Issue Demanded.

New York, Oct. 24 [Special].—President Roosevelt, owner of one of the world's largest and most valuable stamp collections, is again the center of a philatelic storm as the result of the recent presentation to him of imperforate sheets of the five stamps composing Cuba's 1942 "For Democracy" issue, according to reports from Havana reaching local stamp collectors.

When existence of imperforate sheets of these stamps was revealed by the presentation, which was made at the White House on Columbus day by David Joffo, former diplomatic and financial adviser to the king of Afghanistan, Cuban philatelic ranks are reported to have protested that these sheets wil lacquire a fabulous artificial value unless duplicates are made generally available to collectors by the Cuban government.

Investigation Demanded.

Cuba's collectors are asking how many such imperforate sheets exist, and the Cuban Philatelic society has requested the government to re-issue the stamps in imperforate condition, it was said. A demand has arisen in Cuban philatelic ranks for an official inquiry into circumstance attending the printing of the stamps, according to reports, and indignation has been widely expressed because the government failed to announce that such stamps had been run off the presses.

Collectors said Joffo, a stamp collector, originally suggested the "For Democracy" stamp issue to the Cuban government and that Cuban postal officials ran off two imperforate sheets of each of the five stamps. One set was given to Joffo and the other entrusted to him for presentation to President Roosevelt as a gift from President Batista and Cuban postal authorities, they said.

"Farley Follies" Recalled.

Stamp collectors here are commenting on the similarity of the incident to the "Farley follies" stamp scandal of 1935, when James Farley, postmaster general, was discovered to have made a practice of autographing sheets of new commemorative stamps before perforation or gumming and presenting such sheets to President Roosevelt and other favored New Dealers. When this practice was exposed in congress the postoffice department ordered imperforate sheets of all such stamps placed on sale to the public.

Because of their rarity, imperforate sheets of stamps have a tremendously enhanced value, philatelists said. They recalled that in 1940 it was estimated stamps with a potential value of $187,500 had been acquired by Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes on payment of a face value charge of $82.50 to the bureau of engraving. Ickes was allowed to purchase imperforate sheets of a special ungummed national park issue.

HERE IS HISTORY OF AFRICAN WAR AS ATTACK OPENS

The British offensive launched in North Africa last night is the third large scale assault against the axis in that desert theater in three years of war. These are the important dates of the war in North Africa:

Sept. 17—Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's Italian forces push to Sidi Barrani, 70 miles inside Egypt.

Dec. 8—British start offensive against Italians.

1941.

Jan. 22—British capture Tobruk; 25,000 Italians, including four generals, taken prisoner.

Feb. 6—British capture Bengasi, 340 miles inside Libya.

April 13—Axis forces again reach Egyptian frontier.

Dec. 6—British start new offensive in Egypt.

Dec. 10—Besieged Tobruk relieved.

Dec. 25—British troops enter Bengazi second time.

1942.

Jan. 29—Rommel's Afrika Korps captures Bengazi second time.

June 21—Axis again captures Tobruk; 25,000 British prisoners seized.

July 1—Axis armies reach El Alamein area.

Sept. 1—United States tank and air forces disclosed to be participating in battle for Egypt.

Oct. 23—Allies launch third desert offensive.

German Woman Spy and Jap Arrested in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 24 (AP).—The government today announced the arrest of Teresa D. Khon, 30 year old German woman it described as a "dangerous spy" who had been operating for several years in South America. She was said to have been working with a Japanese, Naito Hirokichi, also under arrest. In his luggage police found notes in Japanese which "are believed to have important information for the Japanese government," the government said.

Irwin Kadens, 33 year old "one man crime wave," embarked on a hunger strike yesterday morning in his cell at the county jail, but it was a short lived affair. Kadens, who refused to eat dinner Friday night, breakfast yesterday morning, and lunch at noon, had a change of mind when Warden Frank G. Sain and Dr. M. H. Levy, jail physician, showed up yesterday afternoon with a hose to forcibly feed their prisoner.

"Okay, I give up. You win. I'll eat," Kadens was quoted as saying, and proceeded to eat two slices of bread and to drink a glass of milk and cup of coffee. Later he asked for a shave, reported he felt "chipper," and ate three fried eggs and more bread.

Earlier in the day Kadens had refused to talk to his mother who sought to visit him, and had yelled at his attorney, "I want the electric chair." He faces three robbery charges and one charge of rape, with the possibility that federal authorities may seek his trial in Detroit on a kidnaping charge, which might carry the death penalty.

JOLIET LANDLORD FACES CONTEMPT IN 2d RENT SUIT

Peter Balich, a landlord at 1307 North Hickory street, Joliet, was adjudged in contempt of court yesterday by Judge William H. Holly in federal District court, on a charge of violating an order under the rental control edict in not keeping apartment heat up to standard.

The charge was preferred against him by John Hastings, an attorney for the Office of Price Administration, in behalf of ohn Kodrich, Balich's tenant. Kodrich, who is married and has an infant son, recently obtained a reduction of his rent from $25 a month for his three room apartment to $16 a month, at which figure the rent had been frozen. A few days ago, when the outside temperature was around 50 degrees, Attorney Hastings charged, the heat in the Kodrich apartment was 54 degrees in the daytime and 44 degrees at night.

Balich was not in court during the hearing, but his attorney, telephoning from Joliet, sought to excuse his absence by explaining Balich had just started on a new job.

Plan Big South Side Negro Housing Project

250 ROW HOUSES TO BE BUILT IN INITIAL GROUP

900 Unit Total Will Cost 4½ Million.

BY AL CHASE
[Real Estate Editor.]

Construction will be started within 10 days on the first privately financed large scale rental housing project for Negroes in Chicago, eventually to provide homes for 900 families at a cost of 4½ million dollars, it was announced yesterday by Gael Sullivan, Federal Housing administration state director for Illinois.

Gael Sullivan.

It will occupy an 80 acre tract, to be known as Princeton Park, bounded by Wentworth avenue, 91st and 95th streets, and the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad right of way.

Priorities have been granted, FHA commitments issued for insured mortgages, plans drawn, and contracts let for the first section of the big project, to cost $1,225,000, comprising 230 row house units, of 4½ and 5½ rooms, at a rental scale of $47.50 for 4½ rooms.

38 Separate Buildings.

The initial 230 two story homes will be in 38 separate buildings, designed by Holsman & Holsman, architects, containing 4, 6, and 8 units each. Each house will be separated from its neighbor by solid masonry walls, and each will have its own basement with coal fired furnace and laundry equipment.

On the first floor will be a kitchen, dining alcove, and living room. The second floor will have two or three bedrooms and bath. There will be front and rear porches on all homes.

All lawns and buildings will be maintained by the Princeton Park trust, with a small yard provided for each living unit. Garbage and ash removal service, water, lawn maintenance, some decorating, auto parking space, gas cooking range, cabinets, and automatic refrigerator are to be included in the rent.

Suggested by Gael Sullivan.

The incentive for the project came from a suggestion by Gael Sullivan, who for the last eight years has stressed the need for such a privately financed project for Negroes. Studies were made some time ago of a tract of land and the actual plans to proceed as now outlined are the result of his suggestion, it was said.

The recent extra demands for living quarters for skilled Negro workers now engaged in war work has further emphasized the need for housing of this chartecr.

Under supervision of the Chicago Plan commission and FHA's land planning department a layout of winding roads has been made. Adequate play space for children without traffic dangers is provided.

Near Big War Plants.

The new project is within commuting distance of the South Chicago plant of Carnegie-Illinois Steel company, Wisconsin Steel company, Pressed Steel Car company, aircraft division of Pullman company, and the Acme Steel company.

The site of Princeton Park last year was the scene of College Terrace Housing project, sponsored by the Rev. Hermes Zimmerman, announced as a nonprofit, community effort, which never advanced beyond the sketch stage, altho 150 families were said to have registered for the 300 contemplated homes.

Government Leases Land for Rubber Scrap Storage

Rubber Reserve corporation leased for government use 12½ acres at the southwest corner of 47th street and California avenue, in the Kenwood Manufacturing district, thru J. H. Van Vlissingen & Co. The land will be used for storage of rubber tires and scrap rubber. Ten acres in the Deering works of International Harvester on West Fullerton avenue also were leased.

Uptown Apartment Hotel Purchased for $85,000

E. Warrenn bought the apartment hotel building at 5712 Winthrop avenue, containing 60 furnished suites, from the Metropolitan Trust company, trustee, for a reported $85,000, subject to a $45,000 mortage. Hoffenberg & Kopp was broker.

Rental Row Houses for Negroes

One of the row house buildings, containing eight two-story residential units, in Princeton Park, at Wentworth and 95th, privately financed housing project for Negroes, designed by Holsman & Holsman.

Offers of Homes to Remodel Pour Into War Housing Unit

Offers of houses for remodeling into smaller units, inquiries about rebuilding, and applications for actual conversion of residential quarters into homes for war workers; poured into the new War Housing center, 120 South La Salle street, in a constantly increasing volume last week, Waldemar Weichbrodt, director, reported yesterday.

The National Housing agency's new program to obtain more housing accommodations for war workers by conversion of present buildings into smaller living units, he said, is meeting with a rapidly growing interest from property owners, realtors, mortgage firms, architects, and builders.

Receive 370 Offers.

So far 370 offers of various kinds of properties, said by their owners to be suitable for rebuilding into smaller units, have been received by WHC. In addition, 217 letters either offering properties or inquiring about the conversion plan have been received.

Ten actual applications signed by property owners for NHA conversion of their properties have been received. Two of them already have been forwarded to Home Owners Loans corporation for checking. They are the nine story building at 559-61 Surf street, owned by Charles E. Joern, builder, and the 12 room frame residence at 123 North Central avenue, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Denvir. She suggests that her property can be rebuilt into four or five small apartments.

Government to Pay Cost.

If these applications are approved, the properties will be leased by HOLC, remodeled at government expense, and the converted units rented to war workers. At the end of the war they will be turned back to the owners "within a reasonable time" without any expense to them.

Ald. Arthur Lindell [9th] chairman of the housing committee of the city council, and a member of the steering committee recently appointed by John R. Fugard, chairman of the defense housing committee of the Chicago Office of Civilian Defense, to help in formulating the WHC's program, said that the 559 Surf street property could have its 30 flats rebuilt into at least 76 smaller living units.

TWO BUILDINGS IN WHOLESALE AREA 100% FULL

The seven story building at 701 South La Salle street and the Stratford building, 418 South Wells street, are 100 per cent rented, the Older Realty company reported yesterday.

Last available space in the latter building was taken by Threads, Inc. Tatterschall, Inc., paper jobbers, and Model-Craft, Inc., makers of rubber educational novelties, leased remaining vacancies at 701 South La Salle.

Relocate Tenants from Heywood-Wakefield Bldg

Several tenants in the Heywood-Wakefield company buildings at Arthington, Taylor, and Washtenaw avenues, recently sold by J. H. Van Vlissingen & Co., to Sprague, Warner & Co., have been re-located as follows: United Wallpaper Factories, Inc., leased 27,000 square feet at 2650 West Roosevelt road; Overland Printing company, fourth floor at 1001 West Washington street; Empire Table company, Inc., 4501 South Western avenue.

Goldblatt Leases Space for Merchandise Storage

Goldblatt Brothers leased 30,000 square feet in the Acme Bed and Spring company building, 519-57 East Pershing road, for storage. J. W. Ferry of Older Realty company was broker.

BUY FOR FUTURE EXPANSION.

Standard Stamping and Perforating company, 3131 West 49th place, in the Kenwood manufacturing district, bought land at South Kedzie and 49th place for an addition to its plant when conditions warrant, J. H. Van Vlissingen & Co. reported yesterday.

REBUILD BASEMENT SHOPS INTO FLATS, REALTOR SUGGESTS

Basement shops in apartment buildings, whether vacant or rented, should be converted into living quarters, Arnold T. Linder, vice president of Harold E. Vetter & Co., realtors, suggested yesterday. By doing this, he said, housing accomodations will be increased and store vacancies decreased.

"Every realtor should encourage property owners to convert basement shops in flat buildings into apartments," he said. "If they are rented there probably is a store vacancy nearby on a business street available to which they could move."

This would help relieve the housing shortage and take up the slack in business vacancies, Linder asserted.

Lease Building for State Aircraft Workers' School

The state board of vocational education, defense training, yesterday leased the two story building, containing 45,000 square feet, at 5001 West Madison street, from Community Motors, Inc., for an undisclosed period. J. H. Van Vlissingen & Co. represented the owner and Ralph H. Beesley & Co. the lessee. It will be used as a school to train men and women for work in the new Chicago aircraft assembly plant, to be operated by Douglas Aircraft company, west of Park Ridge.

BUILD 35 MORE HOMES ON LAND NEAR WESTMONT

Thirty-One Units Already Sold and Occupied.

Completion of 35 two story homes for war workers in Blackhawk Heights, an 80 acre development between Clarendon Hills and Westmont, is scheduled for the last two weeks in November, it was announced yesterday. Thirty-one houses already have been built, sold, and are occupied.

Provide for Park.

It has been laid out with winding roads and all improvements are in and paid for, it was said. Provision is made for a park. The tract has been platted into 280 lots, each 60 by 132 feet, and the intention of the owner is evidently to build on all of them.

The homes, with solid brick walls of the same material on all sides, contain five rooms. All have basements and are heated with gravity feed coal-fired warm air furnaces.

Bought by War Workers.

The property is being developed by Blackhawk Builders, Inc., headed by M. A. Brain. The Investors' syndicate of Minneapolis is financing it thru its Chicago office with $5,400 Federal Housing authority title 6 insured loans.

A majority of the homes have been purchased by employés of the Electro-Motive corporation, La Grange, it was said.

KROPP FORGE CO. STARTS WORK ON OFFICE BUILDING

To care for increased war activity, the Kropp Forge company, Cicero, has begun construction of a two story office building and garage, which will more than double its present administrative space. Roy A. Blass of Wilmette, is architect.

The walls will be of poured concrete, with black cast granite base, and window sprandrels of oriental red marble. It is planned for eventual air conditioning.

Roy A. Kropp, president, said the new structure has no connection with the recently announced Kropp Forge Aviation company, which will have its own executive offices.

BUYS SIX FLAT BUILDING.

The Junette apartments, comprising six suites at 8226 Drexel avenue, were sold yesterday by the Trust Company of Chicago, trustee, to Dr. Andrew Ross McCradie for $28,000. Swan-Lorish, Inc., was broker. Herman & Pollak was attorney.

BARE $3,350 FUR THEFT IN KILLING OF TWO WOMEN

Loot in Evanston's Gem Murders Increases.

Evanston police discovered yesterday that the robber-killer of Mrs. Lillian Galvin and her maid carried off furs valued at $3,350 in addition to the $28,000 in jewelry which was stolen.

The furs were taken from a celluloid container in the cedar chest on the second floor of the spacious home at 3038 Normandy place where Mrs. Galvin and Miss Edna Sibilski were shot to death on Thursday. The missing pieces included a silver fox coat, valued at $1,500; a sable short sleeved jacket, $1,500, and a lynx jacket, $600.

Rip Open Fur Cabinet.

Police said the robber had ripped open the container with a jagged instrument.

During the day the Hartford Fire Insurance company posted a $15,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer. An agent for the company said the reward would be paid whether or not the stolen goods are recovered.

Ballistics experts were studying the two bullets with which Mrs. Galvin and Miss Sibilski were slain. The experts hoped eventually to trace the person to whom the .45 caliber gun was originally sold.

But the search for the weapon was unavailing.

Neighbors were being questioned in the hope that some one might provide a better identification of the automobile which was twice seen parked in the neighborhood of the home before the killing. This was a gray sedan, in which a man slouched over the wheel.

Usual Clews Lacking.

The car and man were first noticed a week ago yesterday, around the corner from the Galvin home, in Lawndale avenue. It was seen again last Monday, a block north of the home in Grant street. Both times the car was seen at noon, and it is at noon on Thursday that the murders are believed to have occurred.

The utter lack of physical clews leads the police to suspect that the crime was carefully planned in advance, possibly by the same jewel robbers who took $17,000 worth of jewelry from Mrs. Galvin and her husband, Paul V. Galvin, on July 27, 1940. At that time the robbers forced the Galvins' car to leave the road on a lonely stretch near Half Day, in Lake county. The gunmen, wearing masks, then took the gems.

Mrs. Galvin's husband is chairman of the priorities committee for the radio and radio equipment industry and president of the Galvin Manufacturing corporation, manufacturers of Motorola automobile and home radios. He was on his way home from Washington, D. C., when he learned of the shooting.

WOMAN'S RIGHT TO CHANGE MIND SAVES SAM HUNT

The traditional right of a woman to change her mind yesterday saved Sam [Golf Bag] Hunt, former Capone hoodlum, from conviction for the murder of Michael Wade, a Negro houseman, in a traffic altercation.

Hunt's escape was revealed when the nine women and three men on the jury which tried him were discharged by Acting Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court after reporting that they were hopelessly deadlocked.

The vote, according to Foreman Milton H. Schroeder, 10440 Avenue L, a steel production man, was 11 to 1 for conviction. On Friday night, several hours after the jury had started deliberations, all 12 favored a guilty verdict, he said, but overnight one of the woman jurors changed her mind after some one mentioned the minimum punishment for murder is 14 years' imprisonment.

Hunt was taken back to jail and State's Attorney Courtney said he would be tried for the third time. A previous jury also disagreed.

Spain Again Denies Giving Aid to Nazi Submarines

MADRID, Spain, Oct. 24 (AP).—The Spanish foreign office issued another denial today that German submarines are using the facilities of Spanish ports. A statement said that reports abroad that U-boats were refueling at the Canary Islands are "malicious." On June 30 the foreign office denied that Spanish ships had sent radio messages which aided submarines in finding merchant vessels of the united nations and on June 20 it was formally denied that Spanish ships supplied fuel to axis submarines.

FIRE ROUTS 11 FROM HOMES.

Eleven persons were routed by smoke from a building at 5431 North Spaulding avenue yesterday after fire had broken out in the basement. Firemen estimated the damage at $500.

PLAN CITY-WIDE CAMPAIGN TO RID CHICAGO OF RATS

Civic Group to Outline Fight Tomorrow.

Members of the Clean City committee will meet tomorrow in the Woman's City club to make further plans in a city-wide war against rats. The first front of the drive was opened recently between Maxwell street and Roosevelt road and between Peoria and Aberdeen streets.

Representatives of civic organizations, attending a recent meeting called by the Metropolitan Housing council, heard Mrs. Hilda Gitlin, executive director of the council, assert that 85 per cent of the city's 708,768 rats—the department of public works' census figure—which once fed on alley débris, have been driven into homes or cellars in search of food.

Caused Serious Injuries.

She reported yesterday cases in which rats invaded homes, usually on the near west side, and caused serious injuries.

The public works department rat census, made about Nov. 1, 1941, arrived at the figure of 708,768 by reckoning 2.3196 rodents per rat hole. During that year, the report read, 1,398,895 rats were killed. Twenty-nine tons of the animals were found dead on the ground's surface. Many more were known to be dead in concealed places.

Boy Scouts to Aid.

The aid of Boy Scouts, civilian defense workers, churches, schools, and civic organizations has been solicited in the drive on the near west side, which has been termed the city's most rat infested area.

Workers will urge the use of rat-proof garbage containers and the insulation of homes and garages against rats, as well as the use of red squill and other rat poisons. If the trial drive is successful, the methods used will be introduced to other parts of the city, Mrs. Gitlin said.

BOYS' CLUB AID ASKED BY DAWES, BUDD, KEMPER

Charles G. Dawes, former Vice President of the United States; Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington route, and James S. Kemper, insurance company president, joined yesterday in an appeal for financial aid for the Boys' Clubs of America, Inc.

They wrote that the clubs are organizing their more than 300,000 members into a militant body called the "BoysclubB Victory Volunteers." In this they will undergo preservice training designed to improve them physically and mentally.

"Of all the charities of this general character, we know of none more essential to the general welfare," said Dawes, Kemper and Budd. "Now, in time of war, when the proper training of boys is so essential to the security of the nation, it is doubly essential."

Gifts of $10 to $25 or any sum should be sent to Gen. Dawes at 208 South La Salle street.

17 INFANTS DIE IN EPIDEMIC AT HOSPITAL; 17 ILL

A scourge of intestinal disease hit the hospital's nursery three weeks ago. Since then 15 babies succumbed to the malady in the hospital and two died after having been taken home from the hospital. All victims were less than one month old.

Dr. Fred G. Carter, hospital superintendent, expressed hope the epidemic had been brought under control.

Dr. Carter said the malady had been diagnosed as a diarrhea, believed to be caused by a filtrable virus—a poison that will pass thru the finest of filters. Symptoms are loss of weight, apathy, mild diarrhea, and in the final stages collapse of the circulatory system.

Switched Too Soon

The observation car of the Illinois Central railroad's southbound Panama Limited train was derailed yesterday at Ashkum, in Iroquois county. Railroad officials said no one was injured and the train proceeded after the observation car and the car ahead were cut from the train because of slight mechanical damage.

The officials said that the train was crossing from one track to another. The towerman, believing that the train had completed the crossing, threw the switch before the observation car had crossed, railroad officials said.

VETERAN, 51, WINS STAY IN FIGHT TO AVOID INDUCTION

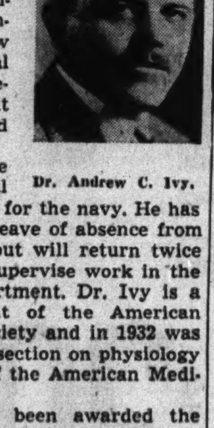
The scheduled induction of Elmer F. Stevens, 1402 North La Salle street, into the army was temporarily halted yesterday when Judge Michael L. Igoe of the federal District court issued a writ of habeas corpus on a preliminary showing that Stevens is 51 years old, above the inductable draft age and a veteran of the last war. Federal Judge William J. Campbell will hear the case Tuesday.

Stevens, who served 18 months in the army in 1917-'18, said that he registered for service in this war because he was not certain of his age, and he did not want to risk the possibility of being classified as a draft violator. Subsequently he learned from his previous army service that he was born Feb. 24, 1891. However, his draft board had estimated his age as 45, and on Oct. 10 ordered his induction.

"I served in the last war and I'm willing to serve in this one," Stevens told Judge Igoe, "but I don't like the idea of being drafted when the draft act doesn't apply to a man of my age."

APPOINT DR. IVY NAVY'S MEDICAL RESEARCH CHIEF

Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, Nathan Smith Davis professor of physiology and pharmacology of Northwestern university, has been appointed civilian director of the Naval Medical Research institute at the new naval medical center at Bethesda, Md., it was announced yesterday.



Dr. Andrew C. Ivy.

Dr. Ivy will be in charge of all medical research for the navy. He has taken a partial leave of absence from the university, but will return twice each month to supervise work in the physiology department. Dr. Ivy is a former president of the American Physiological society and in 1932 was chairman of the section on physiology and pathology of the American Medical association.

He has twice been awarded the association's gold medal for scientific investigation. He first received the award in 1938 for a demonstration of experimental work on the intersexuality of rats. In 1941 he was given the medal for his work on bile salt therapy and metabolism.

FARM HAND KILLED BY TRUCK.

Mendota, Ill., Oct. 24 [AP].—Joseph Fisher, 61 years old, a farm hand employed by Leo Sondgeroth, was killed last night when he was struck by a truck driven by Sondgeroth's son, Leon.

SENATE VOTES 18 YEAR DRAFT; REBUFFS F. D. R.

One Year Training Before Combat Approved.

high schools or similar institutions. On this point the house bill differs somewhat, allowing deferment until the end of the academic year for those in both high school and college.

2. Outlawing an old statute enabling parents of youths under 21 to obtain their discharge from the armed forces if they enlist without parental consent. This provision was included in both the house and senate bills after officials explained that the present law is meaningless with the nation planning to draft youths under 21.

Accept Men with Records.

3. Accepting as conscripts men who may have been convicted of a misdemeanor in past life, also included in the house bill. According to selective service officials, there have been a number of registrants who won deferment by virtue of old liquor law violations.

Enactment of the legislation is expected to make approximately 1,500,000 of the 18 and 19 year olds available for conscription and, according to Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, head of the selective service system, will enable the army to reach its avowed goal of 7½ million men by the end of next year without drafting married men with children.

The bill also will delay the induction of married men, beginning in December when classification of the new categories is scheduled to be completed. In the intervening time however there will be some married men called along with the remaining single registrants and those with so-called collateral dependents.

Democratic Confusion Seen.

The fight against the training requirement was led by Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.] and Senators Hill and Gurney. The latter acted as manager of the bill yesterday, presumably because of the desire of Democratic members to have the Republicans shoulder some of the responsibility for lowering the draft age in an election year.

In a last effort to defeat the amendment, which was introduced by Senators W. Lee O'Daniel [D., Tex.] and George Norris [Ind., Neb.], Gurney arose as the vote neared and read the chamber Gen. George C. Marshall's final plea and warning against approval of the measure.

"This amendment is the equivalent of blowing the whistle and telling the enemy that 'time is out' indefinitely, and that we cannot go on with the war until we have had a year to train the men we are going to get," Chief of Staff Marshall wrote.

The outcome on this issue was regarded as a personal triumph for Sen. Hiram Johnson, who was the first to ris yesterday in opposition to passage of the bill in the form unanimously approved by the military affairs committee. The uprising, which he touched off, was never stopped from that point.

Lucas Proposal Rejected.

Later today Sen. Scott W. Lucas [D., Ill.] proposed that boys under 20 be given the opportunity to volunteer for combat service and to be so assigned by the army if they are deemed to have "adequate" training. Following charges by Johnson that this represented an attempt by the administration to nullify the training amendment and circumvent the will of the house, the Lucas proposal was defeated 33 to 32.

Earlier, Sen. M. E. Tydings suggested that the training period be reduced to six months rather than a year.

He asserted that the United States is already doing more than its share in the war to crush Hitlerism and when Hill attempted to argue that "there are always petty jealousies among allies," Tydings continued:

"I am not afraid of allies. Napoleon was finally defeated by allies. Certainly the countries which have been under attack have been damn glad to get the United States as an ally. Make no mistake about that.

"This is not altogether our war. If Great Britain, New Zealand, and Canada are not going to let their young men go into battle until they are 19 years of age, the United States should not bear that unequal burden. We are already financing the whole outfit. We are already lending them everything we can. I do not approve of keeping books with our allies, but there is a rough yardstick of justice and equal contribution which should not be abandoned under these circumstances. I do not want Uncle Sam, when it is all over, to be called Uncle Simple."

Warns of 16 Year Call.

Sen. Johnson warned solemnly that the conscription of 18 and 19 year olds and sending them into battle means the lowering of the age limit to 16 later when the need arises for replacements.

"The committee on military affairs says simply that the army wants these youngsters now," Johnson said. "That is all. Men stand here and talk to me of obeying those who are in charge of our soldiers in particular matters of this sort and give as a reason only that they have received the opinion—their opinion, mind you—of the military leaders.

"I can ill afford to talk this way. But I cannot understand this proposition to take boys 18 years old. I insist that the proposal is wicked, wicked in its conception, wicked in its execution, wicked in any way. More I could not say."

LEGION TO ASSIST RECRUITING OF 18 AND 19 YEAR OLDS

State Posts Will Give Information Service.

Illinois' 807 American Legion posts will take the lead in helping to recruit 18 and 19 year old youths for the army before they are drafted, Francis E. Phelan, Illinois department commander of the Legion, said yesterday after a meeting with the department's executive committee.

Phelan said each post will be instructed to set up a recruiting information center at its headquarters to explain the 13 different branches of the army to youths under 20 years old and then refer them to the nearest army recruiting office.

Enlistees Free to Choose.

"Our job is to sell these young men on voluntary enlistment in the army, especially in the fighting branches, because that's where they are needed," he pointed. "It is to their own advantage, since they are free to choose any one of 13 branches if they enlist before they are drafted."

The Legion's help in enlisting younger men was requested by Maj. Gen. Henry S. Aurand, commander of the Sixth Service command. Gen. Aurand said the Wisconsin and Michigan departments of the Legion also promised coöperation.

Information Center Open.

The army information center in the 333 North Michigan building will be open from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. today and every Sunday for the benefit of inquiring youths and their parents, Gen. Aurand announced.

For the third consecutive day a record number of men qualified for army pilot training in Chicago. The total yesterday was 90 recruits, a new high for one day, bringing the total to 11,826 qualified since Sept. 1, 1941. The goal is 20,000 by Jan. 1, 1943.

Ex-Polish Flyer Enlists.

One of the men who qualified yesterday was Walter F. Kopaczewski, 21 years old, of 3311 South Aberdeen street, who was granted a discharge from the Polish air force Oct. 12 so that he could enlist in the American air corps. Kopaczewski's grandmother, 87 years old, is a Nazi prisoner in Poland.

Edward J. Morrison, 18 years old, who enlisted in the navy two days after Pearl Harbor and has seen action on aircraft carriers at Malta and in the Solomon Islands, escorted his brother, John, 20, into the navy recruiting office yesterday for enlistment. Edward, a torpedoman third class, is on leave at his home in Whiting. Another brother, James, 22, is a corporal in the army.

If Back Aches or Ankles Swell, Flush Your Kidneys

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. Worry, Colds, working too hard, or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Guaranteed Trial Offer

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. An iron clad guarantee insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. Get Cystex from your druggist today for only 35c.

AUTHOR'S NOTE: Cystex is produced under the direction of a licensed physician for The Knox Co., one of the largest drug companies in the world with laboratory connections in the U.S.A., Canada, England, Australia and South America. The guarantee of money back unless satisfied is enforced 100% and is a dependable form of assurance to all users of Cystex.

FEEDING YOUR DOG in Wartime

Answers TO QUESTIONS COMMONLY ASKED TODAY

War has brought vexing problems to dog owners as it has to others.

This column is being offered each week to help dog owners solve these problems.

Question: How can I introduce the new type foods to my dog?

Answer: Any new food is a new experience for your dog. If he does not readily eat the new type foods, start feeding Ideal "V-T" a little at a time mixed with something he likes. Gradually increase the amount of "V-T" each day until he is being fed Ideal "V-T" entirely. This should take no longer than one week. A little patience will be amply repaid by the way your dog will enjoy Ideal "V-T" every day.

The color of Ideal "V-T" is the natural color of dehydrated meat including liver—no artificial coloring has been added.

Quick and Easy to Prepare

Merely add liquid—water, milk or broth—to Ideal "V-T", stir a bit and feed. Ideal "V-T" absorbs moisture quickly. No waiting. Each carton of Ideal "V-T" with liquid added makes over a pound of moist food. The cost is the same, so start feeding Ideal "V-T" today.

Important to those Converting to Coal

SOME CONVERSION DEVICES MAY LEAD TO TROUBLE

For those who are converting their heating plants to coal, members of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association are fully equipped to advise on the merits of most of the devices offered for this purpose—some are suitable—some may even mean trouble, and are not approved by accredited heating engineers. So, before you buy, consult a member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association.

Members have long been attending engineering classes so are qualified to give practical answers to your heating problems—answers that are fair and honest.

Engineers are available for consultation on any unusual problems. This is a public service offered without obligation.

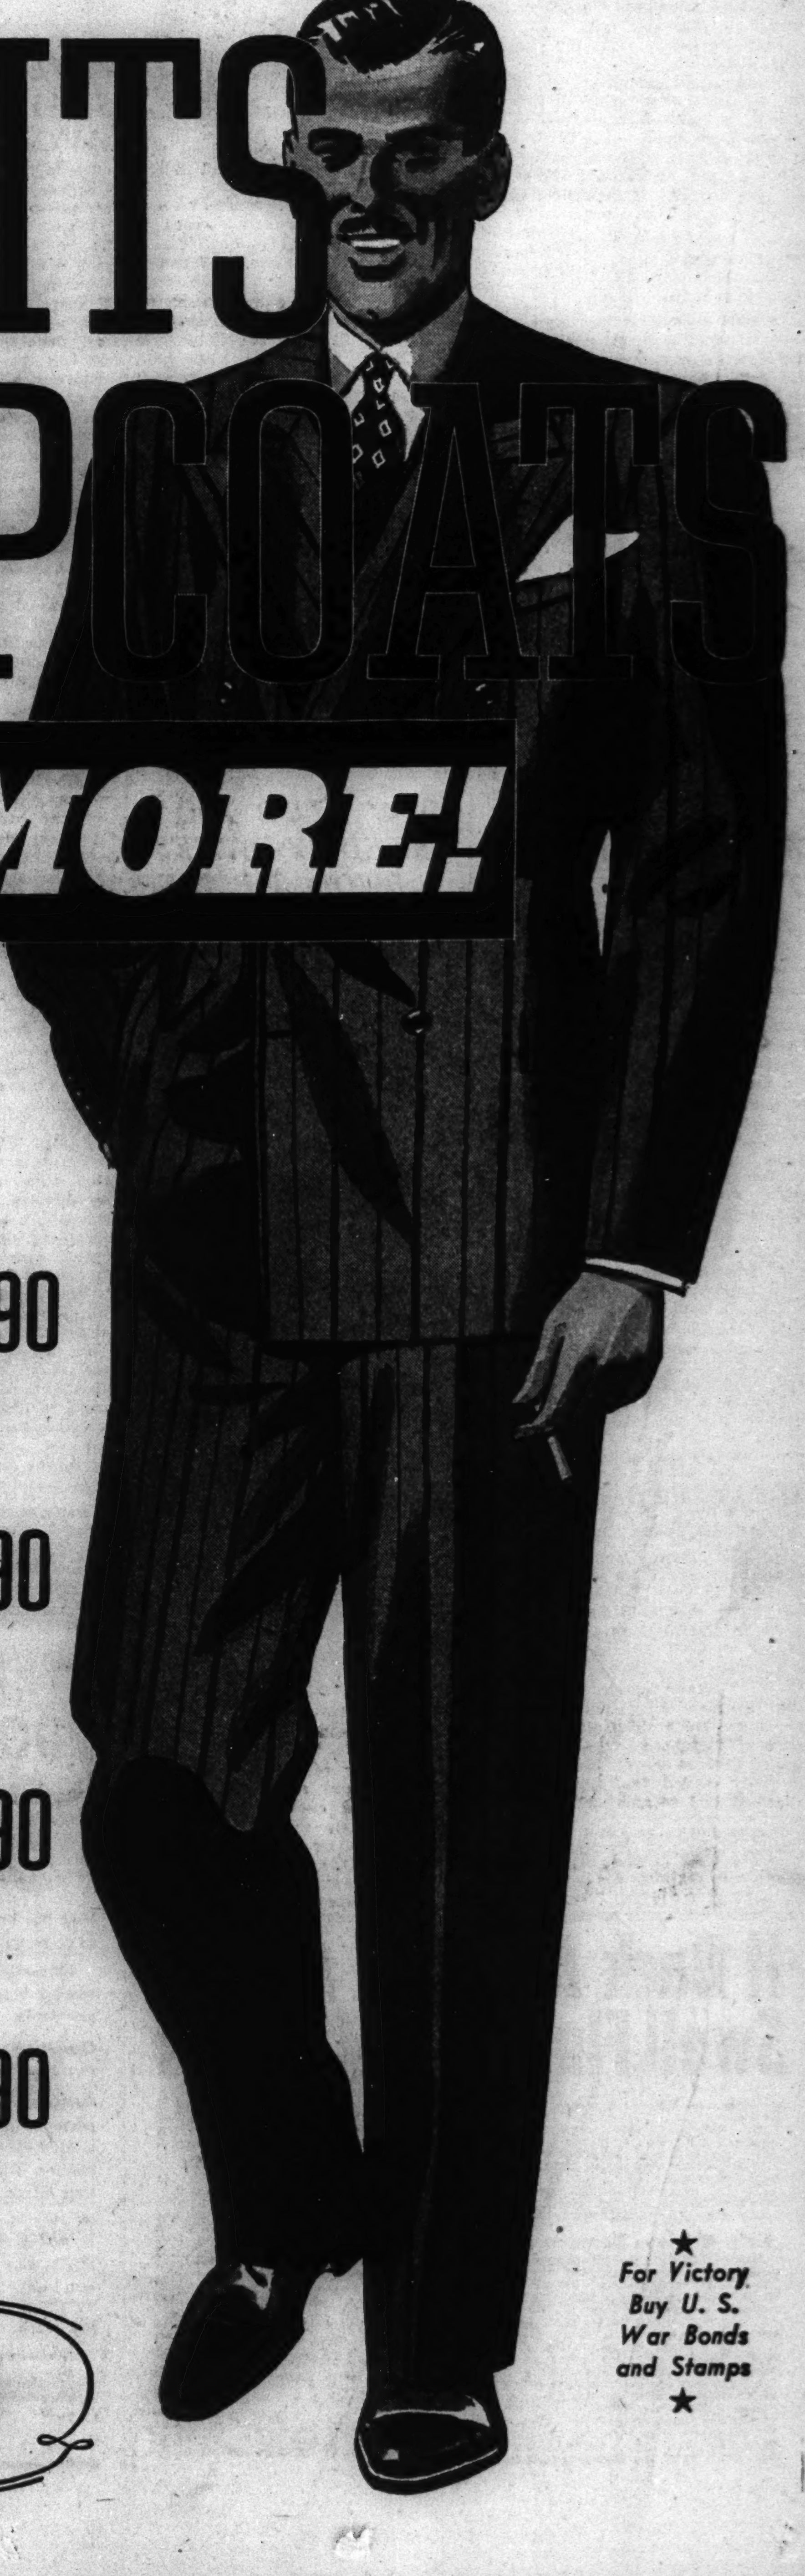
WE SCOOPED CHICAGO IN 1940 AND NOW WE'VE DONE IT AGAIN!

Netcher's Purchases Entire Stock Finely Tailored Meadow Park

$45 to $75 SUITS OVERCOATS...TOPCOATS

at Savings to 1/3 and MORE!



MEADOW PARK CLOTHES have been sold in exclusive men's shops for years . . . but on December 7th last, something happened that changed the lives of millions of Americans. The firm of Meadow Park found it increasingly difficult to secure fine imported fabrics . . . domestics of a quality they demanded were "out" because of priorities. Then Meadow Park was picked to make officers' uniforms . . . a task to keep their craftsmen busy for the duration.

MEADOW PARK CLOTHES are all hand pressed, with handmade buttonholes; hand felled collars, lapels; hand finished trousers. Your custom tailor could give little more and nothing better than Meadow Park has done. Every yard of fabric is London cold-water shrunk. Styles, patterns and colors for every type of figure . . . sizes to fit any man. But remember, quantities are limited in some ranges, so plan to come at 9:30 Monday morning!

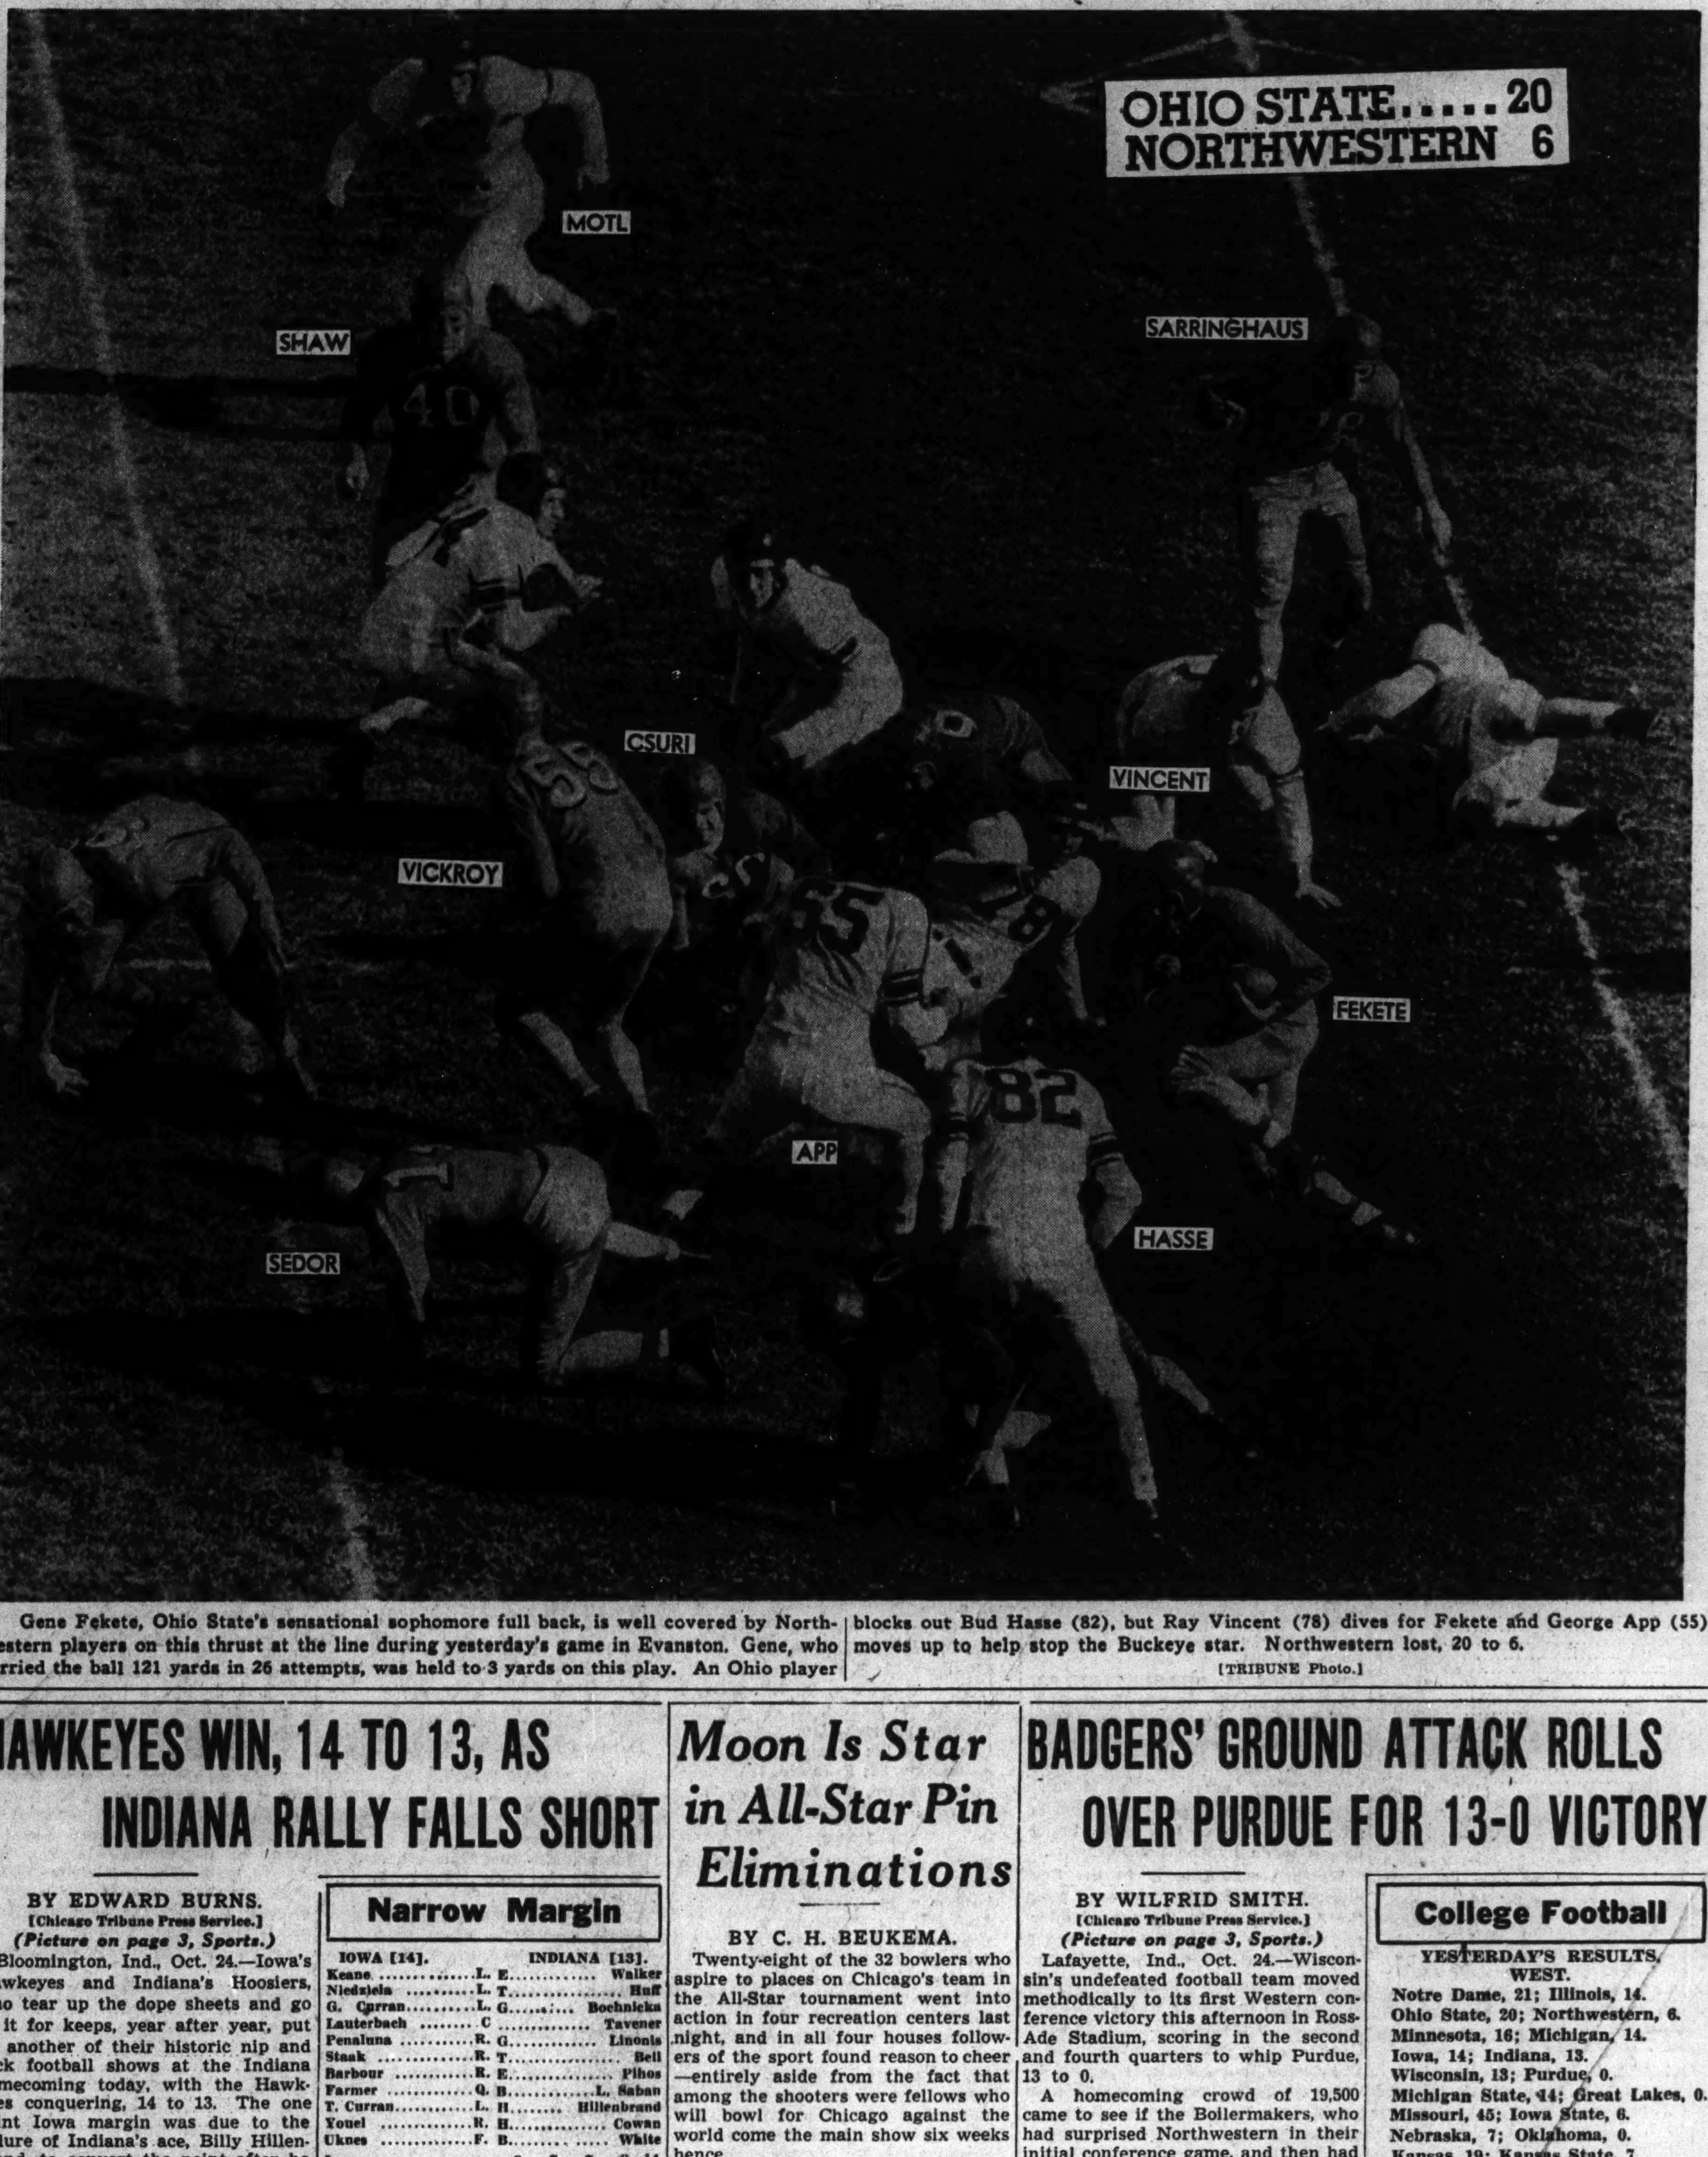
MICHIGAN LOSES; NOTRE DAME BEATS ILLINOIS

OHIO STATE JOLTS N. U., 20-6; WISCONSIN, IOWA TRIUMPH

WILDCATS MAKE THIS A SHORT TRIP FOR FEKETE



Gene Fekete, Ohio State's sensational sophomore full back, is well covered by Northwestern players on this thrust at the line during yesterday's game in Evanston. Gene, who carried the ball 121 yards in 26 attempts, was held to 3 yards on this play. An Ohio player blocks out Bud Hasse (82), but Ray Vincent (78) dives for Fekete and George App (55) moves up to help stop the Buckeye star. Northwestern lost, 20 to 6. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 24.—The little Brown Jug, ancient symbol of the football rivalry between the universities of Minnesota and Michigan, will remain on the Gopher campus for the ninth consecutive year. That was made certain to the joy of 54,000 howling homecomers this afternoon as a rejuvenated Minnesota eleven defeated one of Michigan's finest teams, 16 to 14.

The Gopher-Wolverine feud has produced many a thriller in its 50 year span, but few can be said to match this afternoon's fight for excitement and hard fought football. Minnesota's margin of victory was achieved in what will rank as one of the most dramatic moments of this 1942 season. It was in the last second of the first half that Minnesota's Bill Garnaas, one of the headiest quarter backs in the land, slying drop kicked an impromptu field goal. Garnaas' extemporaneous stunt from the Michigan 15 yard line gave Minnesota a 10 to 7 intermission lead.

Wolverines Start Powerfully.

Michigan's touted offense plunged the homecoming throng into gloom within the first eight minutes of play, Tom Kuzma, the Wolverines' No. 1 tail back, led the 66 yard drive that culminated with a touchdown by him. Execution of this maneuver clicked so smoothly that the home folks began to wonder whether their lads could keep the score down. Minnesota was in possession of the ball only five times in the first 25 minutes of play, but on the sixth they delivered on a slick play which even the Wolverines might have been proud of.

Touchdown Inspires Gophers.

That touchdown apparently was what the Gophers needed. Prior to Daley's fancy run Minnesota's tackling was unusually ineffectual, Kuzma and Full Back Don Lund picking up from 3 to 5 yards after they were first detained. The few passes Herman Frickey tried as he exchanged positions with Daley never approached their would-be receivers. Then, late in the second quarter, a Michigan drive was halted on the Gopher 46 yard line and the Gophers proceeded to set up the spot for Garnaas' fast one. Two passes by Frickey, one to Daley and another to Garnaas' understudy, Bob Sandberg, were important factors in the drive that found the ball on the 12 yard line with 41 seconds left to play.

Garnaas replaced Sandberg at this point and sent Frickey thru the Michigan left tackle to the 2 yard line. Julius Franks, the Wolverines' great Negro guard, then dropped Daley for a 4 yard loss. Here, with the clock running out of time, Garnaas stepped back and drop kicked the ball. The gun sounded just as it wabbled over the crossbar.

The Michigan players protested vigorously that the ball did not touch the ground before Garnaas kicked it, but Referee James Masker ruled it a legal drop kick. It was the first time in his life that the Gopher quarter back had essayed a drop kick, even

Buckeyes Beat Wildcats with Ground Attack

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Ohio State's high geared point machine hummed flawlessly yesterday in Dyche stadium to turn out touchdowns and at the same time shear chunks of fur from the hides of a furious pack of Wildcats. The Buckeyes, so fast and so shifty that they even eluded their own shadows, galloped to a 20 to 6 triumph for their season's fifth straight, three of them in Big Nine circles. And for the Wildcats it marked the third consecutive jarring in conference competition.

For 41,000 spectators as well as for the undefeated Ohioans and even for the Wildcats, who, altho slapped aside, provided some stormy moments for the foe, it was a struggle of legs, fast legs, against an aerial assault. The victors didn't need the air—they just ran and then ran some more. But the Wildcats had no choice. The Buckeyes just wouldn't let 'em run so they passed and passed, registering their consolation touchdown in this way during a turbulent fourth quarter in which 19 of all the points were accumulated.

Ohio Backs Tireless.

The Ohioans, just as feared, uncovered from behind a more or less impenetrable line a whole series of tireless backs. If it wasn't Sophomore Full Back Gene Fekete who ripped off 121 yards in 26 attempts, it was Half Back Paul Sarringhaus, a prebattle invalid. The invalid raced for nothing short of 147 yards in 17 attempts. If it wasn't Sarringhaus it was Leslie Horvath, another half back, or Tom James, alternate for Sarringhaus. James turned out 23 yards in two efforts, and among his defensive achievements was the theft of an Otto Graham pass on his 3 yard line.

It was Fekete, Sarringhaus, and Horvath who suddenly picked up the burden and harvested 7 second period points after the Buckeyes had been surprised by a sturdy Wildcat defense as well as offense that had reached the Ohio 20 yard line in a scoreless opening quarter. They went at it again to buld up a 13 to 0 lead in the final quarter. Then the Wildcats found the goal with their passes, but the Ohioans had a quick response.

James again stole a pass, whereupon Sarringhaus returned to join up with Fekete and Horvath. In three plays, one for each, they traveled 55 yards for the third touchdown.

Hirsch Blocks Punt.

It didn't take the Buckeyes long to discover that trouble was yapping at their heels. Graham, who during the afternoon threw 16 passes for eight completions, slipped when he grabbed the initial kickoff on his 13 yard line, but didn't lose any time punting into Ohio territory. Unable to advance, the Buckeyes decided to punt, but Ed Hirsch broke thru, slapped at the ball as it left Sarringhaus' toe, and sent it bounding out of bounds on Ohio's 20. The next few minutes were decidedly on the uncomfortable side for the lads garbed in scarlet.

On the first play after the punt blocking episode, Graham took out for his right end, but suddenly halted and flipped a pass to Nick Vodick for 9 yards, Graham following with a 1 yard spurt for first down. Hirsch plummeted thru center for 5 yards, being nailed by James. The drive was prolonged by Vodick's thrust to the 2 yard line, but in the next attempt Graham was flattened with a 2 yard loss and the Buckeyes took the ball, promptly kicking out of danger. The remainder of the period was devoted to punting, the only outstanding incident being a 20 yard Graham to Bob Motl pass that moved the Wildcats up to Ohio's 21 yard line.

Buckeyes Show Power.

At the very opening of the second period the Buckeyes revealed a bit of their power. Sarringhaus twisted thru center for 19 yards, but the assault simmered down to an exchange of punts. In another exchange, Graham got off a quick kick which sent the ball to a rolling death

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 24.—For three tense, tantalizing quarters that put their skill and courage to a test, Notre Dame today was held in check by the best team that has come out of Illinois since 1934. But the Irish forever kept on the pressure, and the Illini finally cracked under the strain. The score was 21 to 14.

Illinois thus became the second team in a row which Notre Dame removed from the list of the nation's undefeated elevens. Last week the Irish whipped the previously unbeaten Iowa Seahawks, 28 to 0.

Notre Dame had to come from behind twice to turn back a foe that gave a magnificent demonstration of poise, precision and, above all, flaming courage. The Illini were not terrified in the least by the magnitude of Notre Dame's victory over the Seahawks. But they were up against a team today that never is willing to settle for a tie.

Game's Most Important Play.

The most important play of the game from our nook of observation was not the touchdown drives or long runs or forward passes. It was Notre Dame's decision early in the fourth quarter to gamble on one play to retain possession of the ball. It was a move that gives coaches the jitters, but a thrill to the fans. And there were 43,476 in the stands to enjoy it.

The score at the time was 14 to 14 and the Irish had moved the ball from their 23 yard line to Illinois' 40. It was fourth down and 5 yards to go. Conservative football called for a punt that might have bottled up the Illini deep in their territory. But it would have meant yielding the ball and you can't make progress on the gridiron when the other team has possession. Notre Dame, whose daring thru the years has painted the sky with its name, flipped a short forward pass that was completed for a first down. From there the Irish went on to their third and decisive touchdown.

Illinois didn't fold up, however, after Notre Dame made its third touchdown thru a stubborn line, and became the only team to cross the Orange and Blue goal line this season by rushing. It recovered a Notre Dame fumble near midfield with two minutes left to play and advanced to the Irish 27 for a first down. Pete Ashbaugh saved the day for Notre Dame in this predicament by intercepting a pass from Illinois' Art Dufelmeier.

Ball Handling Unsteady.

While Notre Dame encountered an Illinois team that obviously was keyed for its maximum effort, it was

HAWKEYES WIN, 14 TO 13, AS INDIANA RALLY FALLS SHORT

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 24.—Iowa's Hawkeyes and Indiana's Hoosiers, who tear up the dope sheets and go to it for keeps, year after year, put on another of their historic nip and tuck football shows at the Indiana homecoming today, with the Hawkeyes conquering, 14 to 13. The one point Iowa margin was due to the failure of Indiana's ace, Billy Hillenbrand, to convert the point after he had sprinted 11 yards for the touchdown which all but tied the score midway thru the final quarter.

Indiana led, 7 to 0, at the end of the first period as a result of a 24 yard touchdown pass, Hillenbrand to Bob Cowan, and Hillenbrand's kick for the extra point.

Tied, 7 to 7, at Half.

At the half, each side had seven points, the Hawkeyes tying it on a touchdown by Charles Uknes, Sioux City soph, who performed brilliantly thruout for the victors, plus a conversion by Tommy Farmer.

The tie was broken by Iowa in the closing minutes of the third period as the climax of a precision rush that saw the Hawkeyes pile up four of the seven first downs they made during the game with Jim Keane, sophomore end from Bellaire, O., taking a 25 yard pass in the end zone from Farmer for the touchdown, whereupon Farmer booted the point that proved to be the victory marker.

Hoosiers' Comeback Short.

This payoff touchdown and point had its inception when Ted Curran, still another of Iowa's sparkling sophs, took and returned a punt to his own 17, whereupon Jim Youel made it first down on his 28. Uknes ran 17 yards to Iowa's 45 and Curran shot thru for 15 yards to the Indiana 40. Curran and Farmer consumed two plays to get to the 27 and all but wasted two to advance to the 25. Then came the aforesaid Farmer-Keane pass for the touchdown, followed by that vital Farmer kick.

Indiana's great but inadequate comeback surge in the middle of the final quarter began with Hillenbrand's 25 yard punt return to Indiana's 48 yard line. After an Iowa off side penalty Hugh McKinnis, chunky colored lad from Farrell, Pa., plowed thru for 14 yards. Hillenbrand added 4 and McKinnis added 5 to Iowa's 25 and McKinnis jolted thru for a first down on Iowa's 21. Chuck Jacoby went to the 14 and Hillenbrand made a first down on Iowa's 11. Then Hillenbrand swooped wide to his right for the touchdown.

Hillenbrand seemed calm enough as he poised to try for the extra, and tying point. But his effort was wide. Indiana fought desperately in the re-

Moon Is Star in All-Star Pin Eliminations

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

Twenty-eight of the 32 bowlers who aspire to places on Chicago's team in the All-Star tournament went into action in four recreation centers last night, and in all four houses followers of the sport found reason to cheer—entirely aside from the fact that among the shooters were fellows who will bowl for Chicago against the world come the main show six weeks hence.

Thirty-two were scheduled to bowl, but a previous engagement kept Paul Krumske and Adolph Carlson away. Accordingly, Krumske will roll his first round match with Adam Plunge at Congress recreation after today's second round matches and Carlson will shoot his first round match at Garden recreation with Rudy Habetler before today's scheduled competition. Krumske and Plunge will meet at about 3 p. m., while Carlson and Habetler are billed at 1 p. m. The second round play at those houses and the other two at which the eliminations are underway—Gold Coast and Pla-Mor—will start at 2 o'clock.

Vern Moon Gets Hot.

But about last night. Vern Moon, captain of the Ambrosias of the Classic league, was the individual star, and he really had the fans on their feet during the late stages of his match with Johnny Munch. Vern started out with a mediocre 157—enough to win by four pins—then went to 199, on up to 244 and finally finished with 257. He bowled 857, won the four games and scored 21.07 points to take a commanding lead on the Congress squad.

The evening's closest match was fired at Gold Coast where two teammates on the Thompson Restaurants of the Classic circuit, Bob Wills and Jules Sowa, fought it out. Wills piled up a 268 game, highest of the night, in accumulating 834 pins to

BADGERS' GROUND ATTACK ROLLS OVER PURDUE FOR 13-0 VICTORY

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 24.—Wisconsin's undefeated football team moved methodically to its first Western conference victory this afternoon in Ross-Ade Stadium, scoring in the second and fourth quarters to whip Purdue, 13 to 0.

A homecoming crowd of 19,500 came to see if the Boilermakers, who had surprised Northwestern in their initial conference game, and then had lost to Ohio State, could duplicate the conquest of the Wildcats. While Purdue could neither match the Badgers in speed or power, it did rally its forces in the second half to threaten Wisconsin's one touchdown lead. The air attack failed, however, and Purdue, then yielded a second score which definitely put the game beyond the Boilermakers' reach.

Purdue's Play Is Spirited.

Purdue's spirited play in the second half, which centered around the forward passing of Johnny Andretich and Tony Berto, kept the contest from becoming a rout. In this time the Boilermakers accomplished all of their five first downs and gained 104 yards thru the air. Purdue's most serious advance came in the closing minutes of the third quarter and was made possible by Andretich's 43 yard pass to Forrest McCaffry. The assault ended on Wisconsin's 14 yard line when Bob Bachman, substitute full back, fumbled and lost the ball on a third down play.

All other press notices of this homecoming game belong to Wisconsin's men who had beaten four nonconference foes [Camp Grant, Marquette, Missouri, and Great Lakes] and tied Notre Dame before today's game. That the Badgers did not turn in a more brilliant performance was due to a decision to use fundamental formations only in view of their date with Ohio State's unbeaten eleven

HALAS FAREWELL MAY BE JUST TOO BAD FOR EAGLES

Bears Will Be Putting Out to Limit Today.

Victory Football

FOR the third straight week, a Victory football will be awarded to the top purchaser of war bonds during today's game between the Chicago Bears and Philadelphia Eagles in Wrigley field. Last week's high bidder was the Yellow Cab company at $10,000. Each winner is presented with the football used during the game, and autographed by his favorite player. Mrs. Ethel Haffa, who bought $15,000 in bonds the first week, was second high bidder last week with $5,000. She still has to win a Victory football.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Mercenaries, or pay check Charleys, they sometimes call the big fellows who play pro football. This won't go this afternoon in Wrigley field for the Chicago Bears. They will be charged up with all the sentimental we-love-our-coach fervor of high school and college days. It's their last game under George Halas until the war's over.

Sure, they get pay checks on the 1st and 15th and a few have been known to debate with George the financial arrangement before signing contracts. But the Bears, biggest money team in football, are just that because Halas had the ability to keep them fired with their old-time college spirit.

Just Too Bad for Eagles.

Under ordinary conditions, this afternoon's football business probably would have been just too bad for Greasy Neale's Philadelphia Eagles. That this is Halas' swan song for the duration increases the visitors' peril. Every Bear who gets in there today will be putting out to the limit. The two-time National league champions want to see their boss off with the most decisive victory of the season. Their high for the year is 44 points against Green Bay.

Halas wanted to make his change over from civilian life to naval aviation without any fanfare. Now that the Bears' followers have been let in on the secret it's expected they will come out to be in on the farewell party. Whatever the size of today's crowd may be it will be mainly a tribute to a championship football team and its departing coach.

Eagles Have Tools.

Whereas the setup figures to make it something of a desolate afternoon for the luckless Eagles, they could spoil it with the biggest upset of the season. The Eagles, whose system is a carbon copy of the Bears' T formation with man in motion, have the offensive tools to score. But they've failed to prosper because of a defense which has permitted league opponents to ring up 136 points in six games. The Eagles have scored 79 points. They have the most successful passer in the circuit — lanky, 190 pound Tommy Thompson—who has completed 55 of 110 aerials. They have some fine runners in Bob Davis of Kentucky, Ted Williams of Boston college, and Bert Johnson, one time Chicago Cardinal back.

The Bears have averaged 33 points in four league victories over Green Bay, Cleveland, the Cardinals, and New York, slightly under their per game point production of last year. The champions are nettled more than a little at the Packers' breaking their first downs record with 26 last Sunday against Cleveland. They may try to give this a little attention today.

Last Loss Was to Packers.

The Bears have almost completed a yearly cycle without defeat, during which they have won 17 in a row, including exhibitions. Their last defeat was on Nov. 2, when they lost in Wrigley field to the Packers, 16 to 14.

After a minute survey of his squad, Halas could find little wrong in a physical way except that he's concerned over his full back department. He fixed this up by transferring the veteran Ray Nolting from half back to join up with Gary Famiglietti and John Petty. Petty has a slight leg injury. Bill Osmanski, the No. 1 full back, will be on the bench, but will not play until possibly next Sunday, against the Lions. His knee, injured in the opening game with Green Bay, is improving under Trainer Andy Lotshaw's magic.

The Chicago Cardinals are in Cleveland today for their second engagement of 1942 with the Rams. The Cards have the best defensive record in the league, having yielded only 58 points in five games. They twice blanked Detroit and shutout Cleveland in their first contest. Coach Jim Conzelman worked all week long to develop some punch.

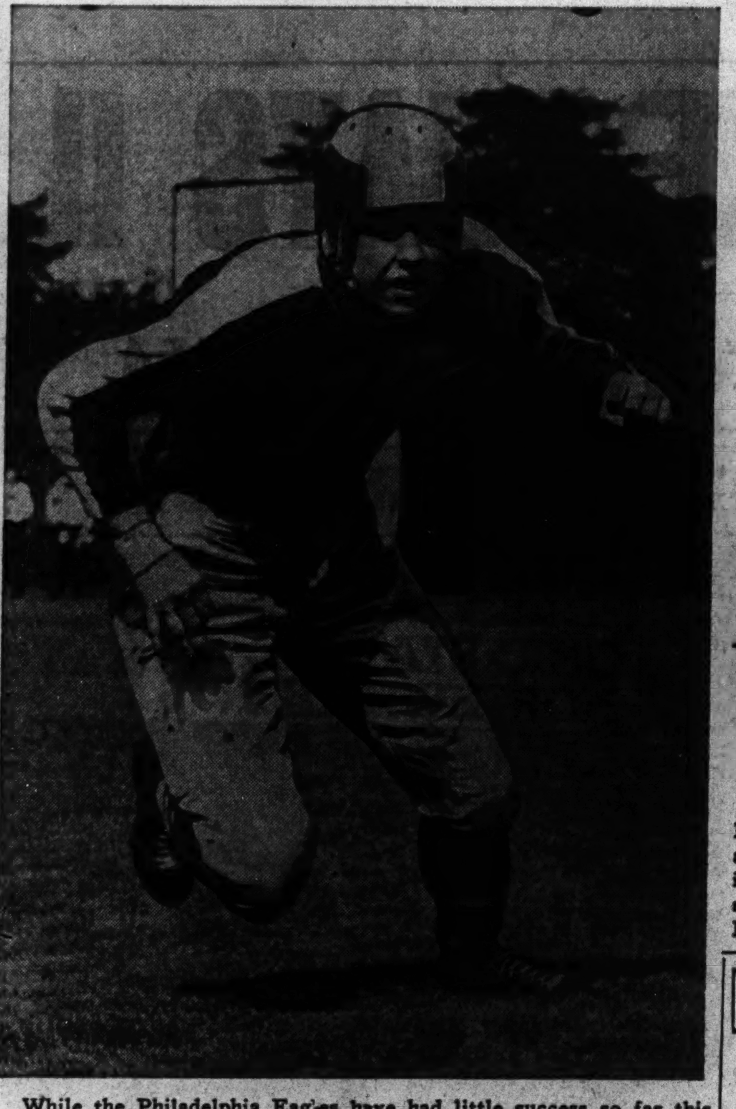
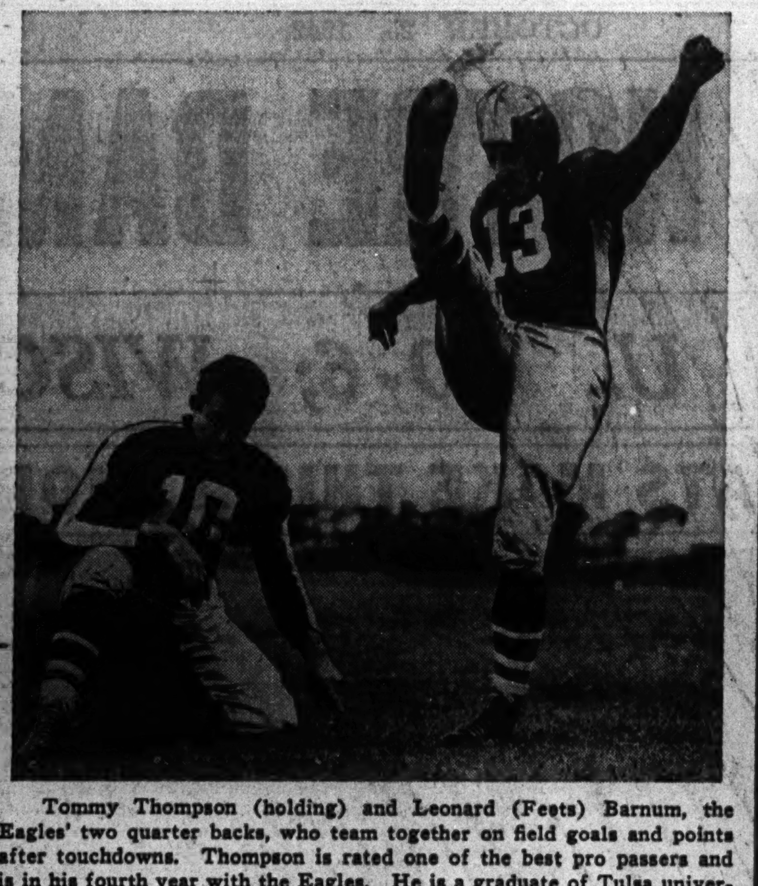
EAGER EAGLES—TODAY'S OPPOSITION FOR THE BEARS



While the Philadelphia Eagles have had little success so far this season in the National Football league, they have been anything but pushovers and have a formidable squad ready to face the Chicago Bears in Wrigley field this afternoon. Here is Vic Sears, former captain of Oregon State and rated by the Eagles' coach, Earle (Greasy) Neale, one of the best tackles in the business.



Tommy Thompson (holding) and Leonard (Feets) Barnum, the Eagles' two quarter backs, who team together on field goals and points after touchdowns. Thompson is rated one of the best pro passers and is in his fourth year with the Eagles. He is a graduate of Tulsa university. Barnum has made three field goals in four attempts this season. He hails from West Virginia Wesleyan.

Fred Meyer, first string right end, came to the Eagles this year from Stanford, where he made the All-Pacific coast team two straight years and was considered the best pass receiver in the conference.

Elmhurst Is Defeated by Wheaton, 32-0

Led by Bruce McCullough, Wheaton celebrated its homecoming yesterday in Wheaton with a smashing 32 to 0 victory over Elmhurst college.

Wally Munroe scored from the 2 yard line in the second quarter for the first touchdown, and McCullough opened the scoring early in the third quarter with a 12 yard end run, passed to Ben Jones, right end, for the third score, and carried the ball four yards off tackle for the fourth tally. Sophomore Full Back Bob Whitaker intercepted a pass late in the final quarter and ran 20 yards for the final score. Tackle Fred Lange Evanston sophomore, kicked two points after touchdowns. Lange's block of Elmhurst's punt on their 7 yard line led to the fourth touchdown.

Wheaton led in field drives with 18 first downs to Elmhurst's four, McCullough completed four out of seven passes for Wheaton, while Elmhurst attempted 14, completed three, and lost one to Whitaker and one to Half Back Vern Koppin.

The victory was Wheaton's third, all on the home field, against two losses and a tie. Elmhurst's loss was its third.

Harold Mordh, sophomore half back, snatched two long passes for sizeable gains before he was injured in the second quarter.

MACOMB, 45; CHARLESTON, 0.

Charleston, Ill., Oct. 24 [Special].—The Charleston Teachers college team went down in defeat before Macomb, 45 to 0, today in its 28th annual homecoming game. The Macomb spearhead was paced by Hainline who made two of the seven touchdowns made by the Leathernecks.

Western scored early in the first quarter when Lewis went over from the 3 yard line. In the second quarter, Hainline went over from the 3 yard line. Later, a fumble by Charleston gave Macomb the ball on the 30 and a pass to Moore was good for 9 yards and a touchdown. Early in the third quarter Macomb intercepted a Charleston pass, Holmes going 30 yards for a touchdown. Addis then ran a punt back from the 40 to the 10 and Hainline socred.

In the fourth quarter, Charleston fumbled and Macomb recovered on the 26 and Hainline ran for a touchdown on the next play. The last touchdown was made when McHatton intercepted a pass on Charleston's 46 and on the next play ran for a touchdown.

JIM WORST SETS PACE, MANHATTAN BEATS DUKES, 10-7

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—Jim Worst was definitely the best today as he ran and kicked the Manhattan Jaspers to a 10-7 upset victory over the highly favored dukes of Duquesne, to the surprise of 12,000 fans at the Polo grounds. Worst, a junior end, scored all the points for his team and brought Manhattan its first triumph over Duquesne by kicking a field goal from the 18 yard line with only 45 seconds left to play.

The game was only four minutes old when Manhattan handed the Dukes a surprise. Taking the ball on their own 40, the Jaspers started rolling with Earl Lambert skipping 12 yards on the first try. Two more plays carried to Duquesne's 42, from where Bill Burns threw a pass to Worst, who gathered it in at the 25 yard line and crossed the goal line standing up. Worst then kicked the extra point.

The fans had hardly returned to their seats when Max Kielbasa, Duquesne half back, slipped off tackle and ran 63 yards for a score.

North Central Loses, 13-7, to Augustana

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 24 [Special].—Augustana college outplayed and defeated a favored North Central team this afternoon on Ericsson field, 13 to 7. With the exception of the fourth quarter, the Naperville players were forced to play defensive ball most of the afternoon.

Altho North Central's passing attack was a threat thruout, Augustana's ground attack, sparked by Frosh Half Back Bill Wood, enabled the Vikings to roll up eight first downs to North Central's four and shove over scores in the second and third quarters. North Central, led by Don Jacobs and Glenn Mast, passing team, drove 37 yards midway in the last period to score.

Augie Takes Lead.

Augustana started its first touchdown trip in the last part of the first quarter. Thor Karlstrom and Wood were responsible for advancing the ball from Augustana's 34 to North Central's 13 in three plays, Wood's last two being 21 and 13 yard jaunts, and the second period started with the ball on the North Central 13, North Central was penalized to the 9 and a moment later was charged with pass interference with Capt. Byron Swedberg on the 1 yard line. Leroy Karlstrom, quarter back, then sneaked over for the score, and Frank Deyo, guard, missed the extra point.

Augustana's second score came shortly after the intermission. Karlstrom recovered Jacobs' fumble on the North Central 26. Wood went to the 9, and after a line buck to the 4 he went over for the score. Deyo's kick was good.

North Central Scores.

North Central dominated play in the last period and succeeded in punching over a score. Taking the ball after a punt, Jacobs passed to Mast on Augustana's 14, and then Jacobs again passed, this time to End Dick Smith on the 4. Tony Sciuto plunged over for the score and Spencer added the extra point.

WEST. MICHIGAN TOPPLES BUTLER AT HOMECOMING

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 24 [Special].—All scoring was done in the second quarter today as Western Michigan toppled Butler university, 13 to 7, before a big homecoming crowd.

An incomplete fourth down pass by Paul Bard, quarter back, left Butler on the Bronco 40 early in the game and the Bulldogs were on the Western 6 when the quarter ended. Four plays later Billy Howard, half, circled end and scored.

Midway in the second quarter Bard tossed a 34 yard pass to Bob Mellen who scored from the 3 and kicked the extra point to tie it. Just before the first half ended Mellen tossed a lateral to Bard who heaved a 27 yard pass to Don Hendricks, who ran 40 yards to the goal. Mellen missed the kick.

WISCONSIN WINS FRESHMAN GAME FROM WILDCATS

Madison, Wis., Oct. 24 [Special].—The University of Wisconsin freshman football team, playing the first intercollegiate game for freshmen in Wisconsin history, romped to an easy 20 to 0 victory over Northwestern university's yearling squad at Camp Randall this afternoon.

The Badgers struck twice in the second quarter after recovering a fumble on the Northwestern 20. Wally Dreher slashed off his own right tackle, reversed the field twice and just fell over the goal line. Pumphrey added the extra point. In less than five minutes, the Badgers again recovered a Northwestern fumble in midfield, rushed the ball to the 13 and on a second down Quarter Back Dick Lewis passed off the T formation to Left End Bennet for the score.

The Badgers scored again in the third period on Dreher's 11 yard dash off tackle and the extra point was added.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 24 [Special].—Scoring in every quarter, Millikin ran its string of consecutive triumphs to 13 with an easy 49 to 12 conquest of Illinois Wesleyan in the homecoming game here this afternoon. Wesleyan was completely baffled by the running and passing of Capt. Virgil Wagner, Millikin half back. Three Wesleyan punts were blocked, each resulting in a Millikin score.

The first score of the game came early in the first quarter, when a Wesleyan punt was blocked by Bob Vaughn, the ball sailing across the end zone for a safety. Wagner then scored two touchdowns and passed to Ed Dahm for another to boost the Millikin lead to 22 to 0. The Titans then rallied and scored two touchdowns before the first half ended. Both were on passes from Capt. Harry Wilk to Bill Alkire, making the halftime score 22 to 12.

Jerry Brewer and Wagner scored a touchdown each for Millikin in the third quarter and in the fourth period a pair of substitutes, Dan Healey and Jim Scroggins, duplicated the feat to finish the rout.

CARBONDALE LOSES, 7 TO 0.

17,000 Watch Central Lose to Mishawaka

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 24 [Special].—Mishawaka struck twice in the second period, once on a 33 yard pass and later on the ground after recovering a fumble to defeat South Bend Central, 12 to 0, in the 30th meeting of their 40 year old rivalry before 17,000 spectators in the Notre Dame stadium today.

Paul Johnston passed to Kenny Umbaugh early in the second quarter for 33 yards and a touchdown, Umbaugh picking the ball out of the air on Central's 8 and going over. Three minutes later Mishawaka scored again after recovering a Central fumble on the latter's 13. Johnston passed to Umbaugh who was downed on the Central 5. Johnston hit tackle for 2 and Pete Crothers went over from the 3 thru center. Johnston missed both kicks for the extra points.

Central threatened only once, marching on the ground from its own 20 to Mishawaka's 4 where the drive stopped as Central missed a first down by inches. Johnston kicked 75 yards from behind his goal to boot Mishawaka out of danger. Lineup:

The Irish fumbled seven times to the Illini's four, but gave the latter their first setback of the campaign. Notre Dame twice was behind in game watched by 43,476.

WASHINGTON IS BLASTED, 19 TO 6, BY CALIFORNIA

Jurkovich Leads Attack Before 31,000.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 24 (AP).—California's thrice beaten Bears lived up to pre-season predictions for the first time today to knock Washington out of the undefeated class, 19 to 6.

A homecoming crowd of 31,000 saw the Bears surge back for three second half touchdowns after Washington had capitalized on a first period break to take a 6 to 0 lead.

From the first play of the game, on which Frank Porto slipped free to run the kickoff back 69 yards to Washington's 22 yard line, California looked like a team that would break loose at any time.

Break Produces Score.

Washington scored before the 3 minute mark on a break. A punt bounced against Jim Jurkovich's arm and was recovered on the California 10 by Tackle Bob Friedman. Sam Robinson carried the ball to the 1 on two plays, and Full Back Neil Brooks smashed over. End Fred Olson, called out from the dressing room for the emergency, went into try for the point but missed the place kick—his first miss in six tries.

Jurkovich handled the ball for 12 of the 13 plays on a four first down drive. He passed for three of the first downs and skirted left end to the 2 yard line for the fourth. Then he dived over for the touchdown after two futile tries.

Dan McCarthy place-kicked the extra point to put the Bears ahead, and they stayed there, pouring on the pressure as the game advanced.

WASHINGTON STATE WINS.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 24 (AP).—Washington State college, rebounding from last week's defeat at the hand of Southern California, virtually ousted defending champion Oregon State from the Pacific Coast conference football race today, 26 to 13. It was the second loss for Oregon State. The Cougars, once defeated, remained a contender.

The winning touchdown was scored late in the third quarter by Full Back Bob Kennedy from the 1 after a drive of 34 yards. Washington State added another in the last two minutes for good measure, driving 47 yards to to 1 from where Kennedy again scored. Half Back Jay Stoves contributed a 23 yard run in this attack.

STANFORD WINS, 14-6.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 24 (AP).—Stanford upset Southern California today, 14 to 6, before 25,000 in Kezar stadium.

The Indians rushed over a touchdown in the first period and scored again thru a ball-stealing episode in the third quarter that made the Trojans look foolish.

Chuck Taylor, left guard, committed the ball theft five minutes after the third period opened. The Trojans were in possession on their own 43. Micky McCardle, left half, was carrying the ball. Two Stanford men bore down on him. Taylor tackled the ball instead of McCardle and went lumbering down the field over the line while a Trojan tackle lunged for him on the last stride.

UCLA, 14; SANTA CLARA, 6.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 24 (AP).—The University of California at Los Angeles dropped Santa Clara from the ranks of the unbeaten today, defeating the nation's eighth ranked team, 14 to 6, before 40,000.

The margin of victory was by no means as decisive as the score would indicate. UCLA was leading by the scant margin of 7 to 6 with two minutes to go when Jesse Freitas, Santa Clara's left half back, threw the ball far down the field where Ev Riddle, Bruin half back, picked it off on the dead run and scampered 30 yards for a touchdown.

OREGON BEATS IDAHO.

Eugene, Ore., Oct. 24 (AP).—The University of Oregon scored its first Pacific coast conference victory of the season before 4,000 today by scoring two touchdowns in each of the last two quarters for a 28 to 0 decision over the University of Idaho. Oregon threw 28 passes and Idaho 27 during the game.

WISCONSIN B'S BEAT BEAHAWKS ON PASS, 6 TO 0

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 24 [Special].—Wisconsin's B team beat Iowa's Beahawks, the preflight school's junior varsity, by a fourth quarter pass, 6 to 0, here today. The winning throw was from Otto Breitenbach to Don Pfotenhauer, a substitute half back. The play was set up thru a pass interception by Breitenbach on the Wisconsin 44. He passed to Pfotenhauer on the 33 and then hit him on the goal line a few plays later. A Beahawk drive late in the second period, which got to the Wisconsin 3, was stalled by the ending of the half. Most of the game was played in midfield. Lineup:

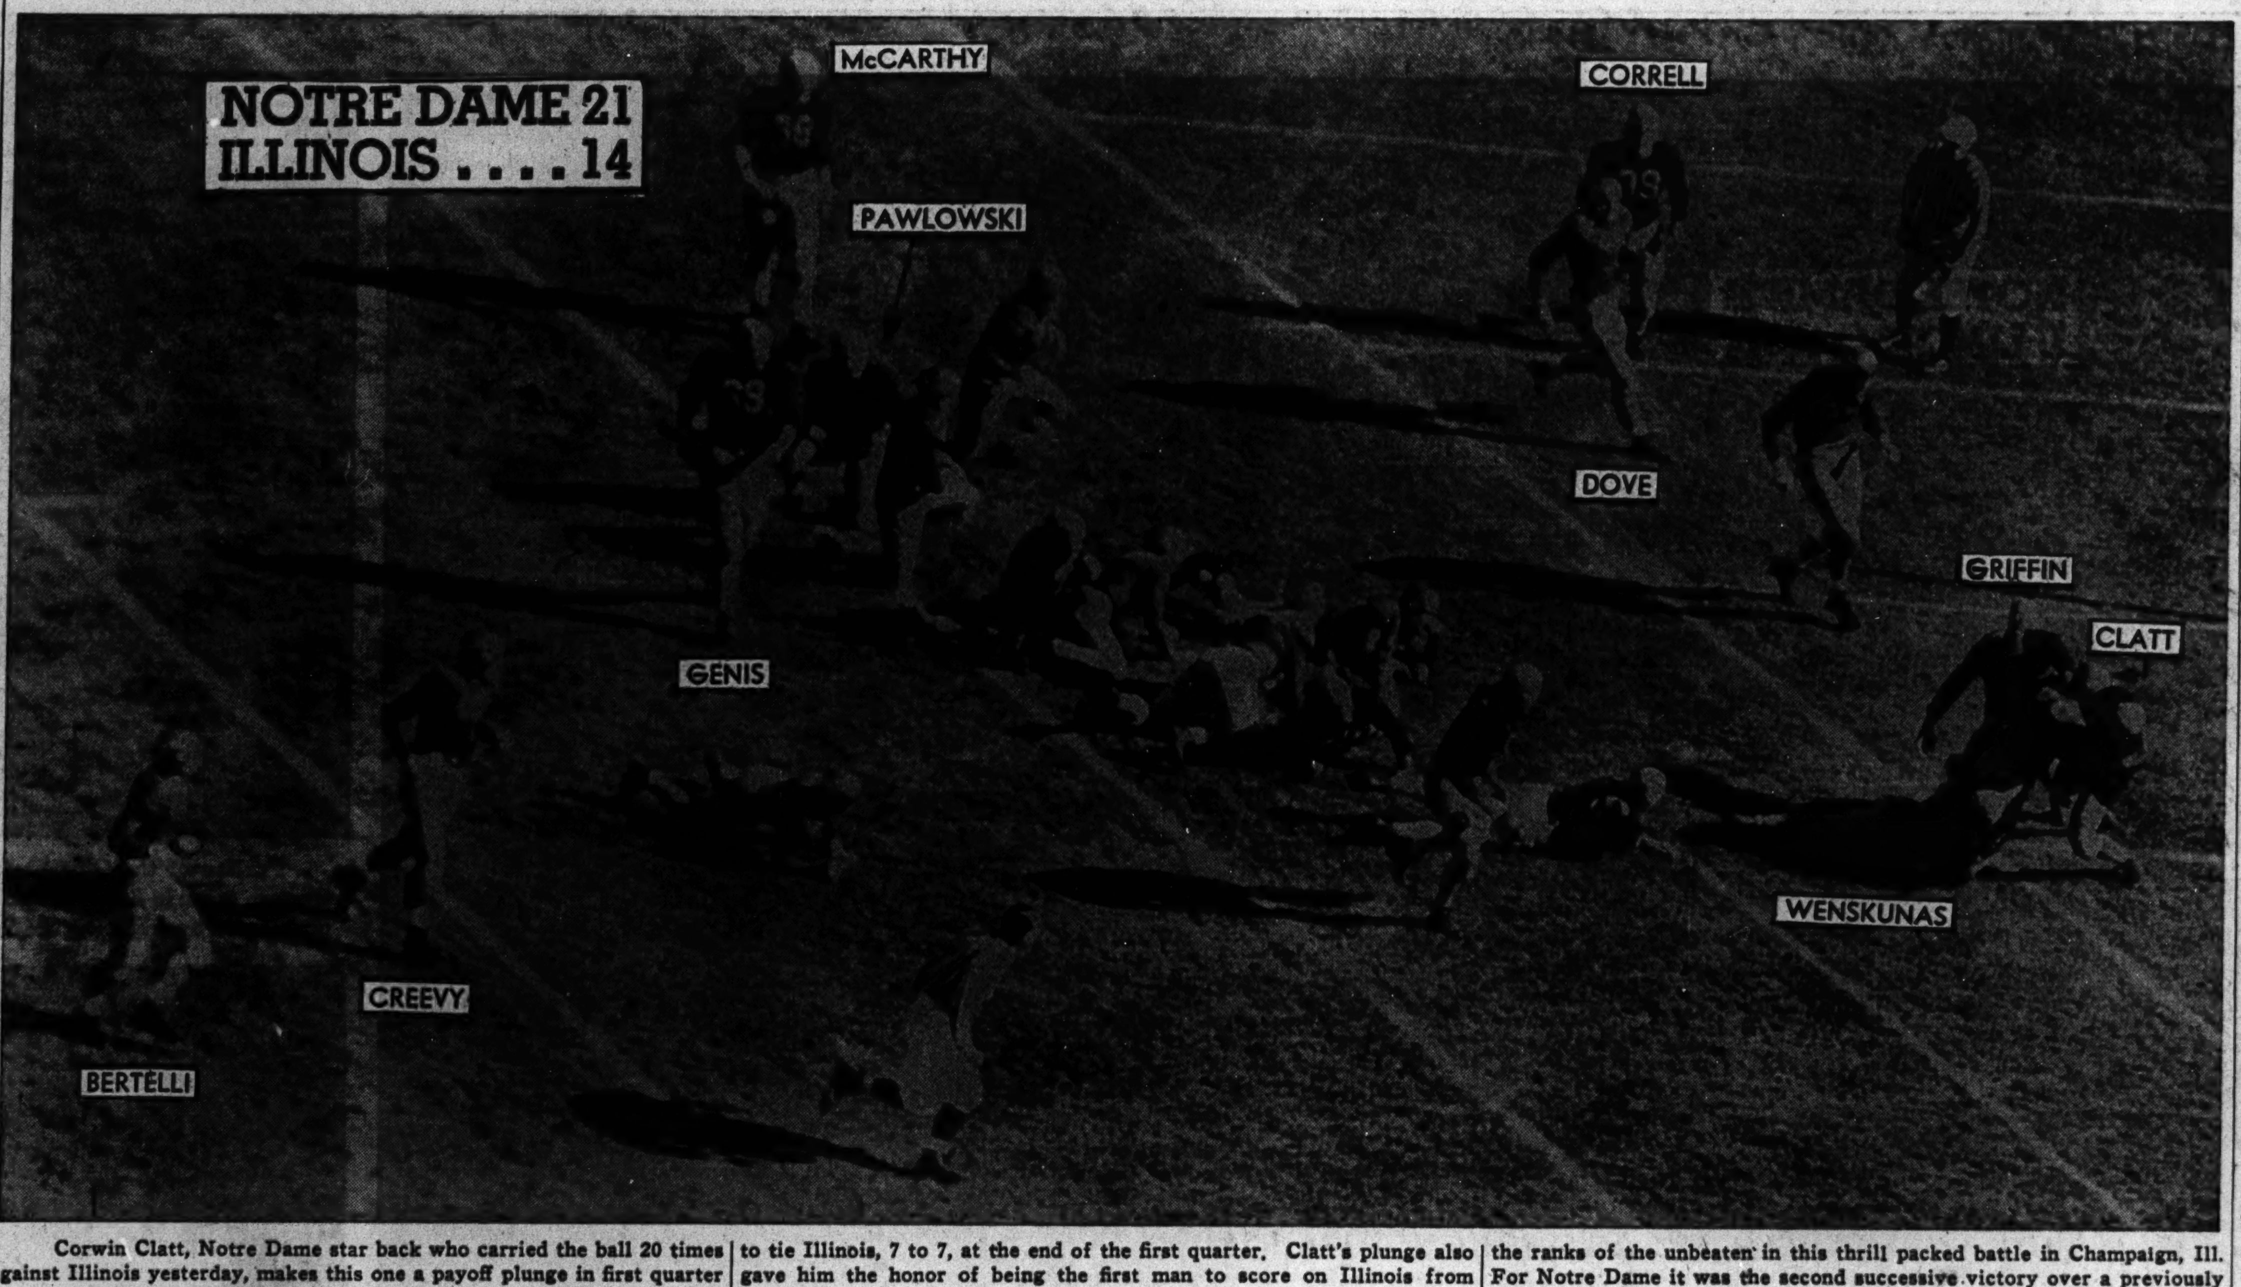
JOCKEY SUFFERS FRACTURED LEG AT LAUREL PARK

Laurel, Md., Oct. 24 (AP).—Jockey Eddie DeCamillis suffered a fractured left leg today when he fell from his mount in the third race at Laurel Park and was struck by another horse. He was taken to Union Memorial hospital in Baltimore after being treated at the track hospital.

DeCamillis was aboard Knollwood stable's Blockader when he apparently lost his balance as the field was entering the clubhouse turn. He was struck by a hoof after he fell.

CRASH! FIVE YARDS! AND NOTRE DAME EVENS UP AGAINST ILLINOIS



Corwin Clatt, Notre Dame star back who carried the ball 20 times against Illinois yesterday, makes this one a payoff plunge in first quarter as he scores from the 5 yard line. The touchdown enabled Notre Dame to tie Illinois, 7 to 7, at the end of the first quarter. Clatt's plunge also gave him the honor of being the first man to score on Illinois from scrimmage this season. A crowd of 43,476 saw Illinois knocked from the ranks of the unbeaten in this thrill packed battle in Champaign, Ill. For Notre Dame it was the second successive victory over a previously undefeated team. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Notre Dame Comes From Behind Twice to Hand Illinois Its First Defeat, 21-14

responsible in part for some of the difficulties it encountered. Its ball handling was unsteady and occasionally inexcusable. Some of the team's seven fumbles could be attributed to the hard tackling of Illinois, but it didn't account for behind the line slips that braked down more than one promising offensive march.

While the game developed some brilliant work by backfield players, it essentially was a battle of two mighty lines tearing each other to pieces and chopping up most of the running plays in the process. It was along the scrimmage strip that play after play perished. Seldom could either team do any consistent marching. Illinois had an edge in the first half, but Notre Dame had a marked superiority in the last two periods.

Alex Agase Stands Out.

There were standouts along the line for both sides, but none put up a better game than Alex Agase, Illinois right guard, whose two touchdowns gave the Illini victory over Minnesota two weeks ago. Save for a couple of minutes in the last quarter, he was in there from beginning to end and the Irish made little headway thru his position. He whanged 'em and banged 'em and scattered and slew and when he was taken out of the game for a substitute thousands of Illini came to their feet to give him the salute he had so richly earned. Elmer Engel, Illinois' right end, who today played his third straight 60 minute game, was another stalwart whose expert diagnosis of Notre Dame maneuvers helped to keep the Irish in check.

But lest you get the impression that Illinois monopolized heroics along the line, we hasten to add that Notre Dame had two ends, Bob Dove and Paul Limont, who proved today they can match any pair of wing men in the country. And a cheer, too, for Lou Rymkus and Bob McBride, who yielded little yardage thru the left side of the forward wall.

They gave an early demonstration of Notre Dame's defensive strength by stopping the Illini in their tracks for three downs on the 3 yard line right at the beginning of hostilities. Bob Neff then shared their glory by recovering an Illinois fumble, staving off momentarily the first Illinois touchdown.

Bertelli Starts Late.

Angelo Bertelli, Notre Dame's famous forward passer, had trouble finding open targets in the first half, so tight was Illinois' defense, but he hit his stride in the closing periods and wound up the day with a record of nine completions in 18 attempts.

The Irish made 14 first downs as compared with nine for the Illini and they rolled up 232 yards from scrimmage against Illinois' 191. None of the ball carriers for either team acquired more than a fair average. Don Griffin and Jim Smith shouldered most of the offensive work for the Illini and neither was able to strike a 4 yard average. Anthony Butkovich turned in 6 yards per try, but he lugged the oval only six times. Ashbaugh clicked off 4 1-6 yards for Notre Dame, but Corwin Clatt was the player who did most of the work for the Irish. His average was less than 4 yards, but he made 20 trips with the ball, almost twice as many as any other man on the field.

Clatt Gets Irish in Jam.

Clatt, incidentally, got his team in trouble shortly after the opening kickoff when he fumbled on the second play after the Irish received the kickoff, Myron Pfeifer recovering for Illinois on Notre Dame's 20. Griffin, with an amazing burst of speed, whirled around his right end to the 3 yard line where he was tossed out of bounds by Creighton Miller.

Griffin tried three times to go over for the touchdown thru McBride's guard position, but on fourth down the ball still was a yard from the goal. On fourth down he fumbled and Neff fell on the bounding ball on the 3 yard line.

Bertelli, who averaged 43 yards on his punts, kicked to Notre Dame's 30 from where Griffin and Butkovich gained 6 yards in two plays.

Statue of Liberty Pays Off.

Griffin, faking a pass, held the ball at the level of his head and slightly behind while Butkovich came around and picked the ball off his hand. The old Statue of Liberty maneuver caught the Irish napping and Butkovich went all the way for a touchdown. Jim McCarthy kicked the extra point to give Illinois a 7 to 0 lead.

Before the first quarter ended, Notre Dame got a break when Griffin fumbled on his 16, Dove recovering for the Irish at the spot. Clatt and Ashbaugh ripped thru the Illinois middle for 6 and Clatt cracked the same hole for a first down on the 5, where he was grounded by Walter Correll. Clatt went over for the touchdown on second down, the first man to score on Illinois from scrimmage this season.

Series of Fumbles.

Bertelli kicked the extra point and the score was tied, 7 to 7.

Livingstone's fumble of a punt put the Irish in trouble again in the second quarter when Engel recovered for Illinois on Notre Dame's 35. The Irish regained the ball when Wright recovered Good's fumble on the former's 35. Livingstone was thrown for a 16 yard loss when he fumbled again and Bertelli punted to Good who raced back to Notre Dame's 35. Smith gained 11 on another statue of liberty play. Good then faded deep and threw a pass that sailed over Bertelli's head into the arms of Ray Grierson for Illinois' second touchdown. McCarthy added the point and the Illini again were in front, 14 to 7.

Illinois threatened again in the second quarter when Steve Sucic, half back, intercepted Bertelli's pass and an 13 yards to Notre Dame's 20 where he lateraled to Butkovich, who carried on to the 11. The Illini could make no headway against the aggressive Irish line, however, and Notre Dame took the ball on downs.

Bertelli's good punt, which rolled dead on Illinois' 6 yard line, put the Orange and Blue in a hole in the middle of the third period. Correll kicked to Ashbaugh and the Notre Dame flyer soared 40 yards down the side lines to the 1 yard line where he was tackled by Smith.

Bertelli plunged over for the touchdown and added the point to tie the score, 14 to 14.

Irish Take Over.

Late in the third period Illinois moved down to Notre Dame's 23, but was stopped dead at that point and in less time than it takes to write it Ashbaugh gained a first down on Notre Dame's 42. The Irish advanced steadily to Illinois' 40 where it was fourth down and 5 yards to go. That was the situation described in the lead of this story where Notre Dame gambled on making a first down by a forward pass that succeeded.

Livingstone and Clatt alternated in moving the ball to Illinois' 21. Bertelli fumbled, but Clatt fell on the ball on the 12. Clatt smashed thru his right guard for 6 and an offside penalty against Illinois put the ball only a yard from the goal. Cowhig scored standing up, the third time this season he has made touchdowns without hitting the ground. He crossed the Iowa Seahawks' goal in that fashion twice last Saturday. Bertelli again added the point to conclude the scoring for the day.

War Knocks Out Illini Coaches' Banquet Circuit

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 24 [Special].—Add another casualty of wartime—speech making by University of Illinois coaches.

For the duration Illini coaches will be unable to travel over the state to make talks at high school and other dinners, Director Doug Mills announced today.

Lack of transportation and the increased burden of coaching and teaching work due to the absence of staff members in the service makes this step necessary, Mills explained.

"We regret very much we will be forced to decline invitations from our friends to speak, but we are sure they will understand the situation," Mills said.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 24 (AP).—Coming from behind near the finish, Calumet farm's Whirlaway today won the 29th running of the Washington handicap before 18,000 at Laurel Park. He accomplished the feat at the expense of a couple of former platers, Louis B. Mayer's Thumbs Up, and Louisiana farm's Riverland, which finished second and third respectively.

Jockey Georgie Woolf and Whirlaway made their bid on the far turn, and altho Riverland met the challenge for a time, the Calumet star moved on to a half length victory.

Askmenow Wins.

Previously, Hal Price Headley's Askmenow made her bid for juvenile filly honors of the year by romping off with the $21,900 Selima stakes ahead of eight other fillies. The two races featured the final Saturday program at Laurel, with net proceeds going to army emergency relief.

Whirlaway won a $14,350 purse in the Washington, running his record all time winnings to $528,336. Despite his two recent defeats by Alsab, he was the short priced favorite, and returned only $3.30, $3, and $2.40 for $2.

The long tailed Warren Wright speedster made his usual casual exit from the starting gate. As they entered the first turn of the mile and a quarter course, he was next to last, trailing the pace setters by 12 lengths. Woolf shook him up as they entered the backstretch and he started moving, altho he still was in fourth place as they went into the far turn.

Outruns Riverland.

Then Whirlaway started to run, with Riverland matching him stride for stride, taking over the lead which had previously been set by A. J. Sackett's Tola Rose and Belair Stud's Vagrancy. Woolf resorted to the whip as they went wide entering the stretch, and Whirlaway pulled away, with Thumbs Up coming on to beat Riverland by a length and a half at the wire. Howard Wells' Equifox was fourth in the field of nine. The winner's time for the mile and a quarter was 2:03 2-5, a full second off the record for the stake.

In the Selima, Askmenow was rated just off the early pace set by her stablemate, Now Mandy, and Calumet farm's Nippy. Under Jockey Carroll Bierman's urging, she made her move on the far turn, took the lead as they entered the stretch and pulled away to win by a length and a half.

$30,000 to Relief Fund.

Falaise stable's Good Morning and King ranch's Too Timely dueled it out down the stretch for the place spot, with the camera awarding the decision to the former. Nippy was fourth and the favorite, L. B. Mayer's Miss Barbara, fifth.

The winner covered the mile and a sixteenth in 1:46 4-5, and returned $9.10, $4.80, and $3.30 across the board. While final figures were not immediately available, indications were that the army emergency relief fund would receive more than $30,000.

GUERIN SCORES IN TWO FEATURES AT SPORTSMAN'S

Rides Devalue, Brownie to Victory.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Devalue and Brownie shared honors yesterday at Sportsman's Park by winning the two main events of the program while Eric Guerin dominated the struggle among the jockeys by riding both of these horses. Guerin, who ranks second to Johnny Adams in the national standing, is a member of the jockeys' committee which is supporting the week of charity racing which will climax the Sportsman's Park meeting from Nov. 2 to Nov. 7. This week will be sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., all proceeds being disbursed among local welfare organizations.

Devalue delivered a powerful effort to get home two lengths ahead of Cherry Trifle in the Dearborn handicap, a gallop of a mile and a sixteenth. The consistent veteran, Mordecai, was third.

Brownie Takes Sprint.

Brownie made it five victories out of his last six starts by taking the Garfield Park handicap, a seven furlong sprint which was the secondary feature on the program. He led all the way and got home five lengths ahead of Sales Talk, Johnny Jr. taking third place.

Both Devalue and Brownie received stout support from the bettors, the former paying off at $6.40, $3.60, and $2.40 across the board and the latter returning $4, $2.80, and $2.20.

The proceeds of the fourth race of the afternoon, which was won by Shin Plaster, were turned over to United China relief. The sum amounted to $4,316.05. Chicago race tracks already have almost doubled their quota of $250,000 which was set at the beginning of the season as their goal for war relief contributions.

Proceeds to Local Charities.

During the week of racing under the sponsorship of Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., the turnover to the general welfare will be greatly increased. The proceeds of the Nov. 2 to Nov. 7 week will be devoted to those local charities which have been deprived of their normal sources of revenue because of the war. These include the United, Jewish, and Catholic charities, and other Chicago organizations.

The daily double yesterday was one of the most popular of the season, Paul Kelley's Float Away winning the first race after which Illinois Tom came home at a lope to take the second. The daily double payoff was only $16.

The mutuel handle for the day was $594,946.

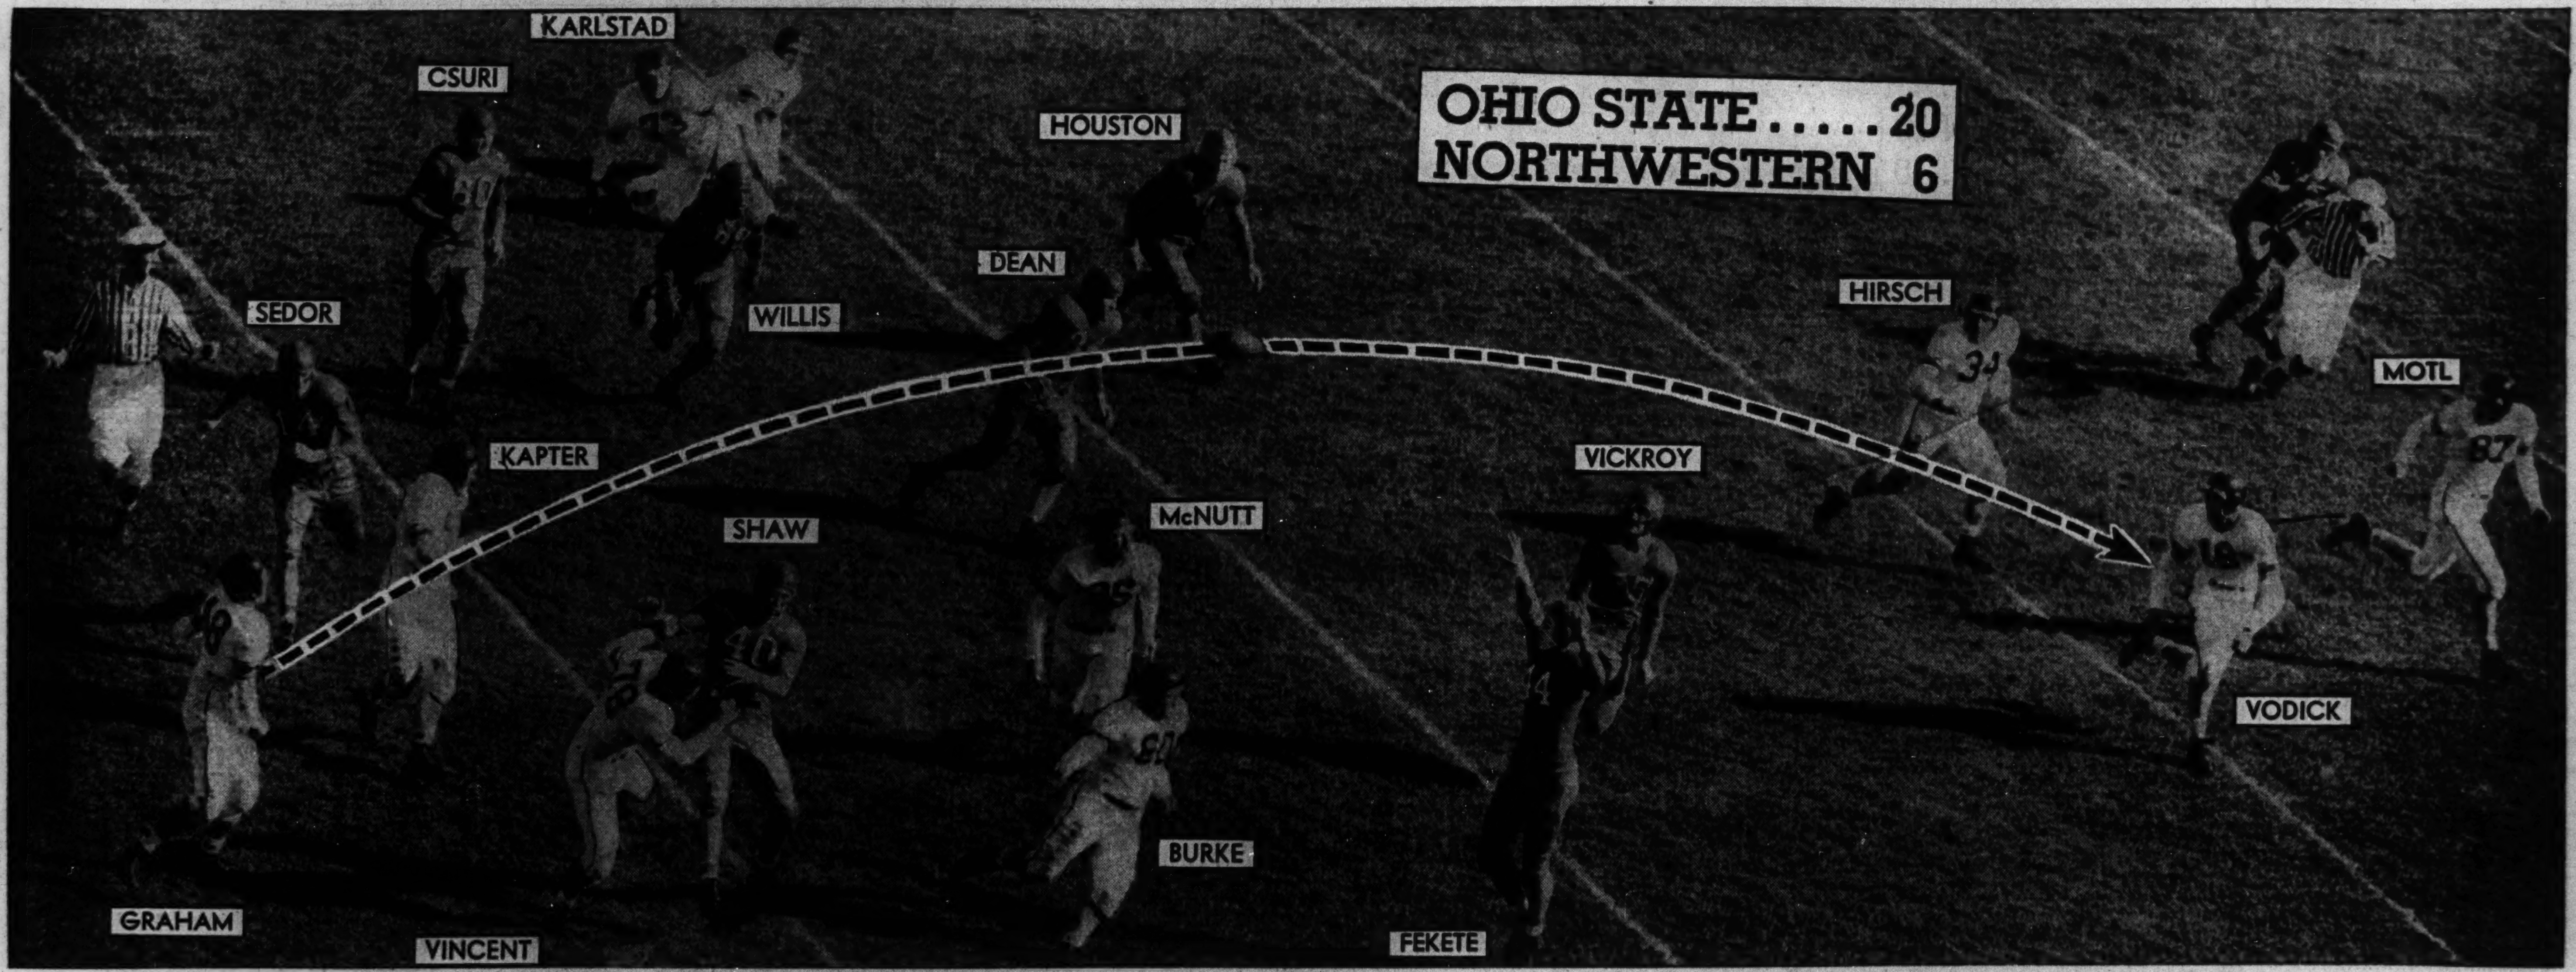
OVER TWO OHIO STATE DEFENDERS GOES THIS PASS BY GRAHAM OF NORTHWESTERN



Otto Graham, Northwestern's passing wizard, shooting his first of eight completed passes in the first quarter of yesterday's losing battle with unbeaten Ohio State in Evanston. Nick Vodick catches it for a 9 yard gain deep in Buckeye territory, but the Wildcats lost the ball on downs four yards from a touchdown. Graham's pass sails over the heads of Gene Fekete and Bill Vickroy of Ohio State.

ARMY WINS FIFTH IN ROW; DEFEATS HARVARD, 14 TO 0

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 24 (AP).—Army continued unbeaten by gaining its first victory in five years over Harvard, 14 to 0, today before 35,000 in the stadium.

The Cadets started with a furious burst and the Crimson appeared to have run out of its famed defenses as they scored twice in the first two periods and had another touchdown erased by an illegal forward pass ruling.

A 14 yard slam thru center by Full Back George Troxell, who performed here last season for Dartmouth, enabled the Army to end a 75 yard scoring drive early in the first period. Before that Jim Kelleher raced 18 yards on an end round. Bob Woods contributed 25 more on an off-tackle drive and Capt. Hank Mazur carried twice.

Pass Is Ruled Out.

The wobbling Crimson, which has failed to win in five starts, went from bad to worse early in the second quarter. After Army had advanced the ball 35 yards from midfield, Mazur completed a 10 yard fourth-down pass to Johnny Hennessey, end replacement. When that receiver lateraled to Kelleher, who went over, the play was ruled an illegal pass.

The Cadets, however, refused to be denied and after they took a punt on their own 42, Troxell broke thru to Harvard's 48 whence Carl Anderson ran for a touchdown. Lineup:

PENN, 42; COLUMBIA, 12.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 24 (AP).—Pennsylvania pounded Columbia all over Franklin field today and won a 42 to 12 football decision, but pitchin' Paul Governali of Columbia won the cheers of some 40,000 fans for his one man job.

It was just a case of too little, not only too late, but never, for Lou Little's outmanned outfit. With Right End Joe Swan and Left Guard Ed Grain as the leading battering rams in the Quaker pummeling party, the three deep Penn line opened holes all afternoon.

Five of the six of the Pennsylvania touchdowns came along the ground, one counted on an intercepted pass and two others, on long runs by Bert Stiff and Joe Kane, were called back for rule infractions. As a matter of fact, Penn tried only four passes and completed none, but gained 427 yards thru the line.

But as long as Governali was in there throwing, it was an interesting afternoon. For Paul, with virtually no help, heaved 20 passes and completed 8, good for 160 yards and both the Lion touchdowns. Lineups:

High Geared Buckeyes Streak to 20-6 Victory Over Wildcats

on the Ohio 10 yard line, but the Wildcats were offside.

The punting duel continued with the Buckeyes finally getting the ball on their 43, the point from which they launched the charge that grew into 7 points.

The first play of the drive didn't do so well. Horvath lost a yard at his right end, but Sarringhaus quickly made amends with a 38 yard sprint thru Northwestern's left tackle, Lynne McNutt, the last Wildcat in his path, bringing him down on the 15 yard line. Fekete smashed thru for 4 yards which were promptly lost by Horvath. The latter recovered half his 4 yard setback and on fourth down Sarringhaus passed to Horvath for the first down on the 3 yard line. Fekete plunged for 1, but in the next two plays both Sarringhause and Lynne were stopped. Then Fekete plunged over for the touchdown and kicked the extra point.

The Buckeyes waxed a bit bold with their pass skill in the third quarter and eventually pitched themselves into a jam. James sailed one down the field, but it fell into the arms of Graham on the 15 yard line. He lugged it up to his 47 before being collared. After Vodick had captured 2 yards Graham was thrown for an 11 yard loss before he could deliver a pitch. Undisturbed by this jolt he shot a pass to Charley Warren, who caught the ball on Ohio's 28 after it had bounced off the fingers of Horvath.

With a lateran, Warren to Graham, and a plunge by Hirsch, the Wildcats registered a first down on the 18, but the whole thing fell apart when Fekete intercepted a pass by Graham and carried it out to his 32 yard line.

Sarringhaus Scores.

By the time the third quarter closed the Ohioans had worked the intercepted pass up to the Purple's 45. To give the final period a proper opening Sarringhaus rolled off 24 yards over his right end and in two plays Fekete drilled thru for 8 yards. The same pair nudged the ball down to the Wildcats' 5. Graham and McNutt halted Horvath without gain so Sarringhaus was summoned again. In two charges inside his right tackle he went over the Wildcats' goal, but Fekete's bid for the extra point was blocked.

After the kickoff on the second Ohio touchdown, Graham went in for passing in a big way. He passed to McNutt for 18 yards and to Colberg for 13. James put a stop to this for the moment by an interception on his 3 yard line. Lipaj punted and Graham snared the ball, carrying it 26 yards to Ohio's 29 yard line. Graham immediately resumed his passing. His first pitch was incomplete, but the next found a receiver in Vodick, who stepped over the goal. Pick's kick went wide of the target.

Ohio's last touchdown originated with a pass interception by James on the Buckeyes' 45. Fekete tore thru for 19 yards and Horvath sprinted to the Wildcats' 16. Then Sarringhaus toured wide over his right end, not stopping until he had crossed the Wildcats' goal. Fekete's kicking toe picked up the final point of the struggle.

Leo Seeks 4th in Row; Meets St. Ignatius

All four of the undefeated leaders in the Catholic league football race draw semi-breathers in this afternoon's contests. There are six games in all on the schedule, each beginning at 2 p. m.

In the south section Leo, fresh from its convincing victory over St. Rita in the Sisters of Mercy charity game last Sunday, tackles St. Ignatius in Key Branch stadium. Leo, defending city champion, has three straight league victories to its credit while St. Ignatius has won one and dropped two.

Mount Carmel vs. St. Patrick.

Mount Carmel, pointing for its game with Leo on Nov. 8, engages St. Patrick at 83d street and Yates avenue. Mount Carmel has won its only two league starts and St. Patrick has failed to taste victory in its two chances. De La Salle, with one victory and one defeat, travels to Joliet to meet Catholic High, beaten in three games.

Fenwick of Oak Park, current leader in the north section with three straight decisions, meets St. George of Evanston in Hanson Park stadium. St. George's record is one defeat and one tie.

St. Mel Meets St. Philip.

St. Mel, the other undefeated eleven in the north section, tackles St. Philip on the latter's field. St. Mel has two victories to its credit while St. Philip is registered once each in the won, lost, and tied columns. Weber and De Paul fight it out in Lane Tech stadium to decide the cellar occupant in the north section. Weber lost its two league starts and De Paul has suffered three defeats in a row.

PURDUE HARRIERS TRIUMPH OVER WISCONSIN, 19-37

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 24 [Special].—Purdue's defending Western conference cross-country champions turned in their best performance of the season this morning as they defeated Wisconsin, 19 to 37. It marked the third victory in four conference dual meets for the Boilermakers.

The Boilermakers, headed by Charles Duesler, who covered the three and one-half mile course in 17 minutes 59.5 seconds for individual honors, took five of the first six places. Darrell Roach and Jim Ashwell took second and third, respectively, for Purdue. Earl Webster of Wisconsin broke the Boilermaker string as he came in fourth.

Navy Pier's cross country team maintained its undefeated record yesterday afternoon by defeating Wheaton college, 23 to 34. The race, run between the halves of the Wheaton-Elmhurst football game, marked Wheaton's first setback in three starts.

Paul Huston of the Navy set a new Wheaton course record when he covered the 3½ miles in 18:59. Max Lenover, ex-Loyola star and Canadian Olympic runner, held the old record of 19:10.

GEORGIA TECH BEATS NAVY IN 3 PLAYS, 21 TO 0

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 24 (AP).—A Georgia Tech football team which used every formation in the alphabet and added a nostalgic touch with the bewhiskered statue of liberty play, outmaneuvered a Navy eleven today, 21 to 0.

Three plays spelled the game, and in each instance it was the middle secondary which allowed the points to sift thru. The remainder of the time the Middies brought cheers from the crowd of 20,000 by fine defensive stands, or brief, and for the most part feeble, offensive thrusts of their own.

Tech Knows What's Coming.

Early in the second period, after a first quarter featured mainly by the thwarting of Georgia Tech's varied thrusts by the competent Navy forwards, the Middies, on two fine runs by Ted Gilliland, advanced to Georgia Tech's 24.

Three running plays lost 3 yards, and the Georgia Tech secondary knew what was coming on the final down. The backs deployed like duck hunters, and when Gordon Studer threw the ball the Tech defense men fairly knocked each other over going after it. Clint Castleberry was the lucky man. He got it on his 8 and sprinted 92 yards to score.

Shortly after the next kickoff, with the ball on the Navy 45, Ed Prokop shot a pass down the field. Jim Luck caught the ball unmolested on the goal.

Jordan Takes Pass for Score.

The teams battled thru the third quarter without a threat either way, but midway in the final period, after a forward lateral, Prokop to Wilbur Stein to Tom Anderson, had carried the ball 23 yards to the Navy 42, Prokop shot a pass down the field to Jack Jordan, who nabbed the ball in the end zone. DUKE WHIPS PITT, 28-0.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 24 (AP).—Duke's Blue Devils ran roughshod over Pitt today, winning 28 to 0 in an intersectional battle witnessed by 15,000.

Duke struck swiftly for all its touchdowns, two of them coming on passes and the others on long runs.

The Blue Devils capitalized on a fumble by Dutton on the Duke 41 in the first period to set up their first touchdown.

Tom Davis, full back from Wilson, N. C., and Half Back Buddy Luper, of Rocky Mount., N. C., picked up a first down on the Pitt 45. On the next play Davis rifled a pass to Half Back Gordon Carver who sped 45 yards for the score.

The second touchdown came in the second quarter when Bobby Rute took Dutton's punt on his own 42 and raced 58 yards for the marker. Held scoreless in the third period, the Blue Devils scored via the air in the last on a 10 yard pass over the goal from Rute to Gantt. After a Pitt fumble, Moffat Storer raced around left end for the final touchdown.

YALE, 17; DARTMOUTH, 7.

New Haven, Oct. 24 (AP).—The football fortunes of Yale came surging back on a high tide here today as the Elis ran over Dartmouth to score a 17 to 7 victory before 22,000.

It was not till late in the third period that Yale posted its first score—a hesitant field goal. But, in the final quarter they sandwiched two quick touchdowns around Dartmouth's only score to win.

Not since 1939 had Yale won two games in any one year and not since 1940 had the Elis triumphed over a major opponent. That last big victory was also over Dartmouth.

In the third period Yale drove from its own 37 to Dartmouth's 12 and was stopped, so Fred Dent was called in to kick a field goal from the 19 yard line two minutes before the period ended.

This jab aroused Dartmouth to its only outbreak of the game. Taking the kickoff, the big green came back down the field 67 yards to a touchdown. Ray Wolfe reeled off gain after gain, passed for 14 yards, and finally dove over the goal line from the 1 yard line. Ed Kast place kicked the extra point.

Ed Taylor, the same substitute who had intercepted a pass in the previous period to set up a touchdown, snatched another out of the air and returned it 17 yards to Dartmouth's 18. Then he passed for a first down on the 5 and Bob Picket plunged over from the 2 for the last touchdown. Dent place kicked both of Yale's extra points.

HOLY CROSS WINS FIRST.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 24 (AP).—Holy Cross won its first victory over a major opponent by defeating North Carolina State, 28 to 0, before 7,500 here. Bezemes' two first half touchdowns, one from the 17 and the other a 78 yard run back of a punt were enough. Holy Cross added two more in the final period, one a 35 yard scoring pass from Gibson to S. Murphy. The final came when Wasilewski intercepted a North Carolina State pass on the 26 and ran for the score.

PENN STATE WINS, 13-10.

State College, Pa., Oct. 24 (AP).—Two freshman backs—one of them playing his first varsity game—threw touchdown passes to a sophomore to spark Penn State to a 13 to 10 victory over Colgate today before a 14,000 crowd.

The Nittany Lions came from behind twice on the throws of Joe Colone and Bobby Williams to Cliff St. Clair.

Williams' throw, an accurate, bullet-like spiral, went 34 yards to St. Clair, who outdistanced the defenders and raced the remaining 20 yards unmolested to climax a 65 yard drive in the fourth.

LEHIGH HALTS RUTGERS.

Bethlehem, Pa., Oct. 24 (AP).—With Hank Szymakowski kicking three field goals and scoring one touchdown, in addition to helping set up two others, Lehigh upset Rutgers, 28 to 10, in a Middle Three game before 8,000. Szymakowski kicked his field goals from the 17, 28 and 25 yard lines.

AMHERST BEATS WESLEYAN.

Middletown, Conn., Oct. 24 (AP).—Amherst, paced by Full Back Jim Carey, maintained its unbeaten record by defeating its Little Three rival, Wesleyan, 27 to 0. Carey scored three touchdowns on plunges.

Great Lakes Falls Before Pass Attack at Michigan State, 14-0

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 24 [Special].—Dick Kieppe assumed the leading rôle this afternoon as the Michigan State eleven scored a mild upset by whipping Great Lakes, 14 to 0. The game became a joyful occasion for some 11,567 homecoming fans who filed into Macklin field fearful that the Spartans were overmatched.

The game resolved into a battle between State's Kieppe and Bruce Smith, former Minnesota star. This afternoon the little Spartan held all the advantage. The Spartans, displaying a reversal of form after being whipped last week by Marquette, were a rejuvenated team. They outran, outfought, and outscored their heavier adversaries.

The Spartans opened their first sustained drive midway in the second quarter when they gained possession on their own 48 yard line following an exchange of kicks. After trading penalties they started the attack rolling in high gear.

Kieppe Goes Into Action.

Kieppe faded back and shot a pass to Walter Pawlowski, who fought his way to the Bluejackets' 24 yard line for a 44 yard gain. State lost 2 yards on a line play, but on second down Kieppe whipped another pass to Pawlowski, who took the ball and raced over the Great Lakes goal line. Pawlowski then added the extra point from placement.

The Bluejackets' ground attack was stopped by a strong Spartan line and they took to the air in an effort to overcome the lead. Smith was injured late in the third quarter and his place was taken by Bill Harrell, former Alabama star.

Late in the fourth quarter Harrell punted from deep in his own territory and the ball went out of bounds on the Sailors' 49 yard line. The Spartans were unable to gain and Kieppe kicked out on the Bluejackets' 20 yard line. Ed Heffernan tried a flat pass, but Russ Gilpin broke thru, intercepted the ball, and raced the remaining 18 yards for the Spartans' second score. Pete Fornari added the extra point.

Fumble Stops Sailors.

Great Lakes had several scoring opportunities but the Michigan State defense tightened and turned back the thrusts. In the first quarter the Bluejackets came close to scoring when they started out from the Spartans' 47 yard line. After the ball had been advanced to the 29, Charles Carey broke loose to the Spartans' 6 yard line. Ed Heffernan picked up two, but fumbled on the first play of the second quarter. Gilpin recovered to end the scoring chance.

The Spartans intercepted four Great Lakes' passes and all came at crucial stages when it appeared the service team was beginning to click. The Bluejackets rolled up 15 first downs to seven for the Spartans.

Kieppe's performance was even more remarkable since he had been released from the college hospital only a few days ago. He missed the Marquette game last week.

Kieppe Completes 10 Passes.

The Lansing half back completed 10 out of 19 passes and averaged 3.5 yards each time he lugged the ball. He carried the ball 13 out of the 27 Spartan running plays. His tosses were good for a net gain of 122 yards and only one of his passes was intercepted.

PRINCETON RUNS THRU BROWN'S DEFENSE, 32-13

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 24 (AP).—Princeton's team that won't be beaten wasn't even threatened today as it knocked Brown out of football's undefeated class, 32 to 13.

Amazing a crowd of 15,000 by its superiority, Princeton bottled up the Brown running attack until late in the game and displayed an offense that was good for four touchdowns and a defense that added two safeties to the score.

After yielding a first period touchdown, Brown came back to tie the score early in the second. But the Tigers made it 16 to 7 at the half and never were threatened again. The Princeton forwards stopped Bob Margarita and Dan Savage, Brown's speedy backs, so effectively that the Bears gained only 57 yards by rushing.

Perina Keeps Brown in Hole.

Meanwhile Bob Perina, Princeton's senior half back, and George Franke, freshman full back, reeled off long gains both on the ground and thru the air. Perina, in addition, kept Brown in a hole with punts that averaged 40 yards from the line of scrimmage.

The first Tiger touchdown came as a surprise to the spectators as well as to Brown players. Taking a kick on his own 40 yard line, Perina ran about 10 yards, then handed the ball to Warren Veith on an open field reverse play. Veith, with the aid of George Kinniry, who blocked out the last Brown tackler, went the remaining 50 yards.

A bad pass from center, which Steward MacNeill recovered on the Princeton 20, paved the way for Brown's first score. Savage pitched a touchdown pass to Roy Swingler before the Tigers realized what had happened.

Perina Travels 43 Yards.

Perina's 43 yard off tackle run put Princeton ahead again. He was chased out of bounds just short of the goal but Franke went over. Then, as Brown tried to pass from deep in its own territory, Bill Gallagher chased Savage back of his own goal line and tackled him for a safety.

Princeton again scored at the beginning of the fourth on a Perina to Sandbach pass that was good for 33 yards. Another touchdown drive was stopped 6 yards short of the goal, but Gallagher again crashed thru and tackled Savage behind his goal line.

This gave Brown a free kick from the 20 yard line. Franke grabbed the ball on his own 30 and smashed and twisted his way to the Brown 17. Five plays later Perina crashed thru for the score.

Pattee Runs 19 Yards to Score.

With substitutes playing most of the positions for both teams, Brown finally scored with only seconds to go after a steady march from its own 35 yard line. A pass from Bob Babcock to John Pattee, who ran 19 yards, was the touchdown play.

HAWKS DECIDE TO CARRY SQUAD OF 19 THIS YEAR

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 24 [Special].—In order to be ready for emergencies which may arise this season due to casualties, Manager Paul Thompson declared today that the Blackhawks of 1942-43 will consist of 19 players, the largest squad they have ever signed prior to the opening of a schedule. The team will be made up of a goal tender, five defense men and 13 forwards.

Syracuse Air Attack Beats Cornell, 12-7

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 24 (AP).—Syracuse rolled blithely along the victory road today, striking twice thru the air for touchdowns that earned the Orange its fifth straight conquest, a 12 to 7 triumph over Cornell before 15,000 homecoming rooters.

Cornell, injury-riddled and without a victory in its last four games, drove 51 yards for a first period touchdown. But the Orange, none too impressive on the ground, fashioned an offensive around a series of short passes, completing 9 of 20 aerials for 141 yards. Two paid off in the end zone for second period touchdowns.

Half Back Dick Whitesell tossed an 11 yarder to Half Back Tommy Maines for the first score. Five minutes later Sophomore Larry Ellis, full back, whipped one 10 yards into the open arms of End Howard Werner standing behind the goal line.

Cornell started its power offensive toward the goal on a 16 yard gain by Stacey Mosser, an end, on an end-around maneuver to Syracuse's 39. Half Back Bill Wheeler and Ken Davis, full back, hammered to a first down on the 27. Wheeler, a junior, then drifted back and fed a pass to Charley Robinson, half back, on the 5. In three tries, Wheeler punched it over. Lineups:

BOSTON COLLEGE WINS.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 24 (AP).—Held in check for almost three periods by sturdy Wake Forest, the undefeated Boston College Eagles exploded a dazzling aerial attack today to humble the eleven from North Carolina, 27 to 0, before 20,000 in Fenway park.

The Eagles managed to put together one sustained march in the opening period to push Mike Holovak over from the 1 yard line after he and Mickey Connolly had alternated in a drive from their own 39. They got going again late in the third period with a 73 yard drive, which Red Mangene opened by intercepting a pass on his 15 and racing back 12 yards. Mangene, Connolly, and Holovak collaborated to carry to the Wake Forest 30 and here Connolly whipped a pass down the middle to Don Currivan, which the big right end took over his shoulder as he crossed the goal line. The next Eagle score came minutes later, just after the fourth period opened.

ALABAMA WINS, 14-0, TO MAINTAIN PERFECT RECORD

Kentucky Fades Badly to Become Fifth Victim.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 24 (AP).—Alabama's unbeaten, untied crimson tide surged over for two touchdowns in the last half to win its fifth game of the season here today, 14 to 0, before a homecoming crowd of 14,000.

Russ Mosley's 52 yard runback of the kickoff for the second half preceded Alabama's first touchdown. Taking the ball from Kentucky's 46, the Tide rolled to the 34 before Russ Mosely punted into the end zone. On the next play Bob Herbert hit the middle of the line on the 20, fumbled, and Russ Craft recovered for Alabama. A 15 yard dash thru right tackle took Mosley to the 5, and two plays later he bucked over from the 2. George Hecht kicked the extra point.

An intercepted pass, taken by Craft on Kentucky's 36 just before the end of the third period, set up the second touchdown. Russ Mosley pitched a 6 yard pass to Craft, who carried it 29 yards more to Kentucky's 29. Johnny August and Kenny Reese worked the ball up to the 5 as the quarter turned, and a Kentucky off side pushed the Wildcats back to the 2. Kentucky stopped two thrusts inches from the goal, but on the third down Louie Scales crashed over and again Hecht added the point.

MISSISSIPPI STATE WINS.

Gainesville, Fla., Oct. 24 (AP).—Billy Murphey and Blondy Black, ably assisted by some two dozen other Mississippi State Maroons, whipped the Florida Gators at their homecoming today, 26 to 12.

Held scoreless in the first quarter, the Maroons broke loose in the second period and Murphy scored from the 2 yard line after his pass to John Grace, for 18 yards, set it up.

Florida surged back to tie the score at 6 to 6, with a touchdown by Joe Graham on a 12 yard pass from Jack Jones. Graham set this one up by recovering a fumble by Mississippi State's full back, Charley Yancey, on the 20.

Black charged into scoring position with bullet passes and some fast running. His pass to Davis across the goal put State ahead, 12 to 6, and Florida never got even again.

VANDERBILT, 66; CENTRE, 0.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 24 (AP).—Rocketing along at better than a point a minute clip, Vanderbilt's Commodores rolled to a 66 to 0 victory over little Centre college of Danville, Ky., today. A crowd of 7,000, including about 2,000 soldiers, witnessed the game.

Iowa Takes 14-13 Victory from Indiana

maining minutes but a fumble by Hillenbrand, recovered by Farmer on Indiana's 42 after a 14 yard run, may have been the upsetting factor in the Hoosiers' series of belated rallies.

Each of the touchdowns which had the teams tied 7-7 at the half were the result of well designed onslaughts, each featuring a sharply executed pass.

Indiana Scores Early.

The Indiana touchdown in the first quarter came after 5½ minutes during all of which the Hoosiers dominated the play. The touchdown splurge got under way when Hillenbrand returned a punt 15 yards to Iowa's 30. Hillenbrand went for 4 yards and Bob White 2. Then an incomplete pass made it fourth down and 4 to go on the Hawkeyes' 24. At this juncture Hillenbrand cast a pass to Cowan who grabbed the ball as he raced over the goal line for the touchdown. Hillenbrand kicked the extra kick from placement.

For a time in the second quarter it seemed Indiana was going to hold the advantage but there was a lull in the Hoosier attack and Dolaway kicked to Curran who was downed on Iowa's 32. The Hoosiers were startled no end when Uknes sprinted around his left end for 24 and a first down on Indiana's 44. The Hawkeyes promptly added another 24 yard gain on a pass, Farmer to Youel, and it was first and 10 on Indiana's 20. This was one of three passes by Farmer all afternoon. All three were completed. Uknes went 11 yards to the 9 then made another sprint for the touchdown. Farmer tied the score by converting with a placement kick.

Statistical Headache for Indiana.

Indiana, suffering its second Big Nine defeat of the season, probably had enough of a headache as a result of losing on a missed kick, but there was other headache inspiration, in the statistics. Indiana made 13 first downs to seven by Iowa. Ten to six was the ratio on rushing and three to one on passes.

Iowa only pierced Indiana territory three times and couldn't be stopped on two, the first touchdown climaxing a 68 yard march, the second a concerted roll of 83 yards.

It was the ninth straight game of the 15 game series in which the teams have never been more than seven points apart at the finish. In the all time series Iowa has won seven, Indiana five, and there have been three ties.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mark Hoskins, Wisconsin's star back, preparing to launch an aerial in yesterday's game against Purdue in Lafayette. Richard Barwegen, Boilermakers' guard, leaps up to block the ball. He didn't block it, but the pass missed connections. The Badgers' victory put a damper on Purdue's homecoming. It was the Badgers' first Western conference game after five nonconference contests.

RICE RALLY IS TOO LATE; TEXAS TRIUMPHS, 12-7

Houston, Tex., Oct. 24 (AP).—Rice rallied in the closing minutes today to scare Texas but two first half touchdowns stood up and the Longhorns took their second straight Southwest conference victory, 12 to 7, before 28,000.

Texas scored in the first and second quarters and didn't allow Rice a single first down. Then things started happening. Rice drove to a touchdown with a magnificent surge with five minutes to go and was menacing the Texas goal line again at the finish.

Texas scored the first time it got the ball, parading from its 22 with Roy McKay, Ken Matthews and Walton Roberts leading the charge. From the Rice 2, Roberts circled wide around right end to score standing up. McKay missed the point.

The second Texas touchdown was on a sensational pass which Joe Schwarting took while falling across the goal line. McKay threw the pass, a looper that gained 24 yards. His try for extra point was blocked.

Rice scored as the climax of a drive with Don Stephens doing most of the work in the line and Dick Dwelle throwing passes all over the lot. From the Texas 8, Dwelle threw one over the goal line that Schwarting deflected into Windell Williams' hands for a touchdown. Lindsay Bowen converted. Lineup:

BAYLOR BEATS TEXAS AGGIES.

Waco, Tex., Oct. 24 (AP).—Baylor, capitalizing on one scoring chance as Texas A. & M. missed on nine threats, defeated the Aggies today, 6 to 0.

Baylor scored in the fourth period after an 80 yard drive which followed an Aggie field goal attempt. Bill Coleman passed 40 yards to Tom Johnson who ran to the Aggie 11. Travis Nelson made a first down on the Aggie 1, and Coleman plunged for the game's lone score.

Texas A. & M. drove once to the Baylor 3, once to the 4, once to the 5, once to the 8, once to the 14, once to the 18, and three times to the 20, but never could go all the way.

next Saturday and to Purdue's spirited goal line defense that denied the Badgers one other touchdown.

Harder Does Little Running.

Pat Harder, Wisconsin hard charging full back, who now has regained physical condition after a preseason injury, and the elusive sophomore star, Elroy Hirsch, led the Badgers' attack. Harder always was good for a gain on his line plunges and had Quarter Back Jack Wink cared to send him more often around Purdue's tightly drawn line, he might have run up yardage comparable to last season when he topped the Western conference scorers. As it was, Harder lunged across for Wisconsin's first touchdown after the score had been set up by Hirsch.

Wisconsin kicked off to Purdue and when Andretich fumbled and recovered without gain on his own 10 yard line, the Boilermakers were in the hole. Wisconsin kept them there for the entire half. The Badgers were stopped on Purdue's 30 yard line by Wink's fourth down fumble in the opening period and again lost the ball on Mark Hoskins' fumble deep in Boilermaker territory in the same quarter.

Go 58 Yards to Score.

In the second period the Badgers reached Purdue's 32 yard line but two line plays by Hirsch failed and Hoskins and Wink followed with incomplete passes. Then Wisconsin drove 58 yards for its first touchdown.

With Hoskins in motion to his right Harder went around defensive left end after Hoskins' key block for 9 yards. A penalty for delay cost Wisconsin 5 yards and Hoskins lost another yard at Purdue's right end. Harder plunged for a yard on third down and then came the break that continued the assault. On fourth down, Bob Baumann punted for Wisconsin but Purdue was offside and the penalty netted a first down on Purdue's 48 yard stripe.

Harder smashed at the line for 6 yards in two attempts and Hoskins shot off Purdue's right tackle for a first down on the Boilermaker 36. Harder plunged for 6 yards and on second down Hirsch ripped inside of the Boilermaker left tackle and skipped by the secondary defenders until he was brought down on Purdue's 4 yard line by Andretich. Harder hit over guard for the touchdown on the next play and followed with a place kick for the extra point.

Ken Smock's fumble near the end of the half, which was recovered by Evan Vogds, Badger guard, on Purdue's 20 yard line, apparently started Wisconsin on the way to a second score. Hirsch, Harder, and Len Seelinger gained 9 yards and Ashley Anderson's quarter back sneak produced a first down on Purdue's 9 yard line. Here the Boilermaker forwards dug in. They yielded 8 yards to Harder on three plays but on the final attempt by the Wisconsin full back, Dick Barwegen, Boilermaker guard, knifed thru to stop him without gain.

Ray Does the Heavy Work.

Purdue's threat to tie the score in the third period touched off Wisconsin's second drive. After Bachman's fumble the Badgers drove 84 yards. Harder and Hirsch played until the start of the fourth period when Wisconsin had advanced to its own 44 yard line. Then Bob Ray replaced Harder to pair with Hirsch. Ray carried the ball on the final five plays in this drive, personally accounting for 35 yards and going over on a straight plunge from Purdue's 2 yard line. Ray's kick for the point was wide.

Purdue's subsequent air attack advanced to Wisconsin's 16 yard line against the Badgers' second back field but with the return of the regulars Wisconsin checked the passes and eventually took over on its 32 where Purdue's Bob Chester had recovered a bad pass from center on fourth down.

OCCUPATION WINS RICH FUTURITY AT KEENELAND

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 24 (AP).—Occupation, 2 year old from the stables of John M. Marsch, Chicago sportsman, came out to Kentucky today to prove to the home folks that he's every inch the great champion he's cracked up to be.

While his owner and Thomas Carr Piatt, on whose nearby farm he was bred, looked on from a throng of 8,000, the fleet son of Bull Dog-Miss Bunting added the Breeders' futurity, feature attraction on Keeneland's closing program, to his Arlington, Washington Park and Belmont futurity successes to boost his earnings for the year to $189,855. Today's triumph made his 9th in 12 starts.

The Marsch champion made every post a winning one. At the finish of the six furlong dash his margin over Dixiana's Amber Light was two and a half lengths but it well might have been twice or three times that much had Buddy Haas elected to let him run.

Except for a few brief moments after the break when Amber Light was flanked, Haas was straining on the bit. Not once did he touch the great colt with a whip.

Amber Light, always closest in pursuit but outclassed, easily held the place position safe by four lengths from J. W. Rodgers' Dove Pie. The latter closed fast to beat J. E. Widener's Gothic for the show. H. P. Headley's Bull's Eye, only other starter, trailed the field thruout.

The race was worth $11,140 to Owner Marsch. Occupation's winning mutuel price was $2.20, shortest in history of Keeneland. His time over the slow track was at 1:14. He worked out the mile in 1:43 in preparation for his next engagement in the Pimlico futurity next week.

NEBRASKA BEATS OKLAHOMA, 7-0; MISSOURI WINS

Norman, Okla., Oct. 24 (AP).—With one quick thrust, Nebraska drove to a touchdown at the end of the first half today to take a 7 to 0 victory over Oklahoma.

Thus, an Oklahoma record of never losing a home opener over a stretch of 18 years was broken along with most of the Sooner hopes for winning the Big Six conference title. The Nebraska victory, sparked by Half Back Dale Bradley, left the Huskers in a tie with Missouri for the conference lead with two victories each.

Nebraska came by its touchdown on a break it made itself. Vic Schleich, Nebraska tackle, blocked Huel Hamm's punt and William Bryant, guard, covered it on Oklahoma's 32.

Kirwin Eisenhart, full back, dropped back to pass, found all eligibles covered and burst down the middle to Oklahoma's 13. Bradley made it a first down on the 3 and two drive at the line, thne catapulted over the goal on the second attempt. Schleich place kicked the point.

Missouri, 45; Iowa State, 6.

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 24 (AP).—Bob Steuber, Missouri half back and the nation's leading scorer, added 20 points to his total today as Missouri defeated Iowa State, 45 to 6, in a Big Six conference game before 8,000.

He raced 57 yards for a third period touchdown, crashed over the Iowa State goal from the 16, and 2 yard lines in the first half, and booted a pair of extra points for good measure. In 15 tries with the ball Steuber averaged 9.1 yards, and completed one of his three passes for a touchdown in the second half.

In piling up their score—the largest in the history of the Tiger-Cyclone series—Missouri used more than four full teams, and picked up almost 600 yards by rushing and passing. It was the Tigers' 17th consecutive triumph on the home field, and their second straight in conference play. Missouri got one touchdown each in the first and last periods, scored twice in the second quarter, and collected three touchdowns in the third period.

The lone Cyclone score came late in the fourth period on a drive that carried 65 yards against Missouri replacements. Royal Lohry, senior half back, swept the Tiger left end from the 7 for the score.

Manhattan, Kas., Oct. 24 (AP).—University of Kansas spoiled Kansas State's homecoming today by turning back the Wildcats, 19 to 7, in a Big Six football game witnessed by 7,500. The Jayhawkers scored in every period except the third and held State without a tally until shortly before the game ended. It was Kansas' first of the season.

OKLAHOMA AGGIES WIN.

Stillwater, Okla., Oct. 24 (AP).—Striking early and often, the Oklahoma Aggies today handed the Washington U. Bears of St. Louis a 40 to 7 trouncing in a Missouri Valley conference game.

The Cowboys scored their first touchdown four and a half minutes after the start of the game when Ralph Tate crossed the goal line to conclude an Aggie march. Oklahoma A. & M. led at the half, 20 to 0.

Maryland Wins 51-0 Rout Over Western Maryland

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 24 (AP).—Maryland university, displaying a dazzling aerial and ground game and a choice mixture of Clark Shaughnessy's T formation, overpowered Western Maryland college today, 51 to 0, in the worst defeat ever handed out by either club in a series that began more than 45 years ago. A crowd of 10,000 saw the game.

Gophers Win Ninth Straight Over Michigan Eleven, 16-14

in practice. Following the game, it was learned that Minnesota had planned a place kick, but in the huddle that preceded Garnaas' effort, Frickey frantically pointed out that time was running short and suggested a drop kick. Garnaas agreed, then dropped back, and booted the ball over.

Frickey Takes Over.

Midway thru the third quarter, Right Guard John Billman of the Gophers intercepted a pass by Kuzma and returned it to the Michigan 43 yard line. Frickey was the head man in the series of line thrusts, directed largely at the left side of the Wolverine forward wall, which made it first down and 4½ yards to go. Frickey needed only one down, sweeping wide around the defensive right end and cutting back in to score standing up. Garnaas' placement effort was wide.

Michigan was far from beaten, however, altho the arrival of Sophomore Bob Chappuis in the Wolverine back field at this point was sufficient indication of how they planned to get those 9 points back—by passing. One aerial drive was thwarted by Sandberg's interception of a pass, but another, on a long pitch from Chappuis to Capt. George Ceithaml, brought the ball to the Gopher 29 yard line. Two other passes, both incomplete, terminated that march, however. Paul Sharpe, Michigan end, smashed thru to block a fourth down punt out of bounds on the Minnesota 32 yard line. Two line plays gained only 4 yards, and two passes went for naught, the Gophers' taking over on their own 28 yard mark.

Wolverines Bounce Back.

Here the Wolverines bounced back with their second touchdown. Sandberg punted to Kuzma, who took the ball on his own 30 yard line and broke to his right. Don Robinson, Michigan wing back, came sharply over to his left and Kuzma slipped the ball to him. The onrushing Gophers were caught flat footed, and Robinson sprinted to the Minnesota 12 yard stripe before he was halted by Dick Kelley, substitute Gopher back. Kuzma then gave a great demonstration of driving power by muscling his way around his own right end for the touchdown, knocking down three would-be Minnesota tacklers and carrying two others over the goal line with him. Jim Brieske, the third string center, who had made 11 kicking points before today's game, repeated his success of the first Michigan touchdown, and the score was 16 to 14. Only 1 minute and 19 seconds remained to play when Kuzma drove over.

Michigan's line gave another outstanding performance of iron man duty. Left Guard Bob Kolesar was the only man in the line who was relieved, Sharpe, Elmer Madar, Al Wistert, Merv Pregulman, Franks, and Joe Pritula working the full 60 minutes. Capt. Ceithaml also went the route, giving him a total of 298 minutes out of a possible 300 for the season to date.

Three Gopher Linemen Star.

In addition to the Gopher backs, Capt. Dick Wildung, who played without relief, Billman, and Right End Jerry Mulready distinguished themselves with all around play.

The statistics were about evenly divided, with the Wolverines emerging with a first down advantage of 13 to 10. The Gophers led in rushing, with a net of 180 yards against Michigan's 153. The losers gained 79 yards on the five successful completions in 19 passing attempts, while Minnesota, making good on four out of 12 tries, collected 64 yards.

Varketta and Pirrone Meet at Marigold

Jimmy Varketta, Cleveland junior welterweight, will attempt to earn a spot on the impeding card in Chicago Stadium by beating Joey Pirrone in an eight round bout in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. Irving Schoenwald and Jack Begun, promoters of tomorrow's program, also are sponsoring the show in the Stadium, which will be headed by Bob Pastor and Nate Bolden Nov. 6.

Has Five Victories in Row.

Varketta has scored five straight triumphs since making his Chicago debut last June 29, his victims being Jerry Pittro [twice], Sam Scully, Jerry Hoffman, and Jackie Allen, the latter also known as Bill Hawkins.

In his last local start, Pirrone scored a first round knockout over Charley Eschman in the Stadium on April 10. Tommorrow Joey will be seconded by his brother Paul, who was a topnotch middleweight a few years ago.

Henry Rothier, former Chicagoland Golden Gloves lightweight and welterweight champion, also will serve as a second tomorrow. He will be in Harold Blunt's corner when his middleweight protége faces James Smyles in a four round preliminary.

Additional Bouts.

Additional eight round matches will bring together Al Reasoner, Hines, Ill., 140 pounder, and Vince Turpin of Canton, O., and Mickey Hayes, Milwaukee heavyweight, and Frank Greene, Chicago. There also will be a four round rematch between Tommy Lemmon, welterweight, also of Milwaukee, and Isadore, the old punch absorber from the south side.

Walter Palmer, north side heavyweight wrestler, and Pierre La Belle will be principals in the windup bout of a mat show in White City tomorrow. An added feature will involve Hans Steinke and Gerard Lauth. . . . Eight amateur boxing matches and a wrestling bout will be included on the program presented by the 30th Ward club in Madison Athletic club Thursday. Ald. Edward Upton, director of the card, has appointed Phil Collins matchmaker. Collins refereed the first legalized bout in this town when third man in the ring at the lightweight championship encounter between Sammy Mandell and Champion Rocky Kansas in 1926.

GEORGIA SCORES FAST; WINS, 35-13, FROM CINCINNATI

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 24 (AP).—The University of Georgia's speedy Bulldogs stunned the hitherto unbeaten Cincinnati Bearcats with three quick touchdowns in the first period today, then toyed along for their sixth straight victory, 35 to 13, before a homecoming crowd of about 15,000.

Frankie Sinkwich, Georgia's star half back from Youngstown, O., and his running mate, Lamar Davis of Brunswick, Ga., were the big guns, with Sinkwich scoring three touchdowns and Davis the other two on passes from Sinkwich. Leo Costa connected for all five points after touchdowns. Verne Ullom, a sub end, and Jim Townsend scored for Cincinnati.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 24 [Special].—With Sophomore Half Back Johnny Strzykalski stealing the show in his first appearance before the home folks, the Marquette university football team rolled to an impressive 39 to 0 victory over a previously undefeated University of Arizona eleven before 18,000 fans in the Hilltop stadium tonight.

The Milwaukee south sider threw passes for Marquette's first three touchdowns and, after recovering an Arizona fumble, set up the next with a toss to the 2 yard line. After that, Coach Tom Stidham's reserves took charge, and with Half Back Billy Freewalt of Chicago as the standout, they added two more touchdowns.

Marquette compiled 10 first downs as compared to 3 for Arizona.

Passes for Touchdowns.

After the Hilltoppers had midly threatened twice early in the first quarter, Strzykalski finally touched off a scoring drive by returning one of Ruman's quick kicks 10 yards to the Arizona 28. Full Back Hal Eigner and Half Back Ray Carlson then collaborated for a first down on the 11 on three tries and the Hilltoppers went on to the 3 yard line, only to get set back to the 18 on a holding penalty. On the next play Strzykalski shot a pass to Carlson in the end zone for a touchdown. Bobby Dams, for only the second time this season, missed fire on the attempted extra point kick and Marquette led, 6 to 0.

Strzykalski lost little time, as the second quarter opened, in adding to the Hilltoppers' total. Ruman had punted to midfield as the period opened and on second down Eddie broke away around left end to the 11. He failed to gain on a try at the line and misfired on a pass to End John Harrington, but caught Quarter Back Ollie Vogt with a touchdown pass on the next play. Dams kicked the point, and Marquette led, 13 to 0.

March 52 Yards.

Marquette took the second half kickoff and marched 52 yards to score again, with Strzykalski tossing the ball 22 yards to End John Harrington for the touchdown. Dams again added the point and the score was 20 to 0. Strzykalski subsequently recovered an Arizona fumble on the Wildcats' 21 and after he had passed to Harrington to the 2, Full Back Hal Eigner plunged over for another score. Dams missed this time, but Marquette led, 26 to 0.

With Hilltop reserves taking over in the fourth quarter, Guard Steve Enich recovered an enemy fumble on their 15, and on fourth down Full Back Carl Schuette passed to Freewalt for a score. Game Capt. Al Klug place kicked the extra point that made it 33 to 0. The Marquette boys weren't satisfied and, before the game ended, Freewalt and Half Back Paul Copoulos collaborated on a 27 yard pass play that brought the final touchdown. Mel Maceau's attempted conversion was blocked, and the score stood, 39 to 0.

American Association Directors to Meet in Chicago

Columbus, O., Oct. 24 (AP).—American association headquarters announced today the league's board of directors will meet Dec. 3 in Chicago instead of Kansas City. The annual meeting generally is held in the city with the championship team, but the move was made to Chicago since the directors are due there on Dec. 4 for the meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

TAFT BEATS LANE, 2-0; NOW LEADS IN NORTH DIVISION

Blocked Punt Results in Only Score.

A safety in the third period gave Taft High school's football team a 2 to 0 victory over Lane Tech's previously unbeaten eleven yesterday afternoon in a north section City league game. A capacity throng jammed Lane stadium.

Thru the triumph Taft gained possession of first place in the section race and became a decided favorite to win the north side championship. Taft will conclude its regular schedule against Roosevelt next Saturday.

Both teams relied chiefly on running plays until the closing minutes of the game, when they changed to hurried aerial offensives. The blocked kick which gave Taft its safety came when George Gilgenbach, Taft right tackle, rushed Full Back Wally Wilson of Lane when he fumbled the ball in trying to get off a quick kick. The ball, blocked on the Lane 7 yard stripe, bounded across the end zone for an automatic safety. Wilson replaced Spud Huston, who had started at full back.

Lane made a belated bid for victory in the final period when it pushed the ball deep into Taft territory. This drive, however, was stopped when Taft intercepted a pass on its 23 yard line.

The defeat dropped Lane to third place in the north section standings, while Senn, by its victory over Sullivan, moved into second position. It was Taft's fifth consecutive victory. Lineup:

Proviso Falls, 35 to 6, Before New Trier High

New Trier, moving rapidly on its way toward the Suburban league football championship, routed Proviso of Maywood, 35 to 6, yesterday in Winnetka. It was New Trier's third straight victory and fifth of the season. The defeat, Proviso's first in league play, practically eliminated it from title consideration because of a previous tie with Morton. New Trier is now the only untied and undefeated team in the conference.

The Winnetka team scored in every period but the third, and Proviso was unable to score until the final quarter. Capt. Johnny McNitt, who was not expected to play because he had been suffering from a concussion, led New Trier in scoring. He registered a touchdown on a 6 yard pass from Gene Hasselberg and successfully added the extra point after each of New Trier's five touchdowns.

The rest of the New Trier touchdowns were distributed among Hasselberg, Roger Spielman, who intercepted a Proviso pass and ran 90 yards for a score, Bob Ogden, and Nev Bowser. Proviso's consolation score was registered by Bob Miller, full back. The New Trier freshman-sophomore team romped over Proviso, 36 to 0. Lineups:

ELECTRICITY is the driving force of this war. Every plane, every tank, every ship needs skilled electricians — to build and to keep it going.

MEN WHO KNOW ELECTRICITY are wanted, by the thousands. They enjoy better ratings, higher pay in the Service. They find good jobs at war plants.

COYNE, AMERICA'S OLDEST and most successful Electrical School, now offers special streamlined night courses in the most vital branches of Electricity, Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings.

YOU SELECT THE BRANCH in which you want to specialize—then train quickly and easily by practical work on real apparatus, under personal instruction of experts. No books, no reciting—it's the famous Coyne "Learn-by-Doing" method.

A FEW WEEKS IN EVENING SCHOOL prepare you for a better rating in Army, Navy, or essential war work. The cost is low. Previous experience or education not necessary. Whether you are 16 or 50, you can qualify for this training.

VISIT OUR SHOPS any Monday, Wednesday or Friday up to 8:30 P.M., or any day including Sunday between 9 A.M. and 4 P.M. See for yourself. You can start this week to prepare for a real future in Electricity. Evening school hours Mon., Wed. and Fri from 6:30 to 9:30 p. m. Convenient to L, street car and bus.

URGE HUNTER TO EAT GAME, SAVE PELT AND SHELLS

Skins Make Leather and Cartridges Scrap Metal.

BY BOB BECKER.

Ever since the country first heard about a threatened meat shortage this fall and winter, those six million big game animals that the United States fish and wildlife service counted a year ago have come in for their share of attention. In some quarters it has been suggested that this might be a good time to convert some of our big game population into meat. In other quarters we still hear the cry that all hunting should be banned for the duration.

This department, the first to urge sportsmen this fall to make every shot count, avoid crippling shots, recover all game possible, and bring it home for table use, discussed the big game situation with Ira N. Gabrielson, chief of the fish and wildlife service, a couple of weeks ago.

Gabrielson Makes a Point.

During the course of the chat with this scientist, who keeps an eye on all of our game birds and animals, he brought out this interesting point, one that the average person does not know: In agreeing with us that there should be no letdown on hunting laws so that our wild life resources would suffer damaging losses, Gabrielson said that it was sensible to crop by hunting such species as deer, taking the annual increase where the population is large but always leaving stock enough for another crop next year. He also made the point that in some localities and forests deer, for example, would become so abundant [unless a certain number were taken by hunters] that herds would starve to death during the months when little feed is available.

This is no theory. Already deer starvation has occurred in some forests because the animals became so abundant on a given acreage that there wasn't food enough for them. As Gabrielson said, "Just as a farm can raise only so much per acre, so nature can feed just so many game animals on each acre." In other words, scientific game management, whereby you take a reasonable crop of game from a specified tract of land, is not only sound economics but also humane.

Save Meat, Skin, and Shell.

This fall no deer, elk, or moose hunter has [in our estimation] any right to hunt these wild animals without doing three things, in keeping with his obligations to his country. They are: 1. Save every bit of meat for home consumption. 2. Skin the animal and save the pelt for the leather that can be made from it. 3. Save every empty shell and turn it in as scrap metal.

Inasmuch as 70,000 deer may be shot in Michigan, perhaps 40,000 or more in both Wisconsin and Minnesota, the meat, leather, and metal that may be obtained here in the midwest only from the 1942 hunting season are no small items. And all shotgun users must not forget to bring home their used shells so that brass may be salvaged from them.

NEWS FROM ARMY AND NAVY POSTS

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Fort Sheridan.

CAPT. ELBERT M. HARTOM, native of Detroit, who is special services officer, and Lieut. Dee Pinneo, former athlete at Michigan State who has been appointed sports officer under Capt. Hartom, have used their combined skill to arrange an interesting athletic schedule for Fort Sheridan this fall and winter. . . . The season will be launched when representatives of the fort's boxing team invades Great Lakes tomorrow for a series of bouts against the Bluejackets. . . . Also scheduled for tomorrow will be the opening of competition on the post alleys in two leagues—the officers' circuit, consisting of six teams, and the enlisted men's league, composed of 24 aggregations. . . . Intramural basketball will start Nov. 2, while intercamp playing will get under way Nov. 13. . . . Fort Sheridan's boxers will include Frank Minano, middleweight of Alaska; Edgar MacCarthy, 155 pounder, Nanticoke, Pa.; Hank Melody, lightweight, Chicago; Tom Watanake, featherweight, Los Angeles, and George Noda, bantamweight of San Jose. . . . The varsity cage team will include Francis Simpson, Oak Park; William Hickey, Juneau, Wis.; Milton Schectman, Chicago; Jim Lecek, Argo, Ill.; Leo Statz, Wauwatosa, Wis.; Marshall Johnson, and Harry Krekel. . . . Johnson was captain of the 1937 quintet at the fort, and Simpson was leader of last year's cage delegation at Harvard. . . .

Capt. E. M. Harton Lieut. Dee Pinneo

The first game for the varsity basketballers will be against Great Lakes, Nov. 13. . . . Among other contests will be those against Studebaker corporation in Cicero stadium, Nov. 29; Concordia college in Milwaukee, Dec. 5; Studebaker in the post gymnasium, Dec. 7; Glenview air base, also in the post gymn, Dec. 10, and Glenview at Glenview, Jan. 15. . . . Pvt. Harry Mueller, 45 year old member of the Veteran Boxers' association of Illinois, Thursday was transferred to a camp in Oregon. . . . Jimmy Pierce, West Allis, Wis., professional middleweight boxer, is awaiting orders to be sent to another post. . . . Pvt. Dave Rowe, sports editor in the public relations office, has qualified for officers training and soon will leave to attend signal school classes at Monmouth, N. J.

Chanute Field

ANTHONY BRAGINETZ, former St. Francis college, Brooklyn, basketball player, now is a member of the 35th squadron cage team, which means opponents of this squadron will have to travel fast if they expect to win. . . . Braginetz, who scored 222 points in 19 games for St. Francis, has qualified for aviation cadet training at this field. . . . Also at Chanute is Bernard Rosenberg, end on the New York university football squad in 1937 and '38. . . . Jim O'Brien, erstwhile Bradley Tech basketball headliner, was sent to another station shortly after scoring 24 points for his squadron team in a contest during the week. . . . In the same group was Milton Goemer, baseball chattel of the St. Paul Saints, who pitched for the post nine last summer. . . . Earlier Corp. Frank Bausone, 1938 Catholic Youth organization bantamweight champion, was sent to the air school at Unit No. 1 [formerly the Stevens hotel], where he is a drillmaster.

Great Lakes.

BOATSWAIN'S Mate Dick Klein, member of the station basketball team last winter, and Miss Peggy Lewis of Evanston were married recently. . . . Klein met Miss Lewis while attending Northwestern, where he starred in basketball and baseball prior to his enlistment in 1941. . . . Julius Dolnics of barracks 508-A established a new individual high point record of 25 markers while pacing his team to a 41 to 27 victory over barracks 606 in the finals of a service school basketball tournament last week. . . . Tom Oliver, former Boston Red Sox player, is attached to this station as master at arms of company 1269. . . . Service school promises to have a topnotch swimming team before the season gets older. . . . The navy swimmers lost to Northwestern's varsity, 34 to 23, last week-end, but managed to win four of seven first places. . . . Glen Baker, last year a sophomore member of the Minnesota varsity, showed to best advantage among the Bluejackets, capturing the 70 yard and 140 yard free style events and anchoring the winning 280 yard free style relay team in the featured race.

Navy Pier.

JOE CORRADO, former professional heavyweight boxer from Evanston, who has been in the background since holding King Levinsky to a four round draw decision in Chicago Stadium on June 10, 1929, is a sailor at this station. . . . Joe refereed several wrestling bouts which were held in conjunction with the final of the pier's Golden Gloves tournament on Tuesday. . . . Lieut. Jim McMillen, athletic officer at this establishment, was unable to see the first pier champions crowned because of the illness of his wife, who entered Mercy hospital Monday to correct an old back ailment. . . . One of those responsible for success of the tournament was Aviation Machinist's Mate 3d Class Morry Dailey, Chief Petty Officer John Peebles' principal aid. . . . Tho Elias Rawson, Mobile, Ala., light heavyweight, lost a disputed decision to Everett Draper of Kansas City, Mo., he turned in one of the most impressive performances on the card.

Camp Grant.

THE Warrior gridders, who have been idle since conquering Bradley Tech in Peoria Oct. 15, 26 to 7, will return to action against Fort Knox in Dyche stadium Saturday. . . . Company A, 28th battalion, recently won the camp volleyball championship by defeating Recruit Reception Center two out of three games, 24 to 22 and 21 to 15.

Calumet Shipyard.

CHIEF PETTY OFFICER JACK DE PINE, welterweight boxer of 12 years ago, is head of a coast guard detachment at this establishment. Prior to entering the service, De Pine was a policeman attached to the Chicago bureau of criminal information.

Camp Carson, Colo.

TORGER TOKLE, world champion ski jumper and holder of a dozen records, has enlisted as a private in the United States mountain troops. . . . The tall, blond Norwegian, who last year set the ski world afire with his prodigious leaps, will help train the fighting mountaineers in the art of military skiing, cross-country and downhill. . . . Other ski stars wearing the famous white parka of the mountaineers are Sergt. Walter Prager, coach of several championship Dartmouth college teams, and Sergt. Peter Gabriel, former Swiss mountaineer guide.

DAILY DOUBLE PAYOFF IS $1,036 AT ROCKINGHAM

Salem, N. H., Oct. 24 (AP).—The daily double today returned $1,036.40 each to 15 of the 15,000 horse racing fans at Rockingham park as Dinner Party, a 2 year old running its first race, won the opener and Sunspark took the second event.

The featured General Green handicap for all ages went to S. W. Shapoff's Mixer, which covered the mile and a sixteenth in 1:47. W. S. Payne's Some Man was second and William Chamber's Ballyarnett third. Mixer paid $5.60, $3.60, and $2.80 on a $2 ticket.

SPOTTING THE PINS

Sixteen teams will take over the lanes, 10 on the 7 o'clock squad and six at 9:15, in the weekly Sunday bowling sweepstakes, to be held tonight at Gold Coast recreation, 1213 North Clark street. Among them will be all four of the teams that have won the previous sweeps, the Monarch Beers, Thompson Restaurants, Schlitz, and Budweisers—Thompsons and Monarchs twice each. The schedule:

One of Chicago's oldest leagues—the Woodpeckers—has resumed action at Lawrence Bowl with 10 teams in competition. The league has been sanctioned since 1919 and has bowled a schedule since 1923. . . . Atlas Pragers were 320 pins better than the next best team in the league when they rolled up a 3,151 total, including an 1,109 game, in the Pla-Mor Major. Claude Gordon led them with 718, including 289 and 257 games. Even so, the team lost one—by eight pins—to the Frank and Bibbes.

A mixed league, organized in the Chicago School Principals' club, will start bowling Nov. 2 at Bensinger's Adams-Wabash center. It will be a 10 team circuit. Eleanor Fitzgerald is secretary. . . . The entry closes tonight in the All-American individual handicap tournament, which is to run at Bensinger's 131 South Wabash center Nov. 7-8, 14-15. The $5 entry fee must be mailed before midnight tonight. J. A. Stegwell, 207 West Harding road, Lombard, is secretary.

Women Bowlers to Plan Victory Program Today.

Presidents of all sanctioned leagues are invited to attend the meeting of the Chicago Women's Bowling association's executive board in the Auditorium hotel service men's center at 1:30 today to plan the victory program for women bowlers. . . . Women's scores:

TED LYONS [Monday]—Grace Martin, 547; Myrtle Piper, 223—545; Catherine Rau, 526; Agnes Pitelka, 220—524; Rose Chorak, 526. Curley Bradley of the air waves is shooting a 180 average in the Congress Commercial circuit. Most of his pocket hits provoke a few bars of one of his favorite songs. . . . Thirty-two teams, all with names familiar to war news readers, make up the Tractor Club league at Cascade. Bombardiers, Spitfires, and Destroyers are tied for the top spot. . . . Hooks Spurtley has a monopoly on the highs in the Stanolind league at Congress recreation. He has high average, 192; game, 246, and series, 649. . . . The top four teams in the Windy City Major will battle at tomorrow night's weekly session. The Gills, tied for first place, meet the Mineralites—who can slip by them by taking three. The Budweisers, also in the first spot tie, meet the Ace Fasteners. Other matches:

NORTH AND SOUTH CLASH TODAY IN KELLY CUP GAME

Swedes and Schwabens to Meet in Opener.

BY OFFSIDE.

The sixth annual Mayor Edward J. Kelly Cup semi-final soccer game will be offered by the International Soccer league today in Winnemac park stadium with teams representing the north and south sides clashing at 2:30 o'clock. A preliminary between the Schwabens and the Swedish Americans will start at 12:30.

All scheduled league matches have been called off to assure a good attendance for the benefit of the league's medal fund.

The south's team will have Joseph Silovsky of the Spartas at goal, along with other standout performers in Steve Daniels and Smitty Tomecek of the Slovaks, Max Grunner and Henry Kuhn of the Hakoahs and Maxi Pearlman of the Linneas. The north team will include a couple of newcomers, Eric Gutekunst, Schwabens' goalie, and Cornal Dorland of the Kickers, a brilliant young half back.

Robert Jones will referee the contest, which will be played on a total goal basis, the same teams meeting in a final match some time in the spring. The lineups:

NORTH SIDE.		SOUTH SIDE.
Gutek'nst [S'w'b'n]	G. K.	Silovsky [Sparta]
Preiss [Chi. Sport]	R. B.	Hony [Slovak]

COUNTRY DAY LOSES, 13 TO 6, TO MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 24 [Special].—Milwaukee Country Day school football team today kept intact its perfect record for the season by defeating North Shore Country Day school of Chicago in their annual game, 13 to 6. It was the Milwaukee team's fifth straight victory and the first setback of the year for North Shore whose goal line had previously been uncrossed.

Milwaukee was the first to score tallying on Stark's plunge in the first quarter. North Shore tied the score in the same quarter when Bentley got away for 20 yards.

Milwaukee's winning score came in the third quarter on a touchdown by Carpenter with Smith adding the extra point.

Si Johnson, Phils' Pitcher, Is Sheridan Peace Officer

Sheridan, Ill., Oct. 24 [Special].—Si Johnson of Sheridan, pitcher with the Philadelphia Phils, has resumed his position as a deputy of Sheriff E. J. Welter's staff. Johnson finished the baseball season last month and recently has been on a fishing trip. He will work as a deputy until the sheriff retires from office at the end of his term in December.

SCRAP TIRE LOOKS GOOD, BUT DON'T LET IT FOOL YOU

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—The forthcoming 35 mile an hour tire for civilians is going to require restraint in driving. The casing, of reclaimed scrap, won't withstand normal automobile operations. It must be nursed if it's to roll 10,000 miles. Under abuse, it will fail in 10,000 feet, or less.

Rubber Director William M. Jeffers was told about the performance records of these scrap rubber tires during his recent tour of the Akron, O., manufacturing center. Some of the plants are accumulating stocks of the new casings for sale to the public, thru rationing boards, probably after Nov. 1 or after national gasoline rationing becomes effective on Nov. 22.

"They're Not So Hot."

"It shouldn't be called a 'victory' tire," one of the manufacturers jibed, "because I would hate to have America's victory in the war dependent upon these scrap tires. They're not so hot."

Jeffers was told that this scrap tire will be bolstered with synthetic rubber into a fairly serviceable casing to be made available thru ration boards for essential civilian driving in another six or seven months. This is a hope rather than a certainty, however, because all of the problems of chemistry, physics, and engineering have not been solved.' Experimental models now are being tested in laboratories and on roads.

The scrap tires are to keep necessary vehicles operating until a better tire is designed from available materials and until the output of synthetic rubber is adequate for all military and for all essential civilian driving. That is all that is expected of this casing of reclaimed rubber.

Scrap Tire Looks Good.

But the scrap tire, to a layman, looks as good as the casings he used to buy for 30,000 or 35,000 miles of tough driving. The appearance of quality is so deceiving that motorists will need all of their self discipline to treat is as tenderly as it will require.

This interim tire will fall apart at speeds much greater than 35 miles an hour. At high speeds, the centrifugal force and the impacts are too great for any motorist who is not a physicist to appreciate. The pull away from the hub, caused by the whirl, tears the reclaimed rubber. The pounding bruises and breaks it. The heat from flexing, from internal friction and from traction deteriorates the material, which lacks the resistance of natural or good synthetic rubber.

So it's ruination to drive fast with one of the scrap tires, according to their manufacturers. Rapid turns and rapid braking also must be avoided, or the consequences will be the same as the penalty for high speed.

Inferior as it is, the scrap tire will be a life saver for thousands of automobiles that otherwise would be demobilized until the synthetic program gets into full swing. With the nationwide 35 mile an hour speed limit, with nation-wide gasoline rationing and with compulsory inspection of tires, the interim tire will help to keep essential transportation rolling—if the users are careful.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Frank J. Timmens, general sales manager of the Dodge division of the Chrysler corporation, told a group of Chicago area dealers last week that the servicing of the cars now in use offers the dual opportunity of enabling dealers to serve their country and of making a living. It is up to the dealers, he explained, to help keep the country's transportation system functioning, thereby contributing to the war effort.

"Competent estimates indicate that it will take 25,000,000 vehicles—20,000,000 passenger cars and 5,000,000 trucks—to maintain the nation's necessary personnel, commercial, and defense transportation," Timmens stated.

"To keep 25,000,000 vehicles in condition for wartime driving without any replacement of older units is a job of considerable magnitude. How large a share of this enormous maintenance job is the logical operating field of 4,000 Dodge dealers may be judged from the information that the vehicles in use include 1,500,000 Dodge passenger cars, 500,000 Dodge trucks, and 3,000,000 Plymouths, all three of which normally are sold and serviced by Dodge dealers."

Timmens said that there undoubtedly will be a reduction in the number of garages and service stations, which ultimately will increase the burden of car maintenance on dealers.

Pope Dodge, head of the South Shore Buick company, reports that he has consolidated his activities in the building at 1441 East 75th street which he bought in 1941. He is giving up the building at 7320 Stony Island avenue, heated by oil, in favor of the 75th street building, which is heated by coal. A large steel structure on top of the Stony Island building was sent to the scrap pile for use in making bullets with which to fight the Japs.

K. B. Elliott, vice president in charge of sales for the Studebaker corporation, announces the establishment of an experimental automobile mechanics' training school for women in South Bend. Elliott says the school was established not for the purpose of training women mechanics for Studebaker's own use but to determine how Studebaker dealers can go about training women to replace mechanics lost to the armed services and to war industries.

Elliott says that within a few months the problem of obtaining mechanics will become increasingly difficult for dealers and it is hoped that a way can be found to solve this thru the use of women. Studies already made show that women can perform roughly 500 of the 700 operations in the Studebaker service system, he adds.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

SCRAPPING OF CARS.

Berwyn, Ill., Oct. 13.—Two Democratic senators are introducing a bill in the senate giving the President power to commandeer automobiles, especially the older ones, for scrap. A few years back they scrapped workers over 40, then the Constitution of the United States was scrapped—now it's our little old car even tho it's doing fine service.

There are others, I know, like us who have taken good care of their cars and so have many years of service yet left in them. Our car has less than 40,000 miles, is in excellent mechanical condition, has original finish and upholstery like new and has new tires bought just before we went into the war. Yet they would scrap it because it is old in years, while thousands of much newer cars in poor condition are spared.

If one is not a defense worker evidently his car may be taken and he would be allowed no car until after the war. And then he would have to take his turn waiting for from 6 to 10 million others to be supplied.

I say clear out the junked cars in the "graveyards" along the highways and take only those cars that are voluntarily given up—and those where there are more than one to a family. DISGUSTED.

FROM STREET CAR RIDER.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—A short time ago I was standing on the platform of a street car getting my fare out of purse when I was thrown off my feet by the sudden stopping of the car. The cause of this was that a private automobile suddenly made a U turn in the middle of the block directly across the tracks. The driver guessed correctly that the motorman would stop on a dime rather than give him the bump he so richly deserved. Every one knows that occurrences like this happen many times a day. The reason that the surface lines cannot give us better service is the large number of selfish motorists like the above.

STREET CAR RIDER.

THREE TOOTS AND A HONK.

Libertyville, Ill., Oct. 15.—Some time ago I saw a piece in THE TRIBUNE by some woman who suggested that patriotic use of their horns to let the unpatriotic drivers know they are not trying to do as the President wishes us to do with our tires.

I drive one week out of every month to Chicago and until the last request from the President drove at a speed of 40 miles per an hour. Now I have cut down to 30 to 35 miles an hour. It takes a little longer but on long drives one enjoys the drive more and is not so tired. Other weeks I cover Ohio, Wisconsin, and Michigan and all for defense.

I have blown my horn as these fast drivers go by me and give them three short and one long horn blast as the Morse code for V. Some know it and slow down. Others know it and just laugh and drive on and still others do not know what it means.

I would like to see the papers of the country organize the patriotic drivers into clubs who would use their horns as suggested above and let those who care not as long as they are doing as they please that they are known as unpatriotic drivers.

Let the motto of patriotic drivers be: Slow down, save rubber and lives, and enjoy driving. CHARLES B. SIMMONS.

WHITE WALL TIRES.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Like hundreds of other car owners I own a car that is lying idle on account of not being able to secure tires for it. Today while walking in the vicinity of Clark and Addison streets I happened to notice a big luxurious car being equipped with a set of white wall tires. Is it possible that the car would not run right with black side walls or that the owner has something that we less fortunate ones do not have? By that I mean an in or a drag. L. H. L.

BALL ROLLING IN MAIL CAMPAIGN FOR MORE RUBBER

Congress Hearing from Nation's Motorists.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—Senators and congressmen are receiving a flood of mail from motorist constituents urging a step-up in the government's synthetic rubber program. The letters, from all sections of the country and from a diversity of authors, protest that the program should be expedited and expanded to shoe family automobiles after military requirements have been met.

Automobile clubs, including the Chicago Motor club, are organizing the direct by mail campaign for more rubber in many sections of the country. The Chicago club is covering Illinois and most of Indiana. The Pacific coast and the Rocky mountain states are also particularly active.

Urge Exploration.

The letters urged the government to explore and exploit all available sources of synthetic rubber. One of these sources, only recently appreciated, is the waste from paper pulp mills which now is dumped into streams and lakes in the timber regions. THE TRIBUNE'S subsidiary, the Ontario Paper company, has perfected a process for salvaging alcohol for synthetic rubber from this waste and the process has been made available, as a contribution to the war effort, to the entire wood pulp industry.

A majority of the motorists, in addressing their elected legislators as their most responsive representatives in Washington, are not boosting any of the several methods for manufacture of synthetic rubber. However, some of them protest that because the petroleum corporations originally received the bulk of the government's synthetic rubber program, other sources for tire material should not be neglected. The farm block in congress later succeeded in getting a portion of the synthetic program assigned to production of rubber from alcohol distilled from grains.

Uses No Oil Nor Foodstuffs.

The paper mill process uses neither oil nor foodstuffs to make alcohol for rubber manufacture. Newspapers thruout the country have been interested in this harnessing of rubber and wood pulp production, not only for its benefit to automobile transportation, but also for its possible relationship to future newsprint supplies.

Farmers, merchants, traveling salesmen, factory workers, and housewives are writing their legislators, who control the national purse strings, to get them rubber for private automobiles regardless of the source. The theme thruout the correspondence is that the army and navy should get all the rubber they need, but that supplies should be enlarged to provide also for transportation on the home front. They protest that stability of the national economy, supporting the war effort, is dependent upon transportation in private automobiles.

"We are a nation in which the private car is the principal means of transportation," Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, said in appealing to his members to write to their congressmen. "The war effort itself is bound up with the preservation of the passenger car as a means of transportation.

Transportation Necessary.

"We feel that the withdrawal of even a few thousand additional cars from the highways would result in idle machinery in the war plants. Surveys show that war plants all over the country are dependent to a large extent upon private transportation. The mass transportation systems, already loaded to capacity in many districts, could not absorb the overflow if private transportation were to break down.

"We feel, therefore, that synthetic rubber must be made available for tire replacements without delay. It is this message concerning the importance and the immediate need for putting the synthetic rubber program into effect which we hope to impress upon congress thru letters from motorists."

Seven Point Program Adopted.

The executive committee of the American Automobile association, while not participating in the letter writing campaign sponsored by several of its largest member clubs as well as by clubs not affiliated with the A. A. A., has adopted the following seven point program:

1. The Baruch report should be used as a blueprint for the national rubber program and it should be pushed thru to the quickest possible fulfillment. The goal of the program is "Rubber, and more rubber, and not who makes it, where it is made, or how it is made."

2. If necessary, more reclaim rubber should be set aside to keep in operation as many of the nation's 27 million passenger cars as possible.

3. Motorists should be told clearly that they may operate their cars in the critical year of 1943—not as a sacrifice for sacrifice's sake.

Inventory of Tires.

4. The government should make a complete inventory of all tires now in existence.

5. Any rationing plan should be studied and modified in order that abuses and weaknesses may be eliminated before rather than after the start of nation-wide rationing.

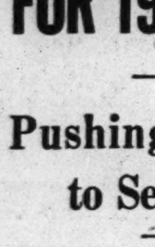
6. The rubber administrator should give a periodic accounting to the public of the progress of the rubber program.

7. The government should place more dependence on voluntary cooperation of the motorists on the basis of a clear understanding of what is necessary and desirable.

VICTORY GROUP URGES SAVE NOW FOR 1943 TAXES

Pushing Campaign to Sell Notes.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

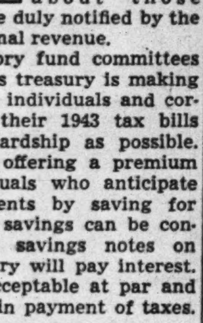


If you get a call from a representative of the victory fund committee seeking to interest you in the purchase of treasury tax savings notes don't brush the caller off. Think first of four dates in 1943 that should be underscored in your calendar. If you forget about those dates, you will be duly notified by the collector of internal revenue.

Thru the victory fund committees the United States treasury is making an effort to help individuals and corporations meet their 1943 tax bills with as little hardship as possible. The treasury is offering a premium to those individuals who anticipate their tax payments by saving for them now. The savings can be converted into tax savings notes on which the treasury will pay interest. The notes are acceptable at par and accrued interest in payment of taxes.

Adopt Own Ruml Plan.

If you are one of those individuals who are sighing hopefully over the Ruml tax collection plan [proposed by Beardsley Ruml, chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York] it would be wise to give the scheme a tryout. Adopt a little Ruml plan of your own, the victory fund committee advises, and life will be happier for you in 1943.



Beardsley Ruml.

The amazing popularity of the Ruml plan, the victory fund committee believes, is indicative of the universal desire of taxpayers to put their tax payments on a current basis—in other words, to pay off the government's prior lien on income before that income is spent.

The treasury has not adopted the Ruml plan because it believes it would favor unduly certain individuals by forgiving one year's taxes, but the treasury is anxious that all taxpayers adopt the principle of the plan. That can be done by taking advantage of the tax savings notes.

The victory fund committees are intensifying their efforts to distribute the tax savings notes. Every cent that is siphoned into the treasury now by this method will soak up spending power, the extravagant use of which will add to the inflationary forces now at work.

Easier to Pay Now.

From the individual's point of view the sales argument for the tax notes is unanswerable. The taxes payable next year cannot be dodged or forgotten. The individual who spends his present income without setting aside the government's share of it is in effect living on money borrowed from the government. Peremptory notices demanding repayment of that debt will be presented next March and again in June, September, and December.

There is a tax note cut to fit the individual needs of every taxpayer. The series A notes, which yield about 1.92 per cent interest annually, are available in denominations of $25 to $5,000. For larger taxpayers and investors the treasury offers series C notes in amounts of $1,000 to a million dollars.

The victory fund committee, which has headquarters at the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, operates thru the regular security distributing system. The security salesman who calls or phones you about the tax savings notes is working for the treasury, giving up time from his own business and serving without compensation.

ANNOUNCE FIRST BIG DEHYDRATED BEEF SHIPMENT

The first commercial quantity of dehydrated beef ever prepared in the United States will be shipped from its Chicago packing plant tomorrow, Swift & Co. announced yesterday. Destination of the shipment—44,000 pounds—will be a port where it will go into lend-lease channels.

Swift & Co. was awarded a contract recently for 80,000 pounds of dehydrated beef, the first federal purchase order for the new product. It is being manufactured under the continuous controled-temperature process developed in the company's Chicago plant.

Critical Material Requests Due Tonight, Warns WPB

Manufacturers who wish to obtain early consideration of requests for critical materials needed in the first quarter of next year and who do not hold army or navy contracts must mail applications under the production requirement plan before midnight tonight, Edmund H. Eitel, WPB regional priorities director, warned yesterday.

Plan Penalties for Untruth in Pay Hike Data

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—The War Labor board, seeking to provide quick action on voluntary employer-employé wage agreements, is setting up machinery to handle 10,000 cases a week by using the income tax return method of accepting statements at face value with penalties for untruths.

The plans, it was explained today, were made necessary by Presidential orders which gave the board the duty of passing on wage and salary changes. Board officials estimate the wages paid by a half million employers come within its jurisdiction and that if each employer has a wage case for review once a year it would mean about 10,000 cases a week.

Plan New Regional Offices.

The board contemplates setting up at least 10 regional offices. Their work would be coördinated closely with regional offices of the wage-hour administration and the field men of the United States conciliation service. The board has asked for the services of Carl Schedler, young assistant director of the conciliation service, to manage its regional organization.

The board is counting on keeping actual disputes to an infinitesimally small proportion of the total cases reviewed. The bulk of the cases will be applications for approval of wage adjustments reached voluntarily by employers and workers and for the most part handled on a clerical basis.

Would Require Much Bigger Staff.

Authoritative sources said that within certain limits the statistical data submitted to justify wage increases or adjustments probably will be accepted at face value, subject to complaint and investigation later in the same manner that income tax returns are accepted and liable to penalty.

Half of the board and the general counsel, Lloyd K. Garrison, are working almost exclusively on procedural and policy problems so that most cases may be disposed of regionally without ever bringing them to Washington.

SPRAGUE SPEEDS CLEARING OUT OF PLANT SOLD U. S.

Employés of Sprague, Warner & Co. have opened a "Beat the Promise" campaign at the company's big warehouse at 505 North Sacramento boulevard, Nathan Cummings, president, announced yesterday. The purpose of the drive is to clear the structure of the large stocks of groceries and equipment ahead of schedule so that it can be converted to war uses.

The government, which has purchased the building, is scheduled to have possession in December. The Illinois division of the Bendix corporation has leased the property. Employés opened the campaign with a rally at which Cummings stressed the necessity for speed.

SURVEYS SHOW STORES FACE SERIOUS LACK OF CHRISTMAS WORKERS

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—Two different surveys today gave gloomy reports of retail personnel difficulties which are increasing daily as the Christmas season approaches.

The National Retail Dry Goods association polled 48 stores in 35 important war centers and learned they would have to increase use of high school students, the physically disabled, "plus 40" matrons, and other worker sources.

Retailers indicated there may be a decrease of 5 to 50 per cent in employés from last Christmas because of lack of job applicants.

Dow, Jones & Co., Inc., business news service, said department store owners wonder how they will get enough help to see them thru the Christmas rush in "the most serious personnel problem in their history."

Closed Plants May Be Sold to Latin America

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—Commerce department officials disclosed a plan today to sell war closed small plants in the United States to raw material rich Latin America in an effort to aid small business men avoid financial difficulties and to provide the other republics with means to meet their own consumer needs.

Sponsored by the commerce and state departments and the Export-Import bank, the program would bring together prospective sellers among the owners of an estimated 2 billion dollars' worth of small plant machinery which may be made idle by the war, and prospective buyers in all the other republics except Argentina, said a commerce department official.

Ready to Start Plan.

Already, he related, the state department has advised diplomatic and consular officials in Latin America of the program, and the commerce department's 31 regional offices in this country will be ready Monday to accept applications of plant owners who wish to sell.

In worthy cases, he said, the Export-Import bank is ready to finance the transaction, taking mortgages against the equipment, land, or other assets. The War Production board, of course, would have first call on all such plants, the official said.

Only One Yardstick.

Assuming the character of the purchaser is approved, the only yardstick would be whether the transplanted factory is economically sound and has available raw materials for manufacture.

Altho the plan calls for sale of such small plants to nationals of the other republics, the official said, in certain instances where it would be profitable and desirable for the owner and his technicians to go with the plant, such an arrangement would be approved.

Ask Inventory Change to Aid Small Stores

The proposed plan of inventory control announced by Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, will work a hardship on small druggists, John W. Dargavel, executive secretary of the National Association of retail druggists, said yesterday in proposing a substitute plan to alleviate inequalities he said would result.

Small druggists contend that Nelson's proposal that no retailer be permitted to keep in stock a larger amount of merchandise in any quarter of the year than he had on hand in the average of the corresponding quarters of 1939, 1940, and 1941 would work to their disadvantage because of production restrictions and reduced supplies of merchandise available.

Ask Aid for Little Fellow.

Dargavel said big distributors still would be able to buy enough goods to deplete restricted stocks and leave little for the small stores.

In a communication to Nelson, Dargavel suggested that the proposed maximum inventory of any product be restricted to the same extent production has been reduced so that all could obtain a fair share of available goods.

"While commending the purpose expressed in your announcement, I am afraid that the plan you announce will not accomplish that purpose," said Dargavel. "If you have been correctly quoted it must appear that you have failed to take into account that under necessary government restrictions there will not be as much merchandise for civilian use available as in 1939, 1940, and 1941.

Result Termed Obvious.

"It is obvious, therefore, that if some distributors with large sales volumes are permitted to stock up to the extent of their former sales, there will be no merchandise left for their small competitors."

Another trade spokesman suggested that antitrust restrictions be eased to allow the small dealers to pool their buying to offset the advantage held by the big distributors.

SHIPMENT OF ORE ON GREAT LAKES BREAKS RECORD

Cleveland, O., Oct. 24 [Special].—An all-time record for ore shipments on the Great Lakes was established this week, and vessel owners now are attempting to add more than 13 million tons to the old mark.

Statistics compiled by the Lake Superior Iron Ore association disclosed that last year's record of 80,116,360 tons was eclipsed the middle of the week. All bulk freighters still are operating in the trade, and shipping men predict that this month's movement will approach the 11 million ton mark, which would be the largest amount of ore ever moved in October.

Chicago Bank Clearings Decline to 423 Millions

Chicago bank clearings last week declined to $423,500,000 from $434,900,000 in the preceding week and $428,400,000 a year ago, the Chicago Clearing House association announced yesterday. Its report follows:

	Clearings.	Balances.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 24 (AP).—The Illinois Commerce commission's hearings on its controversy with the WPB over requisitioning the Peoria-Decatur-Danville branches of the Illinois Terminal railroad will be resumed Wednesday and continue Thursday, Examiners William E. Helander and William J. Walsh said today.

Chicago District Steel Production Unchanged

Steel ingot production in the Chicago district this week is scheduled at 103.5 per cent of theoretical capacity, same as last week, and slightly below the 103.9 per cent of a year ago.

Illinois Jobs, Pay Rolls Rise

The third successive monthly increase in employment and pay rolls in Illinois was reported yesterday for the month ended Sept. 15 by Francis B. Murphy, state director of labor. He attributed a large part of last month's gain to construction work on war plants.

Francis B. Murphy.

Reports from 6,528 establishments, employing about one-third of the nonagricultural workers in the state, showed a 1.1 per cent increase in employment and a climb of 2.5 per cent in pay rolls.

Manufacturing Totals Dip.

Slight declines in both employment and pay rolls were reported by 2,595 manufacturing concerns, employing approximately 60 per cent of all factory workers in the state. Employment dipped less than one-tenth of 1 per cent and pay rolls dropped 0.2 per cent.

Most of the decline was accounted for by decreased activity in the agricultural implement, job printing, canning, and beverage industries. To a large extent the decreases were seasonal in nature, Murphy said. However, increases in activity were reported by the machinery and machine tool, electrical machinery, and confectionery industries.

Wage Raises Boost Pay Rolls.

Most of the service and public utility industries reported fewer workers, but increases in wage payments. Wage boosts accounted for some of the gain in pay rolls.

Trade establishments, including mail order houses, department stores, and retail apparel and food stores, added more workers and paid out more in wages than in the preceding month.

Weekly earnings averaged $37.77 for both men and women, $42.03 for men and $22.74 for women.

DIRECTORS KEEP STOCK HOLDINGS IN BANKS INTACT

City's Old Families Largest Owners.

BY CHARLES GOTTHART.

Most of the directors of the big downtown Chicago banks maintained their holdings of bank stock intact during the year ended last April 1, a check of the personal property assessment lists showed yesterday.

The records of John S. Clark, county assessor, contain virtually all of the names of the old Chicago families identified for many years with the city's banking activities, with few significant changes in holdings since the date of the 1941 assessments.

Many of the families own stock in more than one of the six large downtown banks, and in outlying banks as well, with the most shareholders on the lists since the 1920s.

Cummings Largest Holder.

Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, was the largest stockholder among the directors, keeping his holdings intact at 5,019 shares. Chauncey B. Borland revised his holdings, having 715 shares registered in his name last April, against 1,950 a year earlier.

The Continental recorded 10,941 owners for its 1,500,000 shares, both figures heading the Chicago lists. The largest holdings included about 32,400 shares by heirs of Marshall Field, pioneer Chicago merchant; 29,701 by George A. Kennedy, nominee for unidentified owners; 16,854 by Mrs. Elizabeth S. McElwee, and 24,500 by "Wesley and Hartnett," 2,000 more than on the 1941 date.

The 300,000 shares of First National bank stock were owned by 3,923 individuals, corporations, and partnerships, and names prominent in the list included the Morris, Forgan, Rathje, and Regnery families of Chicago, the Ball family of Muncie, Ind., and the Oliver family of South Bend, Ind. The Oliver holdings increased about 1,000 shares to 9,000 shares.

Brown Increases Holdings.

Edward E. Brown, president of the First, increased his direct holdings from 387 to 440 shares, and held 4,501 as trustee. Bernard E. Sunny, a director, held 200 shares, 50 more than a year earlier.

Albert W. Harris, chairman of the board of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, created two trusts of 2,000 shares each, reducing his direct holdings to 4,179 shares. Mark A. Brown, a Harris vice president who has become a director since 1941, listed 502 shares owned directly. The Harris family, directly or thru trusteeships, accounted for more than half of the bank's 60,000 shares.

Corporation Has Big Block.

The Chicago corporation, biggest midwest investing company, continued to be the largest shareholder listed by the City National Bank and Trust company, with 10,434 shares. Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, chairman of the bank's board maintained his direct ownership of 1,055 shares.

Lawrence F. Stern, president of the American National Bank and Trust company, held 625 shares, heading its list of directors. Robert E. Straus, vice president, increased his ownership to 467 shares.

Laurance Armour, chairman, boosted his holdings of La Salle National bank stock to 1,733 shares.

Bootleg Meat Trade Expected as Result of Ration Program

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

Bootlegging of meat to consumers is expected to become a flourishing business in many areas as crop planners in Washington tighten their grip on the nation's meat supply early in 1943. Meat experts at the Chicago stockyards said yesterday that there are some loopholes in the rationing plans thru which much meat will flow and which offer opportunities for violations.

Altho illegal deals are expected to reach a large volume, such traffic will not be sufficient in relation to the nation's total consumption to be a serious threat to the ration program as a whole. Most consumers, rather than go to the trouble of obtaining meat other than thru regular channels, will turn to other foods, it was said.

Locker System a Loophole.

Veteran meat experts believe meat bootlegging will be most prevalent in small towns, farming regions, and on the outskirts of the big cities. Present plans, still in their formative stage, leave various ways open to obtain more than the proposed 2½ pounds weekly ration for each person.

There is nothing in the plans yet to prevent a large family, or a group of families, from purchasing a live hog, beef animal, or lamb, and have the farmer butcher it. This is common practice in farming regions and in small towns. Many meat locker plants are scattered thru most farming regions where individuals and groups rent cold storage space for about $10 a year.

Farmers Exempt from Ration.

Unless federal action is taken to put all such meat lockers under strict supervision, this "leak" of unrationed meat is expected to expand to the operating capacity of locker plants.

Farmers, as plans now stand, are exempt from meat rations as long as they butcher their own animals. Provision also is made for farmers to sell up to $75 worth of meat to others without violating the ration laws. It would be almost impossible to block such consumption and sales anyway, it was explained.

Depend on Patriotism.

With the armed forces and allies needing all the meat they can get, officials in charge of enforcing the ration law will depend much upon the patriotism of consumers to hold down domestic consumption. 'It will be unpatriotic to ask your vegetarian friend next door to use his ration card to buy you an extra 2½ pounds of meat, or to get a few extra pounds from a farmer acquaintance. If your dog gets meat you are advised that this should come off your ration card. Government officials readily admit that meat will be the most difficult of all foods to ration.

Prices Swing Widely

The Chicago market for hogs swung widely during the last two weeks, falling about $1 a hundred pounds week before last when packers believed heavier farm shipments had started the "fall movement" of hogs. About half of the loss was replaced early last week when farmers reduced their selling, but another break occurred when the Office of Price Administration announced a new set of pork ceilings to take effect Nov. 2. The close yesterday was $1 under the 22 year peak of two weeks ago. Cattle and lambs advanced last week.

WPB Prohibits New Vacuum Cleaner Sales

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—The War Production board today prohibited all sales of new vacuum cleaners to civilians, freezing stocks of all types in the hands of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers until Jan. 1, 1943.

Sales may be made only to the army, navy, lend-lease and holders of export licenses issued by the Board of Economic Warfare.

WPB said the order was issued to determine supplies. All manufacturers must file an inventory report of vacuum cleaners in their stocks today.

"If it should be found that manufacturers' stocks are sufficient to supply all military requirements, it is expected that vacuum cleaners in dealers' and wholesalers' hands will be released," WPB said.

Production was discontinued April 30 and stocks now available represent cleaners unsold since then. Today's freeze order did not include second hand cleaners, but those used as demonstrators were placed under the order.

A 60 per cent reduction in the production of tire chains was ordered by WPB, which also reduced the number of types of chains that may be produced and carried in stock by dealers from 14 to 3 and the number of chain sizes used in some types from as many as 22 to 4. Only low carbon steel may be used.

The Office of Price Administration fixed a quota of 35,000 new passenger automobiles for rationing in November, compared with 37,000 for October.

State quotas for new cars for rationing in November included: Illinois, 2,063; Indiana, 1,129; Iowa, 704; Michigan, 3,035; Minnesota, 774; Ohio, 2,557, and Wisconsin, 876.

ODT WARNS TRUCKERS TO FILE SOON OR LOSE RIGHT TO KEEP GOING

Operators of trucks, buses, taxicabs, and other commercial vehicles in the Chicago area were warned last night by Harry L. Gormley, regional director of motor transport for the Office of Defense Transportation, that they must file their applications for war necessity certificates promptly or they will not be able to operate after Nov. 15.

Mailing of application forms to all commercial vehicle owners registered with state licensing authorities as of last Dec. 31 has been completed in the Chicago area, Gormley said. If any operator has not received this application by tomorrow he will have to obtain a special form from the ODT office at 209 South Wells street.

62 FIRMS IN CHICAGO DISTRICT GET 83 WAR CONTRACTS IN WEEK

A total of 83 war production contracts was awarded 62 Chicago area companies last week, Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, announced yesterday. Six of the firms had not previously held war contracts. Since the beginning of the war program 1,729 Chicago area concerns have received contracts totaling $1,851,110,000, Lyon said.

THIRD QUARTER PROFIT OF SOAP MAKER REDUCED

A decline in net profits for the quarter ended Sept. 30 was reported yesterday by Procter & Gamble company, Cincinnati, makers of soap, glycerine, and vegetable oil products. The third quarter earnings were $4,515,649, or 68 cents a share, after charges and provision of $3,600,000 for federal income taxes, compared with $6,974,603, or $1.06 a share, in the corresponding 1941 period.

Figures for the quarter this year excluded earnings of the English and Canadian subsidiaries except those made available in this country in United States funds.

Chicago Railway Equipment company third quarter net income declined to $33,045, equal to 24 cents a common share, from $115,272, or $1.22 a share, in the corresponding quarter a year ago. Federal income tax provision was $56,500 this year.

Westinghouse Air Brake company, Wilmerding, Pa., earned $809,989, or 25 cents a share for the quarter ended Sept. 30, after provision of $1,991,368 for federal income and excess profits taxes.

STATE TO CRACK DOWN ON FRAUD IN INSURANCE

Family Policy Under Fire from Jones.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 24 [Special].—The Illinois department of insurance will proceed under the state insurance code against racketeering companies which victimize the public thru sale of fraudulent types of "family-group" insurance, Paul F. Jones, director of the department, announced here today. He spoke before the annual sales congress of the Illinois Association of Insurance Agents.

He described the so-called insurance under investigation by the state as of the "dollar-a-month" variety. At the same time Jones called on legitimate insurance—as represented by the life insurance underwriters—to coöperate in getting rid of the racketeers.

Big Promises Are Made.

Jones said most of the objectionable insurance is sold thru full page advertising displays in which big promises are made. Radio also is used with effect, he said.

"You have seen pictured the happy family, the baby, the son and daughter, the mother and father, and the aged grandfather," Jones said. "The reader is assured that one life insurance policy insures them all at a total cost of only $1 a month. In large bold type one reads: 'No medical examination. No agents will call. Free policy inspection offer. Send no money.'

"Thousands respond to these incredible claims and send their dollars month after month until tragedy reveals the advertiser's sin of omission.

Contain Many Exceptions.

"An analysis of one family group discloses that if 70 year old grandpa had died within two years of the date of the policy and was in good health at the time the policy was issued to cover a family of 10, the company would pay the sum of $10. But if grandpa had died within the contestable period of two years and, at the time of taking the policy, had any disease of the brain or nervous system, heart, lungs, cancer or tumor of any kind, vertigo, hernia, rheumatism, tuberculosis, goiter, or any other serious disease or infirmity, then there would be no liability.

"If the baby died, the total liability of the company, if any, would be $15. If 61 year old Uncle Bill passed away under the proper circumstances, the company would pay $15. In order to collect the much advertised $1,000 for natural death, the entire family must die between the ages of 11 and 35.

All Must Die in 15 Days.

"In order to collect the much advertised $2,000, all 10 must be killed while riding in an automobile, bus, truck, or taxicab, or all struck, knocked down, or run over by an automobile, bus, truck, or taxicab, and all die within 15 days of the accident.

"Time does not permit a full description of what is necessary in order to collect the $3,000 benefits which contemplates the death of the entire family while riding as fare-paying passengers within the enclosed part of a railway passenger carrier or steam vessel."

Jones cited numerous instances of the methods used by the questionable companies, which he described as "fraught with borderline fraud and deceit."

He said that the state will proceed against the companies under investigation thru the law. It will not seek to control them thru such a devious method as denying them the use of the mail, the press, and the radio, because the legitimate use of these media is so universal as to require no defense, he said.

Two Chicago Forge Units Get Army-Navy Awards

Award of the army-navy "E" for high achievement in production of war goods was made yesterday to two plants of the American Forge division of the American Brake Shoe & Foundry company. Plants receiving the awards were the Upset plant, 2621 South Hoyne avenue, and Great Lakes plant, 1220 West 119th street. Col. Frank U. McCoskrie represented the army; Lieut. Comm. C. H. Soderstrom the navy, and Capt. J. A. Roesch the Chicago ordnance district.

SELECTIVE RISE ENDS RECOVERY WEEK IN STOCKS

Average Equals '42 High for Third Time.

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—The stock market today finished a week of general recovery with selectively higher tendencies. Altho many leaders were handicapped by light profit selling, assorted "blue chips," steels, utilities, rails, and specialties retained advances of fractions to a point or so. A number of new peaks for the year or longer were in evidence.

A more optimistic tone to the war news, revived dividend hopes, and persistence of mild inflation psychology inspired most of the buying. Commitments were lightened here and there for week-end protection.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 0.1 at 40.1, duplicating the best level for this barometer since Nov. 6, 1941. It was up 0.6 for the week.

Chart followers were a trifle wary because the composite had reached 40.1 on Oct. 13, 20 and 22, and backed away in each succeeding session. This led some to suggest the market was acting "toppy" and might indicate much distribution has been going on.

Predominance of low priced issues in blocks of 1,000 to 6,000 shares, most of which held in a slim groove, accounted for the two hour turnover of 290,180.

CHICAGO STOCKS EDGE UP.

Prices were slightly higher yesterday in trading of 15,000 shares on the Chicago Stock exchange. New highs for this year were set by Consolidated Biscuit, Club Aluminum, Midland United preferred, all among the volume leaders, and by Sangamo Electric, and Walgreen.

New York Central and United States Steel both advanced ⅛ point in the half hour after the New York close.

RAIL BONDS RISE AGAIN.

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—Buying of rail bonds continued on a broad scale today, and the Associated Press average of 20 carrier issues reached a new 1942 high of 66.1, a rise of 0.1 from yesterday.

TRADING IN GRAIN FUTURES STALLS; PRICES NARROW

~~Op~~erators Await Further Details on Controls.

Trading in grain futures was nearly at a standstill yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade as brokers awaited further developments on price regulation plans.

Wheat prices held within a range of ½ cent with buying attributed to mills more than offsetting selling by large traders. Closing sales were unchanged to ¼ cent higher. Corn futures lost ⅛ cent; oats closed ⅛ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower, and rye was unchanged to ⅛ cent higher. December soy beans lost ¾ cent with trading mostly to even up open contracts.

Trading in grain futures on the Board of Trade last week was unusually light, sales aggregating 58,266,000 bushels, or about 100 million bushels less than during the corresponding period last year.

RETAIL TRADE.

Retail sales by department stores, variety chains, and mail order houses have varied considerably this year, mainly as a result of government restrictions on the manufacture and sale of many types of consumer goods.

In the first seven months of 1942 the dollar volume of mail order business declined slightly from the corresponding 1941 period. Sales in 1941 rose 23 per cent over the 1940 total.

The federal reserve index of department store sales showed a gain of about 10 per cent in the first eight months of 1942. Variety store sales in the first seven months of the year were up about 17 per cent from the 1941 period, when sales increased 11 per cent over the preceding year.

Aggregate retail sales for the remainder of 1942 are expected to be below the high levels reached late in 1941. In addition to reduced production of consumer goods, purchases of war bonds and stamps and allowances for higher income tax payments in 1943 are expected to be factors in the decline. These may be offset to some extent by sharply higher industrial pay rolls.

Department store inventories in unit volume on July 31 were more than 50 per cent above a year earlier and were 67 per cent larger in dollar volume than in 1941. Inventories of variety chains and mail order houses also were believed to be above 1941 levels.

Department stores have been in a more favorable position to reduce expenses than variety chains and mail order houses. Fancy packaging and delivery of small articles have been eliminated. Credit regulations are more stringent. In July charge accounts receivable dropped to their lowest level since 1938 and were 24 per cent below 1941. Instalment accounts receivable were down 26 per cent from 1941.

Shares of major variety chains, mail order houses, and department stores have been selling 20 to 30 per cent below 1938 levels. Dividend payments by a majority of these companies have been lowered this year.

Investment analysts do not believe the drop in retail sales will cause a proportionately large decline in profits. In support of this it has been said that many large companies have had earnings substantially above their excess profits tax credit and could report satisfactory per share earnings despite a decline in operating profits.

ADMIT MILITARY PLANE HAD ROLE IN AIR LINE CRASH

Army Men Say Collision Caused Ship to Fall.

Palm Springs, Cal., Oct. 24 (AP).—A western defense command announcement today admitted that the crash of a giant air liner on rugged Mt. San Jacinto yesterday resulted from a midair collision between an army plane and the air liner. Twelve persons aboard the transport plane were killed.

The announcement said details would be available later.

Ralph Rainger, 41 years old, composer of such popular tunes as "Love in Bloom," "June in January," and "Here Lies Love," was a victim.

Official Makes Statement.

"American Air Lines flight 28, eastbound Los Angeles to New York, was in collision with an army bomber, crashed half a mile west of Palm Springs at 5:15 p. m., Pacific time, Friday, Oct. 23.

"Left Los Angeles at 4:30 p. m. and was at normal cruising altitude, on course, clear weather, and daylight when accident occurred."

Raid Spotter Describes Crash.

R. M. Martin, civilian air raid spotter and guard at a telephone repeater station, said of the collision:

"Pieces of metal flared out into the air. The rear plane continued on and the transport started what I guess you'd call its death glide—downward, back and forth, faster and faster."

American Air lines released the following death list:

First Officer L. F. Repport, Dallas.

Estelle Regan.

Rainger.

C. M. Wert, 37, Los Angeles, chief engineer Gay Engineering company.

R. R. Vest Jr., employed by Allison Engines of Birmingham, Ala., and Indianapolis, Ind., en route to Phoenix, Ariz.

M. C. Henderson, Phoenix, member Arizona Interstate Industrial commission.

C. Baker, Phoenix.

Frank Bird, 24, Hollywood, Cal., Lockheed Aircraft corporation engineer, en route to Washington, D. C.

L. A. Hege, Winston-Salem, N. C., en route to Atlanta, Ga.

E. H. Wallace, Las Vegas, Nev., en route to Phoenix.

Lieut. Joseph R. Rosser, Santa Ana army air base, bound for Dallas.

Dies After Planes Collide.

Moore Field, Tex., Oct. 24 (AP).—Second Lieut. Samuel Tipton Jones Jr., Sweetwater, Tenn., was killed in the crash of two training planes yesterday. Officers said he apparently failed to pull his chute ripcord soon enough after jumping. Second Lieut. Ben Bridge Marshall, Mobile, Ala., pilot of the other plane, parachuted safely.

1,000 CHRISTMAS BOXES GOING TO CRUISER CHICAGO

One thousand colorful Christmas gift boxes will be sent to the officers and men aboard the U. S. S. Chicago, a cruiser operating in the combat zone.

Students in the art classes of Chicago's 40 public high schools have decorated 1,000 boxes donated by a shoe company. Included in the gifts will be sewing kits prepared by household arts students. Other items to be sent are pencils, combs, playing cards, gum, styptic pencils, soap, towels, shaving cream, and writing paper.

Carl B. Roden, chief librarian and director of the Victory book campaign, said that 1,000 pocket sized paper books have been contributed to the gift project. Miniature games, made by children in park fieldhouses, will also be included, said Robert Dunham, president of the Chicago Park district.

WIFE OF RETIRED ATTORNEY FOUND DEAD IN STREAM

Mrs. Dorothy Bradbury, 52 years old, wife of C. C. Bradbury, retired Chicago patent attorney, was found dead yesterday in a small creek which runs thru the rear of the Bradbury farm near Richmond, Ind.

Sheriff Orrie Wilson of Wayne county said that Mrs. Bradbury apparently had suffered one of her frequent fainting spells while walking along the high banked stream, and had fallen into the water, about three feet deep. The body was found by a tenant on the farm, Charles Rouston, after Mrs. Bradbury had been missing for several hours.

The Bradburys moved from their home in Glencoe to Richmond, where Bradbury was born, when he retired from practice in 1940. Bradbury is a member of the Union League club, Sheridan Shore Yacht club, and the Indiana Society of Chicago.

ENGINEERS OPEN TRAFFIC SESSION TODAY IN CHICAGO

Problems of civilian and military transportation will be the chief concern of members of the Institute of Traffic Engineers during their 13th annual convention which opens today in the Serrman hotel and will last thru Tuesday.

How traffic engineers can coöperate with the Office of Defense Transportation in easing rush hour problems and providing transportation for war workers will be explained by Guy A. Richardson, national director of the local transport division of the ODT, main speaker of the convention, in his talk at the closing banquet Tuesday evening.

D. Grant Mickle of Detroit, president of the organization, will report on activities this year.

This wreckage provides evidence of the force with which American air liner struck a California peak. The army has admitted a collision between the air liner and a military plane caused the crash.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. America S. Hoffman.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 24 [Special].—Mrs. America Schroeder Hoffman, 95 years old, granddaughter of a member of the royal family of Prussia, Princess Marie von Buchau, died yesterday afternoon at the home of her son, Fred Mahan, at Monticello, Fla. She had been a Bloomington resident all her life until four years ago when she moved to Florida. The body will arrive in Bloomington tomorrow afternoon and funeral services will be held here Monday afternoon. She is survived by five sons, Edwin, James, George, Walter, and Fred.

Mrs. Angeline C. Hoffman.

Funeral services for Mrs. Angeline C. Hoffman, the widow of Henry A. Hoffman, an Evanston alderman during the World's Columbian exposition, were held yesterday in Graceland cemetery. Mrs. Hoffman, who was 82 years old, died Wednesday in Watervliet, Mich., where she had lived for 15 years. She was the daughter of a pioneer Chicago family. Surviving are two sons, John and Henry E. Hoffman, and two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Weber and Mrs. Marie Williams.

James B. Kemper.

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 24 (AP).—Col. James B. Kemper, retired army officer, veteran of two wars and organizer of post exchanges in army posts thruout the United States, died today. He was 68 years old. Kemper was commissioned a second lieutenant at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war and served in the Philippines. During the World war he was at Fort Devens, Mass. He is survived by his widow, two daughters, and a son.

Edward Badur.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 24 [Special].—Edward Badur, 49 years old, Republican nominee for councilman in South Bend, died today of injuries suffered when struck by a bus while he was riding a bicycle. Badur, a former Democratic precinct committeeman, switched to the Republican party last spring. Funeral services will be held Tuesday.

Mrs. Nora L. Burke.

Mrs. Nora L. Burke, 73 years old, who came to Chicago 60 years ago from County Mayo, Ireland, died Friday night at her residence at 613 West 79th street. She was the mother of Capt. Peter V. Burke of the Chicago fire department. One other son and a daughter also survive. Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Monday at 7831 South Racine avenue.

Dr. E. E. Woodside.

Herrin, Ill., Oct. 24 (AP).—Dr. E. E. Woodside, 66 years old, a Marion, Ill., eye specialist, died today in Herrin hospital. Dr. Woodside, who had practiced in Marion since 1913, suffered a stroke Wednesday. He was a graduate of Rush Medical college, Chicago.

Dr. Caroline Spurgeon.

Tucson, Ariz., Oct. 24 (AP).—Dr. Caroline F. E. Spurgeon, 74 years old, a Shakespearean scholar and professor emeritus of English literature at the University of London, died today in her winter home here after a long illness.

Mrs. Etta Pickering.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 24 (AP).—Mrs. Etta Pickering, 78 years old, wife of John L. Pickering, former president of the Illinois Casualty company and collector of internal revenue under President Wilson, died last night in St. John's hospital.

Lewis S. Compton.

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—Lewis S. Compton, former assistant secretary of the navy and former New Jersey relief director, died today in Post Graduate hospital. He was 49 years old.

John F. O'Malley.

John F. O'Malley, a retired battalion chief of the fire department, died last night in his home at 4349 North Paulina street. He was 76 years old. Mr. O'Malley, who retired in 1936 after 50 years service, is survived by five daughters, and four sons, John Jr., secretary of the police pension fund; Frank, secretary of the Cook County Civil Service commission; Joseph, a chief petty officer in the navy, and William, assistant chief engineer at the Chicago avenue pumping station.

Ernest A. Wetmore.

Services will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow in the Oak Woods cemetery chapel for Ernest A. Wetmore, a retired official of the Gulf Oil company of New York City. Mr. Wetmore, member of a well known Chicago and Barrington family, died in Miami Beach, Fla., last Wednesday. He was 58 years old. He leaves his widow, Ingar, and a sister, Mrs. Frances Wetmore Gross of Barrington. He was the son of the late Henry D. Wetmore, veteran member of the Chicago Board of Trade, who died in 1932.

Frank O. Hill.

Services for Frank O. Hill, general district manager for the Jewel Tea company, will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow at St. Margaret church. Mr. Hill died suddenly Monday in Oakland, Cal., while on a business trip. He was 59 years old and lived at 1345 West 98th place. He leaves his widow, Elizabeth; four sons, James, John, Thomas, and Robert, and a daughter, Mrs. Rosemary Hoffman.

Charolambos Simopoulos.

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP).—Charolambos Simopoulos, 68 years old, Greek ambassador in London, died today after a brief illness. Simopoulos had represented Greece in this country for eight years as minister and for the last five months as ambassador. For ten years he was Greek minister to Washington.

MOTORIST DRIVES THRU R. R. GATES; KILLED BY TRAIN

Anthony Riola, 19 years old, of 2406 Wilcox street, Joliet, was fatally injured yesterday when the car he was driving and an Alton railroad passenger train collided at the Ohio street railroad crossing in Joliet. Witnesses said Riola had stopped for the lowered gate at the crossing, and then pulled around the gate into the path of the train.

The steady decrease in the use of automobiles and in speeding was reflected in the coroner's office yesterday when, for the fourth straight day in Cook county, no automobile deaths were reported.

Thus, up to 2 p. m. yesterday, the toll stood at Tuesday's figure—559 persons killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 428 died in Chicago where 16,307 were injured in the same period.

Soldier and Companion Die as Train and Car Collide

Vandalia, Ill., Oct. 24 (AP).—Arthur Earl Truitt, 45 years old, of Vandalia, and Pvt. John A. Hamilton, 29, stationed at San Diego, Cal., were killed last night in a car-train crash at a Pennsylvania railroad crossing here.

DEATH OF WOMAN LAID TO SERVICES' CALL ON DOCTORS

The shortage of physicians resulting from the call of the armed services for medical men was strikingly illustrated yesterday when a woman at Long Lake in Lake county, died before medical aid could reach her. She was Mrs. Jessie Pearl Jones, 34 years old, the wife of Richard W. Jones, a Chicago war worker.

Mrs. Jones has been ill for several months, and under the care of a Chicago physician. Her condition suddenly became critical yesterday. There is no physician in Long Lake, and calls to neighboring towns brought word that most of their physicians had gone to the army or the navy.

An appeal was made to the sheriff's office, but the few medical men still in practice in the region were making calls. A civilian volunteer rescue squad was called from Antioch, but Mrs. Jones was dead when it arrived. Relatives said she lived about an hour after being stricken. Heart disease was blamed.

AURORA'S OLDEST CITIZEN WILL GET CAKE, 101 CANDLES

Daniel A. Wedge, Aurora's oldest citizen, will celebrate his 101st birthday tomorrow in his home at 544 Pennsylvania avenue in that city. He is the last survivor of the Aurora post of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Today a cake with 101 candles will be presented to Mr. Wedge by officials of the Burlington railroad, which he served from 1875 to 1920. When he retired he was a conductor on a commuters' train to Chicago.

Tomorrow evening Mayor Andrew J. Carter and members of the Aurora city council will call on Mr. Wedge to present their greetings, as they have done annually for several years. Mr. Wedge has been bedridden since he was injured in a fall 12 years ago, but he is still actively interested in national affairs, and is a faithful Republican.

WIDOW'S LEGACY GREAT SURPRISE, EX-COP ASSERTS

Inheriting $75,000 and a $25,000 home "was one great surprise" to Henry O. Larson, 43 years old, former policeman, now a boatswain's mate at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, he said yesterday. The legacy was left to Larson by Mrs. Florine C. Mix, 65, of 1112 East 48th street, who died Friday in the Jackson Park hospital.

Her will, filed in Probate court a few hours after her death, described Larson as "an old family friend."

"I met Mrs. Mix's husband, Henry, long ago when I was walking my beat," Larson said. "We got to talking about hunting and fishing, and later we took many trips together. After Mr. Mix died in 1935, I often drove the car for Mrs. Mix."

Larson said he hadn't decided yet what to do with the windfall.

RELAY ENGINEERS

Our company is located in Indiana, 130 miles southeast of Chicago. We are producers of relays, switches, circuit breakers, solenoids, and other small electrical devices. We are hiring several relay engineers.

College graduate preferred. Practical experience in the design, application and operation of small magnetic type relays. Some experience in electronics desirable.

Mechanical experience, particularly with reference to small stampings and associated parts. Salary to be dependent entirely upon your qualifications.

Our company is engaged in 100% war work. Those who are hired will be retained after the war, for we are fundamentally a company engaged in the commercial automobile field.

In replying to this ad, give a complete resume of your past experience and personal history, marital status, draft status, etc., so we may judge from what you tell us whether or not you are the type of man we need.

All replies will be held in the strictest confidence. Provided you are selected, arrangements will be made for a personal interview.

Salesmen.

FOUR WEEKS' COMMISSIONS
for just one man in our Chicago organization, while some of you salesmen are wondering whether there are still opportunities in the sales field.
OUR MEN DON'T DO
Don't do any canvassing; don't do any delivering; don't do any credit investigating; don't do any calling back; don't do any collecting; don't do any servicing. They spend all of their time and all of their energy in adding to their personal incomes. If you're just pretty good you should earn $85 a week. If you're tops you should average $125 to $150 every week in the year. Come in and let us show you what our men do in order to earn this kind of money. Ask for the manager, 9:00 to 2:30, Monday.

DAY by DAY on the FARM

By BEN MARKLAND

Herman Reigns Again.

Oct. 24, 1942.

Herman usually is a pretty aggressive member of the barnyard social register. In fact he ranks as the kingpin of the yard because of the manner in which the turkeys, ducks, and guineas get out of his way when he takes his daily walks. For many years one of the turkey gobblers has been the ruler of the yard, but since Herman has reached full size all the turkeys step aside when he passes.

Three weeks ago a change came over Herman, a change which none of the farm residents could understand. Instead of prancing around the yard in kingly fashion, the handsome peacock started skulking. He hid under the Osage orange hedge where no one could see him, and when he ventured up to the barnyard for a meal he stayed only the necessary length of time and then trudged into a dark corner of the sheepbarn.

Lost His Feathers.

The flockmaster was about the only person who saw Herman during the three week period of self-imposed retirement from barnyard activities, and after a few glances at the big bird's feather equipment he discovered that Herman's behavior evidently was because he was moulting. The proud peacock's secret was out—he didn't want any one to see him while he shed his feathers.

When we walked into the barnyard the other morning Herman was back in circulation. The moulting period was over, his brilliant greenish blue neck is as bright as ever and his long tail feathers again are dragging the ground. No longer does he hide behind the barns and under the hedgerows, and once again the giant turkeys and the waddling ducks make way for his public appearances.

Three Not Impressed.

There are three new members of the barnyard fraternity which show little respect for Herman's stewardship of the kingly reigns. These are the Muscovy ducklings which hatched last week as the final addition to the 1942 barnyard population.

When we moseyed around the yard the three youngsters, still wearing their birthday suits of yellow fuzz, galloped around as tho the cool temperatures weren't causing them a moment of discomfort. When the flockmaster put out the daily portion of grain the confident ducklings darted in and out between the adult Muscovys and mallards like pint sized quarter backs on a football field. When Herman approached their playing site they didn't bother to get out of his way.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY
A city home in the country. 40 acre Lake County estate on the North Shore, within 40 miles of Chicago and within 10 minute ride of both North Shore streamline and North Western suburban transportation, located on state highway direct from Chicago and in close range of both grade and high schools. Owner's residence of 6 rooms, strictly modern; 1½ baths; living room 18x30 with dinette and stone fireplace; air-conditioned; 4 room guest house and summer kitchen, strictly modern; large fireplace; air-conditioned; 2 baths, both tub and shower. Complete set of farm buildings; 2 car garage, workshop and servants' quarters, poultry house, 2 brooder houses, turkey house, tractor and tool shed, barn and other buildings. These improvements are mostly all new or otherwise extensively remodeled regardless of cost but for comfort. Spring-fed well with irrigation system, furnishing ample supply of water for vegetable gardens, vineyard and strawberry beds. Buildings have a very pretentious setting, wonderfully landscaped; large family orchard of various fruits and vineyard. All heavy soil, amply fertilized, completely tiled and under a high state of cultivation; some virgin timber, with many unusually large trees; oaks, black walnut, hickory, elm and ash, with bridle path and creek circling through the wood lot. This estate is fully equipped with cow, 2 riding horses, pigs, ducks, turkeys, chickens, showing a good income; new tractor on rubber and full and complete set of farm equipment which goes with the estate. Built at a cost of over $35,000. Owner in U. S. Army and leaving state. Being offered for quick sale at a positive sacrifice on very inviting terms to the right party. No pioneering, a ready and going farm. Owing to its location and many unusual features, it must be seen to be appreciated. Must be purchased from owner. Can give immediate possession. WOODWORKING PLANT
FOR SALE OR LEASE
SUITABLE FOR DEFENSE WORK.
This plant consists of 150,000 square feet of floor space, is fully equipped; operated until recently when their nonessential line of products were restricted. With the exceptionally favorable labor market available here, low taxes, special concessions for use and supply of electricity; close proximity to Chicago market; modern bldgs., all sprinkled, switch track, etc.; this plant can be operated very economically and would be ideal to manufacture any wood products or fine cabinets or airplane parts. Our clients will sell at a greatly reduced price or lease plant [fully equipped] to responsible parties or may participate in a war contract. Financial assistance could also be arranged for the right proposition. For appointment to secure details please phone Wabash 1128.

DON'T BORROW
Borrowing is not always the proper solution to a money shortage. But there are times when a loan is both provident and wise. For instance, you might borrow to move into a more economical house, nearer to work . . . to pay cash for medical and dental attention before your favorite doctor is called into the armed forces . . . to buy winter fuel and clothing . . . to clean up past due charge accounts and other bills . . . to buy tools, to pay union dues, or to take special courses for a new job on war production . . . and for many other purposes equally worthy. Loans $10 to $300. "While you wait" service to those who phone ahead or come prepared to present proper identification and evidence of employment.

HOW OUR FLEET—AND HEROIC SQUADRON 8 IN PARTICULAR—CRUSHED THE JAP ARMADA

By STANLEY JOHNSTON

THE TRIUMPH of United States forces over the Japanese in the battle of Midway has been rated as one of the greatest naval fights in history. Historians in time may rank the American victory with [illegible] the defeat of the Spanish armada, for at Midway our forces turned back a major threat against civilization as we know it and demonstrated the power of the air arm in a fashion to [illegible] world-wide revision of outmoded concepts concerning fighting [illegible]

And in the fury of the fighting, spread over hundreds of miles, occurred an assault that may some day inspire a poet as did the famous charge of the six hundred at Balaklava. Only this time the heroes rode flaming steeds of the air, and one man survived, Ensign George H. Gay, to tell of a triumph over a Japanese carrier. It was the charge of Torpedo Squadron 8.

It is now possible to analyze the action of the battle of Midway. The enemy used 5 aircraft carriers, at least 4 battleships, 12 cruisers, more than 30 destroyers, and brought along another 30 to 40 ships—transports and supply vessels. These forces were split into three units—the main battle force, consisting of 4 aircraft carriers, 2 battleships, 4 cruisers, and a dozen destroyers; the support force, 1 carrier, 2 battleships, 4 cruisers, and 10 destroyers; and an occupation force made up of transports and supply vessels protected by 4 cruisers and a dozen destroyers.

The main battle force came across the Pacific far to the north, hidden by the fog which blankets the north latitudes of that ocean. Its movement was timed so it could leave the cover of the fog bank in the late evening of June 3, and by making a high-speed all-night run it would be 200 miles north of Midway at dawn, well within range to launch an air attack. The purpose of this attack was to destroy our Midway air base by surprise assault, catching our aircraft on the ground. Meanwhile the occupation force approached from the direction of the Japanese-held Marshall islands, and the support force came from the northwest, where it would be [illegible] to the [illegible] [illegible] were attacked, or be available to increase the strength of the main battle force if it ran into trouble.

At Midway the United States forces [illegible]

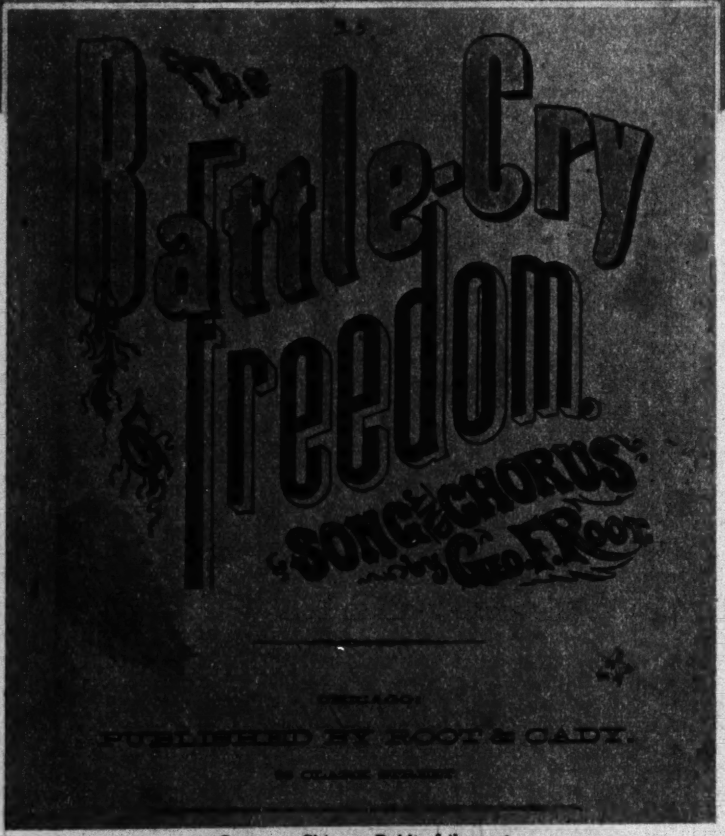
WAR SONG IS BORN!



The Battle-Cry of Freedom.
Song & Chorus by Geo. F. Root.
Chicago:
Published by Root & Cady.

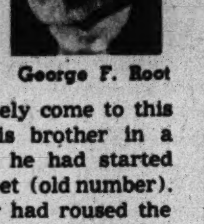
(Courtesy Chicago Public Library.)
Facsimile of original cover of Root's song.

By HERMA CLARK

WHAT makes a great war song? Can it be manufactured to order? Or does the sense of its having been labored over make it less popular?

It is hard to answer these questions, but at least it must be said that the best national songs have been the cry of a heart full of love for country.

Here is the story of one of the greatest war songs of the 19th century, the words and music both composed by the same man . . . a Chicagoan. It is a song which might well be sung by the entire nation today, for its words fit the present crisis, even as they fitted the time which brought them forth.



George F. Root

On an afternoon in August, 1862, a slender, frail-looking, bearded man of 42 years lay on a lounge in the home of his brother in Chicago. Already reckoned a successful music teacher and composer in the east, he had lately come to this city to help his brother in a music business he had started at 95 Clark street (old number).

The Civil war had roused the country, and the musician had already tried his hand at a martial song, when Fort Sumter had been fired on, but this song was a flop, as he well knew. No wonder. He had given it the cumbrous title, "The First Gun Is Fired. May God Protect the Right." Not very inspiring!

The musician, as he lay on the couch that afternoon, reflected on his successes in the line of popular songs. "Hazel Dell" and "Rosalie the Prairie Flower," melancholy tho they were, had become all the rage and he had made a good deal of money from them. Not many knew that he was the composer of these, for he had used a pen name—"Wurzel," the German word for "Root"—in sending them to a publisher.

His cantatas were performed everywhere, too, especially "The Flower Queen," whose words had been written by a little blind girl named Fanny Crosby, a pupil of his in the New York School for the Blind. But, he mused, his war song had certainly missed fire. What made a war song popular, he wondered.

His publisher brother entered the room with news that had come by wire and was circulating in Chicago downtown streets. President Lincoln had just issued a call for more troops. The north wasn't finding it easy to conquer the south. It looked like more of a task than it had when Sumter had been fired on. "It'll be over in three months," people had said then. They weren't so confident now. But the Union must be preserved, as Lincoln said. "We must rally for the Union," murmured the man on the couch.

He turned the subject over in his mind all that night, but did not write a word until the next morning, when he went to the music store at 95 Clark street. But there, as he sat down at his desk, he swiftly wrote out the words of a song, for he composed quickly always. His fingers sped over the sheet:

Yes, we'll rally round the flag, boys, we'll rally once again.
Shouting the battle cry of Freedom;
We'll rally from the hillside,
We'll gather from the plain,
Shouting the battle cry of Freedom.

The chorus came quickly from his pen, too:

The Union forever, hurrah,

The ink was hardly dry on the paper when Jules and Frank Lumbard, Chicago's great war singers, came into the store, asking for something new to sing at the great massmeeting to be held in front of the courthouse. People were already gathering, in response to the President's call; the singers must have something stirring to offer the crowd. The composer handed them the manuscript copy of "THE BATTLE CRY OF FREEDOM." Jules and Frank Lumbard hummed it over once or twice, nodded approval and hurried off to sing it to the assembled crowd at Courthouse square.

O, that golden tenor voice of Frank Lumbard! And O, the, rich velvety basso profundo of Jules, his brother! They could hold a crowd entranced, as they sang, so those who heard them testify. That September day in 1862, with George F. Root's new war song in their hands, and with the knowledge that the north needed men to fight for the preservation of the Union, they sang as they had never sung before. There were four stanzas in the piece and before they had finished the last stanza, thousands were joining in the refrain. If they caught only the words, "We'll Rally Round the Flag," they sang those with fervor, ending with "Shouting the Battle Cry of Freedom."

There were orators there that day, but their words made little difference. George F. Root's song said all that was needed. It spread from Chicago's Court House Square to camps and battlefields, hospitals and homes. The entire North was singing "We'll Rally Round the Flag," and they did rally. Recruiting was so stimulated that the frail composer, George F. Root, was said to have accomplished more for his country than many generals.

The exact date of the song seems uncertain. Mr. Root, himself, in his "Memories of a Musical Life," says he conceived it, when told by his brother of Lincoln's second call for troops. He probably means the call of the fifth of August, 1862, when a supplementary call to the one of July 6 was issued by the President. Each of these calls was for 300,000 men. Yet the copyright is dated September 26, 1862. It may have been that the composer was too busy to attend to the little matter of copyright before that date.

The publishers, Root & Cady, could not supply the demand that began immediately for the song. At one time, they had fourteen printing presses at work on it and yet they were behind in filling orders. A single music store would often send for 20,000 copies at a time, and it is estimated that the total sales amounted to 700,000 copies.

George P. Upton, music critic of The Tribune for many years, writes in his "Musical Memories": "It became the northern 'Marseillaise.' I heard it sung once under peculiar circumstances, when I was with the Mississippi flotilla, acting as correspondent for The Chicago Tribune. There was a transport in convoy of the fleet, with troops on board. One evening, as I sat upon the deck of the gunboat, wondering what would happen next day, for the Confederates were in our immediate vicinity behind strong batteries, I heard a clear tenor voice on the transport singing 'The Battle Cry of Freedom'. As the singer's notes died away on the evening air, the response of 'Dixie' came across the water, from an equally clear tenor. As soon as he had ceased, the first singer continued the concert by a vigorous shout of the song which declares the intention to 'Hang Jeff Davis to a Sour Apple Tree, as We Go Marching On.' There was no song," concludes Mr. Upton, "that equaled 'The Battle Cry' in popularity and patriotic inspiration."

Another memory of the song is given in a letter to the Century Magazine, as quoted by George F. Root in his book. He does not give the date of this letter, but says it was written in comment on an article by Brander Matthews in that magazine. Much condensed, the story follows:

"A day or two after Lee's surrender, in April, 1865, a group of northern officers met at Richmond. Finding there were present the members of a quartet which had been accustomed to singing together, they began to sing, altho, out of courtesy to some paroled Confederate officers who, as they knew, were lodged in a house opposite and could hear the sound thru the open windows, they performed no war songs, but contented themselves with popular and sentimental ditties. But soon the Confederate officers sent over a note: "Compliments of General —— and staff. Will the gentlemen kindly allow us to come over and hear them sing?" (What a pity the unknown writer did not give the name of the general!) Of course, the Union officers welcomed them and the concert went on, war songs being carefully avoided. But the Confederate officers would not have this. They demanded war songs, and the embarrassed quartet obliged, concluding the impromptu concert with "We'll Rally Round the Flag." Applause followed and then a Confederate major called out: "Gentlemen, if we'd had your songs, we'd have whipped you out of your boots. Who couldn't have marched or fought, with such songs? We had nothing but a bastard 'Marseillaise,' the 'Bonny Blue Flag' and 'Dixie.'" And then, turning to his commanding officer, the major told of the first time he had heard "Rally Round the Flag." On picket guard, he said, the song sounded to him like the knell of doom, when a fellow soldier called out: "What are those fellows made of? Here we've licked 'em six days hand-running, and now, on the eve of the seventh, they're singing 'We'll Rally Round the Flag.'"

Root wrote many other war songs. In a list of 179 national songs, 36 are from his pen. Three of these at least became very popular. They are "Just Before the Battle, Mother," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," and "The Vacant Chair."

The words of the last-named song were not written by Root, but by Henry S. Washburne of Worcester, Mass., in memory of a Worcester soldier killed in action. Unfortunately, Washburne had neglected to copyright the verse, and it became a waif, which could be appropriated by anyone. As he had used only his initials, H. S. W., in sending the stanzas to the paper which published them, these letters are usually found instead of his name on the song.

"Tramp, Tramp, Tramp" was written toward the close of the war and so had only a year of its influence to help sales, but it is said to have brought $10,000 in royalties. More interesting than the record of its profits is Mrs. Coonley's citation of an article in a French magazine, "Le Monde Moderne," written by a Japanese about 1895, who related the effect of a Japanese battle song, which he calls "Le Chant de Route," evidently translating its name into French for the article. He says, as quoted by Mrs. Coonley, that this wonderful song was sung continually in their late war with China by the Japanese soldiers on the march, reviving their spirits and making them unmindful of hardships. The song turns out to have been "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp."

George F. Root's ballads, of which "There's Music in the Air," published in 1857, was an early favorite, have already been mentioned, as have his contatas. But he excelled in still another field—that of the gospel hymn. The Moody and Sankey song books contain many tunes from the pen of Root. He himself thought that "The Shining Shore" was the most popular, but few know this today, while many who were children in the eighties and nineties would claim as favorites, "Ring the Bells of Heaven" (words by W. O. Cushing); "Come to the Savior," with its brisk marching tune, and "Precious Jewels."

The old University of Chicago conferred the degree of doctor of music on George F. Root in 1872, but he will always be just George F. Root to those who learned to play the square piano from his book, "The Curriculum."

Root's earnings were enormous, but he died in moderate circumstances, for he lost heavily in the fire of 1871, when the firm of Root & Cady was practically wiped out.

He had a family of six children, all gifted musically or with literary ability. One daughter was Mrs. Clara Louise Burnham, a popular novelist of the nineties. Frederick W. Root, a son, was a fine musician and taught singing in Chicago to many who still remember him. Christian Science hymnals contain some of Frederick Root's work, the best known of his hymns being "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," the words of which were written by Mary Baker Eddy.

George F. Root's wife was the lovely Mary Olive Woodman, an accomplished singer, of whom he says that if their children are gifted musically, they got quite as much from her side of the house as from his. They were to have celebrated their golden wedding at their summer home on Bailey's Island, off the Maine coast, when the composer died suddenly on August 6, 1895. He was buried in North Reading, Mass., his early home.

The Chicago home of the Roots was for many years on Cornell avenue in Hyde Park, and his last residence was 5101 Lake Park avenue, where now a business block stands, at the corner of Hyde Park boulevard.

PRIVATE FAY ON PARADE!

This is another of Private William C. Fay's amusing reports on army life as the draftee sees it. Private Fay is on leave from the sports department of The Tribune.

By PVT. WILLIAM C. FAY

PRIVATE HAGGERTY, our mailman, was all smiles this morning over the receipt of a package. You would expect a mailman to be more blasé about mail, but Private Haggerty's exuberance is explained by the fact that his package contained his teeth—at least, his upper plate.

At induction center Private Haggerty absent-mindedly slipped his uppers into his coat pocket after breakfast. That morning he was outfitted, and his civilian clothes, teeth and all, were shipped home to Philadelphia.

Private Haggerty two days later was shipped to Camp Forrest—and his first Saturday night on the post he went to a dance at the service club. He met a pert redhead, whirled her several dances, made a date for the next Saturday night, even promising to wear his A. W. O. L. uppers. Private Haggerty was a worried young man as Wednesday passed—Thursday—Friday—then this morning the small (insured for $50) package finally arrived.

Private Haggerty, shoes glowing, hair slicked, pants pressed, and every tooth in place, has just gone whistling down the barracks steps, striding with the confidence of a man who promised a mouthful—and is about to make good.

This morning's mail also added to the joy of Mike from Scranton, who yesterday was chosen by the company commander for cooks and bakers' school. A letter from Mrs. Mike brought the glad tidings that Mrs. Mike also had been promoted. Mrs. Mike now is foreman of her shop's welding crew. Mike thinks he'll make her a good husband when the war's over and he returns home with his C. and B. diploma.

Celebrated the anniversary of my first month in the army by taking off for Nashville for the week-end (takeoff is army talk for going on furlough). Arrived in Nashville at 6:10 p. m. Saturday, went straight to the USO, checked my shaving kit, signed for a cot in the dormitory (50 cents), then started looking for—you guessed it!—a good dinner.

The Old Hickory room in the Andrew Jackson hotel opposite the capitol promised a satisfactory blend of food and history—and everything was satisfactory except the paneled mirrors to the left of my table, which offered six different views of my army haircut, each equally disconcerting.

I was particularly intrigued with my coffee cup. Our company has experienced a severe crockery shortage. For the last two weeks I have been sipping my morning coffee from a soup plate. Consequently I needed a few minutes to readapt my grip and posture to the Old Hickory style cup. I handled it reverently as a renaissance chalice the first sips, but shortly gained confidence and was dropping it precisely onto the saucer ring long before the waitress brought my dessert.

Then to the USO dance, which was plentifully supplied with southern belles, fruit punch, sandwiches, and cookies. The USO makes certain the soldier has enough to eat—even the waiting room at the depot was amply provisioned with coffee and cookies.

Down to bed in the dormitory at 1 a. m. Slept until 9 o'clock, then a shower, a quick swim in the pool—the USO is located in the YMCA—and off to church. Back at 11 to write a few cards, and lunch at 12, again at the Old Hickory, and on the train for camp at 2 o'clock.

A pleasant change from camp routine. But one thing worries me—the heavy sleeper who occupied the cot next to mine in the USO dorm. He was snoring on his back in a swastika sprawl when I turned in at 1 o'clock. He was doing more of the same when I awoke, after my swim, after I returned from church—and he was still there when I checked out at noon, altho he had stopped snoring. I'm going back to Nashville next Saturday. If he's still there I'll have to notify the proper authorities.

MIDWAY

The attack failed in its intention, because all of Midway's attack squadrons were out searching for the enemy. The only aircraft left on the islands when the Jap planes arrived at 6:35 a. m. were the marine fighters. They put up a spirited defense. Forty Japanese planes were shot down. The enemy attacked installations, anti-aircraft guns, and coast defense guns, but he did not bomb the runways. He was confident of his ability to take Midway and intended to use the runways himself.

While the Japanese carrier planes were attacking Midway the American squadrons located the main battle force, approaching from the north, and launched their own attack. An aerial force of Fortresses, dive bombers, and torpedo planes secured hits on three of the four carriers, one battleship, a heavy cruiser, and a destroyer.

Once the Midway attack force located the Japanese main force and reported its position by radio, the United States carrier force, which had been moving in toward Midway, launched its planes. Unfortunately, the commanders of these squadrons did not know that the Japanese, checked by the fury of the Midway air attack, had turned about in retreat. The carrier squadrons, with one exception, headed for the point where the Japanese might have been found had they continued their approach upon Midway.

The exception was Torpedo Squadron 8, led by Lieut. Comm. John Charles Waldron and consisting of 15 planes. Waldron judged that the enemy might turn, and headed for the point where he expected to find him. Two hours out from its carrier, Torpedo Squadron 8 found the enemy, moving away from Midway, as Waldron had guessed. The position of the Japanese fleet was radioed back to the U. S. carrier and Waldron signaled the attack.

Thirty Jap Zero planes were circling high above. Torpedo Squadron 8 paid them no attention until the Zeros dived. Then the rear gunners opened up on them. Squadron 8 by now was only eight miles from the fleet, flying low over the waves and catching a veritable hell of fire from the Zeros and the ships' heavy guns.

One by one, the planes of Torpedo Squadron 8 plunged into the waves. The rest swept on. "If it comes to the worst," Lieutenant Commander Waldron had said in the ready room, "I want each of us to do our best to destroy the enemy. If there is only one plane left to make the final run-in, I want that man to go in and make a hit."

It had come to the worst. Surface shots from the Japanese ships, anti-aircraft fire, and the attacking Zeros had claimed all but one of the American attacking force. That one plane was piloted by George H. (Tex) Gay. It was up to him to go in and get a hit.

Gay heard in his ears the voice of Bob Huntington, his radio man. "They got me," the voice said quietly. Then Gay felt a sharp stab in his left arm. It hung useless. He kicked his rudder to dodge the Zeros and headed straight for a Japanese carrier. He pushed the button to release his torpedo, but nothing happened. Evidently the electrical releasing equipment had been smashed. Holding the control stick between his knees, he released his torpedo with his right hand. He was now almost upon the carrier.

He executed a flipper maneuver and cleared the bow of the carrier. He heard the sound of an explosion as his torpedo struck home. Then a Japanese bullet knocked out his left rudder pedal, and his plane plunged into the sea—the last of the 15 planes of Torpedo Squadron 8.

The radio message sent out by Squadron 8 as it launched its attack brought the other squadrons from the United States carrier force—torpedo planes and dive bombers. They hit two battleships and scored new hits on the three carriers previously struck by the Midway attacking force. Meanwhile the Japanese carrier Hiryu sent off its planes, which located and attacked the United States carrier Yorktown. They secured three bomb hits and two torpedo hits that put the Yorktown out of commission.

Early that afternoon the other American carriers delivered another powerful attack on the Japanese main fleet. When they had finished, four carriers, the Hiryu, Kaga, Akagi, and Soryu, had disappeared, evidently sunk. They also delivered a strong attack on a battleship.

The next morning, June 5, the Japanese support force, which was trying to escape, was located 350 miles west of Midway. Two flights of Flying Fortresses went to the attack and hit two cruisers of the Mogami class, leaving them burning.

While this attack was on the rest of the aircraft were searching for the Japs, whose main fleet had again disappeared in the fog to the north. An enemy submarine remained behind to bob up at Midway, where it exchanged shots with the shore batteries. The same afternoon the Fortresses went out again and scored a hit on another Japanese cruiser of the support force, while marine dive bombers finished off one of the cruisers previously damaged. The other cruiser had disappeared, presumably sunk.

On the morning of June 6, and thruout that day, naval bombers continued attacking ships of the support force (the occupation force had long since fled) and secured some more hits, sinking a destroyer. The following day, while the U. S. destroyer Hammann was towing the damaged Yorktown, a Japanese submarine sank the Hammann with three torpedoes and finished off the Yorktown with two more.

The powerful Japanese threat had been turned back, the most crippling defeat sustained by a battle fleet in modern times. The Japanese had lost four carriers, two heavy cruisers, three destroyers, 275 planes, and a supply ship. They had suffered damage to three battleships, three heavy and one light cruisers, three auxiliaries, and several destroyers. Our losses were the carrier Yorktown, the destroyer Hammann, and a number of aircraft.

And what of Ensign Gay, the last surviving member of Torpedo Squadron 8? Down in the sea, he covered his head with his floating rubber seat cushion to hide himself from the Japs. When the battle left him behind he was able to use his rubber life raft. The following day he was picked up by a PBY patrol boat and rushed to Midway for hospitalization. He alone lived of the 30 young men who the morning before flew their planes into the fury of Japanese shells. His squadron had located the position of the enemy fleet. Ensign Gay had gone in and got a hit.

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH HEDDA HOPPER

Gary Cooper and Ingrid Bergman in "For Whom the Bell Tolls," one of the important and moving new films.

MOVING IS THE WORD FOR PICTURES

NOWADAYS, with the whole world at war and hard times ahead, we hear lots about the "pioneer spirit." There seems to be an impression about that our forefathers were a different breed of cat from the rest of us—braver and with far greater hardships to face than our own generation. Well, I don't hold with that kind of talk. Men and women have a way of measuring up to their circumstances and responsibilities, and I'll venture to say that if you brought back a few of our pioneers and plumped them down in the middle of the modern life they'd take one good look and light out for the past in short order.

There's so much stress laid on material comforts today that we lose sight of the heavy price we pay for them. Modern men and women earn their daily bread under a nervous tension and economic strain that were completely unknown by our forefathers.

Our forebears were close to nature. They got their strength from natural things. What could they know of modern so-called improvements, tempo of modern life, horrors of modern war? If our great cities should be razed, if all our modern conveniences crumbled, men can always go back to the pioneer life. It's still there—the fields, streams, and unchanging earth. It's all a part of our past experience, and the simple ways are deep rooted in our people's memory.

So let's not run ourselves down because mother no longer weaves cloth, or father doesn't tote a gun, or Junior doesn't study by a tallow dip. For every man has to live in his own time and face up to his own problems. And the measure of a people isn't the period they live in; it's the fight they're willing to put up for liberty, no matter what the price, so that justice and fair dealing shall not perish from our world.

And that was the theme of the picture of the year, "Mrs. Miniver." After watching the reaction of the public to that picture Hollywood's beginning to listen to the public demand and need for spiritual uplift on the screen. David Selznick was going to produce "Keys of the Kingdom," but finally got tired of waiting for the stars the parts called for, and now Paramount's got it. It's just too bad we have to wait so long to see that great story on the screen. The studios will have to begin pooling their resources for the national good. If one has a star necessary to another studio's story, then he or she should be loaned.

Then there's "The Song of Bernadette," which Twentieth Century will produce, and Lloyd Douglas' "The Robe," which carries a message to Catholic, Protestant, Jew, or atheist, because it's an adventurous drama about the regeneration of a young Roman soldier during the time of Christ. It's a significant fact that religious pictures have always been tremendously successful—"The Ten Commandments," "King of Kings," "The Crusaders," "The Miracle Man," etc. And I think the public is asking today more than at any other time for something that will lift the spirit and reflect the truth and reality of our people.

Theodore Roberts and Estelle Taylor in "The Ten Commandments," one of the most successful of pictures with religious theme.

Even in comedy the trend is to the more emphatic, less brittle forms. Brian Aherne and Loretta Young in "The Frightened Stiff."

In days gone by some critics carped that Hollywood was a world of its own with a white picket fence around it, and even called us "a warmed-over Siberia" because of the escapist entertainment fashioned for world-wide audiences. Well, those carpings no longer hold true, because we, too, are neck deep in this war, and that attitude is being reflected not only in our entertainment but in the actions of our people.

So let's take a look at what's coming up. Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls" is about the Spanish war, which you might call a prelude to the present world conflict. Walter Wanger gave us "Eagle Squadron," showing how our own American boys, eager to fight for the continuance of democracy, lived and died. Warners are making "Air Force," "Edge of Darkness," "Action in the North Atlantic," and "Background to Danger"—all based on various phases of the war—and they're lining up "Mission to Moscow," the autobiography of our Ambassador Joe Davies, which is no doubt being done because Ambassador Girard's story of the kaiser-ruled Germany in the last war was a sensational success and a good little money maker.

You'll be seeing Deanna Durbin in "Forever Yours," a story of an American girl and her Chinese mission charges fighting to escape the Japs; "Assignment in Brittany," also a war story; Roz Russell and Fred MacMurray in "Stand By to Die," and "Crash Dive," which is the last picture Ty Power made before joining the marines.

Lester Cowan will give you "The Commandos Strike at Dawn," which brings Paul Muni back to the screen, and that picture was being made in Canada as the Canadians were losing their lives on the first commando raid at Dieppe.

Then there's Bob Hope's zany comedy, "They Got Me Covered," showing a wartime Washington which you probably won't believe, but along with its laughter it will undoubtedly unfold a few truths you will recognize.

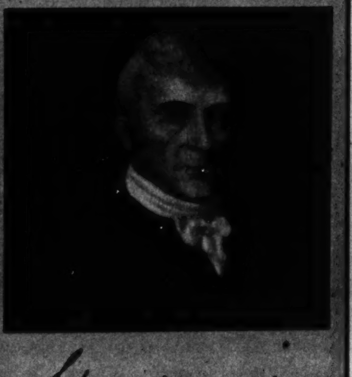
And in the field of escapism you'll have "Merry Go Round," with Jean Arthur and Joel McCrea; Metro's buxom baby, Lana Turner, in "Nothing Ventured"; half a dozen stars, including Charles Boyer, in "Flesh and Fantasy"; "Adventures of Mark Twain," with Freddie March doing a grand job as one of the most colorful characters this country has ever known; "The Frightened Stiff," with that fragile but always fresh looking Loretta Young; a whole wagonload of comics, both high and low, including Lucille Ball in "Du Barry Was a Lady," Paulette Goddard and Ray Milland in "The Crystal Ball" (you'll need more than a crystal ball to dope out what Paulette's up to next, too). I could go on and on.

But suppose, just for the heck of it, we take a look back over the years and see what kind of entertainment was being dished out to your parents during the last war. They were seeing Mary Pickford, the little pixie, in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," which recently was remade by Shirley Temple (it's now due for another as soon as some cuddly, dimpled darling comes along and makes a name for herself); "The Bluebird"; "Reaching for the Moon," with Doug Fairbanks; "Intolerance," which cried out against war and interfered with recruiting, and therefore D. W. Griffith performed a surgical operation on it, for which kindness he was allowed to take Lillian and Dorothy Gish into the trenches overseas and make the picture "Hearts of the World" (in which Noel Coward played as an extra!); Charlie Chaplin in "Shoulder Arms," which gave them laughs and tears; Lon Chaney in "The Beast of Berlin"; and the unforgettable Mabel Normand in "Mickey."

Yes, a lot of water's gone under the bridge. But I say again, let's not run down our own generation. And no matter if some of us have grown soft during the lush years, all that is a thing of the past. There's only one idea and one resolve in everybody's mind and heart now, and that is: Lick the pants off the Japs and the Nazis before they can do it to us. Then we can have peace on earth and good will toward men.

DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS

● This is another in a series of biographical sketches of America's historical celebrities appearing every week in the Graphic Section. The illustrations are taken from a famous work, "The National Portrait Gallery of Distinguished Americans," published in 1865.



S. VanRensselaer

STEPHEN VAN RENSSELAER, statesman, soldier, and landholder, was born in New York City, Nov. 1, 1764, and educated at Harvard, from which he was graduated in 1782. In 1783 he married a daughter of Gen. Philip Schuyler, and a short time later took over the management of his family estates in the vicinity of Albany.

In 1789 and 1790 he served in the New York assembly, from 1791 to 1795 he was a state senator, and from 1795 to 1801 he served as lieutenant governor. He was unsuccessful in 1801 as the Federalist candidate for governor, being defeated by George Clinton. Subsequently he was a member of the state assembly at various times from 1801 to 1821.

As a major general of the New York militia Van Rensselaer was called upon in 1812 to take command of the whole northern frontier of the state. Establishing his headquarters at Lewiston, he assembled 6,000 troops on the Niagara front. In October of 1812 he led an invasion into Canada, attacking Queenstown without success and incurring heavy losses. This reversal caused him to resign his command and return to Albany. The following year he again received the Federalist nomination for governor but was defeated.

In 1822 he was elected to the national house of representatives, serving continuously as a congressman until 1829.

A strong advocate of a canal connecting the Hudson river with the Great Lakes, he was a member of the first canal commission, which was organized in 1810. Also a member of the second canal commission, formed in 1816, he was chosen its president and retained this post until his death.

As the head of New York's first agricultural board he bore the expense personally of an agricultural and soil survey of northern New York. In 1824 he founded a school at Troy for the training of teachers. This later became the Rensselaer Polytechnic institute. In 1835 he was made chancellor of the University of the State of New York.

The wealthiest man of the state and prominent in civic and social affairs, Van Rensselaer was simple in his tastes and democratic in his relations with his fellow men. As the landlord of thousands of acres he was fair in every respect with his tenants.

One of his sons by a second marriage, Cortland Van Rensselaer, became a celebrated clergyman.

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: My school friend and I will appreciate it very much if you'll tell us who played Beaky in the picture "Suspicion." He says it's Nigel Bruce, and I'm sure it's Sir Cedric Hardwicke. If it's Nigel, what rôle did Sir Cedric play? Also please tell us the addresses of Rosalind Russell and Lana Turner; and could you print a little picture of Miss Turner? Sincerely,

EARL GILBERT.

Lana Turner

Dear Earl: Nigel Bruce played Beaky Thwaite and Sir Cedric Hardwicke the rôle of General McLaidlaw. Address Rosalind Russell and Lana Turner in care of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Culver City, Cal. Here's a picture of Lana.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have often contemplated writing you as to merits or faults of motion pictures. After seeing "Reap the Wild Wind" I am getting down to brass tacks. In the first place, there should have been a foreword thus: "This picture does not in any way pertain to the book by the same name."

Then we have the eternal triangle—two men continuously battling one another. This repetition is really boring. As to Drusilla's death, pure melodrama. To my knowledge an octopus has only eight tentacles. Then again, an octopus injects a poisonous substance into the victim, rendering him helpless, then closes in on him. The octopus does not act like a boa constrictor.

I think this the best technicolor I have seen. All taken together, I rather enjoyed the film. It certainly had a capable cast. I like a good yarn and an exciting picture. This filled the bill, but I wish Hollywood producers wouldn't think us so gullible. Sincerely,

JOSEPHINE MOSER,

Dear Miss Moser: I enjoyed your letter, and I'm sure others are doing the same this morning.

Your folks hungry for a good old-fashioned Chicken Pie?

HERE'S A DANDY says Aunt Jenny

SEASONED JUST RIGHT AND WITH SUCH TENDER FLAKY BISCUIT CRUST

But you can't be sure of these fine results with ordinary shortenings—play safe and use SPRY!

"THIS chicken pie is seasoned up so temptin' an' tasty that I want you to be sure an' get the FULL savory deliciousness of it. An' to do this you need a delicate biscuit crust," says Aunt Jenny. "If it's the least mite 'off-flavor' it will smother some of the chickeny goodness. Don't risk this happenin'. Be sure to make this biscuit crust with purer Spry.

You'll taste the difference!

"You'll find Spry means extra delicious results in all your bakin' an' fryin'. It gives the grandest cakes —light as a feather an' so good-tastin'. Spry pastry is the tender, flaky, mouth-meltin' kind that starts folks ravin' at the first bite. An' foods fried the Spry way are not only extra crisp an' tasty but actually as digestible as if baked!

"So, folks, why not give Spry a try? Use it just one week an' see if you don't decide to keep on usin' it always. Be sure to have this Chicken Pie real soon. You'll get compliments right an' left on it, it's so good."

Chicken Pie

4-pound fowl, cut in pieces
1 quart boiling water
2 teaspoons salt
6 peppercorns
2 stalks celery, cut in pieces
3 sprigs parsley
6 tablespoons flour
6 tablespoons cream
½ teaspoon paprika
1 recipe Baking Powder Biscuits

Nearly cover chicken with boiling water and stew with seasonings until tender (about 2 hours). Then cut chicken in large pieces, removing bones and skin. Strain stock and add water to make 4 cups. Make a smooth mixture of flour and cream and add to broth. Bring to boil and stir until well blended. Add chicken and paprika and pour into casserole.

Roll biscuit dough ½ inch thick and cut with very small (1½-inch) biscuit cutter. Cover hot chicken and gravy with biscuits, bake in hot oven (450° F.) 30 minutes. Serves 6.

Baking Powder Biscuits

2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
5 tablespoons Spry
¾ cup milk (about)

Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Cut in Spry until mixture is as fine as meal. Add milk, mixing to a soft dough. Knead lightly 20 seconds. Roll to ½-inch thickness.

Save this Spry recipe

Use it every time you make baking powder biscuits. And make them often! You can mix them up in no time for triple-creamed Spry cuts into the flour so easily. And Spry biscuits aren't ordinary everyday biscuits. They're tender, flaky, delicate as little cakes. They're grand with cold meats and salads and make a satisfying dessert served with preserves.

You can soon get Spry in useful glass jars as well as the familiar cans

MOVIE STAR ALBUM

Special Section
Oct. 25, 1942

Sincerely
Diana Lewis

John C. Lewis (Si Plunkett), vaudeville rube, had in his company his wife and three children. A fourth child, Diana, went along in a trunk-top bassinette until she joined the troupe professionally at 2. When she was 14 Diana besieged Hollywood. She was obliged to vary night club singing with minor rôles in the beginning, but now is under long-term contract. Recently she was seen in "Johnny Eager." Diana's daily program includes an hour of piano lessons, another of ballet and tap dancing, a third of dramatic coaching, and a singing lesson. She is 5 feet tall, weighs 100 pounds, has chestnut hair and blue eyes. In private life she is Mrs. William Powell.

When he was 15, not so long ago, Robert Preston was playing a Shakespearean Julius Caesar in a stock company headed by Mrs. Tyrone Power, mother of Tyrone, the screen star. Hollywood subsequently discovered Preston after he had worked two years in the Pasadena Playhouse. He appeared recently in "Reap the Wild Wind." He is 6 feet 1 inch tall, weighs 175, has brown hair and gray eyes.

Joining a traveling troupe in Ireland when he was 14 years old, English-born Patric Knowles spent four years in stock and then appeared in British films before he was brought to Hollywood. Recently he served for 10 months as an instructor in the Canadian air force, but was grounded for an eye difficulty. He is 41 years old, is 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 175 pounds, has brown hair and eyes.

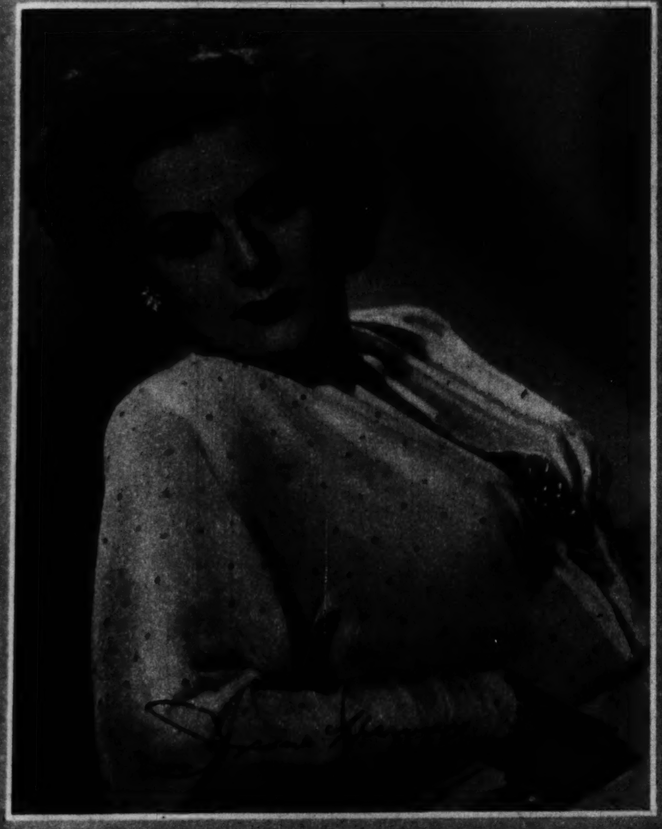
Lucille Ball

Florenz Ziegfeld gave Lucille Ball her first Broadway chore in the chorus of "Rio Rita." After that, looking for work, she "tried starvation in all its forms, none of them satisfactory." Eventually became a much-sought model; made her Hollywood debut as a poster girl; has been in pictures since except for a Broadway appearance in "Hey Diddle Diddle." Lucille is married to Desi Arnaz. She rides, bicycles, swims, and plays tennis. She is 5 feet 6½ inches tall, weighs 120 pounds, has blonde hair and blue eyes.

THIS IS THE FOURTH four-page Movie Star Album, presenting portraits, biographies, and autographs of Hollywood personalities for the pleasure of cinema fans. Another of these galleries of stars and starlets will appear in The Tribune next Sunday.

Faith Dorn's studio believes she is the only actress in Hollywood signed up because of her performance in a church school play. A studio agent who was in the audience at Santa Monica, Cal., engineered this result. Faith is 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 116 pounds, and has brown eyes. She is studying piano and is enthusiastic about it; goes in for amateur photography; and is fond of dancing, swimming, and daily horseback rides.

Biographies, Autographs, Pictures

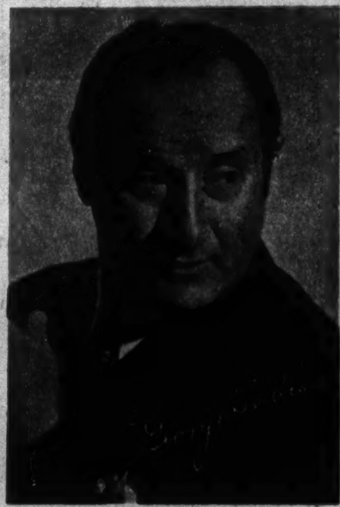


Irene Hervey broke into the movies by marathon sitting. For a year she held down chairs in sundry casting offices, and at the beginning of a second year a casting director, impressed by her perseverance, gave her a part in "Stranger's Return." Reared at Santa Monica and Venice, Cal., she studied dramatics in high school and later at a school for actors. She is the wife of Allan Jones, and they have two children. Her favorite diversions, swimming and riding. Irene is 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighs 120 pounds, has brown hair and hazel eyes.

Below: On a coastwise boat out of Boston, Jean Rogers was tapped for celebrity.. A movie scout did the tapping; told her she was beautiful; persuaded her to enter a beauty contest, which she won. And that's how Jean happened to get into the movies. She's been in 30 pictures; her secondary enthusiasm is painting. Height, 5 feet 5 inches; weight, 118 pounds; hair, brown; eyes, blue.

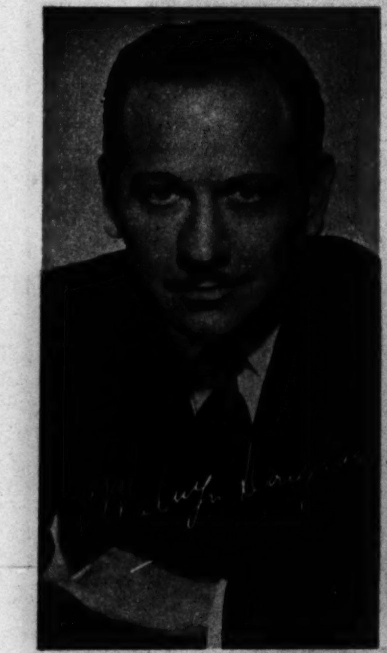
In 1930 Lynne Overman had $1.36 to show for half a lifetime of jockeying, singing and dancing, showing stereopticon slides in Alaska, working in stock and vaudeville, serving in the World war navy, and acting in New York and London. Fire had burned his home; the market crash got the rest. He recouped on the stage; in 1933 went into films; has been in nearly 50 pictures.

Below: Born of actor parents, Fay MacKenzie made her screen debut at the age of 10 weeks, playing the infant daughter of Gloria Swanson. Barnstormed up and down the west coast in stock and tent shows thru childhood. Played bits in Hollywood. Emerged as a leading lady in a Gene Autry cowpuncher flicker. She is a sultry brunette with mesmerizing eyes and a sense of humor.



The ante-Hollywood career of George Tobias began in little theaters two decades ago; Louis Wolheim discovered him and made him a protege. He is a veteran Broadway character actor; his last appearance there was in "You Can't Take It with You." He offers this explanation for his skill in characterization: "I have actually worked among the people I portray."

To nearly 50 films Joan Bennett has brought an unageing ingenue beauty and a flair for wearing clothes that has won her the reputation of being one of the screen's best dressed women. Her stage experience was confined to a role in one play, "Jarnigan," with her father, Richard Bennett; her career in Hollywood followed that immediately. She is married to Walter Wanger, her third husband. She has two daughters, 14-year-old Diana and 8-year-old Melinda.



Born at Macon, Ga., Melvyn Douglas was educated in Georgia, Nebraska, Tennessee, and Canada; served in the army during the World war, and then entered on a lengthy theatrical apprenticeship in touring stock companies. He was featured or starred in a number of Broadway hits before Hollywood took him over. His first screen appearance was in the lead of "Tonight or Never," opposite Gloria Swanson; he was seen recently in "Our Wife." Douglas is married to Helen Gahagan of the stage. He is 6 feet 1½ inches tall, weighs 180 pounds, has brown hair and eyes.

Bing Crosby

Bing Crosby was born at Tacoma, Wash. His career began to take form at Gonzaga university, where he played traps and sang in a student orchestra. Bing quit college; went into vaudeville; was signed on by Paul Whiteman, with whose orchestra he appeared in films; made records which became best sellers; increased his following in radio; eventually moved into the king row as a Hollywood singer. He owns a race track and a stable, a home and a ranch, and stock in assorted enterprises. He has brown hair and blue eyes; is married to Dixie Lee; has four sons.

Marjorie Lord made a lightning entrance into Hollywood; screen-tested one day, test was run off the second day, the third day she was acting before the cameras. What had gone before: On the stage in "Old Maid"; nine months in Edward Everett Horton's "Springtime for Henry." She is a native of San Francisco; is 5 feet 3 inches tall; has brown hair and blue eyes.

At left: A home movie reel took Bob Steele and his twin brother into the films when they were 13 years old. Made by their father, a movie director, it chronicled their adventures on a trapping expedition and was sold to a studio as a short. Sixteen similar pictures appeared as "The Adventures of Bob and Bill." After high school Bill left pictures to study medicine; Bob remained, to become a cowboy actor.

George Brent, Irish revolutionist, came to America for safety. Here he continued an interrupted stage career, appearing in more than 300 leads in stock companies, six of which he owned. He made his movie debut as leading man of Ruth Chatterton, to whom he was married briefly in 1912. He now is married to Ann Sheridan. Brent is 6 feet 1 inch tall, weighs 170 pounds, has black hair and hazel eyes.

An orphan newsboy of the New York slums, Edward Arnold had his first theatrical experience in a settlement house; at 15 joined the Ben Greet Shakespearean Players. From that time his course was to the stars thru difficulty, as the valedictorians say. He was an Essanay film star in Chicago; he left Broadway for Hollywood in 1932. In the movie capital he is a civic leader, chiefly in affairs of public welfare.

Via dramatic and dancing study in New England and Broadway, Bette Davis came to Hollywood. The first in "The Man Who Played God"; the next, the part of ances in "Dangerous" and "Jezebel" she became a of Hollywood's mo

ROTO PICTURE BIOGRAPHIES

Two months before TYRONE POWER was born (at Cincinnati, on May 5, 1914) his mother left the Shakespearean company in which she was playing with his father, Tyrone Power II. When he was 7 years old young Tyrone made his debut at Alhambra, Cal., in the famous mission play, in which his mother played the lead. In 1931 he played Shakespeare with Fritz Lieber's company in Chicago, and to this city he returned in 1934 after two years of discouragement in Hollywood, to take a job in a concession at A Century of Progress exposition. In that year also he played in radio and on the stage of the Blackstone in "Romance," with Eugenie Leontovich. In New York his first real acting rôle was in Katharine Cornell's "St. Joan." By that time a Hollywood studio had made a test of him, and he entered on his film career. His screen debut was in "Girls' Dormitory" in 1936; since he has appeared in more than a score of pictures.

Portraits and biographies of Paulette Goddard, Ellen Drew, and Alan Ladd have appeared in previous issues of the Movie Star Album. May we here, therefore, present additional human interest notes concerning these players?

ELLEN DREW on her life in Chicago: "I had to leave in the third year at Parker High to take a job. I was first in the accounting department of a loop department store. Next I got a job at a place called a department store, but it's really a five-and-ten. My salary was $10 a week. It wasn't much, but it supported mother and me. We lived in a light housekeeping room at $4 a week. We budgeted $4 for food and entertainment and $2 for clothes. We got by."

ALAN LADD was west coast diving champion in 1932. When he applied for a job as a laborer at a movie studio his boss thought the boy would be ideal for high work because he'd been a diver; so he put Ladd to rigging up scaffoldings in the rafters for lights. For two years the youth worked on sound stages, but never while a company was shooting on that stage.

PAULETTE GODDARD took a trip to the orient after her appearance in Charlie Chaplin's "Modern Times." And Cecil De Mille began getting unsigned postcards weekly from faraway ports, each with the same message: "Having wonderful time. When are you going to have a picture for me?"

Later, after De Mille discovered the identity of his anonymous correspondent, Paulette Goddard appeared before him in the costume of Louvette, the half-breed siren of "North West Mounted Police," when the producer was in search of an actress for that rôle.

"How you lak, eh?" Paulette demanded.

"So this is the same girl who sent me those postcards?" De Mille remarked admiringly. "I might have known you'd do something like this."

She got the part.

La Dietrich of the shapely legs, a Berlin stage and screen actress whose Hollywood career began spectacularly, enjoyed a return to public favor when she was permitted, beginning with "Destry Rides Again," to drop the legend of aloof elegance built up by press agents and to become a normal human being. Recently she was seen in "The Spoilers." She is 38 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighs 120 pounds, has reddish gold hair and blue eyes.

Fred MacMurray had his first professional experience tootling his saxophone in Chicago. In 1928 he got on in Hollywood as an extra; joined the California Collegians as vocalist, saxophonist, and clown, arriving thus on Broadway in musical hits; won his first screen assignment as Claudette Colbert's leading man in "The Gilded Lily." Since he has been seen in more than 30 pictures.

Elyse Knox graduated from modeling in New York to the cinema when her employer assigned her to a movie fashion reel, and a movie scout, impressed by the film, whisked her to Hollywood. She made her debut in "Free, Blonde, and Twenty-one." She was born at Hartford, Conn.; is 5 feet 3 inches tall; weighs 110 pounds; has blonde hair and blue eyes; is married to Paul Hesse, star still cameraman, who earlier had nominated her "the perfect magazine cover girl."

of Hollywood's Favorite Stars

Lee Shubert discovered Carmen Miranda in a Rio de Janeiro night club and imported her to New York to sing, wearing upon her head her fruit salad millinery and upon her midriff nothing, in "The Streets of Paris." Shortly afterward she signed a Hollywood contract. Carmen, now 28 years old, was born in Portugal and brought up in Rio. She is 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 98 pounds, has blue-black hair and greenish brown eyes.

Joel McCrea was bitten by the acting bug when, a very young sprout, he rode a horse in a mob scene and was paid $5 for doing it. He studied drama at Pomona college, drifted into bit parts in the films, and gradually climbed to established stardom. He is happily married to Frances Dee and infatuated with his 1,500-acre ranch. Joel is blond, 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 190 pounds.

Son of a Kansas City policeman, Wallace Beery worked in a roundhouse, as a riveter, and as a circus elephant tender before getting his first theater job. That was in the chorus of "Babes in Toyland" in 1904. Like Edward Arnold, he was an Essanay star. Hollywood calls the type of characterisation he has developed "a combination of comedy and pseudo-villainy." He is one of the wealthiest of film actors; has a passion for flying.

New York schools, stock, little theaters, repertory, and urning point in her career was the leading feminine role Mildred in "Of Human Bondage." With her performwo-time winner of the Academy award; she remains one eminent actresses.

Below: One of the five Lane sisters, whose father was an Iowa dentist, Priscilla Lane studied dancing and singing in New York and made her professional debut with Fred Waring at the Palace theater. Her association with the Pennsylvanians led her into radio and then into movies, where she remained. She is 25 years old, 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 100 pounds, has blonde hair and blue eyes.

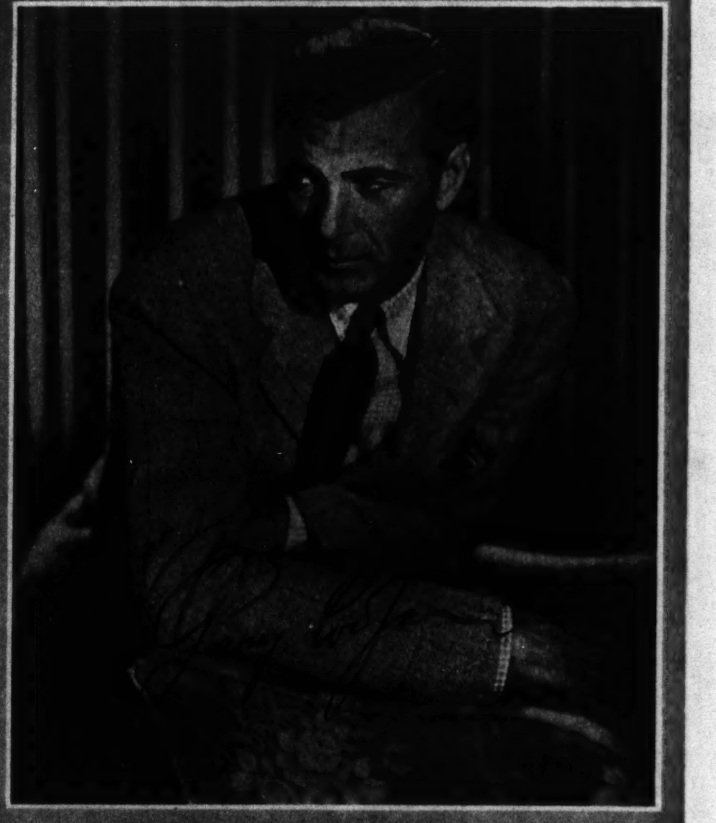
Gene Lockhart went into films from a lengthy stage career; he is best remembered on Broadway as Uncle Sid in "Ah, Wilderness." He was born in Canada; educated in the Dominion and in England; has written more than 200 radio scripts and produced a number of revues; is the author of "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise." He is 51 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 180 pounds.

Born into the Austrian nobility, Paul Henreid has dropped his title to become an American citizen. He played in Vienna and London before coming to the United States. Last year, in "Flight to the West," he won the vote of Burns Mantle for one of the best Broadway performances of 1941. His first American picture, "Joan of Paris." He is 32 years old; 6 feet 3 inches tall; hair, brown; eyes, blue.

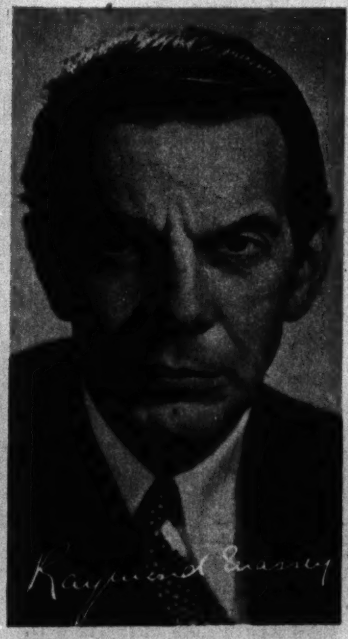
At right: Glamorous Rise Stevens' singing career began in light opera in high school at Elmhurst, N. J.; continued in New York. Then for the first time she began studying voice. She made her debut as a prima donna in Europe in 1936, sang with famous opera companies on that continent and in South America, first appeared with the Metropolitan in 1938. Her first picture, with Nelson Eddy, was "The Chocolate Soldier."

Below: Julie Bishop has had two cinema careers; in the first, as Jacqueline Wells, she played sweet heroine roles. A fugitive from that, she joined the Peninsula Players of Door county, Wisconsin, returned to Hollywood under her second screen name. Julie went to high school in Los Angeles, studied drama in a little theater. She is 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighs 110 pounds, has red hair and hazel eyes.

Roddy McDowell, now 13 years old, was a veteran of British pictures when his father sent him to America from bomb-rocked London in 1940. The next year he established himself in Hollywood with his memorable portrayal of Huw in "How Green Was My Valley." Roddy is 5 feet tall, weighs 80 pounds, has brown hair and eyes, has a passion for sundaes.



Some 16 years ago Gary Cooper of Helena, Mont., began leading the uncertain life of a Hollywood extra. A year later he played his first lead in "The Winning of Barbara Worth." He hit his stride as a star about 13 years ago, and his pace never has slackened; last year, in "Sergeant York," he won an Academy award. "Coop" is liked universally for his easy, homespun, monosyllabic friendliness. He is 41 years old, 6 feet 2½ inches tall, weighs 175 pounds, has brown hair and blue eyes. He is married to Sandra Shaw.



Canadian-born Raymond Massey served as an artillery officer in France during the World war; was wounded and spent six months in a hospital. After the war he went into the theater on the advice of John Drew, and in four years became a star and a producer in London. He first appeared in New York in "Hamlet," subsequently became active in British films. It was in 1938 that he was brought back to Broadway to take the title role of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." He left the play the following year to enter pictures in Hollywood, where he has remained.

Rita Novello was born in Mexico City. Una Vilon made her theatrical debut in New York when she was 13 years old. Rita Rio organised a girls' band and toured with it from 1936 to 1940. Rita Shaw first appeared in movies in 1941 in "Aloma of the South Seas." Dona Drake recently was seen in "Star Spangled Rhythm." And they (or she) are (or is) one and the same. Dona's other film roles were in "Louisiana Purchase," in which she had the second feminine lead, and "Road to Morocco." She is 5 feet 1 inch tall, weighs 100 pounds, has chestnut hair and blue-green eyes.

Born at Waco, Tex., on Dec. 10, 1918, Anne Gwynne studied ballet as she grew up; studied dramatics with Maude Adams at Stephens college (Columbia, Mo.); went to work in a California little theater; was spotted there by a studio executive and given a contract without a screen test. She has been in 10 pictures; recently was seen in "Deep in the Heart of Texas." She is 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighs 117 pounds, has red hair and hazel eyes.

John Carroll ran away from home (New Orleans) when he was 10; became newsboy, riveter, seaman, porter, auto race driver (Chicago), deep sea diver, ship's cook, steeplejack, cowboy, singer. He had a semester at Northwestern university. Studied voice in Europe. Was signed up for movies in 1935; has been in more than 20 films. He is 6 feet 4 inches tall; weighs 196 pounds; has brown hair, green eyes.

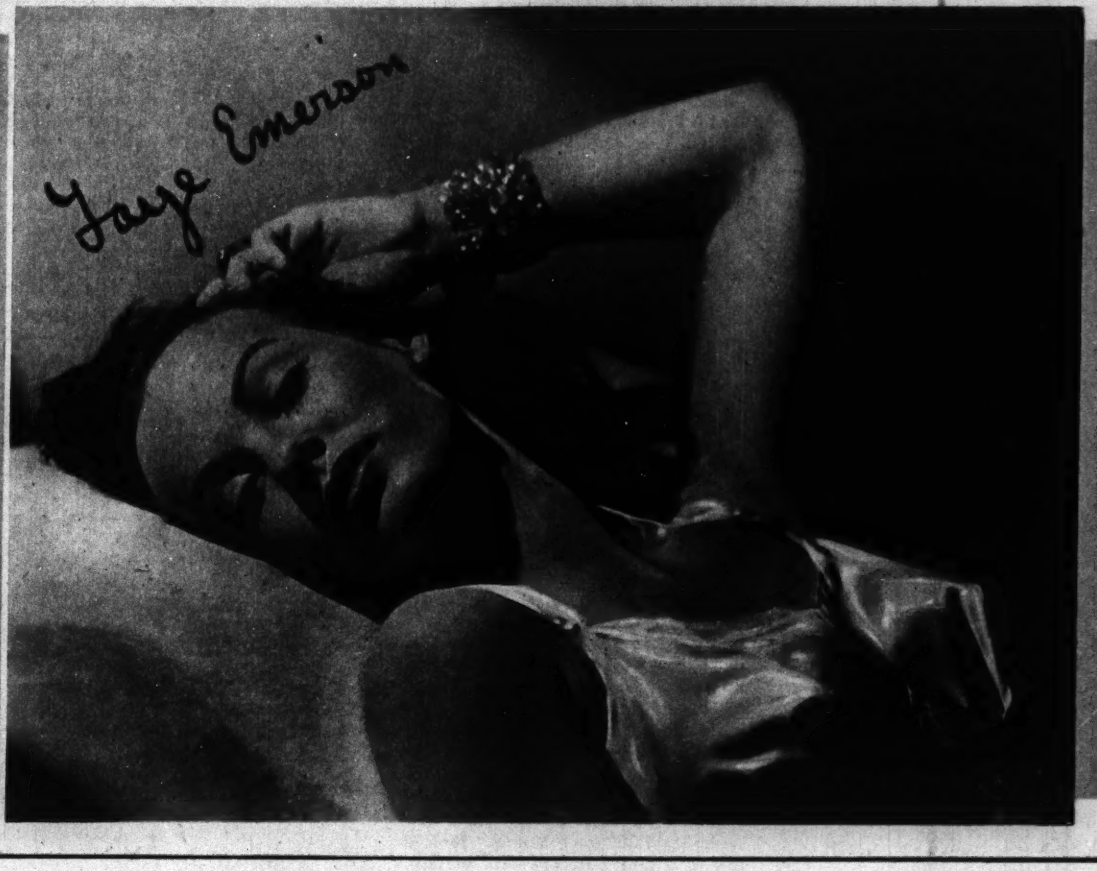
Movie Star Album

Ruth Warrick

At left: Ruth Warrick of the lambent eyes made her first screen appearance as the first Mrs. Kane in "Citizen Kane." The background that led to this springboard to fame included student theatricals and three seasons of stock at Kansas City, Mo., and radio singing and acting in Kansas City and New York. A talented musician, she plays violin and piano. She doesn't diet; likes to sleep at length; has taken up badminton and golf in Hollywood. She is 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 120 pounds, has reddish brown hair and blue eyes. In private life she is Mrs. Erik Rolf; they have a daughter, Karen Elizabeth, born last year.



At right: Faye Emerson was discovered by a movie talent scout in a little theater at San Diego, Cal., and immediately went into pictures. Now a veteran of some seven films, she was seen recently in "Air Force." She was born in Elizabeth, La., on July 8, 1917; went to school in Chicago, in Texas, and at San Diego State college. Before Hollywood smiled upon her she studied drama at San Diego and acted in several stock companies. Faye hates dial telephones, prefers football among spectator sports, likes to play poker about once in two years, carries a rabbit's foot. She is 5 feet 4 inches tall, has brown hair and eyes.

Roger Clark began his dramatic training at Dartmouth, extended it in the eastern summer theater belt, and came up to Broadway in 1936. During the ensuing four years his position on the New York stage was established, and in 1940 he made his screen debut in "You Belong to Me." He appeared recently in "Laugh Your Blues Away." Clark is married to the former Harryt Brandon, actress. He is 6 feet tall, has brown hair and blue-gray eyes.

Cliff Edwards, born in 1895 at Hannibal, Mo., is better remembered by vaudeville fans as Ukelele Ike. That appellation became Ike for his roles as a singing comedian in westerns. Edwards made his screen debut in "Hollywood Revue of 1929" and has appeared in scores of pictures since. At one time he was No. 1 man in American phonograph record sales. Recently Walt Disney has used his voice extensively. He is 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 160, has brown hair and eyes.

One thing led to another for Kay Aldridge. She went to school at a Maryland seminary. Became an all-around athlete. Was elected beauty queen. Went to Winchester, Va., as "Apple Blossom Princess." Employed as a model in New York. Stopped at Hollywood en route from an assignment; has been in movies since. She is heroine of the serial "Perils of Nyoka." She is 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighs 125, has brown hair and green-gray eyes.

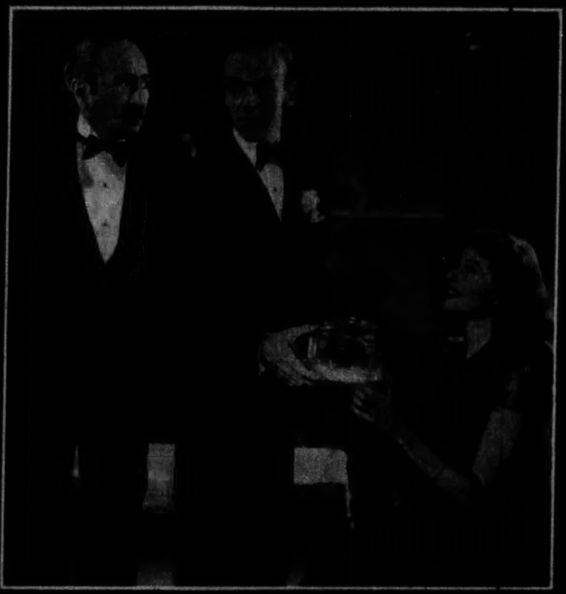
GRAPHIC LITTLE THEATER PRESENTS Fred Astaire, Rita Hayworth IN 'You Were Never Lovelier'

1 Robert Davis (Fred Astaire), a penniless American dancer stranded in Rio, breaks into the office of Edwardo Acuna (Adolphe Menjou) and asks for an engagement in Acuna's swanky hotel. Edwardo has him thrown out.

2 Edwardo is preoccupied with domestic problems. His youngest daughters, Cecy (Leslie Brooks) and Lita (Adele Mara), want to get married, but can't until Maria, the eldest sister, does. And Maria is waiting for a dream prince.

3 Edwardo sends Maria (Rita Hayworth) flowers and notes.

4 Back comes Bob Davis. This time he dances all over Edwardo's office and threatens him with a cane unless Edwardo gives him a job. He does—as a messenger to deliver Maria's daily flowers.



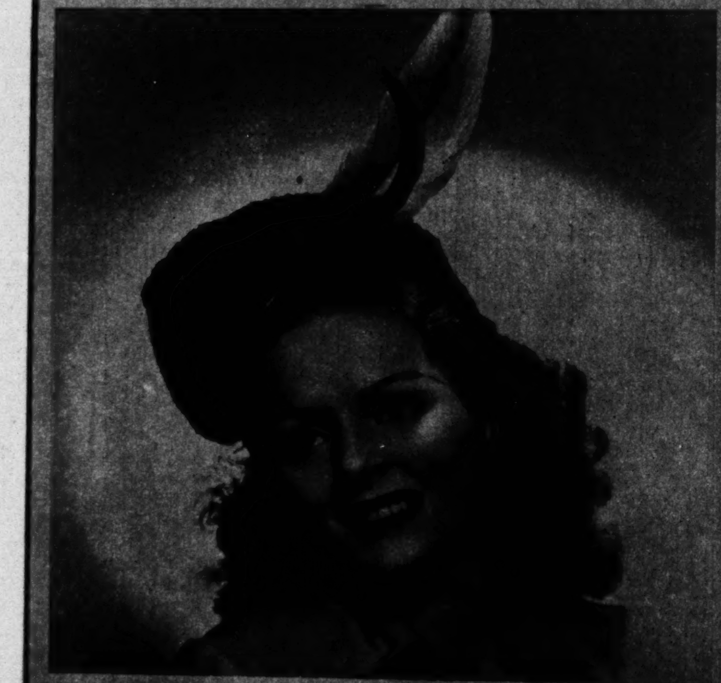
5 In high spirits despite his low position Bob dresses for the occasion. To his surprise, Maria takes him for her silent suitor much to Edwardo's consternation.

6 At Maria's insistence, Edwardo is nice to Bob, but when one day he finds him with Xavier Cugat, orchestra leader at Edwardo's hotel, caricaturing him, he is furious. He offers Bob a contract at an indefinite future date providing Bob goes back to America the following day.

7 Bob agrees, but that night at Maria's birthday party he really falls in love with her, and she with him. Every one but Edwardo approves of Bob, so . . . .

8 Bob tells Edwardo that "indefinite" date is now; and that he had signed a team instead of a single act.

HATS TO CROCHET



Each Sunday for a period of weeks an illustration of an attractive new crocheted hat will appear in this section, together with a coupon bearing the proper number, which may be sent in for the pattern.

No. 2016—A hand-crocheted, dressy afternoon hat with a Swoop Brim, easily made in simple stitches. Arleen Whelan wears it as a complement to her new fall outfit, and you can crochet the same hat for one of your new ensembles.

TO OBTAIN the pattern for this hat write your name and address clearly and inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost. Mail your order to Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

"Bessie, there was so much MORE SUDS I thought I was seein' double!"

says Mrs. Winifred Taylor of Forest Hills, New York

"SUPER SUDS ALL SEEMED TO DISSOLVE LICKETY-SPLIT. DIDN'T LEAVE ANY BIG UNDISSOLVED PIECES...A REAL SOAP SAVING!"

THE "MILK-BOTTLE SUDS TEST" SHOWS MORE SUDS AND LONGER-LASTING SUDS FROM SUPER SUDS.

"Never could seem to get enough suds to suit me, so I made the 'milk-bottle suds test' as soon as I heard about it," Mrs. Taylor tells us. "When I saw how much more and longer-lastin' suds there were in the Super Suds bottle than the bottle my regular soap was in, I told all my friends about it. Didn't realize there could be that much difference. Come to find out, there was just as much difference in washin', too. Easier washin' and whiter wash . . . that's what I got for spendin' a few minutes doin' the 'milk-bottle suds test.' "

Wish you'd please make this easy "milk-bottle suds test" yourself!

Just put two teaspoons of your present wash-day soap and a glass of water in a milk-bottle. Do the same with new, sudsier Super Suds in another milk-bottle. Use any kind of water, even cold or hard water. Then shake 'em up. Then compare the suds for amount and lasting qualities.

THE WORLD IS TOO MUCH WITH US

By WILLIAM WORDSWORTH

The world is too much with us; late and soon,
  Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers;
  Little we see in nature that is ours;
We have given our hearts away, a sordid boon!
This sea that bares her bosom to the moon;
  The winds that will be howling at all hours
  And are up-gather'd now like sleeping flowers;
For this, for everything, we are out of tune;
It moves us not. Great God! I'd rather be
  A pagan suckled in a creed outworn;
So I might, standing on this pleasant lea,
  Have glimpses that would make me less forlorn;
Have sight of Proteus rising from the sea,
  Or hear old Triton blow his wreathed horn.

DRIED FRUITS HAVE VARIETY and VITAMINS

By MARY MEADE

DRIED prunes and figs are fruits rich in natural sugars, which fact increases their importance in these sugar-saving days. They are valuable sources of minerals and vitamins, too.

Stewed dried fruits have a place in the breakfast menu as an occasional change from orange juice and tomato juice. They add a lot to the flavor and food value of cooked breakfast cereals, too.

PRIZE RECIPE

CODFISH PUDDING
(Serves six)

½ cup butter
½ cup flour
2 cups milk
6 eggs, separated
Salt, pepper, nutmeg to taste
½ pound salt codfish which has been soaked, boiled, and pulled apart
½ cup bread crumbs

Melt butter, add flour, blend, and add milk. Remove from heat and cool slightly. Beat the egg yolks into the mixture one at a time. Add salt, if necessary, and other seasonings. Add codfish. Beat the egg whites and fold into the mixture. Turn into a ring mold which has been rubbed with butter and sprinkled with bread crumbs. Set the pan in a pan of water and bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Unmold on a large chop plate. Fill the center with buttered vegetables.—MRS. A. ALSTAD, 1709 W. 6th St., Racine, Wis.

HOW TO ENTER

1—Choose your best recipe.
2—Type or write it legibly and completely, listing ingredients in order of use and giving standard level measurements.
3—Include such helpful information as number of servings, time for baking, size of pan.
4—Send one recipe at a time.
5—Address it to Recipe Contest, Chicago Tribune.

All entries become property of The Chicago Tribune. There's a $5 prize daily!

When you cook a batch of dried fruit you usually have enough to use in several ways. Quick breads and muffins made with prunes, apricots, or figs are delicious. Upside-down cake is another possibility. Fig caramel pie is a real treat. It's a rich dessert, so the portions should be small. Eight pieces aren't too many to cut from a nine-inch fig pie.

FIG CARAMEL PIE
(Serves six to eight)

1 cup dried white figs
¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
3 tablespoons butter
2¼ cups milk
¼ cup cornstarch
2 teaspoons vanilla
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
4 tablespoons sugar for meringue

Rinse figs, drain, and clip stems. Put them thru a food chopper, using the medium knife. Heat brown sugar in butter in the top of a double boiler over direct heat until melted. Remove from heat, add 2 cups milk, and scald over hot water, stirring to dissolve the sugar. Combine cornstarch with ¼ cup cold milk, figs, flavoring, salt, and beaten egg yolks. Beat until well blended. Stir into hot milk. Cook and stir until thick, then for 15 minutes longer in order to be sure the cornstarch is thoroly dextrinized. Cool slightly, pour into baked shell, and spread with meringue made by beating two egg whites until stiff and folding in the sugar a little at a time. Bake in slow oven, 300 degrees, about 30 minutes.

You can omit both meringue and coconut from this fig caramel pie and still have an excellent dessert. Cut small pieces from this rich pie.

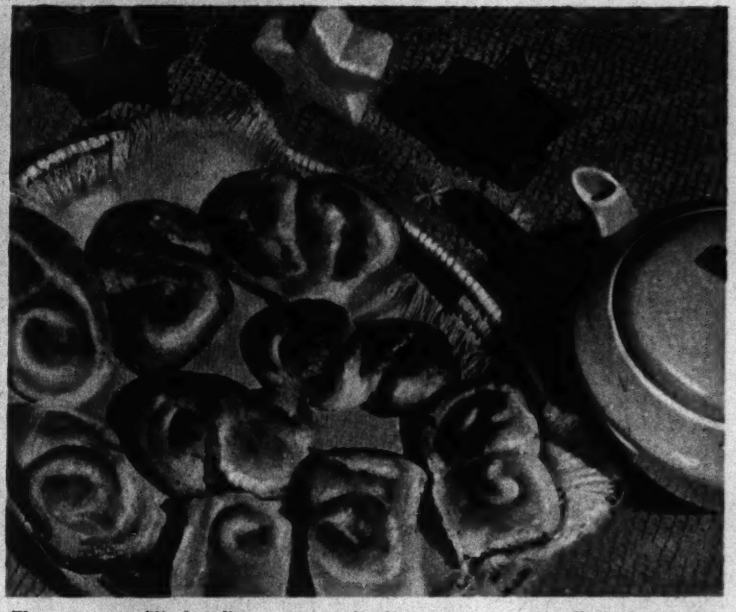
Prune-filled yeast rolls, served hot with plenty of butter, are wonderful. Use any good biscuit or roll dough made with compressed or packaged granular yeast, and roll it into a thin sheet after it has risen for the second time. Brush it with melted butter, then spread with prune filling. Instead of rolling jelly roll fashion, roll the filled dough from both ends to the center, making a double roll. Slice off in inch slices, place in a greased shallow pan, let rise again, and bake at 375 degrees for about 20 minutes.

Here's your filling:

PRUNE FILLING

½ pound dried prunes
¾ cup corn sirup
Grated rind of 1 lemon

Wash prunes. Cover with water and cook until tender. Put thru a sieve. Add corn sirup and lemon rind and cook over low heat until thick.



These prune-filled rolls were made from a one-egg roll recipe using granular yeast.

CRISCO'S BRAND-NEW METHOD GUARANTEES
FLAKY PIE CRUST EVERY TIME

NO MORE PIE FAILURES. CRISCO'S NEW METHOD IS SURE-FIRE!

TRY CRISCO'S NEW PASTRY METHOD

MIX 2 CUPS SIFTED FLOUR with 1 teaspoon salt. Remove ⅓ cup of this flour to a small bowl. To it add ¼ cup water . . . stir to a paste! (No more guessing how much water to use!)

TO THE DRY FLOUR ADD ⅔ cup Crisco—cut in until pieces are size of small peas.

NOW, MIX THE DOUGH CRISCO'S NEW WAY: Scrape all the flour-paste into Crisco-mix. Mix thoroughly until dough comes together and can be shaped into a ball. Divide in 2 parts. Roll out about ⅛ inch thick. (The dough's just right—not sticky! No need to overhandle it and make it tough.) Line pie plate. For pastry pumpkins: Cut pattern from heavy paper; place on remaining rolled dough and cut around; remove paper, press markings in with side of a spoon.

NEW! "STORE-AWAY" PUMPKIN FILLING!

Keeps for weeks, makes 3 pies with only 1 cup sugar. Combine 1 can pumpkin (3½ cups), 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon each salt, ginger, cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves, ½ teaspoon allspice, ½ cup dark corn syrup, 1 quart milk. Cook slowly, stirring, until it boils well. Cool, put in covered jar in icebox. For 1 pie use ⅓ (about 2⅓ cups) and add 2 well-beaten eggs. Fill unbaked shell. Bake in hot oven—450° F.—10 minutes, then at 350° F. for ½ hour or till set.

All Measurements Level

Success or your money back—but only with Crisco . . . it's different!

Come on, lady—join the "pie experts"! Try Crisco's wonderful New Pie-crust Method and we'll guarantee you flaky pie crust every time.

There's a pastry success secret right in Crisco you don't get in any other shortening—Crisco is made differently.

And Crisco's new way to mix pie dough ends the two chief causes of tough crust . . . adding too much water and over-handling the dough. Your Crisco dough is just right to handle and roll out. You're sure of flaky pie crust!

And to be sure of delicious foods, use Crisco for all your cooking. You'll get lighter cakes—crisp, digestible fried foods.

2 OUT OF 3 DOCTORS POINT OUT: "Crisco is digestible!"

When a questionnaire was sent to doctors by a leading medical magazine, two-thirds of the doctors' replies specifically called attention to Crisco's digestibility.

Greece Fights On

● This is another in a series of articles on underground organizations in occupied countries of Europe. Earlier stories told about opposition to Germany in Poland and Jugo-Slavia.

By LLOYD WENDT

> "The fight for Crete is ended. The resistance of the Greeks and their allies has been broken."
> —German communique,
> June 2, 1941.

ON JUNE 9, 1942, a convoy of British ships passed near the island of Crete en route to Suez. The vessels, more than 25 in number, were clearly visible from the snow tipped White mountains of Crete, where spare, grim Gen. Manoli Mandakas waited with his guerrilla troops for just such a day.

Down on the coast, a coast Mandakas and his men had not touched by daylight for almost a year, planes swooped low, and 'chutists tumbled earthward, their white, silken domes rocking in the wind. There were bursts of gunfire, planes sped out against the convoy, the smoke of battle rolled across the blue Mediterranean.

The day had come! Down the narrow defiles toward Heraklion and Maleme swarmed Mandaka's partisans, armed to the teeth with machine guns, rifles, grenades, and knives. They swooped upon two German aerodromes, riddled grounded planes with machine gun fire, tossed dynamite into the barracks and hangars, killed 300 surprised Nazis in a quick flurry of fighting, held the bases for more than three hours, and sent out patrols to contact the air borne troops they believed to be invading British.

Then those valiant Greek guerrillas discovered they had made a tragic mistake. The British convoy was not bringing allied invaders to win back strategic Crete—it merely had passed closer than usual to the island and had stirred up a violent, tho unsuccessful, Nazi air attack. The 'chutists were Germans, who, by unhappy coincidence, had been practicing mass landings from airplanes at the very time the convoy appeared. Quickly the Nazis rallied and drove back to their airfields, and Mandaka's men, having destroyed all they could, retreated once more to the hills.

The Germans did not attempt to follow. They had learned, months before, that disaster awaited any troops who attempted to penetrate into the mountains. Instead, they turned fiercely upon the civilian populations, and on June 14 there were cruel massacres in the villages of Heraklion and Canea.

Gen. Mandakas, with 12,000 men, among them nearly 1,000 British and Australian soldiers, have been operating in the mountains of Crete ever since the Germans took the island in the spring of 1941. The highlands are a trackless wilderness and the guerrillas live in the numerous caverns, receiving food supplies from civilians who have refused to be frightened by the German penalties. The Greek partisans have made life misrable for the Nazi occupying forces, scourging the enemy in the lowlands with frequent night raids. The Nazi airfields are never safe, their shipping in the harbors is destroyed the moment they relax vigilance, and they dare not venture away from the coast. Mandakas and his men, surrounded, hunted, low in supplies and food, torment the foe, impede his efficiency, and await the day when the united nations will descend in force upon Crete.

Gen. Mandakas' guerrillas in the mountains of Crete comprise only one of the five large bands of partisan fighters now operating against the Germans, Italians, and Bulgarians in Greece and her islands.

In the Rhodope mountains in northern Greece are Maj. Douras' irregular troops; further south, Leonidas Pappas, a hero of the Balkan wars, harries the Fascists in the passes north and west of Thermopylae, where his immortal namesake, Leonidas of Sparta, died with his brave 300 almost 25 centuries ago. In the hills behind Sparta are the partisan fighters who raided the Italian-held seaport of Calamata; and on Mount Parnassus, storied home of the Greek gods and muses, is the guerrilla band that raids communications between Athens and the north, and has repeatedly cut the rail line to the base at Salonika.

Greece fights on, as the world observing her modern glory against the Italians in Albania, and remembering Marathon and Missolonghi, had expected. Greece fights on, under the most terrible conditions imposed upon any nation under Axis occupation, not even excluding Poland. When the Germans came to the aid of the retreating Italians in the spring of 1941, they stripped Greece of food supplies and left the population starving. Greece normally must import much of its food, and the few supply ships the Red Cross has been able to get thru since have been totally inadequate. It is estimated by Red Cross authorities that in Greece last winter 25,000 persons died every week from starvation or disease induced by hunger. In Athens, according to the Berlin radio, 50,000 children exist in the streets, begging and stealing food scraps, their parents dead or missing since the invasion. The suffering of the people is terrible. The axis campaign is deliberately to enfeeble Greece to the point that civilian resistance is impossible.

The axis in a measure has succeeded. It is estimated that 7,000,000 Greeks, almost the whole population, are starving, and that 350,000 have been starved to death. When a Swedish relief ship arrived at the port of Piraeus, the people were too weak to help unload the grain sacks. They die by the hundreds in the streets, they are too preoccupied by the struggle for existence to conspire against their oppressors.

But still the underground functions, and the guerrilla

The POWER of POWDER

By LOUISE DOOLEY

THE SUBTLE flattery of expert powdering cannot be denied. The magic of face powder properly can help conceal defects of contour and give the skin the depth and quality of soft velvet. And, like its sister cosmetic, lipstick, it is one of those things most women just don't feel dressed without. It's part of the armor against the world that gives a woman confidence to meet any and all situations as they arise.

There are all sorts of opinions and personal preferences as to the type of finish which is most desirable. But whether a light dusting or the "mat" finish is favored, there are a few essentials of technique to be considered. The powder should be applied over a base which will help it cling longer and spread evenly. That also will eliminate to a great degree the constant whipping out of a puff that is so annoying to onlookers.

Powder should be patted generously over the face and throat and then smoothed with light strokes. Many of us make the mistake of bearing down on the puff, almost as if trying to work the stuff into the skin, the last thing we want to do, since it can do the complexion no good. A final light brushing with a powder brush will insure a smooth surface and eliminate the undesirable excess.

Face powder should be selected with great care. It is usually best to use a shade matching the darkest skin tone, and that is not normally around the mouth or nose, but rather the throat. Right now is a good time to select a new shade. The darker shades of summer that looked devastating with a suntan and light clothes do not enhance the whitening skin and darker dress fabrics of this season. It is false economy to go on using a powder just because there is quite a bit left in the box. Put it away for next year and buy a harmonizing tone for this season.

Most women have enough color sense to know the shade that is best suited for them. For those who don't trust their own judgment there are cosmeticians who can be consulted. Their expert opinion is much to be desired if there is any doubt about one's own color sense.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

By ELEANOR NANGLE

MINNESOTA'S Coffman Memorial union, unique for its size, its facilities, and its popularity with the students, is a center of activity that seems more than anything else to knit the enormous enrollment into a cohesive unit. On the average about 12,000 students troop thru its handsome doors every day, bent on errands that range from the necessity of feeding their faces to sustaining their souls with symphony music.

In many rather small ways the union is a natural mirror for the impact of war on the campus inhabitants. Naval ROTC uniforms are abundant; there is a service flag, and very shortly there will be a huge map, union-made, showing the location of camps where Minnesota men are stationed. One room is now set aside for Red Cross, where students make surgical dressings, and in one section of the recreation room there is a unique "war baby." in the way of a handicraft venture.

This project, named the military service crafts, began with a survey of service men to find out what practical gift items they really approved, continued with the sensible step of soliciting scrap material that might be used in making the preferred items, and culminated in a workshop where students can create them in their afternoon leisure. All gifts are inexpensive and, tho designed to extend beyond the bounty of G. I., intensely practical. The most highly approved gifts, easily made, are shower shoes and writing boards (from scrap lumber), identification cords, and flat, flexible sewing kits made of scrap canvas. Runners-up are shoe cleaners and polishers, pipe cases, cribbage boards, and purses. All these are now being made by loving hands for the students' friends in the army and navy.

Both the army and navy are using university facilities, with navy predominating. The naval ROTC unit is huge, and the old union replaced by the Coffman is now the "ship" where several hundred enlisted men in the navy training school for electricians' mates live and study. Another batch of bluejackets—enlisted men taking training as machinists' mates—are stationed on the agricultural campus.

It is the fashion on the campus this year to carry heavy schedules of study. Accordingly the exhausting process of sorority rushing was spread over two weeks, with entertainment permitted only on alternate days. And entertainment was simpler in character and curtailed in cost. House dinners were confined to two courses, and teas were trimmed down along similar lines. Houses vied with one another in providing the most interesting parties at limited cost and made some interesting discoveries about the art of entertaining. Homemade decorations and house talent were the rule everywhere.

EASY DOES IT!

By MAUREEN DALY
(Author of "Seventeenth Summer.")

SOME phases of high school life do give occasion for complaint. There are times when you get bored with the "up in the morning, off to school, here we are in English class, 4 o'clock, evening homework, and so to bed" routine. You can begin to wonder just what is wrong with you—whether a smooth date or a dose of cod liver oil would do you the more good when those schoolday doldrums start pulling your spirits down.

But then high school isn't a session of pink cakes and tea for any one. It is a job as difficult and as demanding of hard work as any job you will have after graduation. And it is up to you to shake off the blues and keep yourself needled into the proper state of enthusiasm necessary to doing a good job. By working hard and getting a kick out of things that are fun you can keep yourself from becoming "bored of education."

It will be smooth sailing if you can keep that same wide-eyed, "life is good" attitude you had when school started in the fall and make it last thru the year. "You've got your coat, you've got your pants—don't lost your zest." Keeping yourself alert and on your mental toes is half the job.

Think how much more pleasant it is for a teacher to teach a class that has its feet on the floor and all eyes wide open. She'll catch the stimulus of your interest and pass it back to you. Keep your mind off the clock and the girl sitting next to you and really be attentive to what is going on. You won't have to worry then about intensive review and last-minute exam cramming, because what you have heard and read with interest will stick with you. You'll get a kick out of school, and a history class session will be as much fun as an hour in the gym after school.

And there are forces other than mental that keep your energies up. Take very seriously those hours you spend in your little white bed, and do your sheep counting from 10 in the evening to 7 in the morning rather than from first hour English to last hour elementary biology. And tho you wouldn't expect your mother to rise at the crack of dawn to prepare your cornmeal mush, four soft-boiled eggs, and a rasher of bacon, it takes something more than a quick glass of orange juice for breakfast to keep your vitality from ebbing before the noon hour. And the same holds true for the lunch-time pickup.

There is nothing that will sap your interest more quickly than a self-assumed attitude of boredom toward everything. Those moods usually come on for one of two reasons—either you think you are good or you are afraid that other people don't. And sometimes the results are disastrous.

This aloof and superior air doesn't get you far in making friends, either. Beyond the circle of your immediate suitors no one is going to bother much to find out what you are really like when you are not putting on an act. And you don't really fool any one.

The same holds true for fellows who see too many Cary Grant movies and start using perfumed brilliantine on their hair. That ultra man of the world, "O, what I've seen" attitude doesn't hold when you get in a crowd of smart boys who have really been around but who don't make a point of showing it.

Girls like fellows neat, not natty. Be careful not to become too zoot-suit-minded—just hitch up your watch chain and act the same way you would if you had on your old work trousers and a sweat shirt.

Everything is so much more fun if you work hard and stay natural. Don't let a yearning for sophistication cramp your style or you will end up so confused you won't know what you are aiming to be. Really be all out for school and school work, and from then on—easy does it!

OIL! HOW PIPE LINES SPEED ITS TRANSPORTATION

The Graphic Laboratory of Popular Science

By GUY MURCHIE

TO GET a fair picture of oil as an American industry, visualize great stretches of eastern Texas, Oklahoma, southern California, and southern Illinois bristling with oil derricks like primeval forests and gurgling forth oil into tanks, pipe lines, tankers, and tank cars at the rate of four million barrels a day.

Oil tank ships, known as tankers, are the cheapest way of moving large quantities of oil, and in June, 1929, one ship in every six on all the oceans was a tanker. At that time there were 1,731 tankers of more than 1,000 tons under all flags. American oil moved to the big refineries and markets of the east coast largely by tankers which sailed from the gulf ports of Texas. Something like 90 per cent of the oil consumed in the east was brought there that way, because it cost only 1⅛ cents to deliver a gallon of gasoline or crude oil from the gulf to New York by tanker.

By pipe line it costs about 2 cents for the same distance. However, a vast network of pipe lines has grown up in America to move the oil where tankers cannot go. And a sizable amount of oil has always been moved by the railroads, too, over inland stretches where there are yet no pipe lines or navigable rivers. It costs around 5½ cents a gallon to move oil from Texas to New York by tank car, altho railroad men say that this cost may in time be reduced to 3 cents. River barges are a fourth method of transporting oil, but they have been used relatively little in peacetime, because barges are not as efficient as the seagoing tankers and have not been able to meet the competition of the pipe lines.

But now the war has struck the oil industry and brought great changes. It has struck it not at its source, the oil fields, nor to a great extent at any part of oil production, the refineries, the cracking plants, the factories where innumerable petroleum products, solid, liquid, and vaporous, are converted into finished goods. Oil production is going on in approximately the same volume as before the war. It is oil transportation that has received the blow—sea transportation by tanker, across the oceans and up the coasts of America. That is the cause of gasoline rationing in the east and of the nation-wide rationing to come.

To describe the effort that is being made to move the daily millions of barrels of oil by land instead of by sea to their far-flung destinations it is necessary to picture the 130,000 miles of pipe lines that cover the country, principally running northward from Texas and Oklahoma and stretching east and west between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic coast. It may give a better realization of the multiplicity of these lines to say that there is more than a mile of them for every four miles of paved highway or railroad line in the United States. They also form a tremendous reservoir of oil, amounting to 21,000,000 barrels of crude petroleum, gasoline, and distillates, moving at any one moment at the rate of three or four miles on hour from well to refinery or from refinery to fuel station or from storage tank to factory.

Twenty-ton machine digs pipe line trench 38 inches deep, two feet wide, at rate of mile and an eighth a day.

Each pipe can take different kinds of oil products at different times as occasion demands. There is a shift at present toward fuel oils and 100-octane gasoline. When a new product is introduced into a pipe, replacing another nearly like it in appearance, a quantity of dye is injected between the end of the first and the beginning of the second product to enable watchers at key points along the line to note the change beyond any doubt. Pipes are cleaned out occasionally by sending thru them a device known as a "go-devil," which is a small round carriage with tiny wheels on top and bottom, with rotating scrapers out in front and heavy rubber washers after that fit into the pipe.

Pumps and pumping stations must be provided at intervals to keep the liquid moving, especially at up-grades. River crossings and junctions of several pipe lines create special problems.

The great reduction in numbers of tankers is naturally putting added strain on all the pipe lines connecting areas normally served by the tankers. Pumps are pumping faster and new pumps are being installed. In many cases the flow of oil thru pipes is being reversed, and that necessitates considerable new pump installation, especially in hilly country where the upgrades have been shifted to the opposite sides of the hills. The difficulty of obtaining this type of equipment is probably the biggest bottle neck of the oil transportation revision.

In the case of the railroads also great readjustment is being made to move more and more oil. There are 62,000 odd tank cars available for supplying the eastern seaboard. The railroads aim to deliver at the rate of 1,000,000 barrels a day and are working every locomotive they can get the longest possible hours. To accomplish their goal they must roll each tank car an average of 500 miles daily, far faster than the railroads ever highballed freight before. They have already passed the mark of 800,000 barrels a day.

River barges are adding to the total oil delivered by tankers, pipe lines, and tank cars in increasing numbers, negotiating such waterways as the Mississippi and the Ohio the year around to supply Pennsylvania refineries with gulf crude oil. Some barges are being built of concrete.

There is a complex interrelationship between the different oil transportation methods, and elaborate plans are right now being worked out by the planning authorities to solve the whole problem in the most efficient manner. A new 24-inch pipe is being built between Texas and southern Illinois to supply extra oil to the Illinois oil area, from which existing pipe lines can move the oil north and east. Other pipe lines will cut off bends in rivers to reduce the distance barges have to haul their cargoes, and the barges in turn will reduce the distance tank cars have to go by rail.

A natural gas pipe line in California will be converted to part of a new hookup carrying crude oil from Kettleman Hills to refineries on San Francisco bay, thus making the bay plants entirely independent of ocean-borne supplies. In some cases existing pipe lines may be dug up and moved to new locations where they are more needed, thus speeding transportation, while sparing steel for tankers or pumping equipment. Pipe lines which formerly carried oil west from tanker docks in New Jersey to refineries near Pittsburgh will be reversed to carry oil from Ohio river barge docks to the east coast markets. A new line will deliver oil from the Tinsley, Miss., field to a point on the Tennessee river to take advantage of the downstream haul from there northward into the canalized Ohio. Another from Tiffin, O., to Doylestown in the same state will link several midwest refineries direct with the eastern seaboard.

It may be asked what is becoming of the Oklahoma and Texas oil while these new transportation schemes are being worked out. Since the tankers can take only a small percentage of their former aggregate tonnage, where does the excess go? The answer is that oil production has been temporarily reduced to allow for most of the transportation inadequacy. By agreement between the oil companies, oil overproduction is effectively obviated.

Thus the industry keeps from wasting its raw material, of which there is by no means an unlimited supply, while at the same time research goes forward toward making more and more efficient use of each barrel pumped from the ground. Butadiene for synthetic rubber and 100-octane aviation gasoline are two of the most important new products which research chemists are still working on.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

By BOB BECKER

OF ALL the home remedies for dog ailments which owners may keep in a canine medicine kit we doubt if any one is more abused than worm medicine. The trouble is that far too many owners look upon drugs prescribed for intestinal parasites as general cure-alls. This point of view is awfully hard on a little puppy, for the drugs which are effective against worms are powerful and must be used with discretion.

The letters which we receive from dog owners in the course of a year tell us how dogs suffer from too many doses of worm medicine. For example, an owner writes that her puppy isn't eating very well. Already two doses of worm medicine have been given the animal, and the owner reports that it still has no appetite! Whether the poor pup's lack of appetite was due to intestinal parasites, distemper, or other trouble isn't determined. The animal is sick, so the owner administers a worm capsule in the belief that it will help. We receive hundreds of letters of this type every year. They tell us that dogs are being given worm medicine for just about everything from watery eyes to unthrifty skin and coat.

There isn't any doubt but that among novice dog owners worms is the most overworked diagnosis that an owner can make when he tries to figure out what's wrong with his dog. The next time you have occasion to take your dog to a veterinarian ask him to list some of the more common ailments which inexperienced owners diagnose as worms. You will be surprised at this list. For example, we know of one owner who administered worm medicine because his dog began to lick one foot! The animal actually was developing a small cyst. But it got worm medicine.

The Afghan hound, one of the most unusual breeds recognized by dog fanciers, was known as early as 3000 B. C. Both of these fine specimens are international champions. One is named Rudiki of Pride's Hill and the other Rana of Chamm. They are owned by Marion Foster Florsheim of Darien, Conn. (Ylla photo.)

We always remember the statement of a veterinarian regarding the ill effects of worm medicine when given to a sick puppy that may be coming down with distemper or some other ailment which the owner wrongly diagnoses as worms. "To give a sick dog a dose of worm medicine, especially one developing distemper, is like putting gasoline on a fire." In other words, if you administer worm medicine to your pup when he's below par, and should not be dosed with a worm capsule, you are making the dog sicker.

Among the points about worms and medicines to combat them which every owner should keep in mind are these: Don't let anybody tell you that a puppy should be wormed every week. (That's a fine way to get rid of your dog!) While it is true that most puppies must be wormed, they usually are treated by the breeder before being sold. If in doubt about the pup's condition, talk to a veterinarian rather than give the pup a lot of medicine it doesn't need. When you buy a puppy be sure to ask the seller when the pup was wormed and if he believes it should be given another dose.

Don't listen to the person who tells you that every dog needs a good dose of worm medicine every spring as a "tonic." That's buncombe. In a final analysis the problem of worms as it affects your dog is this: Most dogs do have worms (there are several different kinds). But there is only one sure way for the novice owner to determine their presence in his dog, and that is by a veterinarian's microscopic examination. The amateur can do the worming at home, but we prefer to give a veterinarian the job of finding out what kind of worms the dog has, if any.

WILL I LIKE FRISKIES?
YES! FRISKIES IS "TASTE TESTED!"

Q. What is meant by "taste-tested"?

A. We mean that the ingredients in Friskies have been scientifically blended to accentuate the flavor most relished by dogs, as revealed in more than ten years actual "taste tests" in the Friskies laboratory kennels at the Carnation Farm.

Q. Does Friskies provide a well-rounded diet?

A. Yes—Friskies contains 19 essential ingredients necessary for proper nutrition. These include meat and bone scraps for the proteins all dogs need, with specially prepared cereals, dried skimmed milk, important minerals and six vitamins!

Q. Is Friskies easy on the budget?

A. Yes. You see, Friskies contains everything your dog needs in the way of food—and there's no waste. What's more, Friskies is clean, convenient, easy to store and handle.

Pictures such as this portrait can be taken in the home and do not require studio lighting equipment. Only two lights—one 500-watt spot and one 500-watt flood—were used in this shot, actually taken in a home.

Know Your Camera

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

CONTRARY to popular belief, the easiest way of taking good pictures is to use your camera indoors in artificial light. The reason for this is that any photographer has complete control over his light indoors and can pose his model and arrange his background at will.

Three types of artificial light are at the disposal of photographers—ordinary light bulbs, flood lamps, and flash bulbs. The latter two are less expensive than most amateurs realize, and they can be used satisfactorily without investing too much money in such auxiliary equipment as reflectors, spotlights, and flash synchronizers.

The only reason why ordinary light bulbs are usually insufficient for indoor photography is that they are too weak to give proper exposure with the slower films and lenses which most amateurs use. But if you happen to have one or more 500-watt bulbs in your house you can use them for photographic purposes. This is especially true if you place them in reflectors, so that you don't waste the greater part of the light, and if you buy some fast film for your camera. With such a combination you will not have to resort to time exposures.

The best light source for indoor pictures is, however, the photoflood lamp. These flood bulbs look like ordinary light bulbs and can be used in the same sockets. However, their filaments burn much brighter. The No. 1 flood bulb, which is about the size of an ordinary 60-watt bulb, gives light equivalent to a 250-watt bulb. It is inexpensive and the most suitable for amateur work. The No. 2 photoflood is a 500-watt bulb, costing less than the ordinary 500-watt bulbs. On the other hand, the life of these flood bulbs is much shorter than the life of ordinary bulbs. It runs only three to six hours, but if you are careful in their use you can take many pictures with just one set. With equipment consisting of two or three No. 1 bulbs, or one No. 2 bulb for a main light and one No. 1 bulb for an auxiliary or fill-in light, you can take indoor portraits, still lifes, table tops, and many other types of pictures.

Finally, you can use flash bulbs even if you do not own a synchronizer which automatically flashes the bulb when your shutter opens. You can open the shutter on "time," set off the bulb with an ordinary flashlight battery case which has a suitable socket to take flash bulbs, and close the shutter after the exposure has been made. This method can be employed wherever the room illumination is not too bright. Because these bulbs give short flashes of 1/200 sec. or even briefer, you can photograph action shots indoors.

Your photographic results with artificial light will depend largely on how you use your light bulbs. All except the flash bulbs can be screwed into the sockets of any light fixtures, and you can get nice effects by placing a No. 2 flood bulb in a bridge lamp. But to utilize the greater part of the light output of your bulbs you should use reflectors. The simplest reflector is any kind of bright surface placed behind the bare bulb. Such an arrangement will give you strong but "raw" light which casts harsh shadows. This may be desirable in some cases, but in most instances, especially for portraiture, you will want a softer, more diffused illumination.

Always watch the shadows cast by your lights before taking a picture. The reason for using reflectors and more than one light source is to avoid undesirable shadows and to balance your lighting. Use one of your lights as a main light, illuminating brightly that part of your subject which you want to dominate your picture. But don't forget the opposite side of the subject, which remains completely dark if you use only one light. Place a second, weaker light on this side, throwing just enough light into the shadows to avoid the appearance of black spots, with a complete lack of detail, in the picture.

A single flood lamp placed in a home lighting fixture can produce informal portraits such as this. The light should be shielded, as it will spoil the picture if it shines directly into the lens. For getting full value from your light bulbs, use good reflectors.

UNDERGROUND—Greece Fights On!

troops, able to subsist in the hills, make their desperate raids into the axis strongholds. This resistance already has proved of immense benefit to the allied cause, for Greece, with the longest shore line in Europe, is an important axis base for air and naval operations in the middle east, and it lies across a supply line, via Bulgaria and Rumania, to the German troops fighting in south Russia. Greece will become even more important if the Germans sweep south thru the Caucasus, and hand an ultimatum to Turkey. Acts of sabotage and guerrilla warfare are particularly useful to the united nations in such a vital area.

The axis forces of occupation in Greece cluster in the low lying plains and the coastal regions. But about four-fifths of the country is rugged highland, with almost no roads and few communications. It is in such districts that the partisan fighters maintain their strength, and the axis troops have not dared to go after them.

In the spring of this year the Greek guerrillas rose to the peak of their power. During the winter months they had organized their forces, and established contact with Gen. Draja Mihailovitch in Jugo-Slavia. They planned what might be called an offensive in Greece in connection with the drive of the Chetnik leader in Serbia—both timed to help upset the Nazi time table in Russia. On May 22, after a series of sporadic raids, the guerrillas under Maj. Douras, believed to number almost 15,000 men, began their campaign from a base in the Rhodope mountains. At the same time a series of raids in Albania by 5,000 Greeks forced the Italians to raise their garrison in that country to 100,000 men.

Douras' men swept down upon a Bulgarian camp, killed a number of soldiers, and seized machine guns and other supplies. Thus armed, they turned upon the German controled railroad which was moving troops toward the Russian front. Two troop trains were attacked before the railroad was cut, and several hundred German soldiers were killed. A third train was blown up near Drama, northeast of Salonika, enemy casualties unknown. At the same time the guerrillas mined the only motor road from Greece to Bulgaria and further halted German military traffic.

While Mihailovitch drove eastward in Serbia, the Greeks extended their campaign thru most of Seres and Drava provinces, killing more than 1,000 Germans. Two Bulgarian transports were blown up in their harbor, and far to the south another band of guerrillas descended upon the Italian held Calamata, killing, among others, the Italian police chief, Col. Sassini.

In Athens and the port of Piraeus the guerrilla offensive was a signal for an uprising among the population. A few Italians were killed, war production and transportation sabotaged. Then the Greeks looked on happily while the Germans and Italians, their nerves frayed, fought in the saloons and shot at one another in the streets.

The guerrillas were soon driven back to their mountains. But the Italians had been forced to increase their garrison to 250,000 men, while the German occupying forces totaled in excess of 70,000.

Hunger and disease rage in Greece. Athens winter street scene.

The Germans knew that Greece would not bow to the new order from the first moment they entered the country. They had watched, with evident enjoyment, while the Greeks chased the Italians about the Albanian hills, but their appreciation of good fighting men did not incline them to give Greece honorable treatment when their own panzer divisions rolled in. The following Nazi army pillaged the towns, seized the cattle and crops, and destroyed all points of possible resistance as it moved along. It was intended that Greece should be utterly helpless before the Italians were invited to come in and take control.

The Greeks already had an underground, forced into existence under the dictatorship of Gen. John Metaxas. Even while the Germans were moving in, the underground was busy, destroying supplies of possible use to the enemy, aiding British and Australian soldiers to escape. No sooner had the Germans entered Athens, April 27, 1941, than the German command issued the following order:

"Because German military flags have been pulled down and torn from public buildings, because the Greek people are hoarding foodstuffs and preventing them from reaching German soldiers, because of the Greek population's sympathy with British prisoners, and because the Greek press refuses to conform to the new order, the German authorities in Greece have decided that in future those found guilty of the above mentioned offenses will be shot."

The Germans quickly decided that shooting those actively resisting was not enough, they began killing hostages and destroying villages. Then, having looted the country of all food supplies, and having secured their strategic points for future military operations, the Nazis turned the rest of Greece over to Italy and Bulgaria.

The Bulgars were installed in the fertile northern provinces of Macedonia and Thrace. There, according to the Greek government in exile, they killed off 10,000 civilians and drove 70,000 more from their farms. In the beginning the Bulgarian troops were welcomed by the Comitadji of Macedonia. These guerrillas, next to the Chetniks, are the toughest fighters in Europe, and for several hundred years they have fought anybody who attempted to occupy their land. The Comitadji, however, hated the Greeks and the Serbs, and were friendly with Bulgaria, which had sheltered their leaders for a number of years. There is evidence that some of the Comitadji collaborated with the Bulgars in an attempt to exterminate the Greek population in Macedonia. But more recently others of these mountain fighters have seen the meaning of the "New Order" and now revolt is flaming anew in Macedonia. The Greek prime minister, Emmanuel Tsouderos, last month enumerated some of the axis crimes in that unhappy district as follows:

"The first massacre began in the Drama-Cavalla region. Bulgarain motorcyclists and other garian motorcyclists and other the villages of the district spreading the rumor that revolution had broken out in Bulgaria, and exhorting the inhabitants to rise in arms. The villagers had no arms, and consequently the Bulgarian provocations, wherever they were believed, could only bring forth rather harmless manifestations. Extensive massacres began in the towns of Cavalla, Drama, Doxato, Prosotsani, Photoloives, and in eight villages. Mass executions took place. The Bulgarian aircraft bombed and destroyed eight towns and villages and set two others on fire. Fleeing inhabitants were machine gunned by Bulgarian troops posted at the entrances of the towns and villages. It is not known how many died, the last figure that reached the Greek government was 3,800 in Prosotsani alone. Following the massacres more than 100,000 Greeks from the Bulgarian occupied provinces took refuge in other parts of Greece, where the most appalling famine prevails. The persecutions did not stop here. Hostages are still being taken by the hundred from practically every town in eastern Macedonia and western Thrace, and shooting at random is carried out everywhere. The River Strymon is carrying bodies of Greeks tightly tied together."

Such atrocities have caused some of the Comitadji to forget their hatred of the Greeks and to join forces against the Bulgars. The extent of the latest action in Macedonia, following the massacres, is not yet known, but the German radio has revealed that 800 "bandits" were captured and executed. Such men are not bandits, but guerrillas fighting for their homes, and if the axis has finally aroused the Comitadji, the terrors of the Balkans for generations, they may expect further trouble in Macedonia, and the fighting Greeks will have help they badly need.

Latest reports from Greece indicate that, in spite of the starving condition of the country, the underground war has not diminished. Early this month widespread fighting broke out when the Italian carabinieri attempted to take the Greek harvest. Peasant turned upon the Italians with scythes and knives. Many of them were seized, and others were held as hostages, but the guerrillas raided the concentration camps and freed the prisoners. Greeks in the Agrinion district burned their crops, and the farmers of the western Peloponnese threw their crop of currants and raisins into the sea. "Clashes are still continuing in many parts of Greece," said the report.

Outside Greece, the Hellenes battle on. Twenty-seventh among nations in size, Greece ranked ninth in the power of its navy and merchant marine, and almost the whole of the royal navy and the merchant fleet escaped the Nazis. The Greek naval units joined with the British, operating in the Indian ocean and the Mediterranean area, where in one month it sank two German submarines and several axis transports. The Greek air force personnel escaped almost intact—900 men—and it now has been equipped with American and British planes and is participating in the campaigns in the middle east. Two brigades of Greek soldiers are a part of the allied army in Egypt, and the Greek merchant fleet has given 1,800,000 tons of vitally needed shipping to the cause of the united nations.

Recently the Italians and Germans, frightened themselves by the epidemics that have followed the famine in Greece, have agreed to the shipment of foodstuffs and medical supplies into the country. Canada has agreed to supply grain, the Swedes have furnished some ships, and campaigns for Greek relief funds are now being conducted in the United States. Distribution of the supplies will be supervised by the Red Cross, and the need is desperate.

Helps you to wake up "feeling like a million". Read the directions on package and take as directed thereon or as prescribed by your physician.

ONE-TWO ACTION

1 NEUTRALIZES EXCESS STOMACH ACIDS—and does it almost quicker than it takes to tell. Relieves that uneasy feeling of discomfort almost immediately.

2 ACTS AS MILD LAXATIVE. Gentle—does not upset the system and leave you feeling "all wrung out". Take any time—does not act with embarrassing urgency.

We must amaze the seals at Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus as much as they do us. They surely can't comprehend the tired look many of us wear. Let us explain, Mr. Seal. Some of us are kept awake by the caffein in coffee. But others are smart enough to drink Sanka Coffee, which can't keep anyone awake. It is 97% caffein-free. It is real coffee ... all coffee ... only the caffein is removed. The flavor stays in! Fellow humans, if the caffein in coffee keeps you up, get this delicious blend of fine coffees now, vacuum-packed in glass or tin. For Sanka at its best, follow directions carefully.

SANKA COFFEE

Sleep isn't a luxury; it's a necessity. Drink Sanka and sleep!

MORE FOR YOUR MONEY!

Walnuts offer you one of the most tasty, nutritious and economical foods you can buy —plentiful, too!

don't miss this TWO-WAY BARGAIN for your wartime meals—

Right now, when nourishing yet appetizing meals are such a problem, just see the double value walnuts give your menus:

FIRST—walnuts are a bargain in nourishment! Take a look at the table below and see how much food value walnuts add to your daily diet. It's easy to understand why they're one of the foods recommended in the national nutrition program!

SECOND—no matter how much your meals feel the pinch of high prices and food shortages, walnuts keep menus from getting dull — and do it at little cost! Add walnuts to fruit or vegetable salads for more crisp goodness. Taste the delicious variety they give your hot breads, cakes, cookies, puddings and other economy desserts.

There are no restrictions on walnuts. California's big crop lets you enjoy all you want.

And remember this: for fresh kernels, always plump and tender, insist on "Diamonds" when you buy! They're so much better!

WALNUTS HAVE WHAT YOUR BODY NEEDS

Let walnuts help you serve the balanced meals your government recommends. For walnuts are a really balanced food — a pound of kernels furnishes a nearly adequate day's rations for an average adult. And, of course, smaller quantities, in salads, cookies, breads, and desserts, contribute these diet essentials in the same proportion.

The following table shows how closely a pound of walnut kernels parallels the recommended adult diet.

	DAILY NEEDS	ONE POUND OF WALNUT KERNELS
Calories	2500-4500	3210
Proteins	60-70 gms.	78 gms.
Calcium	0.8 gms.	0.45 gms.
Phosphorus	0.52-1.2 "	1.70 "
Iron	.012 "	.010 "

MR. EX
by Bert Whitman
BRRR! IF I DON'T GET OUT OF HERE SOON, IT'LL BE TOO BAD!
EX IS HELD PRISONER IN THE CAFE REFRIGERATOR BY HATA AND KREIG!
MEANWHILE: KREIG, HAVING KILLED HATA'S BROTHER WHOM HE MISTOOK FOR MR. EX, TRIES TO PACIFY HER ---
I WILL FORGIVE YOU FOR SLAPPING ME---IN THE FUTURE NO HYSTERICS--- WHERE IS THIS MR. EX?
COME- HE IS WELL TAKEN CARE OF!
THE CLIMATE TOO COOL FOR YOU IN THERE?
WHY, NO! IT'S AS NEAR TO HEAVEN AS I'VE EVER BEEN!
THEN WE'LL MAKE CERTAIN YOU GET THERE!
IF YOU HADN'T COME HERE MY BROTHER BRUCE WOULD BE ALIVE-- NOW YOU SHALL PAY FOR HIS DEATH!
COME, MY HATA- WE SHALL COMPLETE OUR DUTIES--WE WILL TAKE THE CHAMPAGNE BOTTLE FILLED WITH THE HIGH EXPLOSIVE, AND SEE THAT IT IS PLANTED AT THE SHIPYARD!
YES! - HOPE HE IS CONSCIOUS LONG ENOUGH TO HEAR THE SHIP BLOW UP!
I'VE GOT T-TO STOP THEM--- (YAWN!)
THE BELOW FREEZING TEMPERATURE BEGINS TO TAKE EFFECT--
BUT - I'M GETTING SLEEPY---
NEXT WEEK... PRELUDE TO DISASTER.

HOLY SMOKE! GRASP'S DYNAMITING THE PASS!!
VESTA! VESTA!! CAN YOU HEAR ME? ARE YOU ALL RIGHT?!
SHE COULDN'T HAVE GONE VERY FAR BEFORE THAT EXPLOSION CAME, PARDNER!!
HALLOO!
THAT'S HER VOICE! SHE MUST BE COMING BACK THIS WAY!!!
PINKY! I SAW THE WHOLE THING! GRASP'S PLAN FAILED! THE EXPLOSION ONLY CUT OFF PART OF THE PASS! WE CAN EASILY GET OUR STEERS OUT!
IT WAS A CORKIN' SHOW WHILE IT LASTED, THOUGH!
GOSH!
FROM WHERE I STOOD WITH TRAVELER I COULD SEE GRASP AND HIS MEN RIDING AWAY TO THE EAST-- THEY GOT AWAY!!
LOOK HERE, YOUNG FELLER, YOU AN' TH' GAL HAD BETTER MAKE TRACKS BACK TO YOUR PLACE AN' GIT SOME REST! I'LL HANDLE THIS HERE GALOOT!
WELL, THAT'S THAT, VESTA! TH' SHERIFF JUST 'PHONED AN' SAID GRASP'S SKIPPED TOWN - BAG AN' BAGGAGE!
THE MONEY WE OWE HIM WILL ALWAYS BE WAITING FOR HIM- IF HE CARES TO COME BACK AND COLLECT!!
THERE WAS ONE LITTLE ITEM TH' SHERIFF TOLD ME THAT I PLUMB NEGLECTED TO PASS ON TO VESTA, PINKY--

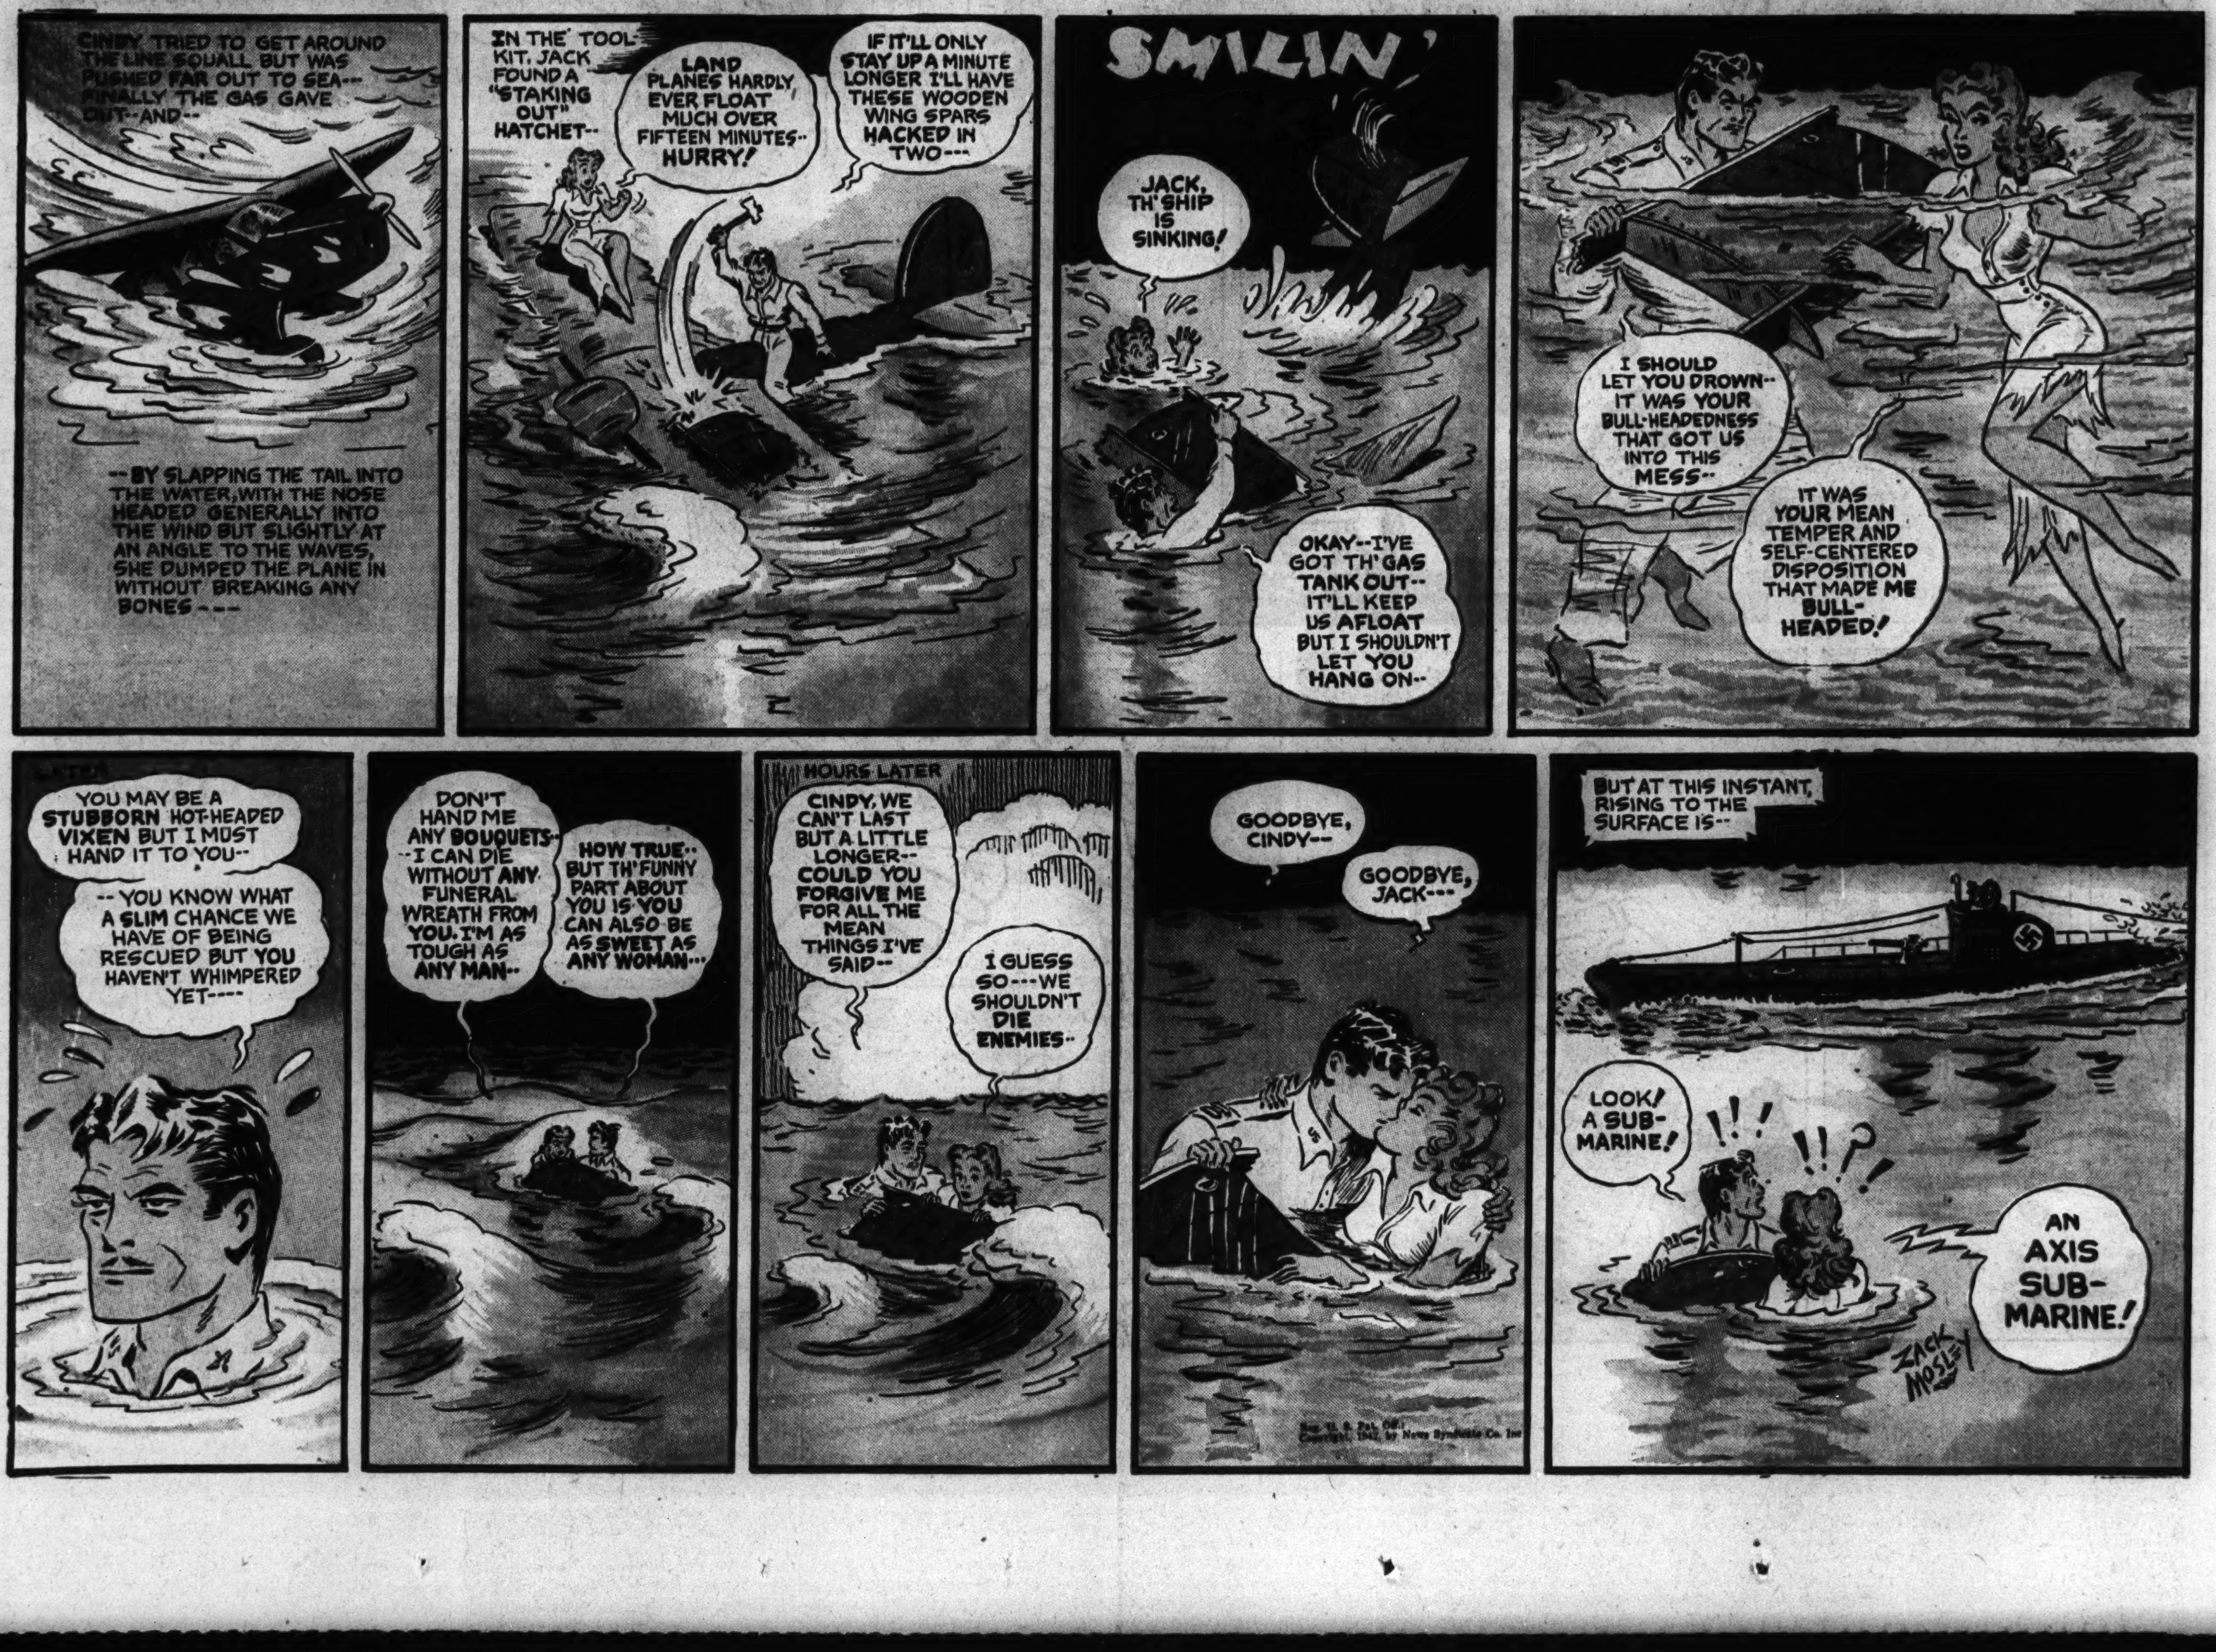
DICK TRACY
YOU SEE, WE SUSPECT SOME CRIMINAL SIGNALS ARE BEING PASSED BACK AND FORTH OVER THIS JUKE BOX SYSTEM AND WE WANT TO LISTEN IN.
AS PRESIDENT OF THE COMPANY THAT OPERATES THE BOXES, I WANT TO GIVE YOU EVERY BIT OF CO-OPERATION I CAN, MR. TRACY.
THERE'S CAL. HE'S THE ONE WHO ALWAYS PUTS A NICKEL IN THE MACHINE, BUT NEVER STAYS TO HEAR THE MUSIC.
REQUEST JUKE BOX
YOUR MAN'S UPSTAIRS. HE JUST CAME IN.
THE EARPHONES ARE ALL READY.
HELLO--- THIS IS CAL--- --TELL BOCHE---I'M MAKING THE FIRST EXPERIMENTS TONIGHT. I'LL REPORT TO HIM TOMORROW
REQUEST JUKE BOX
VERY GOOD, SIR. YOUR NUMBER IS COMING UP, SIR.
BOCHE? BOCHE? EXPERIMENTS? REPORT TOMORROW?
WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT, TRACY?
DENNIS, OUR NEXT MOVE IS TO GET OUR HANDS ON THE LITTLE LADY WHO PLAYS THE RECORDS.
ARREST HER QUIETLY WITHOUT ATTRACTING ANY ATTENTION. BRING HER TO MY ROOM.
LATER—
WHAT DO YOU MEAN, AM I GOOD AT IMITATING VOICES?
JUST WHAT I SAID, FRIZZLETOP, I WANT YOU TO STUDY THIS JUKE GIRL'S VOICE AND IMPERSONATE HER IN THAT CONTROL ROOM.
WE'VE GOT TO GET MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THIS BOCHE AND CAL BEFORE WE MAKE ANY ARRESTS.
-APPARENTLY HE'S DEVELOPING A CHEMICAL FOR SOMEONE-MAYBE A FOREIGN POWER.
AND IN ANOTHER PART OF TOWN—
AND NOW TO REMOVE MY PRECIOUS CHEMICALS FROM THEIR HIDING PLACE.
SEALED IN CAPSULES AND FROZEN IN ICE CUBES. NO ONE WOULD EVER THINK TO LOOK THERE FOR MY INGREDIENTS.
THIS DEADLY "GAS" WILL BE DISPENSED FROM AIRPLANES IN THE FORM OF MIST. ONE DROP ON THE SKIN-INSTANT DEATH. NOW FOR MY FINAL TESTS.



CINDY TRIED TO GET AROUND THE LINE SQUALL BUT WAS PUSHED FAR OUT TO SEA--- FINALLY THE GAS GAVE OUT--AND--

JACK, TH' SHIP IS SINKING!
OKAY--I'VE GOT TH' GAS TANK OUT-- IT'LL KEEP US AFLOAT BUT I SHOULDN'T LET YOU HANG ON--
I SHOULD LET YOU DROWN-- IT WAS YOUR BULL-HEADEDNESS THAT GOT US INTO THIS MESS--
IT WAS YOUR MEAN TEMPER AND SELF-CENTERED DISPOSITION THAT MADE ME BULL-HEADED!
LATER
YOU MAY BE A STUBBORN HOT-HEADED VIXEN BUT I MUST HAND IT TO YOU--
-- YOU KNOW WHAT A SLIM CHANCE WE HAVE OF BEING RESCUED BUT YOU HAVEN'T WHIMPERED YET----
DON'T HAND ME ANY BOUQUETS-- --I CAN DIE WITHOUT ANY FUNERAL WREATH FROM YOU. I'M AS TOUGH AS ANY MAN--
HOW TRUE-- BUT TH' FUNNY PART ABOUT YOU IS YOU CAN ALSO BE AS SWEET AS ANY WOMAN--- HOURS LATER
CINDY, WE CAN'T LAST BUT A LITTLE LONGER-- COULD YOU FORGIVE ME FOR ALL THE MEAN THINGS I'VE SAID--
I GUESS SO---WE SHOULDN'T DIE ENEMIES--

WHY DID YOU FOLLOW US HERE? SPEAK UP, BOY, OR I'LL-- GUS EDSON
I'VE GOT TO THINK FAST- I-I WASN'T FOLLOWING YOU, SASCHA- I WAS RUNNING AWAY!!
RUNNING AWAY? A LIKELY STORY- WHAT WERE YOU RUNNING AWAY FROM??
W-WELL, THERE WAS A FIRE AT THE CARAVAN- THE POLICE CAME- I THOUGHT THEY MIGHT RECOGNIZE ME, SO I LEFT- YOU SEE, I ESCAPED FROM REFORM SCHOOL BEFORE I JOINED THE CARAVAN-
WHY DIDN'T YOU TELL ME ALL THIS BEFORE, BOY?
THEN YOU AREN'T GOING TO TURN ME OVER TO THE POLICE?
OF COURSE NOT! IN FACT, I MIGHT EVEN LET YOU SHARE IN A LITTLE DEAL WE'RE ABOUT TO PULL OFF--
-SASCHA! HAVE YOU GONE SOFT? WE CAN'T BE BOTHERED WITH THAT-SHUT UP FOOL! WE'LL USE THAT KID TO FURTHER OUR PLAN- LATER WE CAN DO AWAY WITH HIM--
-BUT HOW?
WE FIGURE TO STOP THE PAYROLL CAR- QUIETLY DO AWAY WITH THE GUARDS- WRECK THE CAR AND SCRAM WITH THE MONEY!
YES BUT I DON'T SEE---
WHAT BETTER INSURANCE CAN WE CARRY THAN TO HAVE THAT INNOCENT-LOOKING BOY STEP OUT ON THE ROAD AND ASK THOSE GUYS FOR A LIFT- THEN WE SPRING OUT OF THE BUSHES--- SASCHA!
THE PAYROLL CAR!! IT'S COMING!!!
O.K.- YOU GUYS KNOW WHAT TO DO! KEEP CLOSE TO ME, BOY- DO AS I SAY!!
MEANWHILE—AT THE CARAVAN—
SO YOU'RE CHESTER'S COUSIN? I-I DON'T KNOW HOW TO APOLOGIZE--
YOU'RE VERY BRAVE- SMALL WONDER THAT CHESTER SENT FOR ME TO HELP YOU-- STAND GUARD OVER THOSE TWO SWABS! IF ANYTHING'S HAPPENED TO CHESTER THAT SASCHA WILL NEVER LIVE TO BRAG ABOUT IT!!
NOW, BOY! YOU STEP INTO THE ROAD- STOP THAT CAR AND ASK FOR A LIFT- WE'LL DO THE REST- AND REMEMBER- I HAVE YOU COVERED!!
YES, SIR-
I'VE GOT TO WARN THE MEN IN THAT CAR- IF IT'S THE LAST THING I DO!!!

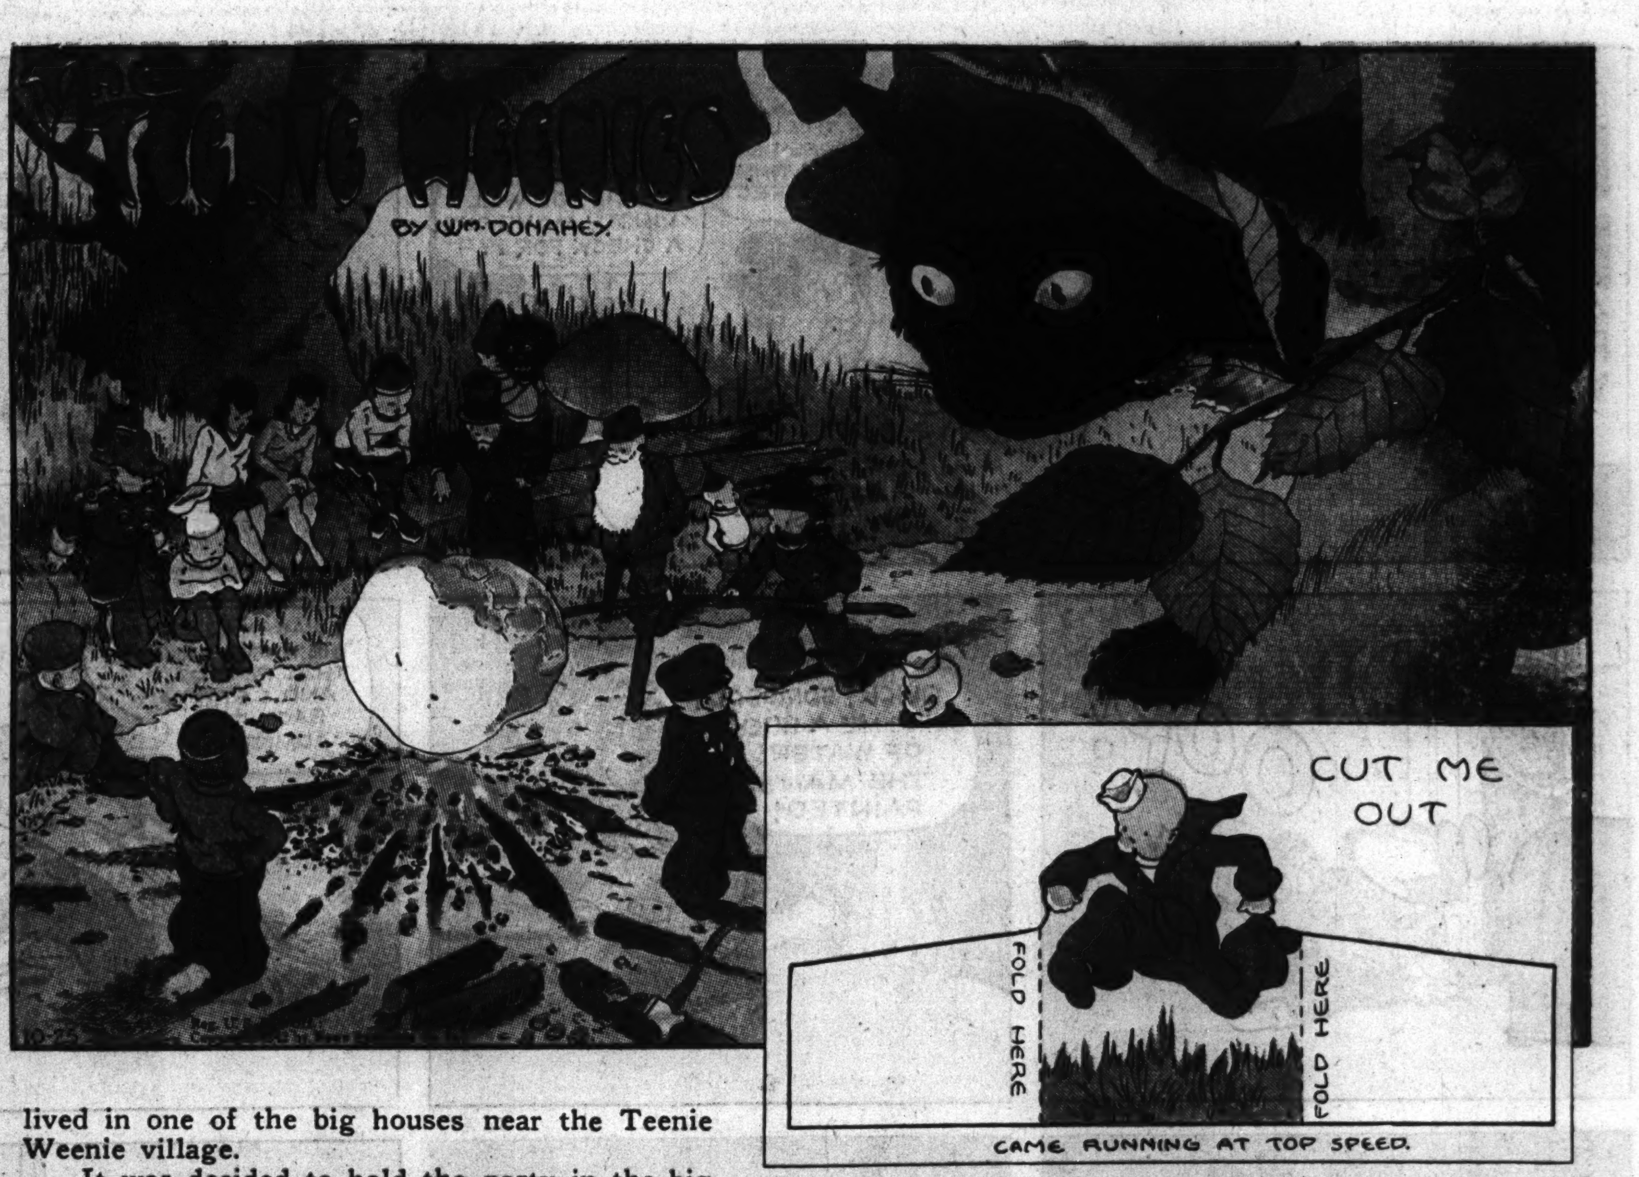
A Halloween Party



TEENIE WEENIES
BY WM. DONAHEY
10-25
CUT ME OUT
FOLD HERE
FOLD HERE
CAME RUNNING AT TOP SPEED.

NICK the squirrel, several chipmunks and a woodpecker had warned the Teenie Weenies that the coming Winter would be long and cold. The little people had jammed their storehouse to the very top with all sorts of food, and the Teenie Weenie women were working day and night knitting mittens, sweaters and Teenie Weenie underwear.

"We won't have time to make witch costumes for our Halloween party this year," remarked the Lady of Fashion one morning as she sat knitting before the Teenie Weenie fireplace.

"We're going to have a party, though, aren't we?" asked the Dunce, who lay stretched out on the caterpillar fur rug before the crackling fire.

"Oh, we'll plan for some sort of a party," answered the Lady of Fashion. "We couldn't let Halloween go by without doing something."

The Lady of Fashion tried hard to think up some simple plan for a party, but most of her ideas meant a lot of work for the men and they were all busy smoking frog hams and getting in the Winter's supply of firewood. "Oh, well," she said to herself, "something will turn up before Halloween."

Something did turn up the very next day. The Sailor, who had been searching for firewood, came running at top speed to the shoe house with the news that he had found a marshmallow. He had found it in a candy box some big person had thrown away, little thinking it would make a feast for the Teenie Weenies.

"We'll have a marshmallow roast," cried the Lady of Fashion. "That will be a fine way to celebrate Halloween."

The Cowboy and the Dunce helped the Sailor carry the marshmallow to the shoe house. They had considerable trouble squeezing it through the kitchen door, but they finally got their prize inside. Although it took up a great deal of space in the tiny kitchen, the Cook agreed to let it remain there until the day of the party.

The Teenie Weenies invited several of their friends to the party, for they knew that they could never eat a whole marshmallow. Nick the squirrel was still suffering from his wounds and he decided he had better not venture out in the night air Two chipmunks also declined the invitation, because the party was to be held at night. There had been several owls about the neighborhood and the chipmunks thought it would be dangerous to venture out after dark. Two respectable mice who had accepted the invitation hastily sent their regrets when they discovered that the tactless Dunce had invited Tomkins, a black cat that lived in one of the big houses near the Teenie Weenie village.

It was decided to hold the party in the big woods, and several of the men went there during the afternoon before Halloween and cut a lot of firewood for the campfire. After the Teenie Weenies had eaten their supper and the dishes had been washed and put away, the little folk all set off for the party. When they arrived at the woods, the Old Soldier with the wooden leg built a big fire and the Teenie Weenies sat around it and told stories until there was a bed of hot coals to roast the marshmallow.

The marshmallow was stuck onto the end of a long twig and the twig was placed on a forked stick which had been driven into the ground. The Cowboy turned the marshmallow around and around until it had roasted to a beautiful golden brown. The Teenie Weenies ate all the marshmallow they could hold, and Tomkins had a lick or two although he said he didn't care much for sweets.

After the marshmallow had been roasted the Old Soldier built up the fire again until it burned brightly. Then the Teenie Weenies told more stories, sang songs, and listened to Tomkins purr several delightful tunes.

Several times during the evening the Teenie Weenies saw fiery eyes gleaming at them from the dark woods, but no one was alarmed, for they all knew that it was the Dunce trying to frighten them with a jack-o'-lantern which he had made out of an acorn shell.

At a late hour Tomkins carried all the Teenie Weenies home on his back, and all the folk agreed that it had been a nice Halloween party.

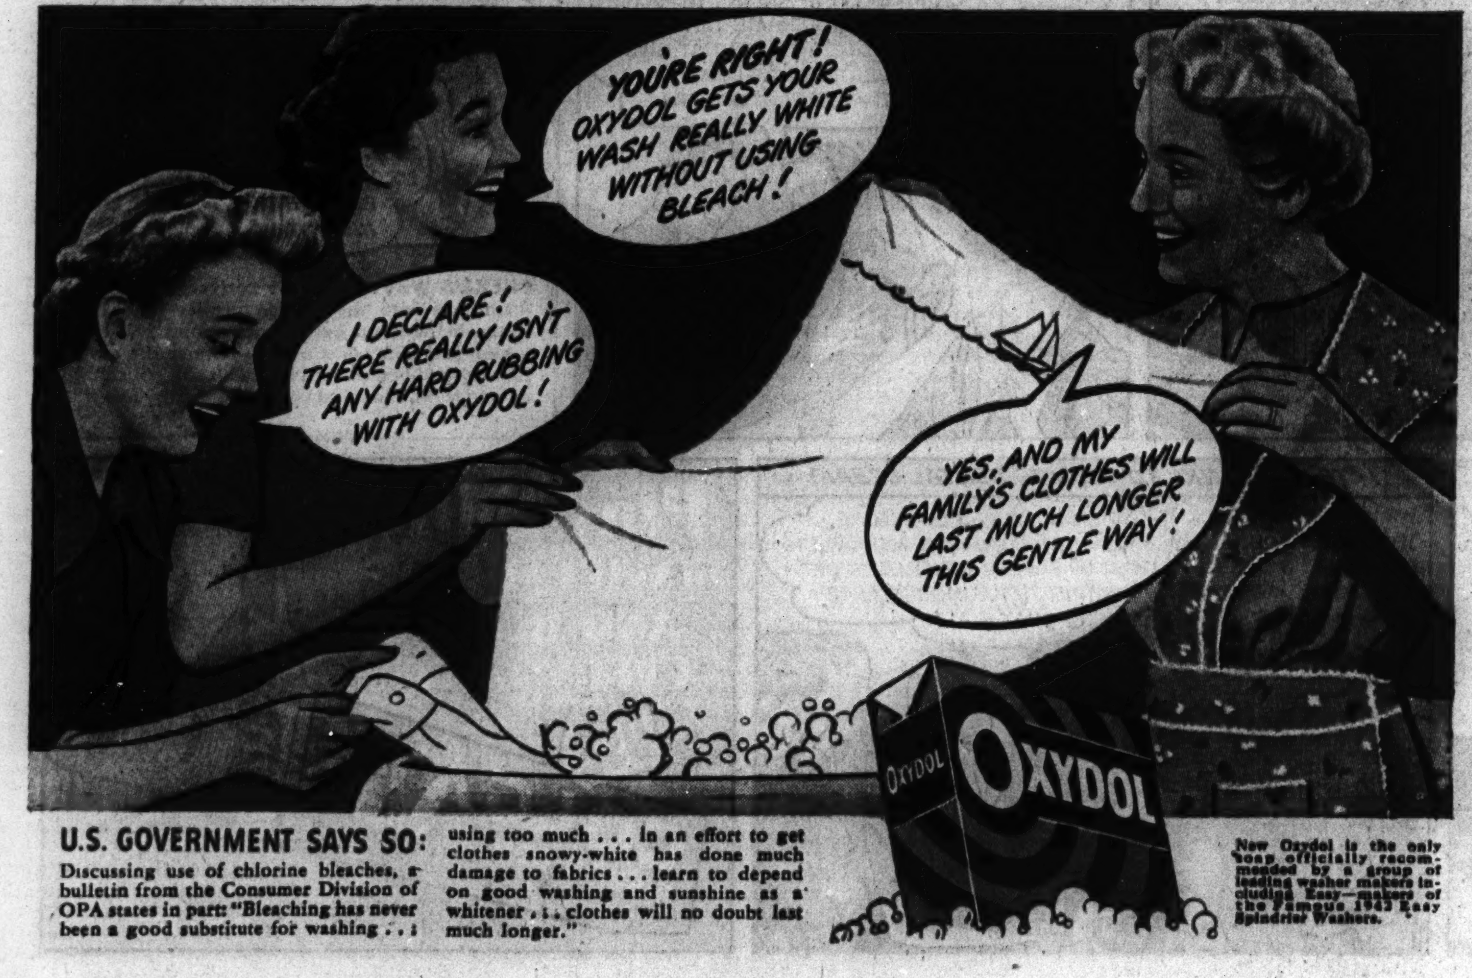
Save Clothes in Wartime this New Way



YOU'RE RIGHT! OXYDOL GETS YOUR WASH REALLY WHITE WITHOUT USING BLEACH!
I DECLARE! THERE REALLY ISN'T ANY HARD RUBBING WITH OXYDOL!
YES, AND MY FAMILY'S CLOTHES WILL LAST MUCH LONGER THIS GENTLE WAY!
OXYDOL
OXYDOL

U.S. GOVERNMENT SAYS SO: Discussing use of chlorine bleaches, a bulletin from the Consumer Division of OPA states in part: "Bleaching has never been a good substitute for washing . . . using too much . . . in an effort to get clothes snowy-white has done much damage to fabrics . . . learn to depend on good washing and sunshine as a whitener . . . clothes will no doubt last much longer."

New Oxydol is the only soap officially recommended by a group of leading washer makers including Easy—makers of the Famous 1943 Easy Spindrier Washers.

Let the New OXYDOL get your wash

WHITE WITHOUT BLEACHING
CLEAN WITHOUT HARD RUBBING

Save unnecessary wear and tear on washday . . . get a wash that's sparkling white . . . with New Oxydol's safe washing action . . . and make clothes last much longer.

How can you make your family's clothes last longer in these wartimes?

Do it with a gentler way to wash. And a new modern soap—New OXYDOL—that gets your wash a radiant, gleaming white with rich, safe washing action instead of the unnecessary wear and tear so hard on clothes.

Rich Washing Action Instead of Harsh Bleaching
Every ounce of New Oxydol is much richer in washing power than before. Its active, bustling "Hustle-Bubble" suds draw out dirt the gentle, safe way. Its livelier washing action goes after that cloudiness less efficient soaps fail to get.

As a result, clothes come sparkling white! Except for stains or unusual pieces, of course, you'll hardly believe you haven't used a bleach.

Lively Sudsing Saves Harmful Rubbing
Every ounce of New Oxydol does more work for you than before. Its "Hustle-Bubble" sudsing gets more dirt. You never have more than a few quick rubs here and there. NOT that hard rubbing that wears things thin and threadbare.

With all this new richness in washing power, the New Oxydol is safety itself for washable colors. Even milder than before on hands. So safe you can use it for dainty washable rayons. So imagine how kind New OXYDOL is to the rest of your wash!

TO GET AND STAY SLIM TRY THE RY-KRISP PLAN

YOU can't feel your best when you're overweight because excess fat causes fatigue, reduces efficiency and places an unfair strain on the heart.

By following the Ry-Krisp plan, a normally overweight person can lose excess fat, feel and look better.

Ry-Krisp is of value in this plan because this delicious whole grain bread has only about 23 calories per wafer, supplies the important minerals and almost all the thiamin of whole rye, aids "regularity" and tends to keep one longer satisfied.

Enjoy Ry-Krisp, the toast-like whole rye bread, regularly. Serve it on your bread-tray at every meal. Remember, Ry-Krisp is every bit as nutritious as it is delicious.

MORELAND URGES CITIZENS TO VOTE

FIFTH OF FARM MACHINE PLEAS TURNED DOWN

County Board O.K.'s Only '42 Needs.

An estimated 80 per cent of the requests for new farm machinery made to the Cook county farm machinery rationing board have been approved, Frank Powell said last week. The county rationing committee, whose headquarters are in the offices of the Cook county farm bureau at Arlington Heights and Blue Island, was set up about Oct. 1, following the nationwide WPB order limiting the sale of certain pieces of farm machinery.

Carl M. Bormet, Tinley Park, is chairman of the committee. He is also a member of the county AAA program. Serving with Bormet are four farmers, William Freize, Arlington Heights; Homer J. Long, Glenview; William Heatherwick, Orland Park, and Frank Diekman, South Holland.

Refuse 1943 Needs.

Only applications for farm machinery to be used in 1942 are accepted by the committee this month. After Nov. 1 applications for equipment intended for use in 1943 will be received. The committee meets twice weekly to consider the requests presented to it. Refusal occurred in about 20 per cent of the cases because machinery asked for was intended for next year's operation or the committee did not recognize need for the requested equipment this year.

All farm machinery dealers have applications for farmers to fill in. The completed form is sent to one of the two offices of the rationing committee.

The WPB has divided farm machinery into three groups. The larger pieces, which contain vital materials and in which the supply is limited, include beet lifters and loaders, combines, corn pickers, disc harrows, feed grinders, fertilizer spreaders, grain drills and elevators, pickup and hay balers, lime and manure spreaders, milk coolers, milking machines, potato diggers, shredders, and tractors.

Restriction Less Severe.

Committee approval is not necessary for items in group B, but an application form is left with the dealer. Included in this group are such pieces as planting, seeding, and fertilizing machinery, spraying outfits, poultry farm equipment, and weeders, among others. Group C can be purchased without application.

The farmer gives information as to whether his new machinery would replace similar worn out equipment, whether old equipment could be repaired, and if his need could be satisfied by renting equipment or by exchange arrangements. The board would like to know if the farmer would be willing to rent his new machinery to others or do custom or exchange work.

If the new machinery will replace hand labor the board asks why the farmer wishes to change and what efforts he has made to obtain laborers.

A fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than 10 years, or both, is the penalty for falsification of facts.

FOUR SONS FIGHT COUNTRIES THEIR DAD ONCE SERVED

Just before the turn of the century when John Alberts of Park Ridge was successively a gunner in the German navy, a young captain in the German merchant marine, and an instructor for the Japanese navy, he could not have foreseen that by 1942 four of his sons would be fighting against the same powers he once served.

To Mr. Alberts who has resided in Park Ridge for 31 years, the events of 1892 to 1898 were almost lost in memory until his boys left the big, comfortable house at 108 North Cumberland avenue, to enter the fighting forces of America. But, as he remarked, and Mrs. Alberts agreed, "When our sons felt they should go, we couldn't keep them with us. Nor did we try to."

Gunner in U. S. Navy, Too.

For Mr. Alberts is a veteran of the United States navy, too, having been a gunner in the Spanish-American war.

Here is the roll of the fighting Alberts' sons. Second Lieut. Herbert is in the coast artillery, overseas. Second Lieut. Ray is an anti-aircraft instructor at Camp Stewart, Georgia, where his wife and baby are with him. Norman is a private in the coast artillery overseas, and Pvt. John has just arrived at Camp Robinson, Arkansas.

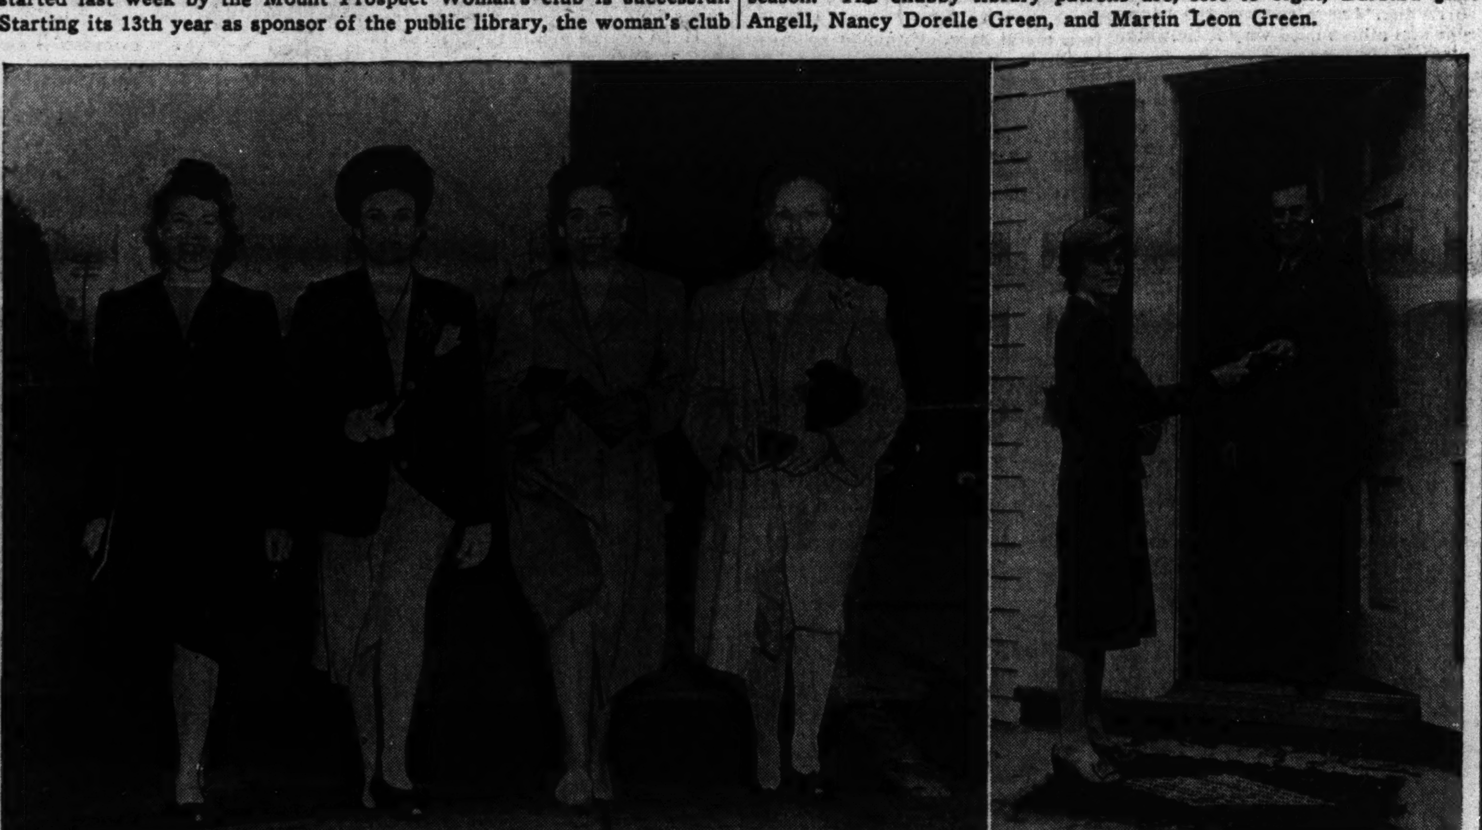
Educated at Bremen.

Altho the senior Alberts was born in New York, where is forebears had been for four or five generations, he obtained his early schooling in Bremen, Germany. There he studied navigation, served his time in the German navy, and rose to the rank of captain in the German merchant marine. For a short time he taught the Japanese navy the technique of naval gunnery.

Woman's Club Drive Keeps Library Open in Mount Prospect

These heavy readers concentrating on the life of "Billy and Blaze" and the poetic plots of "Mother Goose" hope that the library drive started last week by the Mount Prospect Woman's club is successful. Starting its 13th year as sponsor of the public library, the woman's club is asking that each of the families registered in the library files contribute a dollar so that there will be sufficient funds to carry on this season. The chubby library patrons are, left to right, Barbara Jane Angell, Nancy Dorelle Green, and Martin Leon Green.



Making sure there will be books to read in Mount Prospect since the war has brought priorities on driving, visiting, and eating, the club women went forth last week at the beginning of the library drive. They will contact 650 library patrons and the donations received will pay the fixed expenses such as gas for heat, electric light, librarian's salary, and supplies. Whatever is left will be used to purchase new books. The village board contributes the use of the building to the library board of the woman's club. Members of the club starting out on their annual canvass are, left to right, Mrs. Walter Kirchhoff, Mrs. V. F. Bittner, Mrs. E. A. Glaeser, and Mrs. Walter Carlson. At his doorway William Busse Jr. receives a receipt from Mrs. R. P. Smeby for his contribution to the library fund.

Until Saturday the house to house canvass for library funds will be made by members of the woman's club board. This board is setting aside a victory corner in the library which will contain pamphets on the war and on peace problems. Seated at the left is Mrs. C. H. Angell, president of the woman's club, and at the right is the librarian, Mrs. Jack Gehringer. Board members are, left to right, Mrs. T. W. Anning, Mrs. W. T. Mott, Mrs. T. Y. Brooke, Mrs. L. W. Kester, chairman of the board; Mrs. R. A. Sandeen, Mrs. H. O. Gunderson, and Mrs. M. L. Green.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Staff Sergt. John J. Kowalik, a practicing lawyer in Chicago prior to his induction into the army air forces technical training command at Kearns, Utah, has been transferred to the officer candidate school at Miami Beach, Fla. He had assisted in the instruction of men at the Utah training center since his arrival there last July. Sergt. Kowalik is a 1940 graduate of De Paul university, and is the son of George Kowalik, 5311 Schubert avenue.

Staff Sergt. Kowalik.

Ceremonies were held at Napier field, Dothan, Ala., recently for the cadet training class, of which Thomas Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Clark, 5054 Berwyn avenue, was a member. Clark received the silver wings of an army air forces pilot and the commission of second lieutenant. Second Lieut. Clark is a graduate of Illinois Institute of Technology, and was employed by the General Electric company, Schenectady, N. Y., as an electrical engineer.

Lieut. Clark.

Lieut. Donald Balassa, who was graduated from the signal corps school at Fort Monmouth, N. Y., recently spent an eight day furlough with his mother, Mrs. Stephen Balassa, 2752 North Richmond street. He is a graduate of Oberlin college.

His experience as a teller in a Chicago bank has provided the background for William A. Henderson's present study in army finance methods at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana. Henderson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Henderson, 4148 North Spingfield avenue. He arrived at the Indiana finance replacement training center this month.

Pvt. Henderson.

Word has been received from Will Rogers field, Oklahoma, of the recent advancement of Irving E. Milstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Milstein, 5255 West North avenue, from the rank of technician 4th grade to a staff sergeant, and the promotion of Pvt. John T. Bado, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Joseph Bado, 2131 North Springfield avenue, to the rank of technician 4th grade.

Recent arrivals at Will Rogers field are two northwest side men. Leon V. Dykowski, whose brother Stanley J. Dytkowski, lives at 1853 North Hoyne avenue, and Edward J. Senk, 2039 Potomac avenue, have both been assigned to an observation squadron at the army air force bombardment base.

Four northwest side men at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, are now corporals. They are Bernard Gross, son of Mrs. Dora Cross, 4742 North Central Park avenue; Anthony J. Corvo, son of

DEDICATE FLAG WITH 192 STARS IN RITES TODAY

An American flag and a service flag bearing 192 stars of which four are gold will be dedicated this afternoon at Winchester avenue and Division street. The program will begin at 3 o'clock and street dancing and entertainment will continue thru the afternoon and evening. Among the speakers will be the Rev. Stephen Bubacz of Old St. Stephen's church, Stanley Hallick and Stanley Mondala. Proceeds of the ceremony will be used for gifts for the boys in service.

Flag Dedication.

There will be a flag dedication and raising of colors in block 6 zone 16 at 2446 West Diversey avenue at 2 o'clock this afternoon. W. R. Seibert, past commander of the 1st district of the American Legion, will talk on Americanism.

Your Congressman

An Editorial

The Republican leadership of Illinois has already made a fitting reply to the disreputable Democratic device of screaming "Nazi" at every opponent, and the voters can be trusted to make the same reply on Nov. 3.

The voters know that the election of Republican congressmen is their protection against a developing New Deal tyranny. They know that when the little dictators of the Kelly-Nash machine say that the election of Republicans would cause "rejoicing in Berlin and Tokio," what they are really asking is a Hitler one party election. They know that no machine choice is ever a free choice and no representative government is ever representative when the party in power attempts to stamp out all opposition on the grounds that to oppose its policies is to be "unpatriotic."

The salvation of the people is still in their own hands. They must send to congress Republicans who know that the American heritage will be lost if the methods of Hitler can be successfully used to silence the people.

The 7th congressional district, the largest in the United States, with almost a million constituents, is in the anomalous position of being represented in congress by a man of Lilliputian capacities and of demonstrable insincerity. Twice within three months prior to the outbreak of war Leonard W. Schuetz, the re-inked New Deal rubber stamp, was called upon to state his attitude toward war. He solemnly pledged, "I will not vote to send American boys to fight on foreign soil."

There are many Republicans who likewise pledged the people that they would do everything possible to keep the country out of war. They kept their word and are proud of it. The insincerity of Mr. Schuetz's professions is attested by the fact that he now upbraids Republicans for having meant it when they gave the same pledges he did. Mr. Schuetz would now seek to convey the impression he saw Pearl Harbor coming.

In one characteristic composition he makes the statement, "I am not sick." Two paragraphs later he commits this piece of prose: "Let us not again sacrifice the lives of our dear ones. Let us all vote the straight Democratic ticket and elect every candidate on the common man's ticket. The Democratic party ticket." That could be paraphrased, "Let us not make Leonard W. Schuetz any sicker than he is by electing somebody else."

An informed electorate will take the necessary action to dispense with this feeble advocate of one party dictatorship by electing James C. Moreland, the Republican nominee. Mr. Moreland has always had the courage of his convictions. Citizens will remember his fight for economy and for an end to city hall inefficiency and corruption when he served as alderman. In 1934, five days after a biting attack demanding Mayor Kelly's resignation, he was shot at thru the window of his home. He was not intimidated, and there is great need now for men in government who will not be intimidated.

In the coming fight to save liberty at home while aggression is being defeated abroad, the people must entrust their cause to men of independence and courage who honor their word. The choice in the 7th district should be plain to every citizen.

Goats Eat Tin? Silly! But OCD Still Suspects

Goats don't eat tin anymore than stenographers can be said to eat gum. Nervous creatures, and not having much to do except be goats, they merely chew on the tin. Actually they are extremely finicky about what they swallow—refusing an apple if somebody else has already taken a bite of it.

This was the consensus of the assistant state veterinarian, the head of the Lincoln park zoo, an officer of the Anti-Cruelty to Animals' socity, a capriculturist [goat raiser], and the director of the state scrap metal salvage campaign.

The issue arose when it was discovered a few days ago that the Mount Greenview grade school's scrap pile was dwindling. An accusing finger was pointed at "Mr. Smith," a pet goat of 14 year old Dolores Vowadnik, a student at Mount Greenview.

Might Cause Ulcers!

Allegedly, "Mr. Smith" was seen wit ha choice piece of scrap iron in his mouth—and he was munching on it. "Mr. Smith," unjustly it now appears, was then banished from the school yard for the duration.

"Goats don't eat tin," Dr. B. C. Hunt, assistant state veterinarian, stated conclusively. "They will chew on tin, but they don't swallow it. They can't digest metal, and besides it would probably lead to ulcers."

He was supported in these views by C. M. Weeks, a Glen Ellyn goat raiser. Mr. Weeks was even more indignant about this ancient slur on the goat family—which it seems is aristocratic and discriminatory to a high degree.

Just Curious, That's All.

"If their hay falls on the floor when I'm feeding them," Weeks said with fervor, "they won't touch it. They don't want anything off of the floor.

"This old wives' tale about eating tin cans arose from a commendable characteristic of the goats. They are very curious. Very often I find mine have pulled some newspapers off a table. They just want to look at them—and maybe chew them a little. They won't eat them."

Nathaniel Leverone, state director of scrap metal salvage, closed the case by issuing a directive, "Until further notice, all scrap wardens should regard goats with suspicion —and that's no kidding."

St. Thecla's Parish Altar and Rosary society will hold a card party at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the church auditorium, 6708 West Palatine avenue.

BINOCULARS RUDNIK BOUGHT IN GERMANY HELP SPOT U-BOATS

A trip to Berlin made in 1937 by Michael J. Rudnik, 4804 North Linder avenue, Republican nominee for Cook County commissioner, may help win the war. While in Berlin Mr. Rudnik purchased some Carl Zeiss 7 by 50 binoculars which became one of his proudest possessions. Today his Zeiss binoculars are in the navy and Mr. Rudnik has only the memory and a check for $1 in payment from the treasurer of the United States.

Only recently Mr. Rudnik read a plea in THE TRIBUNE. It said, "Two makes of glasses meet navy requirements. They are the Carl Zeiss and the Bausch and Lomb, sizes 6 by 30 or 7 by 50. Civilians with such instruments should tag them with the owner's name and address, pack them in their cases, and send them to the naval observatory, Washington, D. C. They are desperately needed to help spot U-boats."

Mr. Rudnik is a veteran of World War I. He was in service for seven months and when peace came he became a leader in the Capt. Arthur H. Kelly post of the American Legion. Five years ago he made the American Legion European tour to visit the grave of Capt. Kelly, an American aviator who stayed in Europe to help in Poland's fight for freedom against the bolsheviks. He was killed in the city of Lwow, Poland, and the American Legion post of the northwest side whose members are all of Polish descent adopted his name for their post.

UNREGISTERED VOTER MAY OBTAIN BALLOT ON AFFIDAVIT NOV. 3

Citizens outside of Cook county who have not registered still may vote on Nov. 3, Attorney General George F. Barrett stated. Unregistered voters must take an oath and give the election clerk pertinent information for a file card. The card will be treated as an application for registration, and the citizen will be required to complete his application later. He will be able to vote on Nov. 3, but cannot vote again under this provision until he has completed his registration.

Defense Demonstrations.

Civilian defense demonstrations will be held Tuesday and Wednesday evenings in Brand's park, 3259 Elston avenue.

NOMINEE WARNS LIGHT TURNOUT AID TO SCHUETZ

G.O.P. Hopes Bright in Big 7th District.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

The northwest side's 7th congressional district, largest in the nation, can regain active representation in Washington for the first time in 12 years, provided its voters turn out in force on Nov. 3, as they have indicated they will do. This rallying call was issued last week from the camp of the G. O. P. nominee, former Ald. James C. Moreland.

Moreland's backers warned that a light vote in the district will mean that Republicans will have lost their greatest opportunity in recent years to topple the Democratic incumbent, Leonard W. Schuetz, from the congressional seat in which he has done little but rest since the first of a series of New Deal waves swept him into it in 1930.

An abnormally low turnout would give the advantage to the city hall machine, which by control of a large bloc of votes in the 7th has returned Schuetz an easy winner in the last six congressional elections. Enough uncontroled voters in the district, both Democratic and Republican, have signified their intention to vote to accomplish Schuetz' overthrow, Moreland's supporters said, but they cautioned that too much overconfidence will nullify the present G. O. P. advantage.

Machine Wants Rubber Stamp.

Democratic machine bosses do not want a real representative in the 7th, the Republican leaders pointed out. They prefer a man like Schuetz, who has never raised his voice in debate in the house, and who can be depended upon to vote blindly the way his bosses want, these spokesmen said.

Schuetz has fulfilled this requirement admirably, which is the main reason he was one of the three Democratic Chicago congressmen retained on the city hall slate in the April primary, the Morelandites declared. Five of the eight Chicago Democrats were replaced. Only Schuetz, A. J. Sabath, of the 5th district, and Edward J. Kelly of the 3d were retained.

The extent to which sentiment in the district is swinging against Schuetz is shown by an examination of the primary election figures in the last two off-election years.

Democratic Vote Dips Sharply.

In 1938 the Democrats received 80.8 per cent of the district's total vote of 234,224. In this year's primary the Democrats' percentage fell to 70.3 per cent of the total of 190,608.

Schuetz received 49.9 per cent of all the votes cast in the 1938 primary, but this year he dropped 10.1 points to 39.8. Moreland, who polled only 19.2 per cent of the total primary vote two years ago, got 29.9 per cent this year, a gain of 10.7 percentage points.

Schuetz' greatest plurality in the election vote came in 1936, when the presidential battle enabled him to top Moreland by 90,080 votes. In 1938, the most recent by-election, this margin dropped to 30,681. Two years ago, in spite of the advantage of a presidential campaign, the Schuetz plurality fell to a new low of 8,368. Moreland's friends expressed confidence that this precipitate decline is continuing, and that a normal off-year vote turnout will bring him victory by a margin of approximately 30,000 votes.

War Bungling a Factor.

Dissatisfaction with the present handling of war problems and a growing realization that a strong minority party is the best guarantee against abuses by the majority are among the main factors behind the switch in party sentiment in the 7th, according to G. O. P. workers.

Schuetz, because of his increasing personal unpopularity, is expected to run well behind the Democratic ticket. This unpopularity springs from rebuffs he has given groups from his district that have sought his aid, and the open unfriendliness he displays toward any one he suspects of Republican leanings.

Moreland pledges in his talks thruout the district that when he is elected he will endeavor to be a true representative of all his constituents, regardless of their political faith.

CENTURY MALE CHORUS TO GIVE ANNUAL CONCERT

The eighth annual concert of the Century Male chorus will be held Wednesday evening in the New First Congregational church, Washington and Ashland boulevards. The chorus, which numbers 60 voices, is under the direction of Orian A. Galitz with Paulyn Anderson as accompanist.

The concert is for the benefit of the Evangelical Home for Children and Aged at Bensenville of which the Rev. Alvin J. Munsterman is the superintendent. More than $7,500 has been earned for this institution thru the concerts. Sponsor of the program is the Evangelical Men's auxiliary of Northern Illinois of which William Schug is president and John W. Welzien is secretary.

Soloists will be Maria Karelas, soprano; Roy Schuessler, baritone, and Dr. William Lester, organist.

BARR SEEKS 11TH TERM IN SENATE AGAINST HRUBY

Visit of Navy Son Holds Veteran's Interest.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

With a world record for continuous legislative service in his pocket, State Sen. Richard J. Barr of the 41st district last week was thinking less about winning his 11th four year term than about the visit home of his navy aviator son.

Sen. Richard J. Barr [R.].

Otto J. Hruby [D.].

The veteran Republican is nearing 77 and has yet to lose his senate seat or his composure. Ordinarily he might have evinced "professional worry" about the Nov. 3 election just to make sure that his supporters don't relax too much. But Richard Jr. holds the stage right now.

"He's my elder son," Sen. Barr says. "He has 10 days leave before being transferred from Norfolk, and I want to make the most of it. My other son, Bill we call him, has trained at two southern army airfields and now is attending ground school here. They're pretty good boys and it's hard to think about other things."

"Hope I Beat Him."

What about the campaign?

"The only talk I hear is Republican talk," the tall, pink and white senator replies. "O, once in a while you hear of a Democratic meeting."

That is in his district, made up of Will county where he lives, and Du Page county, containing Hinsdale, the home of his Democratic opponent, Otto J. Hruby. What about his opponent?

"He's a nice fellow. I've met him a few times," Sen Barr answers softly without a change of verbal expression, and in the same even tone adds: "I hope to beat him."

To a newer generation the question might occur: If this is no pose, what manner of man is this elegantly attired self-styled "farmer, not a lawyear, because the law is a jealous mistress, and I have spent too much time on my farm."

"This Is His Senate."

Probably the best answer ever written was that of the late James O'Donnell Bennett of THE TRIBUNE of June 6, 1925, when the legislature was in a session. Here are excerpts from the Bennett sketch of 17 years ago:

"'This is his senate.'

"With a quick, confident glance, the utterer of these words indicated a tall, lean, rangily built man of 60 years, but not seeming so old, who was standing in the center of the Illinois senate chamber and speaking in a moderate but carrying voice.

"My friend, a seasoned observer on this scene, added:

"'When he talks it goes into legislation.'

Easy Manner, Fortright.

"The man, to whom half a dozen senators standing within a dozen feet of him were listening attentively and to whom 40 other senators seated at their desks were giving interested heed, was Richard J. Barr, who boxed his way into the mayoralty of Joliet many a year ago, and who for 23 years has been a member of our senate.

"While Sen. Barr was speaking he stood with an admonitory lead pencil in one hand and his noseglasses poised on two fingers of the other hand. His manner was easy and his matter seemed to be simple, forthright, rational, and crowded with facts. His tone was penetrating and a little nasal. Neighborly, perhaps, would be the more exact word.

"The face is interesting, a touch of distinction, of Whistler the painter, in the high arched eyebrows and the pronounced yet delicate features. Despite the sharp lines there is a look of youth in his countenance, as tho age had overlaid but not extinguished the youthfulness in the man.

"Smooth, But Not Devious."

"Sen. Barr is a lawyer, but likes to toy with agriculture. He is also a born trader, and it has been said of him that he 'could go out with a cat and come home with a kennel.' He was born in the hamlet of Manhattan, in Will county, in 1865; took a literary course at the University of Illinois, graduated in the law at the University of Michigan, and became city attorney and mayor of Joliet.

"He is smooth and slick but not devious. They say he is to be trusted. He attempts no crusades or impossibilities. He is patient, and often he is wearily tolerant of things that should not be.

"That's politics.

Takes Life as It Is.

"He is not a Small follower nor yet an anti-Small follower. He is middle of the road, where the possibilities lie. He and the governor's lieutenant on the senate floor, Sen John Dailey, 'the orator,' have arranged that between them.

"Barr, then, is not impotently valiant, but careful and clever. He would rather do right than wrong, but the doing of wrong by others does not inflame him to burning wrath.

"Only to cynical disfavor.

"His idea—or ideal—is that life and politics have to be taken pretty much as they are not fought or violently reshaped, and that it is futile to try much to reshape them. His 'notion is' that those processes of reshaping are automatic and leisurely and that men won't be dragged upward and onward."

Brother a House Leader.

Democrat Hruby comes of old political stock. His father, John Hruby, was the last west town collector in Chicago before the office was abolished. The third generation of Hruby family in this country since 1848, the nominee is affiliated with all Slav organizations in the district, he said.

His brother, John Hruby, was house minority leader in the legislature under Gov. Deneen, he said, and a cousin by the same name also served in the house. Rep. John O. Hruby of the 19th district, on the west side of Chicago, is another cousin, the nominee declared.

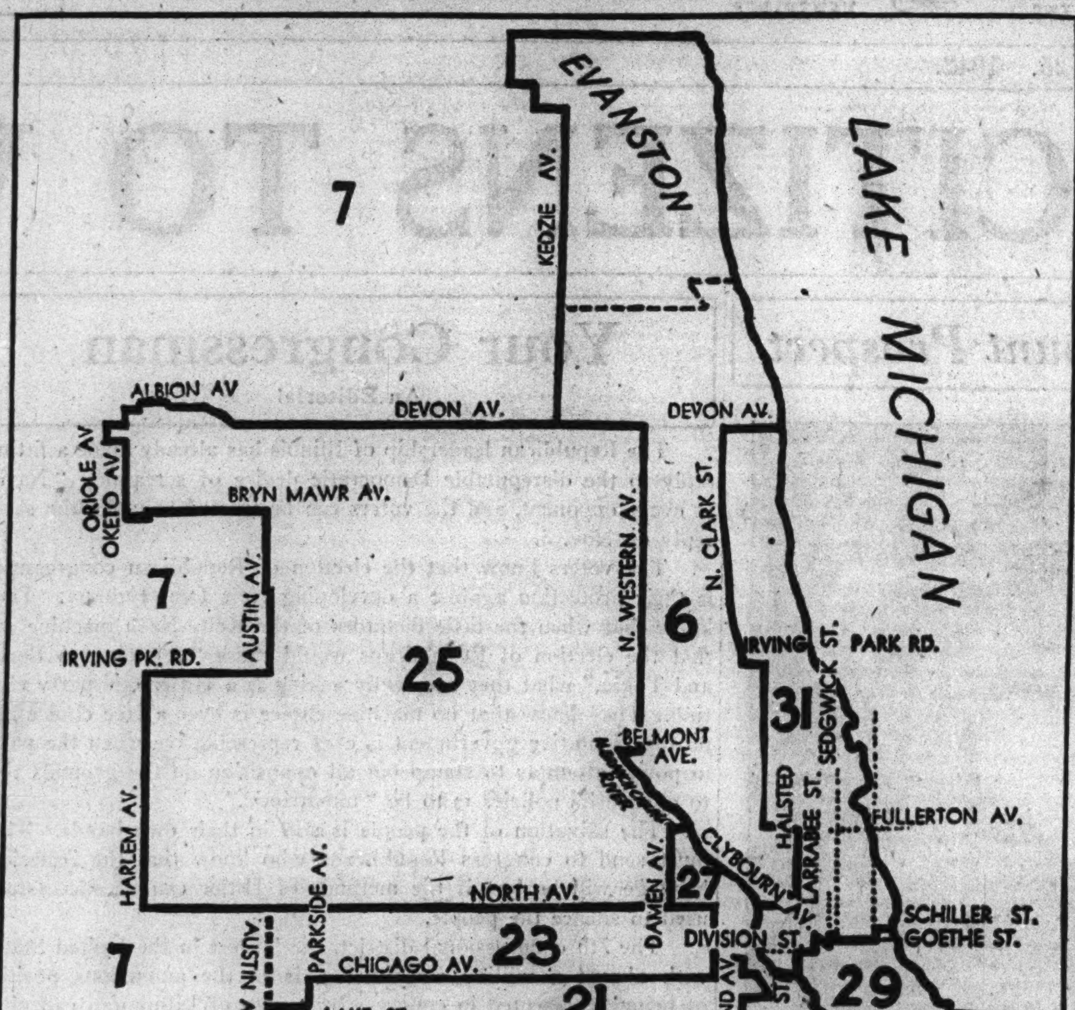
Otto J. Hruby, to get out of the family forest, is a tax expert in business for himself on La Salle street—the Illinois Bond Collection service.

Would Amend Constitution.

"When you think of all the tax bills coming up at Springfield it's easy to see my place there," he said. "I've been studying tax problems for a long time. I'm interested in abolishing the personal property tax. It's an imposition upon the public.

"Take a man who buys furniture—it really doesn't belong to him because of the personal property tax on it. A replacement tax? Cut down on public expenditures. Amend the constitution. Naturally, it would have to be amended for my purpose, but we can't let difficulties stand in our way."

Legislative Districts in Northern Area



Boundaries of the legislative districts in the northern area of Cook county are defined in this map. The 7th district also includes those townships in Cook county outside of Chicago which are not in the 6th, 19th or 23d districts. Lake, McHenry, and Boone counties comprise the 8th district, while the 14th district includes Kane and Kendall counties.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 26

Unless the ground is frozen making spading impracticable, spade up all areas that will be planted next spring. Do this now. The action of frost will kill insect pests, mellow the soil, and make it possible to get into garden work early next spring.

A number of annuals can be sown this fall, especially the hardy annuals that lie in the ground all winter and come up early in spring. One gains from one to three weeks in the blooming period. A little protection on the seed beds will serve to keep them thruout the winter.

Tuesday, Oct. 27

Plant the outdoor window boxes with small evergreens. If the soil is kept well watered the plants will keep in fine condition and can be planted in the garden in spring. Suitable varieties can be obtained from nurseries. Drain the sprinkling system before the pipes freeze and are damaged.

Remove all statues and garden furniture to the protection of a shed. Repair hotbed sash and frames; clean and oil all tools before placing them in storage for the winter. Burn all weeds that can be burned for the place will be neater and many seeds will be destroyed.

Wednesday, Oct. 28

It is time to rake up fallen leaves and it is wise to compost them with soil because they are a fine souce of humus. Keep the compost pile moist. Add peat moss or manure to increase the supply. It takes several months to decay. Turn it at intervals.

Chrysanthemums are in bloom, both indoors and outdoors, altho the latter may have frozen by this time. Buy only varieties that usually bloom before Oct. 12. Plant them in spring and not in fall unless the fall planted stock is protected either in a cold frame or by other means.

Thursday, Oct. 29

Take care of the lily-of-the-valley by giving it a light mulch with old manure, leaf mold, or peat. With good care the plants will grow vigorously and produce many more flowers and excellent foliage.

Try growing a collection of cacti in the widows this winter for they make fine indoor subjects. They last a long time when grown in novelty containers that have no drainage hole. Care during winter consists of watering at very infrequent intervals or just enough to keep the plants from shriveling. Large cacti of the barrel type and others need very little water if any.

Friday, Oct. 30

More people ask about growing the beautiful saintpaulia or African violet than any other. It is easily grown under suitable conditions. It may stand in the east window and should be watered by placing the base of the pot in a saucer of water and leaving it until the soil is moist, remove the pot and drain and place again in the window.

Saturday, Oct. 31

Be sure that the newly planted evergreens do not dry out or they may not survive the winter. Place the hose, with nozzle removed, near base of each plant and allow the water to soak in for half an hour. In addition, syringe the tops on warm days. If the weather is quite hot, syringing may be done late in the day.

WARNS AGAINST LETTING SCREENS OR GUTTERS RUST

Coat of Paint Prevents Damage During Winter.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Of concern to home owners, now that October is nearly gone: House screens!

Screens and gutters are doubly precious now and no one can afford to let them rust away this coming winter.

If screens are well painted and in good shape, a thoro cleaning is all they need. The suction brush of a vacuum cleaner is convenient for this, or a whisk broom, vigorously applied on both sides of the screen will do the work.

A damp cloth and kitchen cleanser will remove any hardened dirt on a screen edging and benzine can be used to remove greasy deposits from kitchen screens. [Keep benzine away from fire and use only in well ventilated place.]

Identify Screens with Tags.

When screens are tagged with permanent identification of some sort, life will be easier in the spring. Where screening is broken at any point, patch the spot before storing.

In storing screens see that they do not come in contact with any basement floor dampness. It is always wise to lay them flat in a dry place and cover them with canvas or paper as protection against dust and dirt. If it is hard to store them flat because of screen hardware, lath strips can be slipped between the frames.

Black iron screening sometimes needs painting every year, depending on the climate, but painting of frames, hardware, and wire as protection against rust and rot is usually advised every other year.

Paint Is Easy to Obtain.

Your paint dealer or store where paints are sold carries the varnish or paint needed for this protection.

There are special screen enamels for galvanized iron screens, manufactured thin to keep the meshes from clogging. If you cannot get the color you wish, use an ordinary good grade of house paint, considerably thinned with turpentine.

Varnish Copper Screens.

Bronze and copper screening requires no painting but you can protect it against greenish oxidation [that can damage frames and walls below when it washes off] by application of a good spar varnish. For frames of screens a good grade house paint is recommended.

If you have galvanized iron gutters and leaders, see that these are kept painted—and that the paint is in good shape. Apply one coat of red lead paint and two coats of house paint after thoro cleaning and treatment of metal with copper sulphate solution.

If your gutters and leaders are of copper you can prevent any staining of house walls from oxidized coating by application of paint or varnish. If you wish to keep the metallic luster of gutters and leaders, use a clear spar varnish.

Three Coats Suggested.

If you wish to paint them, apply coat of red lead paint and two coats of house paint—after thoro cleaning and treatment of metal with copper sulphate solution.

As paint and varnish are preservatives of great value, so is wax. There is still a large supply of wax on hand and a shelf with paste and liquid waxes for woodwork and furniture, paraffin and turpentine for a host of little waterproofing jobs, self-polishing waxes for floors and even automobile wax for the exterior of a refrigerator mean longer life for your home possessions.

AVONDALE UNIT PLANS RECEPTION FOR NEW OFFICERS

Avondale council, No. 123, of the Royal league will hold its honor night and annual reception to newly elected officers on Tuesday evening in the lodge hall, 4352 North Crawford avenue. In charge of the program is Ingolf P. Pedersen.

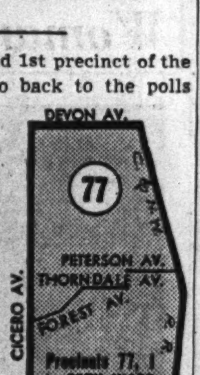
Fred G. Schliep, outgoing archon, will be special guest. The program will feature a floor show, a waltz contest, dancing, and refreshments. Judge Frank M. Padden will be the guest speaker and Martin A. Stanton will preside as master of ceremonies.

Members of the arrangements committee are Herman C. Jensen, Wilbur F. Consoer, Frank G. Strey, and Fred G. Schliep.

VOTERS TO TRY NOV. 3 TO MAKE LIQUOR BAN STICK

Sauganash Group Carries Fight to Ballot Box.

Voters in the old 1st precinct of the 39th ward will go back to the polls Nov. 3 to see if they can make a liquor ban, voted but nullified two years ago, stick.



They will vote partly to determine whether one liquor store now in the precinct shall be allowed to continue in business and to see whether the precinct shall continue to be dry otherwise, as it is at present.

It is another step in a fight that began two and a half years ago when neighborly residents of the vicinity noticed a new building going up at 6021 Cicero avenue. Some learned with dismay that it was to be occupied by a liquor store.

Election Was Protested.

The Sauganash Community association, proclaiming interest in maintaining the value of the district as a residence locality, took steps. The question was put to a vote two years ago and the precinct was voted dry with a comfortable margin, according to George Ward, who heads the organization's dry drive.

But the Stewart Liquor company, a package goods store, of which Irving Projansky is manager, Ward reported, also took steps. Projansky protested the election on grounds that petitions asking for it bore names of persons who were not voters.

Provide Two Ballots.

The case was heard in County court, according to Ward's account, and Projansky won after long litigation. The community association appealed to Superior court where Judge Francis B. Allegretti ruled for the association. But the case was appealed to the Appellate court and the decision was reversed again.

Ward also declared that no chances are being taken with this election. There are two ballots, one on the question of complete prohibition of alcoholic liquor and the other on banning sale of liquor of more than 4 per cent alcohol by volume over the bar. Package goods for consumption off the premises would be allowed.

The law is specific, Ward cited, on the question of which vote shall prevail, if both should gain a majority. The teetotal vote would stand against any others.

Involves Two Precincts.

The 4 per cent ballot is being backed by Projanksy and others, Ward reported, as a compromise measure.

The vote will be held in all of what are now precincts 1 and 77, but which in 1932 were designated only as precinct 1. State law requires that such votes shall be conducted according to precinct lines as they existed then.

Boundaries of this area are Foster, Cicero and Devon avenues, the Chicago and North Western railway and Kostner avenue.

Dedicate Flag, Honor Roll at Homan and Le Moyne

Zone two, block four in community seven dedicated its flag and honor roll last Sunday at the corner of Homan avenue and Le Moyne street in tribute to those boys in the block serving their country in the armed forces. The soldiers and sailors are Ellsworth Sachsse, LeRoy Anderson, Stanley Nicjson, Rudy La Vini, John Werner, Lawrence Edgar, Edward Plucinski, Joseph Breen, William Lassen, Ben Wolf, Keith Kellar, and John Hume.

PLAN BURLESQUE OF RADIO ACTS IN CHURCH SHOW

Revue Opens Nov. 5 in Arlington Heights.

Radio's well known programs will be satirized in the "Broadcast Revue of 1942" to be given by the Arlington Heights Methodist church on Thursday and Friday nights, Nov. 5 and 6, at 8:30 o'clock.

Miner McCuen.

Miner McCuen performs the double rôle of impresario and script writer, while Jack Everett, director of the church choir which is sponsoring the show, will act as stage manager. Marvin Prellburg is announcer and McCuen's orchestra will furnish background music.

Members of Cast.

A preview of the revue reveals the husky voices of James Bown and William Franke, member of the village council, cutting capers in their blackface act of Remus and Sandy. Marilyn Klehm and Marvin Petersen, Palatine, will offer their own Gracie and George act.

Floyd Dobbins, 320 pounds of city fireman, plans to croon sentimental tunes as Katie Schmidt. The Northeasterners, shrunk to a quartet in size, will feature Charles Heiss, Sydney Allen, Ira Parker, and Joseph Zikmund.

The Doraflora Sextette lists Evelyn Cavanaugh, Annabel Tesch, Mrs. Miner McCuen, Harriet Raney, Velda Utterback, and Jane Borgeson. There will be an interlude of more serious music by the Methodist church choir under the baton of Jack Everett. A color guard of Cub Scouts will present the flag at the close of the program.

Others Aiding Show.

The Rev. Milo J. Vondacek is pastor of the church. Other personnel for the show include Mrs. William Taylor, costumes and make-up; Ernest Simmons and Marvin Prellburg, advertising; Paul Patrick, electrician; Arthur Borgeson, properties; Mrs. Herman Meyers, usherettes, and Mrs. Eugene Heller and Mrs. H. J. Gregg, tickets.

1,000 POLICEMEN WILL TAKE PART IN MASS OF ST. JUDE'S LEAGUE

More than 1,000 city policemen will receive communion at a mass to be celebrated next Sunday by Bishop Joseph M. Preciado of Panama, at Our Lady of Guadalupe church, 91st street and Brandon avenue. The occasion is the general communion of the police branch of St. Jude's league. Our Lady of Guadalupe church is the national shrine for the organization.

The ceremony will start with a procession of 40 seminarians of St. Jude's seminary, at Momence, from the rectory to the church, with members of Police post of the American Legion forming the color guard. This ceremony will also be a tribute to policemen now serving in the country's military forces.

Following the service, a breakfast will be held in the church auditorium. Among the speakers will be Father Tort, first spiritual director of the league, James J. Doody, Capt. Raymond Crane of the Woodlawn district, and Eddie Cavanaugh, W-G-N artist, who will be master of ceremonies. The Casino male chorus will sing.

Heading the committee in charge of the services and breakfast are Rev. Joseph M. Puigvi and James Doody, vice president of the league.

FLAG DEDICATION FOLLOWS PARADE THIS AFTERNOON

A flag and service roll dedication will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at School street and Kenneth avenue. There will be a parade of American Legion members, Office of Civilian Defense officers, and residents of block 3, zone 61. Mrs. Anne Kelly of Belmont Park post auxiliary will sing the national anthem. Service men whose names are on the honor roll are Walter Malinowski, Robert Van Deraeghen, Robert Pisarek, James Cormac, John Thorsen, George Thorsen, Harry Kerber, Erwin Roger, Joseph Schmitt, Norman Kullas, Michael Sherman, John Sherman, and Florence Nelson, army nurse. C. L. Andersen is block captain.

100 MEN, WOMEN STUDY TYPING TO MAKE COMEBACK

Civil service examiners will move into the classrooms of Washburne Trade school, Division and Sedgwick streets, the first week in November to test the competency of the new graduates of the school's experimental course, designed to train junior clerks and junior typists for the government in six weeks' time.

Under the direction of Miss Astrid Paulson, head of the commercial department, more than 100 men and women have undergone the intensive training in touch typing and filing. Some, who returned to the school to brush up on the knowledge they had gained years ago, may be eligible for higher positions in the government service, Miss Paulson states.

No Age Minimum.

The need for trained workers to fill the offices of the alphabetical agencies and provide civilian help for the army and navy in Chicago is acute, according to Mrs. Kathryn Stedham, local civil service recruiter. "While graduates cannot be guaranteed jobs after passing our examinations, chances are that all will be placed almost immediately by our appointing officers working directly with the agencies."

Minimum age for a civil service employée is 17, but there is no maximum age limit. In Washburne's first class is a retired railroad general passenger agent, now over 70 years old. He took the civil service examination a few months ago but failed because he typed the "hunt and peck" method.

Demand Eagerness.

Postoffice workers are among the hundred students. By extending their capabilities they hope to gain promotions. Young men about to be drafted come for clerical training for use in the army. One woman attends faithfully the two hours each day because her husband soon will enter the army and she wants to be able to make her own living.

Two retired Chicago school teachers — "young 65s" — pound their typewriters vigorously. A handicapped college graduate studies typing and filing, alongside a Russian born naturalized citizen whose son is serving in the army.

2 WRIGHT JUNIOR PROFESSORS PEN GEOMETRY BOOK

Two instructors in the department of engineering at Wright Junior college, Ferdinand A. P. Fischer and James A. Clear, are the authors of a new book on "Descriptive Geometry" for engineering and architectural draftsmen, it was announced recently by a Milwaukee publishing company.

Fischer is a graduate of the Chicago Teachers' college and received a bachelor of science degree from the University of Illinois. He was awarded a master of arts degree in education in 1929 from the University of Chicago and took graduate work at the Armour Institute of Technology and at Northwestern university.

Clear received his bachelor and master of science degrees from Armour in 1932 and 1935. He has been teaching engineering, drawing, and descriptive geometry for 10 years in the Chicago schools.

RATION BOARD IN 38TH MOVES TO WARMER HOME

The 38th ward rationing board has been moved from 5454 Belmont avenue to 3150 North Luna avenue in order to have better heating facilities, it was announced at the office of Michael F. Mulcahy, Chicago rationing administrator.

Mrs. Helen Klajda is in charge of the office which has an average of seven employés and administers rationing of sugar, rubber boots and shoes and has charge of ceiling price control. The office, larger than the average ward office, has 80,000 sugar ration records, it was reported.

RADIO EYES FOR ALL PROMISED AT END OF WAR

Television's Bright Future Told by Dunlap.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Just as ships at sea took on radio voices linking them to land after the first World war, so trans-Atlantic planes will see by means of television after this war. That is the picture envisioned by Orrin Dunlap in his new book "The Future of Television," just published.

Television is being greatly advanced by wartime research and engineering in radio and electron optics, Dunlap reports. After this war sightseeing by radio will become a national pastime, according to Dunlap. Homes everywhere will have all-seeing eyes, because the science of electronics will put television sets within the price range of the masses, just as it has radio sets, says Dunlap. Radio, which made a whispering gallery of the heavens, is described as preparing to turn the whole world into a hall of mirrors, thru television.

Sees New Art Forms.

Reconversion of radio manufacturing plants to postwar production of civilian receiving sets will mark the opening date of the new television era, he forecasts. [But it must be remembered that experts have been asserting that television is just around the corner for the last 15 years.]

Dunlap says there is no danger that sound broadcasting, as we know it, will "dry up" overnight. But he predicts that television will make tremendous strides forward introducing new art forms in much the same fashion as the screen developed Mickey Mouse and radio its Amos 'n' Andy.

"Radio characters who have lived in the world of imagination and illusion will come out of hiding," says Dunlap, "as television adds sight to sound to make radio drama more real than ever before."

A National Sports Arena.

Television will no more kill the theater than did radio, he asserts. "To the actor and vaudevillian, whether tap dancer, juggler, acrobat, or magician, television offers the dawn of a new day," he states. Television also will turn the nation into a coast to coast sports arena, making fights, baseball, football, and other sports events visible to everybody.

Television is full of promise in the realm of education, too. While some problems remain to be solved, Dunlap says that color television with images of 18 by 24 inches is in the offing for homes.

The images will be so accurate, says Dunlap, that televiewers of the future will fill albums with snapshots of pictures they make of television views flashing to their homes.

Dunlap, for many years radio editor of the New York Times, is now associated with the Radio Corporation of America. His book is published by Harper's.

Youth Draft Subject of Forum of Air Tonight

The American Forum of the Air will consider the timely question, "How Can We Best Use Our Conscripted Youth?" on its broadcast over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual network from 7 to 7:45 o'clock tonight. The speakers will be Rep. Jennings Randolph, West Virginia; Rep. Emanuel Celler, New York; Warren H. Atherton, chairman of the national defense committee of the American Legion; Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War, and Dr. Harry A. Overstreet.

Six Amateurs on W-G-N.

Six talented amateurs will participate in the "Stars of Tomorrow" hour on W-G-N from 8 to 8:30 tonight. The three amateurs voted best by mail ballot will receive wrist watches. All the amateurs will receive war stamp awards.

KNOX AND KING ON MUTUAL NAVY DAY BROADCAST

Secretary of the Navy Knox and Adm. Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet, will be presented on W-G-N and the Mutual network in a special Navy day broadcast from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Tuesday. Secretary Knox will speak at the Navy day dinner at the Waldorf Astoria hotel in New York from 8:30 to 8:45 p. m. At the end of his talk, the program will switch to Adm. King, who will speak from the Navy day banquet at the La Salle hotel from 8:45 to 9 p. m.

THE SHADOW
TODAY
4:30 TO 5 P. M.

BILL JOHNSTONE

Mystery! Excitement! Adventure! You satisfy your sense of all three when you follow "The Shadow" as he matches wits with master murderers in a relentless, brain-whirling trail thru the underworld. Today's spine-chiller, "The Mystery of Madman Deep," creepy and surprising, takes place . . . well, why not tune in for the breath-taking details at 4:30 on W-G-N. Unless you're already a "Shadow" fan, you're in for a brand new sensation in radio mystery entertainment. Bill Johnstone and Marjorie Anderson will be the stars.

FIRST NIGHTER
TODAY
5 to 5:30 P. M.

BARBARA LUDDY LES TREMAYNE

EASY MONEY
TODAY
6:30 to 7 P. M.

MIKE TRENT

You remember Mike Trent, of course—master magician and suave sleuth who ripped the lid completely off confidence games and gambling rackets in last season's "Easy Money" programs. Mike has got a bigger job now—using his prowess in prestidigitation to run down saboteurs. Employing his lore of legerdemain to ensnare a band of tire thieves, Trent turns one of the neatest tricks of his career in this week's "Easy Money" thriller. Hear the whole story tonight at 6:30 on W-G-N.

WAR BLACKS OUT PARK BONFIRES FOR HALLOWEEN

Parades and Stunts Will Fill Bill of Fun.

Ghosts and goblins will be blended with the patriotism produced by war when Chicago's northwest side celebrates Halloween on Saturday. Many of the northwest side parks are planning their parties and festivals for All Saints' eve, but a number are beginning their celebrations as early as Wednesday.

More than 150,000 boys and girls are expected to make use of the city's 96 park fieldhouses and playgrounds, where they will dress as black cats, hobgoblins, and witches as guests of the park district. The 1942 celebrations will be blacked-out as to bonfires. Eliminating the fires, Robert J. Dunham, president of the park board, says that bonfires constitute a fire hazard, that they use up too much wood that may be needed this winter for fuel, and that they take too long to extinguish in case of an air raid. Children working on costumes have copied Uncle Sam and made comic counterparts of Hitler and Hirohito.

Play at Blackhawk.

Included in the schedule of northwest side park Halloween parties are the Wednesday and Thursday evening celebrations at Blackhawk park, Belden and La Vergne avenues. A musical play entitled "King Cole's Court" will be presented, with Joseph Lupa taking the part of King Cole and Barbara Enders cast as Daffydowndilly. Forty boys and girls will take part in the pageant, directed by Cathryn Troy, park drama instructor. The park supervisor is Frederick V. Degenhardt.

From Wednesday thru Saturday there will be a series of parties held by the classes at Jefferson park, Higgins and Long avenues. The park supervisor is Emil Meier.

A costume dance for senior groups will be held at 7 o'clock Saturday night in Holstein park, 2200 North Oakley avenue. There will be a parade, outdoor races, contests, costume judging, apple bobbing, pie eating contests, and a chamber of horrors.

Parade and Awards.

At 7 o'clock Friday evening there will be a parade, costume dancing, entertainment, and music at Kelvyn park, Wrightwood and Kostner avenues. At 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon there will be games, social dancing, and awards for stunts. William H. Sutherland is the park supervisor.

A costume parade and outdoor dance will be held at 7 o'clock Friday evening at Wicker park, Schiller street and Damen avenue. At 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon there will be a children's party for 400 children. David Henderson will be park supervisor.

Friday night celebrations will include a play and patriotic songs at Hermosa park, Belden and Kilbourn avenues; costume judging for 1,000 children at Jacob Riis park, Fullerton and Meade avenues.

Program for Saturday.

Saturday night celebrations include a parade and costume judging in Chopin park, Cornelia and Long avenues; costume judging at Eckhart park, Tahoma and Algonquin avenues; costume judging for prizes and refreshments at Edison park, 6755 Northwest highway; a parade, costume judging, prizes, and games at Humboldt park, North avenue and Humboldt boulevard; a parade, costume judging, treasure hunt, movies, haunted house, and entertainment at Independence park, 3945 North Springfield avenue, and judging of costumes, stage events, treasure hunts, hall of horrors, and refreshments at Kilbourn park, 3501 North Kilbourn avenue.

Others are a parade, movies, and costume judging at Kosciuszko park, 2732 North Avers avenue; a parade, treasure hunt, costume contest, games, and refreshments at La Follette park, Hirsch street and Laramie avenue; a parade, costume judging for prizes, treasure hunt at Portage park, Irving Park road and Long avenue; a parade, costume judging, and games at Pulaski park, Blackhawk and Noble streets, and a parade and costume judging at Shabbona park, Addison street and Newland avenue.

Youth Reserves Party.

American Youth Reserves of Portage Park community will hold Halloween festivities next Saturday evening in Portage park. Theodore Pawlias, 5544 Pensacola avenue is youth activities director of community 16, division 5. While the senior AYR members are dancing at a masquerade in the park, the intermediate and junior groups will hold a snake dance.

Leonhard K. Fuog, 3805 North Cicero avenue, community commander, and Mrs. Henry V. Moore, 5636 Windsor avenue, are working with Paulias to provide a Halloween without property damage.

From Thursday thru Saturday there will be a series of nine group parties held at regular class meetings at Eugene Field park, 5100 North Ridgeway avenue. Phillip Leiderman is park supervisor.

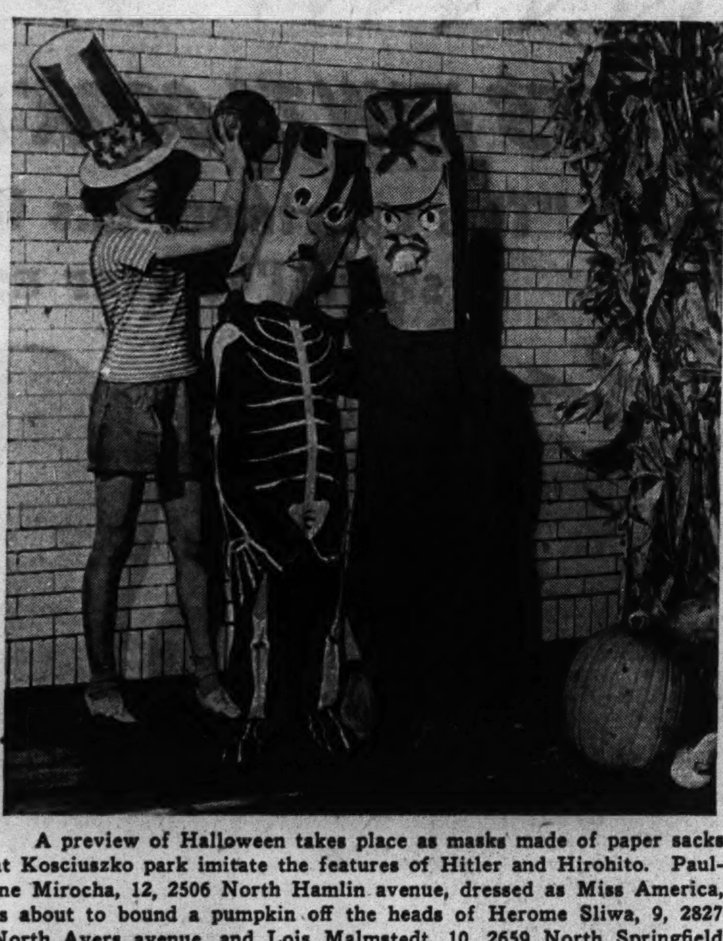
YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY PLANS CAMPAIGN SERIES

The Young People's society of the Salem Free church, Mozart street and McLean avenue, will hold a series of campaign meetings at 7:45 o'clock beginning Saturday and continuing every night thru Sunday, Nov. 8.

The opening night of this campaign will be a special welcoming social in tribute to the guest speaker, the Rev. Herbert Lockyer Jr., and their song leader and soloist, Alfred B. Smith, hymn writer.

Musicians who will be featured during the week are Miss Ruth Pierson, marimba player, and Miss Helen McAlerney, vocalist.

Halloween Ghosties—Hitler, Hirohito



A preview of Halloween takes place as masks made of paper sacks at Kosciuszko park imitate the features of Hitler and Hirohito. Pauline Mirocha, 12, 2506 North Hamlin avenue, dressed as Miss America, is about to bound a pumpkin off the heads of Herome Sliwa, 9, 2827 North Avers avenue, and Lois Malmstedt, 10, 2659 North Springfield street, who made the masks which resemble the dictators.

At Brands park the children line up in costume to try their hands at making pumpkin faces. From left to right, are Sylvia Teichgaider, 7, 2535 Elston avenue; Annaliese Siebert, 9, 3270 Elston avenue; Marguerite, 6, and Marilyn Schue, 9, 2830 Henderson street. The trick this year is to make a pumpkin look like Hitler, Mussolini or Hirohito.

SERGEANT MUFF GOES AWOL, BUT ARMY FORGIVES

Shepherd Dog Prefers Old Regiment.

Pvt. J. W. Mehren.

Six year old Muff Mehren is in the army. Muff won her sergeant's stripes in a week. When she was sent over to radio school at Fort Knox, Ky., she didn't like the classes and went AWOL, coming right back to company C of the ——— regiment, which she likes better. Muff didn't have to serve a term in the guardhouse, because she has a record par excellence in army annals.

Muff Mehren is a German shepherd dog, the second German shepherd dog with the utility degree to serve in the American army. She was trained to obedience from the time she was 6 weeks old by her master, Jack W. Mehren. When Mehren was inducted into the army in May and was sent to Fort Knox he spoke to his commanding officer about the trained dog he had left behind at his home at 4904 Grace street. The commanding officer said "Bring her to camp. We'll see how she acts."

12th Dog to Get Utility Degree.

Pvt. Mehren was sure how she would act. Muff was the 12th dog in the United States to be awarded the utility degree in obedience work. She had been trained by her master all her life at classes in the German Shepherd Training club in Franklin Park, of which Pvt. Mehren is a past president. She knew how to retrieve lost articles, to sit for hours on a busy thorofare on just one command. She could jump and heel and long ago had passed the baby tests such as walking like a lady on a leash.

It isn't known officially whether Muff's good conduct had anything to do with it, but Pvt. Mehren no longer is at Fort Knox. He has been ordered to a camp in Nebraska where he will train other dogs for service with troops.

Muff may have gotten in the army on a pull, but she held her own after she had been inducted. At first army life was confusing because all the soldiers looked alike. On the hikes she ran ahead, then couldn't find her master. She would stand patiently at the side of the road smelling every leg that passed by until the right ones came along, the pair belonging to her master.

Reports for Roll Call.

Sergt. Muff appears at roll call every morning, drills with the boys, goes on hikes, and rides in the peeps and the jeeps. When the trucks and motor cars are lined up for driving instruction, Muff marches out, makes straight for the commanding officer's car, and takes her seat with dignity. No one has been able to coax her into a car in the rear of the line.

The boys took up a collection to buy a special harness on which her sergeant's stripes have been placed. The stripes were presented to her with the entire company lined up at attention. She kept her eyes straight ahead when she was warned that if she "got into trouble" the stripes would be taken away from her.

Pvt. Mehren was sent to the armored radio school and he took Mascot Muff along. Muff became bored while the boys were in classes, and one day walked calmly back to company C.

The mascot is used to seeing uniforms now. In fact, no one in civilian clothes dare approach the barracks without whooping and barking from Sergt. Muff, U. D.

Sergt. Muff

A sergeant's stripes after a week of service is the record of Sergt. Muff, who joined her master, Pvt. Jack W. Mehren, at Fort Knox, Kentucky, on orders of Pvt. Mehren's commanding officer.

Belmont Heights OCD Group to Give Dance

A Halloween masquerade dance will be held by the service men's committee of the Belmont Heights community civilian defense organization Saturday evening in the Shabbona park fieldhouse. Joseph V. Bychowski is the community commander and William B. Schaeffer is dance chairman. Refreshments will be served by the Edison Heights Ladies' club.

OLD CARPENTER HOME AN OASIS IN FRANTIC WORLD

Park Ridge Place Recalls Era of Gracious Living.

In the heart of the Park Ridge business district, the old George B. Carpenter home, 102 North Northwest highway, is half hidden among its tall trees and high shrubbery from public view. The lush foliage and a low white fence almost seclude the many gabled home from the heavy traffic at its front, the playground at its rear, and the city hall to the east.

Opening the front gate, one takes a few steps within the grounds and vistas of lawns, garden, graveled paths, break upon the view. Two rollicking spaniels dash down a brick walk, slightly touched with moss, and accompany the visitor to the entrance.

Enter the cool, pleasantly dim central hallway. Spacious rooms are on each side and an open stairway of mahogany and ivory trim ascends to the upper story. George W. Field comes forward, a slight, alert figure of twinkling courtesy. He is a nephew of the late George B. Carpenter.

Moved from City After Fire.

"Yes," remarks Mr. Fields, "the Carpenters came here in 1871 when both our families, the Carpenters and the Fields, were burned out in the Chicago fire." The present owner and his brother, Arthur, woolen manufacturers' agents in Chicago, acquired the home in 1924, paying $45,000. Mr. Field spends at least six months of the year in Park Ridge, the remainder in Florida and Wyoming, where he has vacationed for 30 years. Arthur Field died several years ago.

George B. Carpenter, whose Chicago ship supply business of the same name was one of the largest of its kind in the middle west, was elected the first president of the village when it was incorporated in 1873 and its name changed from Brickton to Park Ridge. Mrs. Carpenter, an accomplished singer, was active in Park Ridge community life, particularly in the Congregational church, where it is said she helped to "sing a new roof on the church." Josef Hofman and other famous musicians were guests of the Carpenter family.

Sons Are Prominent.

Four sons grew up in the Park Ridge home, and attended the public schools before entering Harvard university. Prominent Chicagoans, all of them, three of the sons, Benjamin, Hubbard, and John Alden, a composer—continue in their father's business. The fourth son is Judge George A. Carpenter.

A house, certainly, for gentlefolk, the Park Ridge mansion of 18 rooms is marked by an air of gracious simplicity. Oriental rugs add a ruby tone to dark oiled floors, an imported English floral wallpaper covers the walls, from wainscoting to ceiling, ivory woodwork, and solid mahogany and walnut furniture are found thruout. Fireplaces are in a number of the rooms but the house has been modernized with oil heat and other conveniences.

About 1912, shortly before his death, Mr. Carpenter had an impressively long dining room and butler's pantry added to the rear of the house with an English basement kitchen underneath and servants' quarters.

Built on Watershed Ridge.

The house is located on a ridge dividing two watersheds, Mr. Field said. The slight slope of the front lawn, from the veranda to Northwest highway, demands only three porch steps. Here the water drains into the north branch of the Chicago river. However, in the rear, 14 steps rise to the first floor, so steep is the drop. Here the water drains west into the Des Plaines river.

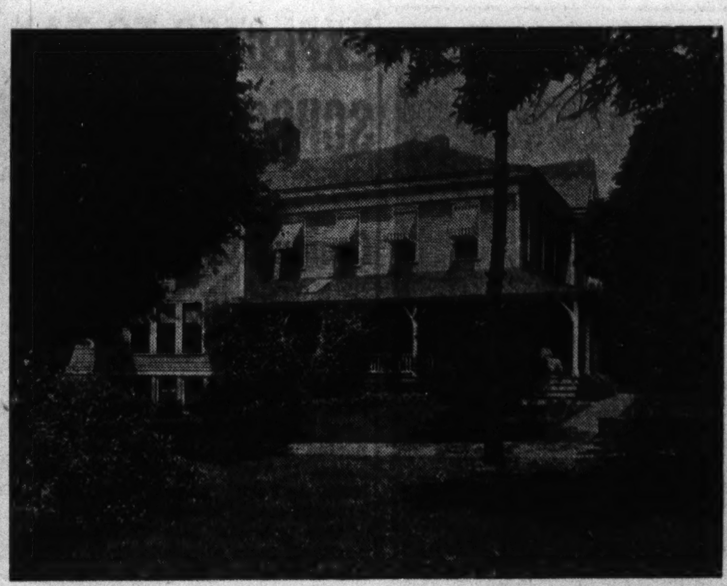
The attic is rich in early history. Massive pieces of furniture, valuable etchings of an earlier day, a quilt dating back to 1713, Mr. Field's mother's wedding dress—a gown of beauty—and a gold framed oil painting of his grandfather are discovered. The tall painting is a companion piece of the oil portrait of his grandmother which dominates the entrance hall.

What looks like a large wooden box on the attic floor is a catch basin for rain water, or Mr. Field presumes it is. It is tin-lined and has a water mark several feet below its cover. When first explored, it was found to be sealed but filled with mattresses, some stuffed with valuable horsehair.

WALTHER LEAGUE PLAYERS OFFER COMEDY DRAMA

The Walther league of Jehovah Lutheran church, Belden avenue and Ridgeway, will present a three act comedy Wednesday and Saturday evenings, Nov. 4 and 7, in the church school auditorium. The leading rôles will be played by Ruth Fromm and Alfred Mueller. Members of the supporting cast are Brunhilde Schuman, Charles Rex, Grace Hoppenrath, Arthur Marske, Dorothy Asche, Gertrude Donisch, George Krause, Walter Pelz, Shirley Jennrich, and Howard Petterson. The director is Miss Alvera Witt.

Old Home Retains Identity



Looking a bit more mellow today than it did 25 years ago when this picture was taken, the old George B. Carpenter home, built in the late '60s, commands a two acre estate in the heart of the business district of Park Ridge. A nephew of the early owner, George W. Field, has resided in the home since he purchased it in 1924.

POSTCARD CHESS PLAYER WINNER AFTER 7 YEARS

Green Attains the Title After 100 Games.

Errald C. Green of Prospect Heights was notified recently by the Correspondence Chess league that he was the national winner in the correspondence chess tournament which has been proceeding since 1935. The league, with headquarters in Sioux City, Ia., is the largest correspondent chess group in the country.

Green traces his victories thru a series of sectional contests, starting with the Great Lakes league, and continuing thru the Central States tournament, the All-Eastern [including Canada], and the finals of the All-Western from which he emerged the victor. Nearly 100 games of chess were played by postcard correspondence, Green estimates.

Mathematics Teachers.

What makes a champion chess player? Well, a dash of mathematics, some engineering, amateur photography, astronomy, and a retentive memory are the components of the 1942 champ. His chess playing dates back to college days at the University of Minnesota, where he majored in mathematics. Almost all master chess players are mathematics teachers or engineers.

It was when the stress of business caught up with him, that Green dropped regular chess and blindfold chess for the correspondence variety. In it, he says, the games can be played when the player has leisure, whatever time of day or night that may be. Also, recourse to technical books on the subject is possible, and this occasional research augments the chess player's knowledge.

House Won Prize.

As for such incidental hobbies as photography, Green has his own darkroom, 10 cameras, and is a former member of the Chicago Camera club. He was a successful contractor for years. One house he built for an architect in Evanston won first prize in an architectural contest. At present he is a structural engineer with the Austin company.

Green is a director of the Associated Builders of Chicago, a member of the Chicago Chess and Checkers club and the Prospect Heights Lion's club.

Champ Checkmater

His opponent may be in Portland, Ore., or Ottawa, Canada, but Errald C. Green of Prospect Heights, national correspondence chess champion, plays his pawns as tho his partner were across the board. When Green moves the king or a knight he lists the move on a postcard and away it goes to his opponent, who studies the picture on his board, and sends back a postcard move for Green to surmount. Congregation B'nai Shalom to Resume Friday Rites

Friday evening services will begin at 8:15 o'clock next Friday at Congregation B'nai Shalom, 3245 Ainslie street, when Rabbi David Graubart will review Lawrence Lipton's book, "Brother, the Laugh is Bitter." Jack Verblen, soloist, will chant the service.

SALUTE BLOOM TOWNSHIP HIGH ON W-G-N HOUR

Bloom Township High school of Chicago Heights will be saluted on the "Citizens of Tomorrow" program on W-G-N from 1 to 1:30 p. m. today. For the first time in the series, which now numbers 70 broadcasts, the program will originate and be recorded at the school itself.

This procedure has become necessary because of transportation problems. Whenever it is necessary in the future, programs will originate in schools that are far distant from the studio.

Raymond D. Meade, principal at Bloom, will speak on the program. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies.

The Bloom choir of 19 boys and 41 girls, under the direction of Don VandenBerg, will sing "Dark Water" by James, and "Today There Is Ringing" by Christiansen. Harold Turner, W-G-N staff pianist, will provide the accompaniment.

Two more senior high scool students will be added to the program's honor roll. They are Thomas Ryan, 16, president of the senior class at Dubuque, Ia., High school, and Judith Tornow, also 16, a senior at Bloom.

Helen Jepson Guest on Kostelanetz-Spalding Show

Helen Jepson, Metropolitan opera soprano, and Bob Hannon, tenor, will be guests of Andre Kostelanetz and Albert Spalding on their program at 3:30 p. m. today over WBBM-CBS. Miss Jepson will sing "Serenade" by Toselli, and Mr. Hannon will sing the "Valse Huguette" from Friml's "The Vagabond King." Mr. Spalding's violin solo will be "Salut d'Amour" by Sir Edward Elgar. The orchestra under the direction of Mr. Kostelanetz will play Strauss' "Tales from the Vienna Woods," Xavier Cugat's "Nightingale," and the "Vocalise" by Rachmaninoff.

Block Group Plans Flag, Honor Roll Dedication

An honor roll, and service flag for block 8 zone 45 will be dedicated at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the northeast corner of LeClaire and Nelson streets. Service men to whom the honor roll is a tribute are Edward and Rudolph Bares, Wilbus Bethke, Donald Grienbaun, John C. Hurckes, Leroy Moore, and B. R. Nelson. E. C. Mueller is block captain.

'ROBIN HOOD' IS NEXT OPERETTA IN W-G-N SERIES

Miss Claire, Felix Knight to Sing Leads.

The romantic story of Robin Hood, as portrayed in song and drama by Reginald De Koven in his operetta by that name, will be unfolded on the Chicago Theater of the Air next Saturday evening. The operetta will be broadcast from 8 to 9 o'clock over W-G-N and the Mutual system.

Felix Knight will sing the title rôle; Marion Claire will take the part of Lady Marian.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Others in the singing cast will be Arwin Schweig, bass, who will be making his network radio debut, as Will Scarlett; Bruce Foote, baritone, as Little John, and John McDonald, bass, as the sheriff of Nottingham.

A cast of distinguished Chicago actors will take the dramatic rôles in the presentation.

The musical background will be provided by the W-G-N symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and the chorus, led by Robert Trendler. Kenneth MacGregor will be the producer.

All of the familiar music will be presented, including the perennial favorite, "O, Promise Me."

Juniors at Wells High Get Course in Home Nursing

Boys and girls of the junior class at Wells High school, 936 North Ashland avenue, are now required to take a home nursing course because of the great need for medical help in war work. The boys have a choice of either the home nursing course or first aid. If the student passes the final examination after 12 weeks of instruction, he is awarded a Red Cross home nursing certificate. Each student purchases a manual which serves for both a textbook during training and as a source of information in the home.

GLIMPSES BEHIND JAPAN, OBJECT OF REVIEW STAND

The Northwestern University Reviewing Stand will discuss "Behind the Face of Japan" on W-G-N and the Mutual network from 10 to 10:30 a. m. today.

Guests for the program will be Upton Close, authority on Far Eastern affairs; Prof. Franklin D. Scott, and Frederic S. Marquardt, foreign correspondent.

Among the points to be discussed will be the philosophy of the Japanese, their economic status, their religious and political habits, and their attitude toward America. James H. McBurney will be moderator.

M'HENRY TO STAY REPUBLICAN BY A 3 TO 1 MARGIN

Registration High in Four Counties in Area.

McHenry county, so traditionally Republican it has never elected a Democrat since formation of the Republican party, will give a three to one majority for the G. O. P. Nov. 3, County Judge Henry L. Cowlin, Crystal Lake, chairman of the Republican central committee and nominee for reelection, predicted last week. He and other county Republican candidates spoke at a rally of 700 persons in the Woodstock Community High school.

Judge Cowlin based his prediction on the better than three to one Republican margin in the June judicial election. Of the present McHenry county registration of 20,467, the county judge estimated 18,000 ballots would be cast Nov. 3. This would be appreciably higher than the 16,418 total vote in the 1938 election.

Officials Meet This Week.

County Clerk Raymond D. Woods, Woodstock, announced that final election procedure will be considered by election judges and clerks—there are six in each of the county's 34 precincts—this week at two meetings in the county courthouse at Woodstock. The west end county group will meet at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening. Precincts in this group are Riley, Marengo 1 and 2, Dunham, Chemung 1, 2, and 3, Alden, Hartland, Seneca, Coral, Grafton 1 and 2, Dorr 1, 2, 3, and 4. Wednesday night the precincts to meet are Door 5, Greenwood, Hebron, Richmond, Burton, McHenry 1, 2, 3, and 4, Nunda, 1, 2, and 3, Algonquin 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5.

McHenry's registration of 20,467 is approximately 90 per cent of the county's all-time high vote of 22,917 in the 1940 election. The county began registering voters last July and by the time the first general signup day rolled around on Sept. 19, there were 10,000 names on the books. On Sept. 19, another 2,643 voters signed up, and again on Oct. 6, the last registration date, another 3,100 names were added.

Since approximately 2,000 county men and women are in service, most of whom are eligible voters, Woods estimated that the 20,467 figure represents virtually 100 per cent of the county's voters.

54,572 Sign in Lake County.

A total of 54,572 citizens in Lake county have registered, Jay B. Morse, county clerk, announced. This is approximately 10,000 more than voted in the 1938 election, but 10,000 fewer than voted in the 1940 election. The county clerk estimated there are about 70,000 citizens eligible to vote in Lake county.

Kane county, with a registration of 63,837, has more than 94 per cent of its voters registered. This is estimated on the basis of the peak vote of 68,697 cast in the Presidential election of 1940. County Clerk Charles Lowry reports that approximately 20,000 were registered by Sept. 19, exclusive of 25,000 registered in Aurora, and about 6,000 names were added on that day. Another 11,000 names were listed on Oct. 6, giving a grand total last week of 63,837.

Du Page Registration High.

The present registration in Du Page county is 97.03 per cent of the total of the 60,723 vote in the 1940 Presidential election, according to Clarence V. Wagemann, county clerk. He said that 40,591 voters had registered by Sept. 19, with 6,292 signing that day. Oct. 6 accounted for another 7,044, giving a grand total of 53,927. Add to this the 5,000 persons in military service, and 58,927 voters are accounted for, Wagemann said.

Du Page county voters have three special propositions to consider at the polls Nov. 3. Shall the forest preserve district of Du Page county be included within the provisions of an act creating the Illinois minimum retirement fund? Shall the county be included within the provisions of an act creating the Illinois minimum retirement fund? The third short ballot deals with an act relating to the care and treatment by counties of persons afflicted with tuberculosis and providing the means for such care.

This law is now in effect under an election held previously, but another vote has been made necessary for the reason that the Supreme court held that in another county, having the same act, the ballot was not properly worded.

TRAILER OWNERS SEEK TO REMAIN IN BENSENVILLE

Men and women whose homes are on wheels have organized the Leyden Community Trailer association and have filed a 10 point brief with the village board of Bensenville as to why they should be allowed to stay put. Trailer home owners of Bensenville have been ordered by the village to move out of town by Jan. 1.

Headquarters of the trailer association is at 9341 Irving Park road and its president is William Holloway who also is the president of the CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America.

The petitioners urged the Bensenville officials to set up a municipal trailer park with commuity shower, lavatory, laundry, and recreational facilities. They suggest the park be located on a parcel of ground from which the village has not been realizing taxes.

The petition states: "Upon the completion of such a municipal trailer park there would be no difficulty in obtaining the necessary trailers to fill this park at a rental of $10 per month."

The trailer owners charge that the action of the Bensenville officials in ordering them from the village is hampering the war effort.

Owners of trailers dangle $1,000 per months, there would be $1,000 pouring ville board. The petition states, "If, for example, 100 trailers pay $10 a months, thre would be $1,000 pouring into the village treasury each month."

Collect Radios for Army School

Two hundred and fifty radios of all vintages, styles, and numbers of tubes have been piled together at the Jefferson Park community headquarters, 4865 Milwaukee avenue, as the community's contribution to the army air forces technical schools in Chicago. Left to right are the civilian defense workers who helped collect the radios, Leo Popek, 4865 Milwaukee avenue, lieutenant commander; Mrs. Stanley O'Hala, 5406 North McVicker avenue, conservation chairman, and Community Commander Gladys Cooke, 4761 Luna avenue. One hundred and fifty radios also have been collected by the Portage Park Community Civilian Defense organization at 4215 Milwaukee avenue.

LOVE OF FAMILY KEEPS CHINESE BOYS FROM JAIL

No Community Juvenile Crime Problem.

At least one Chicago community has little need for an agency to reduce juvenile delinquency. It's Chinatown, centered at Cermak road and Wentworth avenue.

The juvenile delinquency rate of this community is so low that officials at the Juvenile Detention home said there was no separate report for the Chinese, altho other national groups were listed. Workers who have been at the home many years reported they could not remember a Chinese child brought in for wrongdoing. And Chinatown is a community of more than 2,000 persons, one-fourth of whom are less than 21 years old.

Capt. Edward Kelly of the 3d police district, in which Chinatown is located, termed the community "the quietest place in my district." He said he had almost no trouble from Chinese children. In fact, he added, there was little difficulty to be had in the community, either from children or adults. Teachers at Haines elementery school, which serve the district, reported there was almost no truancy among the Chinese children.

Ideal Family Life.

The reason for this almost ideal state? According to the Rev. John Mao, pastor of St. Therese church, the only Chinese Catholic church in the middle west, it is derived from the family life of the Chinese.

"The reason there is little crime and delinquency," he said, "is that in China the family name is so highly respected that every member of the family feels the dishonor of any individual's wrong doing." There are only 100 families in all the millions of Chinese.

The family name, being highly respected, is given first, not last, as is the case with other nationalities. If an individual demonstrates he has lost ability to uphold the family name, it is taken away from him. He is almost the same as a man without a country in China. Father Mao cited the axample of Wang Chiu-Wei, who became the Japanese puppet governor in Nanking.

Punished by Family.

When this treachery was committed against China the Wang family took away his name. An individual who has suffered this fate can be taken back into the family if he demonstrates he has repented and will no longer do wrong. Fther Mao indicated that Chiu-Wei will have a difficult time getting himself reinstated.

The Chinese family is organized with the mother at the head of the family so far as affairs inside the home are concerned. The father is leader of outside affairs. When a son marries he brings his bride to the home of his father, which keeps the family unit together.

Where there are several members of a family in one place they establish a family headquarters, the center of family affairs in that area. There are seven family headquarters in Chicago, altho there are more than that number reperesnted. The Moys and Lees are the largest family groups in Chicago, as well as being among the largest in China.

Teach Parental Respect.

Respect toward parents, age, scholarship, and dignity, are taught Chinese children from their earliest years. He is obedient because he knows that by being bad he will dishonor all members of his family. He has the goal of being able to live to a respected old age.

During the depression there were few Chinese on relief. The family system kept them from taking the dole. If a member came upon hard times, he was lent money and food by the family until he got on his feet again.

Father Mao cited a Chinese proverb —"It is a shame to accept and an honor to give"—which sheds light on the Chinese attitude toward governmental relief. This idea need not apply to loans by the family. It explains, Father Mao said, why a Chinese was reluctant to come to the United States if other members of his family were not here.

Married People's Club.

Young Married People's club will hold a Halloween party Saturday evening in the Logan Square temple, 3135 Fullerton avenue.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Mrs. Carmela Corvo, 621 North Homan avenue; Daniel A. Bixler, son of Mrs. Eva Bixler, 4551 North La Vergne avenue, and Stanley F. Krupa, son of Mrs. Lucille Krupa, 1926 Wolcott avenue. Corp. Gross has been sent to the tank destroyer officer candidate school at Camp Hood, Texas.

Corp. John C. Newman, son of Mrs. Mary E. Newman, 2407 North Albany avenue, is attending the field artillery officer candidate school at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

A former instructor at the University of Chicago and North Park college, Lieut. [j. g.] Nils W. Olsson, son of Nils A. Olsson, 4159 North Monticello avenue, was groduated recently from the naval training school at Fort Schuyler, New York. Graduates of Fort Schuyler are men drawn from business, executive, and professional careers. After a brief leave, many graduates go to shipboard duty, while a few are assigned to schools for further specialized training.

Corp. Steve S. Kane, son of Mrs. Viola Kane, 2620 North Campbell avenue, has been promoted to sergeant at the army air bombardment center at Gowen field, Boise, Idaho. He is an aerial engineer in a combat crew. Kane is a graduate of the air mechanic's school at Chanute Field.

A member of the 1939 graduating class of Lane Technical High school was graduated recently from the army flying school at Victorville, California. He is Second Lieut. Robert Edward Nickels of 2921 North Lotus avenue.

Norman E. Glisker, 18, who enlisted in the navy and who served in the maritime service, has completed basic training at the naval training station, Newport, R. I. After a short leave, he will be assigned to a navy trade or technical school for special instruction, or to a shore base or ship of the fleet. Norman played basketball and football at Roosevelt High school, from which he was graduated in 1941. He is the son of Mrs. George Glisker, 4847 North Kimball avenue.

Attending the infantry officers candidate school at Fort Benning, Ga., is Corp. Joseph A. Antonnucci, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Antonnucci, 1025 Irving Park road. After his induction into the army at Camp Grant, a year ago, he was transferred to Fort Warren, Wyo., thence to Camp Chaffee, Arkansas, where he served in the camp quartermaster detachment. He attended Loyola university for two years.

Stationed in the Southwest since his acceptance by the army air forces, Aviation Cadet George R. Ives Jr., son of George R. Ives, 5932 Newburg avenue, has studied at Santa Ana, Cal., at Thunderbird field, near Phoenix, Ariz., and now begins his basic training at the Marana flying school. The Marana base is located in the desert, 30 miles from Tucson. Cadet Ives was graduated from North Park college in 1941.

MARTIN DRUGOF HEADS ROOSEVELT ROTC FOR FALL

Twenty-five advancements in the Reserve Officers Training corps at Roosevelt High school have been announced for the fall term, with Martin Drugof being advanced from second lieutenant to lieutenant colonel and head of the unit.

Other staff officer advancements: Earl Rosenberg, major and executive officer; Seymour Stiss, captain, and Gerald Hoosin, second lieutenant.

Band officers: Second lieutenants, Richard Edgren and Robert Mendelsohn.

NEW WAR PLANTS EXPECTED TO TAX SCHOOL CAPACITY

County Keeps Pace Now with Increases.

The Douglas aircraft plant near Park Ridge and the Buick Motor company plant in Melrose Park are expected to necessitate some adjustments in county school organization later, but the plants have not yet brought major school hardship.

This was the gist of information received from supervisors in the office of Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools, with regard to elementary schools outside Chicago.

Hardships there were for families who once lived in territory taken by the Douglas plant in school district 77, served by Mapleside school on Bryn Mawr avenue half a mile west of Mannheim road. The plant took 45 per cent of the district. The families had to move.

22 Pupils Remain.

But as far as the school administration was concerned it meant merely that the size of the district both in area and number of pupils was cut approximately in two.

Enrollment dropped from 54 last year to 22 this year. The two room school, formerly served by two teachers, became a one teacher school. If families moving out of the school district went to nearby districts, they were scattered so that no great crowding resulted.

But in another six months or a year, crowding may come in several districts, according to Clarence M. Callahan, supervisor of division 3 in the county superintendent's office, overseer for most of the schools in the northwest part of the county.

Apprehension is felt, for instance, in regard to Schiller Park school. This school is located not far from the Buick plant at North avenue and Mannheim road.

Gains 40 Students.

The eight room school increased from 240 to 280 pupils this fall, but the building and teaching staff were able to absorb the increase.

Pennoyer school, in district 79, at Higgins and Canfield roads near Park Ridge, nearly doubled its enrollment this fall, from 80 to 140, but the increase was attributed largely to building increase in Buckley subdivision. Much of the enrollment comes from Chicago because, county school men said, Chicago school facilities are not conveniently located in this part of the city. These pupils pay tuition. To care for the increase two new teachers have been added, for a total of four.

Orchard Place school, in district 66, located at Higgins road and Lee street, near the Douglas plant site, showed no increase in its roll of 50 pupils this fall. But it is in an especially vulnerable spot for later troubles. It can care for 15 or 20 more pupils with little change. Then appeal will have to be made to the Lanum act administrators, it was reported.

New School Crowded.

School men reported one new teacher and 22 new pupils at Oakton school, in district 64½, at Oakton street and Busse highway, Park Ridge, but the increase was called the result of general building. One new teacher was added, to give a total of four for 84 pupils.

East Main school, between Des Plaines and Park Ridge, is in a new building this year, which already is crowded because of an increase of 30 pupils, for a total of 150. The $160,000 four room building, with gymnasium, lunchroom, and kitchen, in addition to classrooms, replaced an old two room structure. But here, also, school men could not trace the increase directly to the nearby Douglas plant. An influx of workers and children, however, would crowd the facilities.

As for high schools, Maine Township High at Dempster and Potter roads, showed decrease of 124, from 1,816 to 1,692 students this fall. Palatine Township High increased 10, to 270 students. Arlington Heights Township and Barrington District High school enrollments remained about the same. These conditions were attributed to the fact that high school age youths are going into war industries or joining armed forces.

RED CROSS UNIT TO ACCEPT BLOOD IN FOUR TOWNS

The white truck of the Red Cross blood donor mobile unit will visit northwest suburbs beginning Wednesday. About 125 appointments will be made for each day of each community's schedule, and five volunteer services will assist the Red Cross physician and nurses. They are the Nurses Aid, Grey Ladies, canteen workers, staff assistants, and motor corps drivers.

For four days starting Wednesday, the mobile unit equipment will be set up in the Rand park fieldhouse, Des Plaines. Mrs. R. L. Saylor, 1650 Mill street, is general chairman of the Des Plaines Red Cross organization. In Palatine, blood donors will report on Nov. 4 and 5 to the high school. Dr. R. S. Williams is the blood donor chairman.

Barrington will be visited by the unit on Nov. 6 and 7, and facilities at St. Anne's school will be used. The blood donor chairman is Dr. L. R. Barnum. Nov. 13 and 14 the unit will go to the Arlington Heights fieldhouse. A Red Cross home nursing instructor, Mrs. George K. Haycock, is the blood donor chairman there.

William Katz New Head of Humboldt Congregation

New officers were elected recently by the Humboldt Boulevard Temple congregation, 1908 Humboldt boulevard. They are William M. Katz, president; Paul Worth, vice president; Charles P. Crum, treasurer; Louis Levinson, financial secretary; Jack Bell, recording secretary; Philip Klafter, chairman of the board, and Ephraim Frank, sexton. The installation ceremony will be held Wednesday evening at the temple.

Studies Nursing

Virginia Stengel, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Theodore Stengel, 4317 West Schubert avenue, has become a student nurse at the Lutheran Deaconess hospital. She was an honor student at Kelvyn Park High school.

LEADERS OF ROTC IN 3 NORTHWEST SCHOOLS NAMED

Largest Cadet Group in Steinmetz History.

Reserve officers training corps advancement have been announced for three high schools, serving the northwest part o fthe city—Lane Technical, Steinmetz, and Schurz. These schools have a total of 2,221 cadets.

Louis Weiss has been named lieutenant colonel and regimental commander of the largest cadet corps in the history of Steinmetz, where enrolment has grown from 397 when school opened, to 428. This is 113 more than were enroled last fall.

Thaddeus Lewandowski heads the Schurz corps of 498 cadets as lieutenant colonel and Robert Teepe holds thesame office at Lane Tech, largest high school corps in the city, numbering 1,326 cadets.

Other Steinmetz Promotions.

Other advancements at Steinmetz were announced as follows:

Vincent Iaccino named cadet major and executive officer; Harold Bentsen major, commander of first battalion; Raymond Pahliughi, major, commander of second battalion; Ted Zimmerman, captain, regimental adjutant; James Urbanek, captain, plans and training officer.

Walter Wysocki, first lieutenant, platoon leader; Otis Schmidt and Daniel Bradtke, first lieutenants, company commanders. Charles Galsor is publicity officer.

Schurz Leaders Listed.

With Lewandowsk there are 42 officers at Schurz. Advancements for the fall term were announced as follows:

Line officers—Majors, Richard Mack and Robert Schulz; captains, John Cullen, Charles Gray, John Herres, Everett Johnson, James Johnson, Richard Johnson, and Richard Kreiling; first lieutenants, Albin Augustin, Raymond Casati, Joseph Grasser, Ross Herr, Walter Naaf, Ronald Nowicki, and Robert Piotrowski; second lieutenants, Robert Bergeson, Robert Chandler, Harvey Crain, Charles Davis, William Fonger, Roger Frerk, Arent Jacobsen, John McGrath, Robert Meyer, William Oyen, Robert Punta, Bernard Sayles, Robert Stahl, and Donald Zillman.

Staff officers—Major, Otto Podlaha; captains, Edward J. Mueller, Edward Dubinski, and William Crosby; first lieutenants, Gerald Drouin, Edward R. Mueller, and Thomas Rooney; second lieutenant, William Peterson.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

RESIDENTS of the northwest side for 50 years, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kurzer, 2456 North Artesian avenue, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary recently. Mr. Kurzer was born in Germany 74 years ago, coming to Chicago at the age of 2. His wife, who is 73 years old, was born in Cook, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kurzer.

Their two sons and four daughters are Joseph Jr. and Bernard, Mrs. Anna Baber, Mrs. Marie Zimmermann, Mrs. Caroline Stephan, and Mrs. Johanna Worman.

SIXTY years ago Mr. and Mrs. Mayer B. Kaplin, 2145 North Humboldt boulevard, came to America on their honeymoon. Five sons and three daughters helped them celebrate this twofold anniversary, of marriage and of arrival in the United States, this month. Seven grandchildren were present and one great-grandchild. Four of the Kaplin sons served in World War I.

Mr. Kaplin was born in Germany and his wife in Ireland, but he has lived in Chicago 60 years and she has been here for 53 years.

ON OCT. 11 Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Wittmann, 5049 Potomac avenue, observed their golden wedding anniversary with a dinner for 50 guests at the Oak Park Community house. Present were their four married children and Mrs. Alice Regan, a sister of Mrs. Wittmann.

The three sons are Rickard, Robert, and Bernard. Their daughter is Mrs. Harvey O. Wilson. The grandchildren include Lieut. Robert F. Wilson, army air corps; Mrs. Edward Kallas, and Dick, James, Robert, and Patricia Wittmann.

Mr. Wittmann is an executive with the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company.

IT'S FUN TO COOK NOW!
"This apartment has the best stove I've ever used."

What is your pet desire in an apartment? A good stove? Venetian blinds? Nearness to schools? Cross ventilation? Whatever it is, you can find the apartment you want much more easily by consulting the rental columns of the Tribune, which prints more apartments to rent want advertising than any two other Chicago newspapers combined.

For your convenience, the offers are arranged by locations in the city and suburbs and by numbers of rooms. Make a list of those which interest you before you start out to look. By doing so, you avoid useless stairclimbing to inspect apartments which do not appeal to you.

Choose your next apartment from Chicago's most comprehensive apartment guide—the Tribune want ad section.

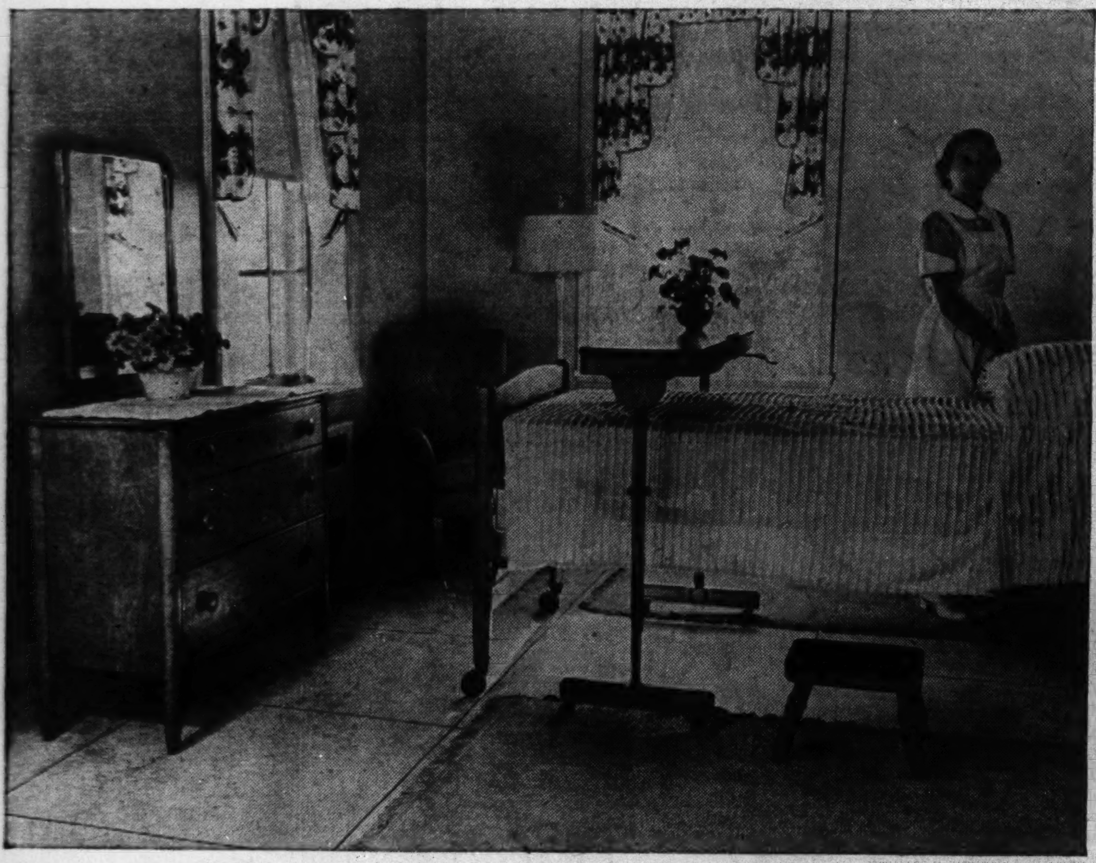
DEWEY CALLS WAR CRITICISM A DUTY!

Lake Forest's New Hospital Culminates Four Years' Planning



Mrs. E. K. Wells puts the finishing touches on a patient's room in the new Lake Forest hospital, which is expected to be opened Nov. 2. Four years of planning has gone into the new north shore hospital unit which will replace the old Alice home in Lake Forest. The walls in the patients' rooms are painted pale green, yellow, blue or tile color. Pine furniture, colorful draperies, bedspread, and scatter rugs add homey touches.

The hospital has three large operating rooms, all tiled in marine blue. Each is gas explosive proof. In case of an emergency or black-out enough steam may be generated from the heating plant in the basement to light all the operating rooms and corridors. A fourth emergency operating room is located in the basement.

Cheerful Note Made Theme of New Hospital

BY MARY HOLSINGER.

Gone are the days when hospitals and maternity centers had straight iron beds and institutional white walls and bedspreads. At least that is the picture one gets after a visit to the new Lake Forest hospital expected to be opened for patients Nov. 2.

Four years of planning have gone into the new hospital, one of the most modern and colorful hospital units on the north shore. The $800,000 project is a three story Williamsburg brick building of Georgian style which will supplant Lake Forest's old Alice Home hospital. It is located on a 24 acre plot north of Deer path and west of Skokie road.

Everything about the hospital from its attractive butternut paneled reception room to its colorful halls and papered dining rooms has been planned for a homey and cheerful atmosphere. Nowhere except for the immaculate white kitchens have the designers allowed a trace of institutional white to appear.

Harmonizing Color Scheme.

The hallways and corridors are painted a delicate green. The patients' rooms, furnished in pine, have walls of pale yellow, blue, green, or tile color. Floral draperies are at the windows and chenille bedspreads are in harmonizing colors. On the floors are scatter rugs.

The nursery, an apricot pink tiled room on the second floor, is equipped with 10 pink bassinets. Nothing has been overlooked in the maternity ward, even to an attractively papered "corral for expectant fathers." The nursery is encased in glass and has a special ray lamp which kills all germs instantly. Even with that, however, no one but the nurse will be allowed to enter the nursery.

Three Operating Rooms.

The first floor has an X-ray laboratory, a pathological laboratory, an out patient corridor, two consulting rooms, and a cardiograph room. In addition to the maternity ward on the second floor there are three operating rooms, all tiled in marine blue. They have gas explosionproof switches. One room is equipped to take care of fractures only.

The basement has three dining rooms, a large kitchen, and an emergency operating room.

The heating system is equipped with a standby line which in an emergency could generate enough steam to run the lights in all the corridors and operating rooms.

The third floor has dormitory rooms for visiting nurses, cooks, and maids, and storage space. Entirely fireproof, the hospital roof is reinforced with four inch slabs of concrete, then a layer of felt, and on the outside dark slate which makes an attractive top for the red brick walls.

Capacity of 65 Beds.

The hospital will be equipped with 41 beds, almost twice as many as in Alice Home hospital, and has a rated capacity of 65 beds. Fifteen registered nurses will reside in the hospital and there will be 16 active doctors and 10 more on the consulting staff.

The hospital has been a community project for which 700 donors have contributed funds. A. B. Dick Jr. of Lake Forest is president of the board of directors.

Members of the medical staff are nominated by the staff but are approved and appointed by the board of directors. The term of each appointment is limited to one year.

Accredited for Intern Training.

The hospital will qualify under rules of the American Medical association and already has been accred-

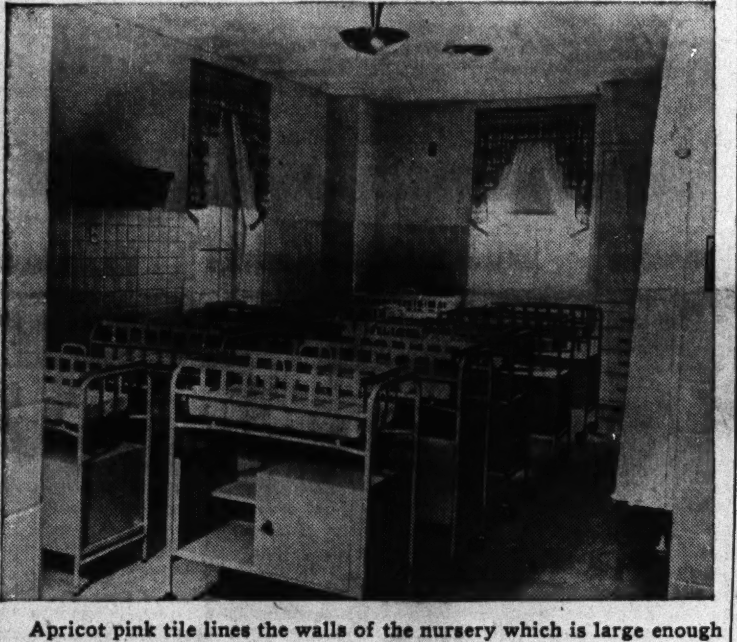
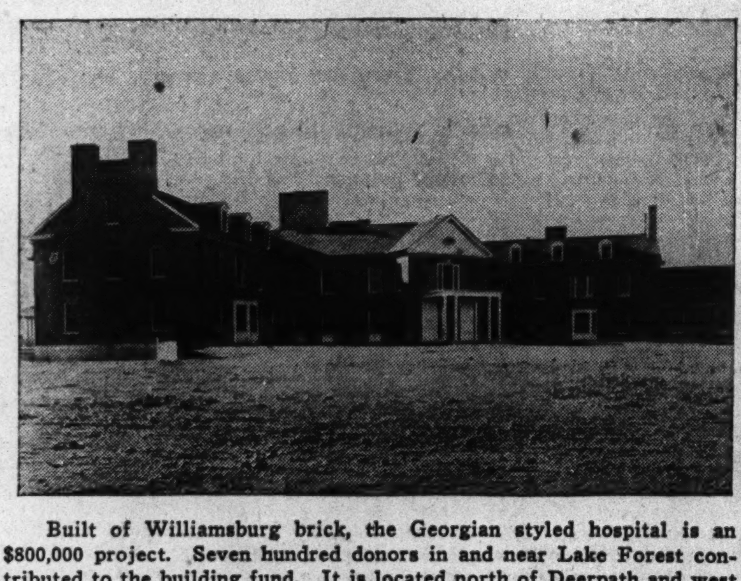
All the equipment in the kitchen has been installed and is ready for use. Mrs. E. K. Wells tries out the dumb waiter which will carry food from the basement to the two top floors.



Apricot pink tile lines the walls of the nursery which is large enough to accommodate 10 pink bassinets. A ray lamp kills all germs in the room instantly. Proud fathers will not be permitted in the room, but they may look thru a large glass panel and talk to their young offspring thru a public address system.



Built of Williamsburg brick, the Georgian styled hospital is an $800,000 project. Seven hundred donors in and near Lake Forest contributed to the building fund. It is located north of Deerpath and west of Skokie road.

HOSPITAL LIBRARY OFFERS PACKAGE WORK TO MEDICS

Package libraries on pediatrics, surgery, military medicine, and other medical subjects will be sent free upon request to doctors who are stationed in places inaccessible to libraries, Miss Marion Kappes, librarian for the Joseph Breeneman library at the Children's Memorial hospital, 707 Fullerton avenue, has announced.

The package libraries will contain reprints and clipped articles and other information about subjects of which doctors have sent in questions. The medical library is a part of the hospital's defense program and Miss Kappes is collecting the latest material she can find on medical care and treatment.

Among her war material collection are articles on emergency, medical preparedness, air raids, blood transfusion, burns, civilian defense, first aid, shock, and wounds.

Miss Kappes also is making a list of libraries and doctors who will be willing to lend their books and materials which the library does not have funds to purchase.

EXPLAINS HOW LAKE COUNTY CITIZENS NOT REGISTERED MAY VOTE

Lake county citizens who have not registered will be allowed to do so at the polls election day, Nov. 3, Jay B. Morse, county clerk, has announced. Voters not registered must swear out an affidavit when making application for a ballot. They must have one witness. The election clerk will fill out a card marked incomplete and treated as an application for registration. Then the applicant will be permitted to vote.

Those who vote under this provision of the registration law enacted in 1941 may not vote again until they have completed their applications, Morse said.

A total of 54,572 citizens in Lake county registered for the Nov. 3 election, Morse reported, approximately 10,000 more than voted in the 1938 election and 10,000 fewer than voted in the Presidential election in 1940. Morse estimated there are 70,000 citizens eligible to vote in the county. Lake county citizens will vote only on candidates and a referendum on a proposed amendment to the state constitution on sales tax, Morse said.

Fur Is Flying in 31st District Senate Battle

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Dynamite in the form of sensational charges last week rocked the campaign for state senator in the 31st district—the lake front wards from the near north side to Devon avenue.

Milton D. Smith, Democrat who is being billboarded as the "Dependable" candidate, suddenly found his own efforts being sparked by Republicans in an organization with headquarters at 5085 Broadway—the Independent Voters of the 48th Ward.

These Republicans announced that they are for the entire G. O. P. ticket except Emerson C. Whitney, nominee for state senator and 48th ward committeeman. And they charged that one reason is that he is for no one on the ticket except Whitney.

Give Other Reasons.

Other reasons why they say they cannot stomach Whitney, who describes himself as "the singing ward committeeman" and "the youngest ward committeeman," come under the following headings:

His draft status in 3-A and the fact that election would automatically exempt him from the draft.

His acquisition and transfer of real estate properties at various times.

Testimony given in the Criminal court trial of a client and a witness as the result of a personal injury case.

His participation in a meeting on Oct. 14 with an official spokesman for the Communist party and in other alleged "radical" activities.

Whitney Lets Go at Smith.

Before news of these things reached Whitney, he had started to blast Smith. He listed criminals who were represented at some time by Attorney Smith—a former partner of Clarence Darrow, the famous defense lawyer—and declared: "A man is known by the company he keeps. Draw your own conclusions."

"He was associated with Robert E. Crowe, now Democratic candidate for judge, when Crowe as state's attorney brought Chicago the worst era of lawlessness that the city has ever seen," Whitney said. "Most of his connections in private law were with such types of persons — Red Barker,

CROWLEY BROTHERS, LIEUTENANTS NOW, VISIT PARENTS HERE

Two brothers, Second Lieut. John E. Crowley and First Lieut. James A. Crowley, who are stationed in California and Georgia, recently had a happy reunion with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Crowley, 5541 Greenview avenue, while on furloughs.

Lieut. John Crowley.

Lieut. James Crowley.

Now stationed in San Diego, Cal., Lieut. John Crowley is in the marine corps. He received his primary training at Glenview in the navy and later transferred to the marines.

His brother, James, is a first lieutenant in the infantry and is stationed at Camp Gordon near Augusta, Ga. He enlisted in April, 1941, and was assigned to Camp Croft, South Carolina, where he received his commission. Both brothers attended Loyola university. James also attended Campion academy at Prairie du Chien.

CENTURY MALE CHORUS TO GIVE ANNUAL CONCERT

The eighth annual concert of the Century Male chorus will be held Wednesday evening in the New First Congregational church, Washington and Ashland boulevards. The chorus, which numbers 60 voices, is under the direction of Orian A. Galitz with Paulyn Anderson as accompanist.

The concert is for the benefit of the Evangelical Home for Children and Aged at Bensenville of which the Rev. Alvin J. Munsterman is the superintendent. More than $7,500 has been earned for this institution thru the concerts. Sponsor of the program is the Evangelical Men's auxiliary of Northern Illinois of which William Schug is president and John W. Welzien is secretary.

Soloists will be Maria Karelas, soprano; Roy Schuessler, baritone, and Dr. William Lester, organist.

Your Congressman

An Editorial

Congressman Charles S. Dewey has one son fighting in Africa and another ready to go. He was in the navy himself in the last war, and in his great services in reforming the banking practices and public finances of Poland he demonstrated a lively appreciation of the real duty of the United States in international affairs.

That is the type of man of whom the candidate backed by the Communists and the Kelly-Nash political gangsters has the impudence to say that if the five principal leaders of the axis were the only voters in the 9th congressional district Mr. Dewey would be reëlected. Certainly the voters of the district need no more evidence than this to convince them of Mr. Walker's complete and irremediable unfitness to represent them in Washington. Any one who will publicly imply that a man of Mr. Dewey's record and attainments is a traitor is either mentally unbalanced himself or is convinced that the electorate to whom he addresses such an appeal is composed exclusively of morons.

In either event Mr. Walker has demonstrated that he is the last man in the 9th district whom his fellow citizens should want to see representing them in Washington. By his statement he has insulted both the intelligence and the patriotism of Democrats and Republicans alike. Walker, of course, was merely parroting the statements of Mayor Kelly and the other spokesmen for the Kelly-Nash political gang who have been coursing up and down the state, asserting that it is treasonable to talk politics—by which they mean Republican politics—and that to vote the Republican ticket is "to please Hitler."

These are the tactics of men desperate in the face of impending defeat and thus willing to adopt any tactics, no matter how despicable, in order to divert public attention from the incompetence, self-seeking, and graft in Washington, which have inflicted on the nation a succession of disasters in the military field and an ever growing mountain of burocratic regulations at home, designed to make every citizen a slave of the government that is supposed to be his servant. The voters dare not be deceived by this propaganda, which is a direct steal from the Communist tactics of charging that every foe of communism is a Fascist and from Hitler's tactics of labeling every enemy of his oppressions a Communist. They dare not be deceived because unless they elect a free congress on Nov. 3 their freedom will be lost, and lost irretrievably.

Give the New Deal revolutionists in Washington and the Kelly-Nash gangsters in Chicago another two years to perfect and abuse the restraints which they have already placed on every aspect of the citizen's life, and no one will dare vote his convictions in 1944 for fear of incurring the revenge of his rulers.

Congressman Dewey will continue to protect the rights of the people if he is returned to office. Mr. Walker has made it clear that he will betray them if they are so foolish as to send him to Washington.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Gerald Stueland, wearing his new second lieutenant's bars proudly, has left for duty after a 10 day stay with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Stueland, 6353 Glenwood avenue, following his commissioning in Fort Benning, Georgia. Stueland, 20 years old, graduated from Lane Technical High school in 1940 where he was a member of the ROTC.

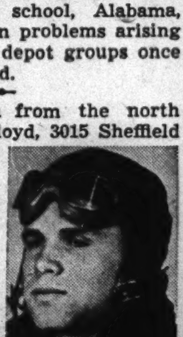
Lieut. Stueland.

Four more stars will be added to the dozen in the Evanston police department's service flag this week. Lieut. Albert J. Hagel, a member of the force for 18 years, recently became a chief specialist in the coast guard. Herman [Duke] Cohen, former Northwestern university football player, who has been a policeman for 16 years and widely known as the fountain Square traffic policeman, has joined the navy as a chief petty officer. Robert LaBahan leaves shortly for Kalamazoo, Mich., to join the cavalry division of the military police. He has been a member of the Evanston department for 2⅓ years. Charles Claypool, with seven years of police experience, will go to Camp Grant, Rockford, for induction and will be sent to an officers' training camp.

Dr. John Phelps Kieffer, 1505 Arthur avenue, has been promoted to captain in the medical corps in Meridian, Miss. Capt. Kieffer is widely known in Chicago, having served as resident physician in the Little Company of Mary, Lewis Memorial and St. Francis hospitals.

First Lieut. Willard E. Harold, 850 Lake Shore drive, recently graduated from the special Brookley field army air corps supply school, Alabama, which specializes in problems arising in the various air depot groups once they are in the field.

Two young men from the north side, Everett K. Lloyd, 3015 Sheffield avenue, and Joseph L. Weishar, 1655 Farwell avenue, have been transferred to the naval air station in Pensacola, Fla., for flight training as air cadets. Lloyd attended the Art institute and the Academy of Fine Arts. He had served for 8 months in the royal Canadian air force. Weishar attended DePauw university in Indiana, where he was a member of the varsity track team.



Cadet Weishar.

Seven north siders received their wings and second lieutenant's commissions in the army air corps during the last few weeks. Carol W. Alton Jr., son of Carol W. Alton, Evanston, was graduated at Kelly field, Texas. Lieut. and Mrs. Alton made their home in Evanston before moving to Texas. At present, they are awaiting further orders.

Lieut. Alton.

Others were Edward B. Walker, 1121 Oakton street, Evanston; Stanley F. Tomkovick, 1225 Grand avenue, Waukegan; Byron D. Elsner, 6650 North Talman avenue; Kenneth R. Peterson, 6250 North Maplewood avenue; John F. Tompkins, 2970 Sheridan road, and James F. Ellis, 7033 Ridge avenue.

From the naval training school in in Oxford, O., comes word that Richard K. Magner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Magner, Wilmette, has been selected to undergo a course in naval radio work. His father was a major in World War I.

Staff Sergt. Carl F. Franke, 1611 Albion avenue, has received his appointment as an aviation cadet and left for Kelly field, Texas, where he will receive his training.

Robert J. Lind, 1237 Wrightwood avenue, was graduated last week from officer candidate school in Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and commissioned second lieutenant in the field artillery.

North side men who have received promotions recently are George W. Schueneman, 1521 Ardmore avenue, to staff sergeant; Norman W. Rice, 2829 Pine Grove avenue, to sergeant; Oliver A. Johnson, 5023 North Ashland avenue, to sergeant; Theodore J. Isaacs, 1117 Columbia avenue, to captain; Louis A. Dahle, 5026 Winthrop avenue, to sergeant; David J. Levy, 3156 Sheridan road, to sergeant; Robert J. Berndtson, 7736 Eastlake terrace, to corporal; Clarence J. Landgraf, 1707 Barry avenue, to sergeant; Alan Chapman, 640½ Cornelia avenue, to technician fifth grade; Brian O Pierce, 3521 Wilton avenue, to seaman first class, and Arthur J. Pregenzer, 3208 Sheffield avenue, to technician fifth grade.

Lake View Musical Group Will Open 47th Season

The first concert of the Lake View Musical society's 47th season will begin at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Alliance Française, Fine Arts building. Artists Margaret Conrad, violinist, Clara Kittner, soprano, Florence Henline, pianist, and Aurelia Lindell, accompanist, will be presented. Mrs. Gladys Porter is program chairman. Mrs. Edgar Wellborn will be in charge of the tea table, and Mrs. L. W. Meckstroth and Miss Grace Seiberling will pour.

NEED EFFICIENT CONDUCT OF THE FIGHT, HE SAYS

G.O.P. Congressman Seeks Re-election.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

The duty to criticize even in time of war was vigorously upheld last week by Rep. Charles S. Dewey, Republican candidate for reëlection in the 9th congressional district.

"National unity and victory do not depend upon our accepting inefficiency in government without protest. National unity depends upon an informed public opinion, based upon free speech and free press, that insists upon an elimination of waste and inefficiency.

"The best interests of the nation certainly will not be served by placing in congress men who will close their eyes to incompetence and inefficiency.

Leave Strategy to Military.

"I have no sympathy with a carping critic, and I also have no sympathy with a yes man who would be afraid to lend his voice even to make a suggestion, lest he fall into disfavor with those in charge of the administration of the government.

"We must with confidence leave to our military and naval men, who are trained in the technique of warfare, questions of strategy and what materials are needed.

"But in a free country when war demands a common partnership in effort and sacrifice it is the right—indeed, the duty—of the people to demand a more efficient administration in meeting the war needs. There is no better way to force this necessary result than for the people to be aroused."

Willing to Sacrifice.

The congressman struck out at the lack of effort to create short cuts thru the burocratic tangle in the nation's capital.

"There is no limit to the sacrifices our people are willing to make for an early, complete, and decisive victory," Dewey said. "I regret to say, however, that their strength and determination is being dissipated by the failure of the government itself to streamline its organization to meet war requirements.

"The people are willing and determined, but confused and uncertain. That there is confusion and uncertainty is understandable.

Cites Rubber Situation.

"It is due to the overlapping jurisdictions of the innumerable federal agencies, their inconsistent policies, and their conflicting statements. The government has become so top-heavy and cumbersome that we have coördinators to coördinate the coördinators."

He cited the nation's rubber situation as a case in point, declaring that precious time has been lost because of faulty administration.

"For 10 years," he said, "Russia has been manufacturing synthetic rubber successfully, yet no attempt was made by those in charge of our government to benefit by the Russian experience."

Faulty Management.

He used this quotation from the Baruch committee report: "If the Russian offer made in February to exchange men and information had been accepted . . . it is conceivable that plants for producing synthetic rubber by the Russian process might well be now on the way to completion."

"The rubber situation is not an isolated instance of faulty government management," Dewey said. "It is illustrative of just what needs to be done by the government itself if we are to realize the objective of early, decisive, and complete victory over those who challenge man's right to be free."

In the matter of copper, also, the government has been guilty of wasting a critical war raw material, Dewey said. In spite of the shortage of this metal the house military affairs committee reported that tremendous amounts were being wasted by the Rural Electrification administration on projects bearing no relation to the war effort, he declared.

DEFENSE CORPS OF 300 WILL BE INDUCTED TODAY

Lincoln-Fullerton civilian defense community will honor members of its defense corps who have completed training courses at an induction ceremony at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the De Paul university auditorium, 2219 Sheffield avenue. Approximately 300 workers will take the oath of allegiance and become official members of the national citizens' defense corps.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney will speak at the flag dedication of block 4, zone 9, bounded by Brompton place, Cornelia and Pine Grove avenues, and Lake Shore drive, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. During the ceremony, to be held at Brompton place and Lake Shore drive, an honor roll listing the 41 members of the block now in the armed services will be posted.

Block 3 of zone 3 in the Rogers Park-Clark community set a new record in a practice air raid drill last week. Three minutes, 38 seconds, after the sounding of the warning signal all air raid wardens, fire watchers and their assistants were at their assigned posts.

RING DOORBELLS! STRANGE ORDERS TO EAGER YOUTHS

Old Halloween Prank Is Patriotic This Year.

It's a strange Halloween indeed when elders tell youngsters to ring doorbells. But that's exactly what's happening this year! The park district has given strict orders to all spooks haunting the north side—Ring Doorbells! American Youth Reserve leaders issue the same command—Ring Doorbells!

So early Saturday evening hobgoblins, witches, and black cats will start on their ghostly mission. From one corner of the north side to the other, the sound of doorbells will be heard. Doors will open. Spooks, who in other years would flee, will stand their ground and shout: "Buy a war stamp, mister, and we'll do a stunt!"

When all doorbells are rung, the young folks are invited to adjourn to the parks and community centers for parties which the spirit world reports "will be unequaled in the history of Chicago's north side!"

Park Parties Saturday.

Halloween will be celebrated Saturday evening in these parks:

Paul Revere park, 2509 Irving Park road, 7:30 p. m. Parade of boys and girls of Revere and California parks. Games, stunts, ghost stories, apple bobbing, and a chamber of horrors. Sponsored by the Neighborhood Boys club executive committee.

Hamlin park, Wellington and Hoyne avenues, 7 p. m. Parade of children from corner of Greenview and Wellington avenues. Peanut hunt, house of horrors and costume contest. Sponsored by the Lakeview American Legion post.

Lake Shore park, Chicago avenue and Lake Shore drive, 7:30 p. m. Games, stunts, and stories. Sponsored by park district.

Chase park, Ashland and Leland avenues, 7:45 p. m. Parade, costume judging, movies, house of horrors, and refreshments. Sponsored by Ravenswood American Legion post and auxiliary, Chase Park Boy Scout troop, Ald. Frank O. Hilburn, [47th], and Ald. Robert Quirk, [48th].

Schedule of AYR Parties.

Parties organized by the American Youth Reserves, junior division of the Office of Civilian Defense, are:

Community 2—Lincoln park branch of Chicago Boys club. Girls on Saturday afternoon. Boys on Saturday evening. Movies, costume parades, and refreshments.

YMCA, North avenue and Larrabee street, 7 p. m. Chamber of horrors, movies, costume parade, and refreshments.

Community 3—Wrightwood park, 2534 Greenview avenue, 8 to 10 p. m. Outdoor costume parade, bonfire, and games.

Christopher house, 2507 Greenview avenue. Party for boys and girls, 12 to 15 years old, in afternoon. Party for the senior group from 7 to 9 o'clock in the evening.

Community 8—McPherson playground, 4728 North Wolcott avenue, evening party. Bonfire, singing, games, and refreshments.

Pre-Halloween Fetes Set.

Some districts will celebrate Halloween before it really arrives. These include:

Seward park, Elm and Sedgwick streets, 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening. Sponsored by the North Side Civic committee.

Welles park, Montrose and Western avenues, 7:30 p. m. Friday. For members of the park's organized classes only. Sponsored by Lincoln Square, Northcenter, and Ravenswood OCD.

Paul Revere park, 2509 Irving Park road, 7:30 p. m. Friday. [In addition to Saturday evening's party.]

Olivet institute, Cleveland avenue and Blackhawk street, Tuesday and Friday. Party for seniors [16 to 21 years of age] Tuesday evening. Friday afternoon party for children up to 12 years old. Friday evening party for intermediate group.

North Shore Philatelists to Meet Tomorrow Night

Members of the North Shore Philatelic society will present William R. Stewart, student of philately, at a meeting tomorrow night in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Stewart will talk on "Cancellations on Early United States Stamps."

They're Ready for Halloween

Talking over dark, eerie secrets not to be given away until the Welles park Halloween party are (left to right) Jean Miller, 4146 Lincoln avenue; Patricia Floyd and Donna Collins, both of 2123 Warner avenue; Barbara Kruempelstaedter, 4826 North Hamilton avenue; Audrey Knaack, 2325 Cullom avenue; Dolores Floyd, 2123 Warner avenue; Gerald Heidkamp, 4533 North Western avenue; James Kruempelstaedter, 4826 North Hamilton avenue, and Robert Knaack, 2325 Cullom avenue.

JAYWALKING LAW WINS ACCLAIM OF SAFETY EXPERTS

Evanston Receives Award in National Contest.

A plaque for winning first place in the 1941 national pedestrian protection contest for cities with 50,000 to 100,000 population was presented to Mayor S. G. Ingraham of Evanston by Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, at a luncheon meeting in the Orrington hotel recently. The contest was sponsored by the American Automobile association.

In making the presentation Mr. Hayes said, "One of the items mentioned specifically by the judges was Evanston's campaign of contacting pedestrians directly with posters, messages painted on sidewalks and sound trucks. Credit also was given Evanston for its work in the high schools and elementary schools."

Commend Ordinances.

The suburb effected a reduction of 43 per cent in pedestrian fatalities for 1941. New Rochelle, N. Y., and Johnstown, Pa., were runners-up in the contest.

Ordinances permitting the arrest of pedestrians violating safe walking principles were commended, Hayes reported. Altho more than half the cities reporting in the contest had such legislation, only Evanston and Kalamazoo, Mich., had made actual arrests. "Behind the wheel" training of high school students was found valuable.

"The city's record was not accomplished thru miracles or campaigns," Mayor Ingraham said, "but thru a year around program in the application of engineering, education, and enforcement. There will be no letup in the city's pedestrian safety program."

List Special Guests.

Judge James G. Barber was chairman of the meeting and among those attending were R. A. Carey, Evanston Safety council; Clifford Peterson, Evanston Lions club; O. H. Nichols, Evanston Chamber of Commerce; Charles W. Apley, Evanston Optimist club; Z. A. Faulkner, city traffic engineer; Carl Ekman, chief of police; Lieut. Albert J. Hagel, Evanston police department; Mrs. E. R. Ladd, Woman's club of Evanston; Mrs. B. W. Hungerford, PTA safety council; Miss Edith M. Churchill, Business and Professional Woman's club of Evanston; Lee S. Sanders, Northwestern university; A. L. T. WILMETTE CLUB REPEATS ANTIQUE SHOW THIS YEAR

Women to Stage Popular Feature Nov. 2 to 5.

The antique show which the Woman's Club of Wilmette sponsored so successfully last year will be repeated on Nov. 2, 3, 4, and 5 in the clubhouse, Mrs. Harrison A. Storms, chairman of the ways and means committee, has announced.

Many of the same collectors will exhibit again this year and several new ones have been added. Among exhibitors who have reserved space is a Chicago dealer with a collection of early American pine pieces. She has taken three booths to display her wares, which will include small tables, chairs, and an old pine cupboard. She also will have quaint old oil lamps and Victorian lamps, wired for electricity and complete with shades.

Mrs. John A. Clements of Kenilworth is lending her collection of 400 old and rare food molds. Mrs. Clements is president of the Midwestern Antiques association and has been collecting molds from all parts of the world for six years.

One dealer from Kenosha will exhibit a rare collection of early blown glass, including a Pittsburgh glass punch bowl, a Wheeling peach blow pitcher, a French card tray marked "Lille" 1767, Minton tiles, a cherry wall cupboard, a pair of English vases, and pressed and milk white glass pieces.

The owner of an exclusive shop in Evanston will show a collection of lamps, rare china, fine glass, silver, and decorative articles. Other dealers will come from South Bend, Aurora, Nappanee, Ind., Beloit, Walworth, St. Louis, Chicago, Whitewater, and Elkhart, Ind.

Open 12 Hours a Day.

The show will be open from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. on each of the four days, Luncheons, tea from 3 to 4:30 p. m., and dinners will be served on the same quaint checkered tablecloths which were popular last year. Passes will be issued to those who wish to leave the building for a short time between 10 a. m. and 6 p. m., thus avoiding a second admission charge.

Assisting Mrs. Storms in arranging for the show are Mrs. Charles T. Morris, chairman; Mrs. Marguerite Calkins Taylor, and Mrs. Neal Dow Howard, co-chairmen; Mrs. Floyd L. McGrath, tickets; Mrs. George S. Hendrickson, treasurer; Mrs. Gale M. Brooks, Mrs. Glen S. Roberts, publicity; Mrs. Frank A. Pollock, Mrs. Arthur G. Bloom, Mrs. Lincoln C. Torrey, luncheons and dinners; Mrs. W. Howard Pape, dining room; Mrs. C. Seymour Jones, teas; Mrs. Frank R. Adams, Mrs. Charles A. Willis, and Mrs. George W. Putnam, hostesses.

Woman's Club of Evanston.

Members of the Woman's Club of Evanston will present the first book review program of the season at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning in the clubhouse. Among the books to be presented will be "Polish Profile," by Princess Paul Sapieha, the afternoon speaker.

Mrs. Edward L. Middleton will review "Polish Profile" along with another, "Beyond This Shore." The third book, Robert Nathan's "The Seagull Cry" will be reviewed by Mrs. Cyril Thompson.

"Tomorrow's Children" is the subject chosen by Princess Sapieha for the afternoon program, which will be the senior club's annual gift program to the young woman's auxiliary of the club. The speaker will be introduced by Mrs. Donald Kirkpatric, third vice president and program chairman.

Bridge Party Friday.

A second event of the week for the Evanston Woman's club will be a Halloween bridge party at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening in the clubhouse. Mrs. Leland R. Johnson, chairman of parties, and her committee are in charge.

Deerfield Woman's Club.

Mrs. R. S. Simons, vice president of the League of Women Voters and a practicing attorney, will address the Deerfield Woman's club at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon on civic affairs and the sphere of woman's activity. The meeting will be held in the Deerfield grammar school.

Mrs. O. T. Knight is assisting Mrs. Simons in giving the talk. Mrs. John A. Benz is in charge of the program and Mrs. Lewis Stryker, hospitality chairman, will be in charge of the tea after the program.

Edgewater Catholic Woman's Club.

The ways and means committee of the Edgewater Catholic Woman's club will sponsor a bridge luncheon at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon in St. Henry's Community hall, Devon and Ridge avenues.

Rogers Park Woman's Club.

Maj. Alexander P. de Seversky, aeronautical authority, will address the annual Men's night program of the Rogers Park Woman's club at 8 o'clock Tuesday night in the clubhouse, 7077 North Ashland avenue.

The club members will give their first evening party at 9 o'clock Saturday night in the clubhouse. Cards will be played and Fred Henk and his band will play for dancing.

Evanston Young Women.

The Young Woman's auxiliary of the Woman's Club of Evanston has planned two events for this week. The home affairs department will meet at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to hear a talk on buffet entertaining. Mrs. Elliott C. Youngberg will be in charge of the tea which will follow.

The second event will be the annual philanthropy bridge party at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon sponsored by the community service committee. Mrs. N. E. H. Deletzke and Mrs. Lyman R. Wells are co-chairmen. After the card games there will be a fashion show and book review by Florence Bourke-Ellis.

The bridge party will benefit 13 local charities. Part of the proceeds also will be used to purchase sewing materials for the Visiting Nurse association.

Plans Wedding in Spring

Miss Shirley Becker, 1310 Lunt avenue, is planning a spring wedding. Her engagement to William Semiloff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Semiloff of Brooklyn, N. Y., was announced recently by her mother, Mrs. Sonia Becker. Her fiance will be graduated from Northwestern university dental school next June.

NORTH END CLUB TO STUDY LAW, CURRENT NEWS

All Day Event Includes Talk on Propaganda.

Members of the North End Woman's club will have a parliamentary law class, a discussion of current events, and a talk on "International Backgrounds and Propaganda" at their all-day meeting tomorrow in the club rooms, 6200 Sheridan road. Mrs. Gertrude Lieber will conduct the law class and lead the discussion in the forenoon. A luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock and Mrs. Roy Martinale, chairman of international relations department, will give the afternoon talk.

The club's second event for the week will be a bridge party at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Louis A. Kelly will be chairman of the annual philanthropy event and she will be assisted by Mrs. Don Cammon, Mrs. Arthur E. Cook, Mrs. Dominick Dunn, Mrs. Harris McClain, and Mrs. Chester Swisher.

Lakeview Woman's Club.

The club will present Dr. R. W. Frank of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of Chicago in a talk on "The Christian Outlook on War" at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in Granada hotel, 525 Arlington place.

Dr. Frank's talk will be preceded by a luncheon at noon and technicolor movies, "The Story of Camp Algonquin." The movies will be shown by representatives of the United Charities and will depict the camp which the organization provides each year for one thousand mothers and children from industrial sections of Chicago.

Peoples Church Woman's Club.

The club will have its first regular meeting of the season at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Channing hall, 941 Lawrence avenue. Miss Adelaide Thomason, education chairman, will present a round table discussion by a student group from Lake Forest college.

Offer Mathematics Course at Lane Defense School

A course in related mathematics has been added to the curriculum of the Lane Technical defense school, 2501 Addison street, which meets five nights a week. The course teaches short cut methods in figuring tapers, threads, and circles to speed up production. The course, including textbooks and materials, is given free.

RADIO EYES FOR ALL PROMISED AT END OF WAR

Television's Bright Future Told by Dunlap.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Just as ships at sea took on radio voices linking them to land after the first World war, so trans-Atlantic planes will see by means of television after this war. That is the picture envisioned by Orrin Dunlap in his new book "The Future of Television," just published.

Television is being greatly advanced by wartime research and engineering in radio and electron optics, Dunlap reports. After this war sightseeing by radio will become a national pastime, according to Dunlap. Homes everywhere will have all-seeing eyes, because the science of electronics will put television sets within the price range of the masses, just as it has radio sets, says Dunlap. Radio, which made a whispering gallery of the heavens, is described as preparing to turn the whole world into a hall of mirrors, thru television.

Sees New Art Forms.

Reconversion of radio manufacturing plants to postwar production of civilian receiving sets will mark the opening date of the new television era, he forecasts. [But it must be remembered that experts have been asserting that television is just around the corner for the last 15 years.]

Dunlap says there is no danger that sound broadcasting, as we know it, will "dry up" overnight. But he predicts that television will make tremendous strides forward introducing new art forms in much the same fashion as the screen developed Mickey Mouse and radio its Amos 'n' Andy.

"Radio characters who have lived in the world of imagination and illusion will come out of hiding," says Dunlap, "as television adds sight to sound to make radio drama more real than ever before."

A National Sports Arena.

Television will no more kill the theater than did radio, he asserts. "To the actor and vaudevillian, whether tap dancer, juggler, acrobat, or magician, television offers the dawn of a new day," he states. Television also will turn the nation into a coast to coast sports arena, making fights, baseball, football, and other sports events visible to everybody.

Television is full of promise in the realm of education, too. While some problems remain to be solved, Dunlap says that color television with images of 18 by 24 inches is in the offing for homes.

The images will be so accurate, says Dunlap, that televiewers of the future will fill albums with snapshots of pictures they make of television views flashing to their homes.

Dunlap, for many years radio editor of the New York Times, is now associated with the Radio Corporation of America. His book is published by Harper's.

KNOX AND KING ON MUTUAL NAVY DAY BROADCAST

Secretary of the Navy Knox and Adm. Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet, will be presented on W-G-N and the Mutual network in a special Navy day broadcast from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Tuesday. Secretary Knox will speak at the Navy day dinner at the Waldorf Astoria hotel in New York from 8:30 to 8:45 p. m. At the end of his talk, the program will switch to Adm. King, who will speak from the Navy day banquet at the La Salle hotel from 8:45 to 9 p. m.

'ROBIN HOOD' IS NEXT OPERETTA IN W-G-N SERIES

Marion Claire, Knight to Be Starred.

The romantic story of Robin Hood, as portrayed in song and drama by Reginald De Koven in his operetta by that name, will be unfolded on the Chicago Theater of the Air next Saturday evening. The operetta will be broadcast from 8 to 9 o'clock over W-G-N and the Mutual system.

Felix Knight will sing the title rôle; Marion Claire will take the part of Lady Marian.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Others in the singing cast will be Arwin Schweig, bass, who will be making his network radio debut, as Will Scarlett; Bruce Foote, baritone, as Little John, and John McDonald, bass, as the Sheriff of Nottingham.

A cast of distinguished Chicago actors will take the dramatic rôles in the presentation.

The musical background will be provided by the W-G-N symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and the chorus, led by Robert Trendler. Kenneth MacGregor will be the producer.

All of the familiar music will be presented, including the perennial favorite, "O, Promise Me."

'Ridin' 6 White Horses' Is First Nighter Play

An original play, "Ridin' Six White Horses" will be broadcast on the First Nighter hour from 5 to 5:30 p. m. today on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

The leading rôles will be played by Les Tremayne and Barbara Luddy. Tremayne will portray the rôle of a novelist who went to the mountains for peace and quiet. Miss Luddy will be cast as his wife. Musical background for the First Nighter will be supplied by Eric Sagerquist and his orchestra.

Bill Married Vitamin A.B.C.D+!

When Bill first met her at an Autumn dance just ten years ago she was a gay young heart-breaker. Her baby-skin glowed with dew-drenched freshness. Her deep brown expressive eyes had a come-hither magnetism. Her figure was as lithe as a ballerina as it floated about the floor. She was bewitching, irresistible, alluring and SOCKO, the Love Bug smote Bill with a force equal only to that of a Yank bomb smacking Yokohama!

It was a whirlwind of a rush but Bill managed to place a glittering nuptial band on this 18 karat gorgeous in nothing flat! That was 10 years ago. Today, his menace is still Vitamin A, B, C, D plus to Bill. Her face still glows like a tulip, fresh as dawn, because she's avoided one form of fatigue (home ironing) that would, in time, rob her smooth, delicate complexion of its living charm.

THE SHADOW
TODAY
4:30 TO 5 P. M.

BILL JOHNSTONE

Mystery! Excitement! Adventure! You satisfy your sense of all three when you follow "The Shadow" as he matches wits with master murderers in a relentless, brain-whirling trail thru the underworld. Today's spine-chiller, "The Mystery of Madman Deep," creepy and surprising, takes place . . . well, why not tune in for the breath-taking details at 4:30 on W-G-N. Unless you're already a "Shadow" fan, you're in for a brand new sensation in radio mystery entertainment. Bill Johnstone and Marjorie Anderson will be the stars.

FIRST NIGHTER
TODAY
5 to 5:30 P. M.

BARBARA LUDDY
LES TREMAYNE

Picture a quiet, peaceful mountain retreat. A leading novelist and his wife are enjoying a long planned vacation—when lightning strikes in the form of a killer known as the Spider. Exciting action abounds thereafter in this original, new play, "Ridin' Six White Horses," built for drama lovers. With Barbara Luddy and Les Tremayne in the stellar roles you are sure to find it one of the most entertaining of First Nighter programs.

EASY MONEY
TODAY
6:30 to 7 P. M.

MIKE TRENT

You remember Mike Trent, of course — master magician and suave sleuth who ripped the lid completely off confidence games and gambling rackets in last season's "Easy Money" programs. Mike has got a bigger job now —using his prowess in prestidigitation to run down saboteurs. Employing his lore of legerdemain to ensnare a band of tire thieves, Trent turns one of the neatest tricks of his career in this week's "Easy Money" thriller. Hear the whole story tonight at 6:30 on W-G-N.

LAKE VIEW HIGH DEDICATES FLAG TO 488 FIGHTERS

First Banner Too Small as Number Grows.

A service flag memorializing 488 former students at Lake View High school who now are known to be in armed services of the nation, was dedicated in an elaborate program at the high school last Wednesday.

The dedication was made on the anniversary of the first pronouncement of the pledge of allegiance to the United States flag, first voiced by Chicago school children in 1892 in programs preparing for the opening of the Columbian exposition, and now a common experience for school children the nation over.

A year after the pledge was first recited, President Benjamin Harrison asked that it be adopted nationally, school officials reported.

Col. Morrison Speaks.

Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics for the Chicago school system, was chief speaker at the dedication.

He declared that students still in school have a big and important job to do in backing up those who have entered the battle.

The school choir of 85 voices, directed by Miss Naomi Sweet, sang the pledge of allegiance after the program had been opened with a presentation of the 28 flags of the united nations, each brought into the auditorium by a member of the Reserve Officers Training corps to the accompaniment of national anthems of the various countries played on the organ by Joan Rohrheimer, a senior.

Banner Too Small.

Warren Mendelsohn was master of ceremonies for the program, arranged by the drama department under direction of Miss Helen Kinsella. Gerald Spector gave a history of the anniversary of the allegiance pledge. Twelve girl drama students enacted a pageant of the history of the United States flag. Olice Winter, principal, announced that a new honor roll has been placed in the main corridor recording names of boys in service.

The flag as dedicated had only 303 stars. It was sent back immediately for addition of 185 stars, representing boys who have joined since the flag was ordered two months ago. Space has been left on the flag and honor roll for 1,000 entries.

BUSINESS GIRLS PLAN RETREAT AT QUIET CONVENT

Only 20 minutes from the noisy confusion of Chicago's loop, just a few steps up and away from the warring world, is an iron gateway leading into the convent of Our Lady of the Cenacle.

Once a year, on the last week end in October, a group of 75 to 100 girls and women who work in the La Salle street district pass thru the gate at 513 Fullerton parkway to spend three days in silence and prayer. City and county employés are represented as well as employés of brokerage and law offices, utility companies, insurance companies, and banks.

Administering to their spiritual needs will be the sisters of the Cenacle who this month are celebrating their first half century in America. Nuns of the French order in their daintily fluted white bonnets and purple capes devote their lives to giving retreats for women wanting to leave the world for a few days of prayer and silent meditation.

Last year more than 3,000 came to the Cenacle. Teachers, housewives, domestics, social workers, nurses, and girls of high school age, along with office workers, sought comfort and guidance behind the almost medieval looking walls of the convent.

The girls of La Salle street will arrive before supper Friday evening. After a general orientation meeting and a sermon by the retreat pastor, the Rev. Leander Conley, O. F. M., of St. Peter's church, 816 South Clark street, they will retire early. Saturday and next Sunday will be days of meditation, conferences, and prayer.

Only the sound of nuns chanting the devine office in their hidden transcept will break the chapel quiet, as the young women kneel before the altar. Late Sunday afternoon each retreatant will receive the papal blessing.

Married in Evanston Church

Miss Janet Darr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold S. Darr, 2503 Noyes street, Evanston, was married recently to Lieut. Robert H. Engstrom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Engstrom of Wheaton. The wedding took place in St. Matthew's Episcopal church of Evanston and was followed by a reception in the Shawnee Country club. [Du Bois Photo.]

WALLER ALUMNI WILL MARK 67TH YEAR OF SCHOOL

Homecoming Friday at Old North Division.

Alumni, students, and faculty of Waller High school, formerly known as "Old North Division," will celebrate the 67th anniversary of the north side's first high school Friday evening at a homecoming in the school building, Orchard street and Armitage avenue.

Students of Waller will provide part of the evening's entertainment, which begins at 7:30 o'clock, when they present "A Pageant of American Music" in costume, under direction of Miss Margaret Gallagher, music instructor. The program will open with the presentation of colors by the Waller ROTC and an overture of patriotic music by the Waller Student orchestra directed by Ivan Feldman.

The evening will see the election and crowning of the homecoming queen. Alumni and students will vote on eight candidates, who represent the eight semester classes—Diane Zacharias, 2245 Dayton street; Rosalie Nelson, 125 West Locust street; Jeslyn Henderson, 444 Webster avenue; Dorothy Swiderski, 546 Dickens avenue; Florence Frazier, 1633 North Clybourn avenue; Ellen Flynn, 210 St. Paul avenue; Sylvia McCabe, 2625 Dayton street, and Margaret Denzler, 616 North avenue.

SALUTE BLOOM TOWNSHIP HIGH ON W-G-N HOUR

Bloom Township High school of Chicago Heights will be saluted on the "Citizens of Tomorrow" program on W-G-N from 1 to 1:30 p. m. today. For the first time in the series, which now numbers 70 broadcasts, the program will originate and be recorded at the school itself.

This procedure has become necessary because of transportation problems. Whenever it is necessary in the future, programs will originate in schools that are far distant from the studio.

Raymond D. Meade, principal at Bloom, will speak on the program. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies.

WILMETTE PARISH HOLDING ANNUAL PARTY, SATURDAY

St. Francis Xavier church of Wilmette will hold its annual parish party Saturday evening in the Shawnee Country club. Committees are at work planning an evening of games, music, and dancing. Midshipmen from Abbott hall will be the guests of the younger church members. A get-together party of the young people will precede the main event. The Rev. James M. Sheridan is general chairman.

Mrs. George Arns.

Working with him are Committee Chairmen Mrs. George Arns, Frank Colyer, James Corns, James Reichman, Fred M. Clarke, Miss Sonia Nash, Richard Seidel, and Frank L. Kaye.

Frederic Berndt, former concert master of the opera in Hamburg and of the Vienna Symphony orchestra, will present a violin concert Wednesday evening in the auditorium of the Congregational church of Rogers Park.

A reunion of the 57 classes confirmed in Trinity Lutheran church, Seminary and Barry avenues, will be held at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the church. Tribute will be given to the 122 classmates serving with the armed forces.

The service also will include a memorial to three former pastors of the church—Dr. Gottfred Nelson, who in an unbroken service of 35 years confirmed 2,409 persons, and to the Revs. S. A. Sandahl and C. O. Almen who confirmed 455 persons. The present pastor, Dr. Julius Lincoln, has confirmed 139, making a total of 3,003 for the church.

TWO TO DISCUSS HOW TO WIN WAR AT ANSHE EMET

"How Can We Win the War?" will be the topic when the forum of Anshe Emet synagogue, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street, begins its 11th year Tuesday, Nov. 10. Participating in the discussion will be Walter Duranty, Moscow correspondent for the New York Times, and Dr. No-Yong Park, Harvard educated authority on Chinese and far eastern problems. Mr. Duranty has spent most of the last 20 years in Russia. Dr. Park is the author of "Retreat of the West" and "Making a New China."

At one of the sessions, a University of Chicago Round Table group will be presented in a discussion of "A Design for Living in a Postwar Economy." The speakers will be Guiseppe A. Borgese, anti-Fascist leader of Italian birth, who refused to take the Fascist oath and resigned his professorship in an Italian university; Maynard C. Krueger, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, and Henry Simon Bloch, refugee economist of the University of Paris and former legal representative of Ethiopia in the league of nations.

"The Peace We Want" will be outlined by Dr. Frederick L. Schuman, Woodrow Wilson professor at Williams college, Mass., and author of "Night Over Europe."

Maurice Samuel, journalist and lecturer, translator of "The Nazarene" and author of "The Great Hatred," will take as his subject, "Jews in the Postwar World."

Frank Kingdon, president of the University of Newark, will come to Chicago to speak on "The Kampf Against Religion."

A special feature of the series will be the appearance of Cornelia Otis Skinner in a group of new original dramatic sketches.

William A. Nudelman, director of the forum, will preside at all of the meetings. Col. Albert H. Rosenberg is chairman of the forum committee.

To Wed Saturday

Miss Mary Evelyn Thompson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. T. P. Thompson, 2630 Windsor avenue, will be married to Jerry Christerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Osier Christerson of Wilmette, at 8 o'clock Saturday evening in her parents' home. The Rev. F. E. Bernard, pastor of All Saints' Episcopal church, 4550 North Hermitage avenue, will officiate.

The Young Married People's club of Temple Emanuel, 701 Buckingham place, will hold its first meeting of the year at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Temple Community hall. A "get together" party with games and refreshments will be preceded by a brief business meeting. Willard L. Roth is chairman of the evening.

ALPHA OMICRON PI LISTS TIMELY TALKS FOR YEAR

Mrs. P. W. Wolf, program chairman of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority, has announced the year's program. Speakers have been engaged to talk on current events, and several travel lectures on places strategic to the war effort will be included in the monthly meetings.

The sorority will meet tomorrow night in the Northwestern university chapter house for the annual Rho corporation dinner. On Nov. 11 Martin Victor will speak on animal trapping in Alaska at a meeting in the home of Mrs. A. E. Swanson of Evanston.

Founders' day will be observed Dec. 8 with a dinner in Orrington hotel, Evanston. Mrs. L. V. Stephenson of Evanston will be hostess to the sorority on Jan. 12, when Miss Pauline Sanders will talk on Booth Memorial hospital.

Alpha Chi Omega.

The Lyrettes of Alpha Chi Omega alumnae will meet Tuesday in the home of Mrs. E. C. Krumsieg, 4052 North Major avenue. Co-hostesses will be Mrs. J. G. High and Mrs. Paul Karnov.

The Alpha Alpha alumnae group is planning a mixer for Gamma actives and pledges in celebration of Founders' day, Nov. 2, in the chapter house.

Alpha Gamma Delta Mothers.

New members of the Mothers' club of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority will be guests at an opening fall tea Wednesday in the chapter house on Northwestern university campus. Ruth McCarn, counselor to women, will be the speaker.

FUR IS FLYING IN 31ST DISTRICT SENATE BATTLE

Milton Smith, Whitney Trade Blows.

Smith Makes Reply.

Smith retorted that the inference Whitney sought to have the public draw was rather mean even for a political bout.

"Shades of Clarence Darrow!" Smith said. "The men he names were my legal clients.

"The public should know that Whitney's so-called testimonial banquet was also the coming out party for Dr. Amante Rongetti, who was gladly there. Rongetti recently emerged from the penitentiary after serving time in connection with grisly abortion deaths and is now trying to get his medical license restored. Whitney's state department happens to have the power to restore it."

Theodore J. Schreiber, publicity chairman of the Independent Voters of the 48th ward, charges that Whitney has ample income aside from earnings to support his wife. Altho Whitney is 32 years old and was an all-out interventionist, he remains in the 3-A classification.

Traces Realty Deals.

Real estate records show that Whitney took title to a large apartment building at 1662-64 Farwell avenue for $25,000 by deed dated Dec. 31, 1940, and Schreiber said the income is more than $400 a month. The order for the sale of this real estate by the receiver was entered before Circuit Judge Fred Rush on Oct. 29, 1940.

By a quit claim deed the title was transferred March 19, 1941, to Whitney's sister-in-law, Miss Evelyn Novy, 2108 South 57th court, Cicero. The consideration shown is $10 and the deed has no revenue stamps affixed to it.

"I have no income other than my earnings and any contrary assertion is a 100 per cent lie and won't fool the voters," Whitney said. "Schreiber is on Smith's pay roll.

"Title to that property was taken in my name, but with her money. All lawyers do that from time to time."

Charge Draft Case Transfer.

Whitney's draft case was transferred from the original board to another board, according to Illinois selective service headquarters, which stated that only one other case has been thus transferred.

He denied that it had been transferred, saying that the headquarters official—whose rank is colonel—must be mistaken. The official said the transfer was made "on general principles" because Whitney was a center of political turbulence, adding that nothing was known of any property transfers of interest to authorities.

"I have applied for army service," Whitney continued. "Just now I have in hand a letter dated Oct. 20 from the army specialist corps, First Lieut. B. Krydynski, which says that my services cannot be used at the present time in the specialist corps.

"My brother is in Australia or New Zealand and my father has applied to teach radio in the army."

Claims Fight for Equality.

In his new colored campaign literature, picturing him with blushing complexion, Whitney states that he "fights for equality of sacrifice — fights for total democracy now—was right before Pearl Harbor and is right now." Some unknown author also credits him with action, brains, and courage—in large type.

Whitney was asked about the purchase of two other pieces of real estate in his name, and the subsequent transfer of them to his sister-in-law. These are at 1134 Ainslie street, where his parents reside, and at 1136 Ainslie street, occupied by Whitney and his wife.

The 1134 property was conveyed to his sister-in-law for shown consideration of $10 but no revenue stamps were affixed to the deed. The 1136 property was conveyed also for $10 and no revenue stamps were attached.

Transfers Made Before War.

Whitney said the transfers were made "before the war had even started—in 1937, or maybe 1938," but after the date of Feb. 26, 1940, was suggested as being right because of its appearance in official records, he said this could be so.

"That was still 19 months before Pearl Harbor," he said.

The transfer of the Farwell apartments to his sister-in-law on March 19, 1941, was one day after the opening of a trial before Judge John F. Bolton in the Criminal court in which the defendants were Anna Travis and Blanche Mitchell, who eventually were fined a total of $3,500 for conspiracy to commit an illegal act.

Mrs. Travis had been Whitney's client in a personal injury suit against a department store, and Blanche Mitchell had acted as a witness. In that suit there was a judgment of $7,500 which was settled for $3,500.

Cites Court Record.

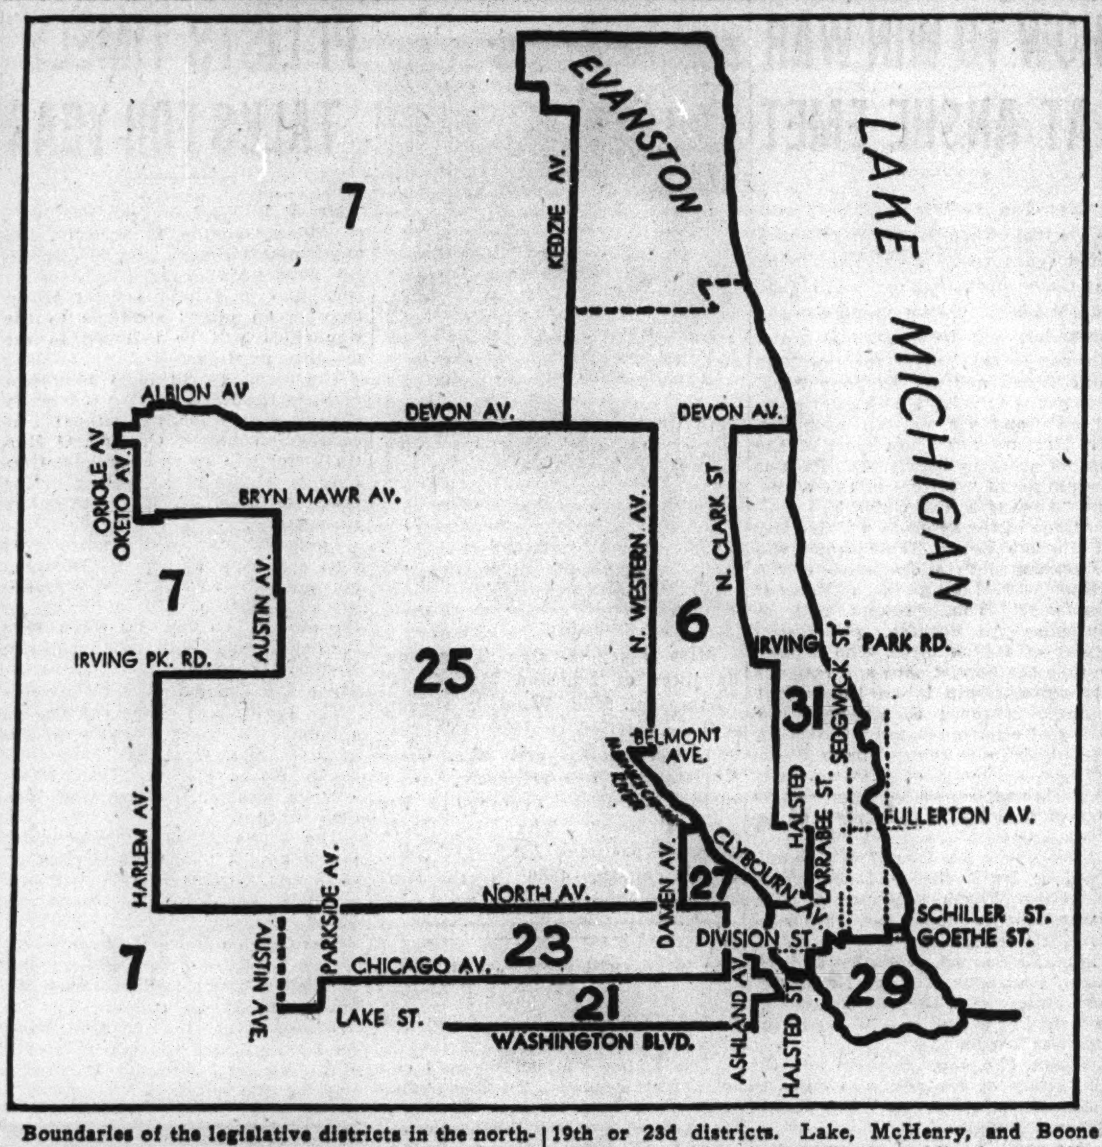
Schreiber charged that the transcript of the Criminal court testimony shows that one Edith Claussen testified that Whitney had coached her to be a witness altho she had told him she was not present at the alleged accident. Later she refused to act as a witness and the Mitchell woman's services were obtained.

"I testified for the state in the criminal case," Whitney said. "That ought to make it clear. All of this is so ridiculous—such absurd baloney that is being used to try to break down what is almost a certain victory.

"Thru the use of a smelly red herring they're trying to salvage the Kelly-Nash machine. I've never been indicted or convicted of anything except of not having a driver's license and I paid a $3 fine to avoid spending all my time coming back to court."

Whitney admitted speaking from the platform with William L. Patterson of the Communist party and Max Korshak of the Democratic party on Oct. 14 at 1716 Lunt avenue.

Legislative Districts in Northern Area



Boundaries of the legislative districts in the northern area of Cook county are defined in this map. The 7th district also includes those townships in Cook county outside of Chicago which are not in the 6th, 19th or 23d districts. Lake, McHenry, and Boone counties comprise the 8th district, while the 14th district includes Kane and Kendall counties.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 26

Unless the ground is frozen making spading impracticable, spade up all areas that will be planted next spring. Do this now. The action of frost will kill insect pests, mellow the soil, and make it possible to get into garden work early next spring.

A number of annuals can be sown this fall, especially the hardy annuals that lie in the ground all winter and come up early in spring. One gains from one to three weeks in the blooming period. A little protection on the seed beds will serve to keep them thruout the winter.

Tuesday, Oct. 27

Plant the outdoor window boxes with small evergreens. If the soil is kept well watered the plants will keep in fine condition and can be planted in the garden in spring. Suitable varieties can be obtained from nurseries. Drain the sprinkling system before the pipes freeze and are damaged.

Remove all statues and garden furniture to the protection of a shed. Repair hotbed sash and frames; clean and oil all tools before placing them in storage for the winter. Burn all weeds that can be burned for the place will be neater and many seeds will be destroyed.

Wednesday, Oct. 28

It is time to rake up fallen leaves and it is wise to compost them with soil because they are a fine souce of humus. Keep the compost pile moist. Add peat moss or manure to increase the supply. It takes several months to decay. Turn it at intervals.

Chrysanthemums are in bloom, both indoors and outdoors, altho the latter may have frozen by this time. Buy only varieties that usually bloom before Oct. 12. Plant them in spring and not in fall unless the fall planted stock is protected either in a cold frame or by other means.

Thursday, Oct. 29

Take care of the lily-of-the-valley by giving it a light mulch with old manure, leaf mold, or peat. With good care the plants will grow vigorously and produce many more flowers and excellent foliage.

Try growing a collection of cacti in the widows this winter for they make fine indoor subjects. They last a long time when grown in novelty containers that have no drainage hole.

Friday, Oct. 30

More people ask about growing the beautiful saintpaulia or African violet than any other. It is easily grown under suitable conditions. It may stand in the east window and should be watered by placing the base of the pot in a saucer of water and leaving it until the soil is moist, remove the pot and drain and place again in the window.

Saturday, Oct. 31

Be sure that the newly planted evergreens do not dry out or they may not survive the winter. Place the hose, with nozzle removed, near base of each plant and allow the water to soak in for half an hour. In addition, syringe the tops on warm days. If the weather is quite hot, syringing may be done late in the day.

WARNS AGAINST LETTING SCREENS OR GUTTERS RUST

Coat of Paint Prevents Damage During Winter.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Of concern to home owners, now that October is nearly gone: House screens!

Screens and gutters are doubly precious now and no one can afford to let them rust away this coming winter.

If screens are well painted and in good shape, a thoro cleaning is all they need. The suction brush of a vacuum cleaner is convenient for this, or a whisk broom, vigorously applied on both sides of the screen will do the work.

A damp cloth and kitchen cleanser will remove any hardened dirt on a screen edging and benzine can be used to remove greasy deposits from kitchen screens. [Keep benzine away from fire and use only in well ventilated place.]

Identify Screens with Tags.

When screens are tagged with permanent identification of some sort, life will be easier in the spring. Where screening is broken at any point, patch the spot before storing.

In storing screens see that they do not come in contact with any basement floor dampness. It is always wise to lay them flat in a dry place and cover them with canvas or paper as protection against dust and dirt. If it is hard to store them flat because of screen hardware, lath strips can be slipped between the frames.

Black iron screening sometimes needs painting every year, depending on the climate, but painting of frames, hardware, and wire as protection against rust and rot is usually advised every other year.

Paint Is Easy to Obtain.

Your paint dealer or store where paints are sold carries the varnish or paint needed for this protection.

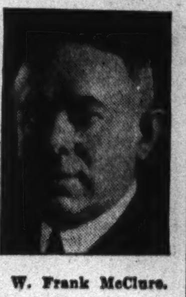
If you have galvanized iron gutters and leaders, see that these are kept painted—and that the paint is in good shape. Apply one coat of red lead paint and two coats of house paint after thoro cleaning and treatment of metal with copper sulphate solution.

If your gutters and leaders are of copper you can prevent any staining of house walls from oxidized coating by application of paint or varnish. If you wish to keep the metallic luster of gutters and leaders, use a clear spar varnish.

SIBERIAN SONG GROUP RETURNS TO NORTH SHORE

To Open Evening Club Season Sunday.

The Siberian Singers, known for their Russian melodies and folk songs, will make a return engagement next Sunday night when the North Shore Evening club opens its 29th season of programs. The club will meet in the auditorium of New Trier High school, Winnetka.



W. Frank McClure. [Moffett Photo.]

Nearly 500 sponsors are back of the weekly programs of the North Shore club. It was founded as a nonprofit organization by W. Frank McClure of Wilmette who is still its president. It was organized at first for Wilmette citizens only but later was expanded to Winnetka, Kenilworth, and Glencoe.

Have Room for 3,000.

Still later it broadened its scope to take in the entire north shore to the Wisconsin line. The meetings usually are held in the school auditorium which seats 1,200, but quite often the meetings have to be held in the gymnasium where 3,000 may be seated.

Paul M. Pair of Wilmette is executive vice president. William S. Nordburg of Winnetka is secretary and G. T. Hellmuth, also of Winnetka, is treasurer.

Cornelia Otis Skinner will make her third annual appearance before the club on Sunday evening, Nov. 8. She will give a miscellaneous program. On the following Sunday night, Nov. 15, Terina P. Sinha, friend of Gandhi and once head of the Indian congress in London, will speak on phases of the Indian question.

Talk on Mental Defense.

Lloyd Douglas, author of "Magnificent Obsession," will talk on "Mental Defense in Wartime" at the Nov. 22 meeting. Sherwood Eddy will lecture on Russia on Nov. 29. This will be followed by a talk by Countess Bertita Harding, author of "The Golden Fleece," Dec. 6. The New Trier school Christmas concert is scheduled for Dec. 13.

The second half of the programs will begin Jan. 3 when Capt. John D. Craig, author of "Adventure Is My Business," will speak. Col. Thomas Tchou, once secretary to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek and author of a notable Chinese housing movement, will be the club's guest Jan. 10.

TRAFELET BLASTS O'BRIEN'S RECORD

Austin Evening Club Women Hold Wartime Progressive Party

When members of the evening auxiliary of the Austin Woman's club planned their fall party recently, they decided the annual custom of motoring to the country for a steak fry wouldn't be patriotic this year. Instead, they planned a progressive dinner in the homes of two club members. Outlawing cars for the evening, they traveled on bicycles or roller skates, their own or borrowed from their neighbors. The quartet just pushing off, headed for the second half of their dinner, is, left to right, Miss Elizabeth Hill, club president, an adjustment teacher in the Chicago elementary schools; Miss Helen Sheley, Miss Nellie Louise Brown, and Miss Remona Asmus.

Last year the scenic backdrop for the auxiliary picnic was the brilliant foliage of the forest preserves. This year is was the garage at the Norman A. Strening residence, 641 North Humphrey avenue, where the second half of the meal was served. Appetites whetted by their jaunt from the Quinn home, the woman joined in broiling minute steaks over the charcoal stoves set up in the yard. Mrs. Strening is serving one of the sizzling steaks to Mrs. Ralph Struck, a Chicago school teacher, while Miss Eunice Griffith tends the other stove.

It's a bit of a trick if you haven't done it for years—this roller skating. But the women go at it purposefully, and reach their destination—which is all that counts. Swinging out from Mrs. F. M. Quinn's residence are Miss Grace Meyer, Miss Lucile Shover, Miss Bernice White, Miss Mary French, Miss Dorothea Drake, and Mrs. Robert Pagett. Miss Drake and Mrs. Pagett are teachers in the elementary schools.

First course of the progressive dinner was served at the Quinn home, 420 North Pine avenue. Steaming homemade vegetable soup, one of Mrs. Quinn's culinary specialties, is being ladled by the hostess into soup cups on the tray held by Miss Florence Stephens, center, and Miss Clare Mehl. Miss Stephens is secretary of the Austin [illegible] church.

Oak Park Man Stays with One Firm 60 Years

Nowadays, when job changing assumes the proportions of a favorite national pastime, it is remarkable to find a man who has worked more than half a century with a single firm. Such a man is Charles Riddell, 163 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park, district manager of the Baldwin Locomotive works, with offices in the loop. Mr. Riddell recently celebrated the 60th anniversary of his connection with the Baldwin staff.

Staying with one firm for 60 years doesn't reflect any particular credit on the man who has done it, Riddell declared. "It has to be a pretty good organization for a man to stay that long," he said. "It isn't just a one sided affair."

Office Boy in Philadelphia.

Mr. Riddell joined the company in Philadelphia in October, 1882. He was an office boy then, but by 1896 he had advanced to the point where he was sent to Chicago to open the branch office here.

When the Riddells first moved to Chicago, they resided in the Hyde Park neighborhood. About 1900 they moved to Oak Park, where they have made their home since. For the last 16 years they have been at the Euclid avenue address.

The Riddells have a son and four daughters, all living in Chicago or suburbs. Mr. Riddell is a member of the First Congregational church of Oak Park. Until a few years ago he spent much of his time in his garden, or on the golf course. His business and his family have been his all absorbing interests, however, and he never seemed to get around to developing a hobby, he explained.

Basic Design Changed Little.

There have been many changes since Mr. Riddell started with the Baldwin company 60 years ago. He believes that, tho the fundamentals of locomotive design have not changed greatly, remarkable refinements of design, material and workmanship have been introduced. These have resulted in more efficiency and economy of operation, and increased availability for service. Coal consumption per gross ton mile has been cut nearly in half, he has figured, and available horsepower output per driving axle has been increased probably 2½ to 3 times.

In 1898, the Baldwin company had built its 16,000th locomotive. This year, the 64,000th engine was completed. These engines not only go to every state in the union, but to many foreign countries on all continents. Mr. Riddell is proud of the part his office has in the organization's setup, since it is responsible for 25 per cent of the buying power of railroad equipment—locomotives and their parts—of the entire company.

CENTURY MALE CHORUS TO GIVE ANNUAL CONCERT

The eighth annual concert of the Century Male chorus will be held Wednesday evening in the New First Congregational church, Washington and Ashland boulevards. The chorus, which numbers 60 voices, is under the direction of Orian A. Galitz with Paulyn Anderson as accompanist.

The concert is for the benefit of the Evangelical Home for Children and Aged at Bensenville of which the Rev. Alvin J. Munsterman is the superintendent. More than $7,500 has been earned for this institution thru the concerts. Sponsor of the program is the Evangelical Men's auxiliary of Northern Illinois of which William Schug is president and John W. Welzien is secretary.

Soloists will be Maria Karelas, soprano; Roy Schuessler, baritone, and Dr. William Lester, organist.

Goats Eat Tin? Silly! But OCD Still Suspects

Goats don't eat tin anymore than stenographers can be said to eat gum. Nervous creatures, and not having much to do except be goats, they merely chew on the tin. Actually they are extremely finicky about what they swallow—refusing an apple if somebody else has already taken a bite of it.

This was the consensus of the assistant state veterinarian, the head of the Lincoln park zoo, an officer of the Anti-Cruelty to Animals' socity, a capriculturist [goat raiser], and the director of the state scrap metal salvage campaign.

The issue arose when it was discovered a few days ago that the Mount Greenview grade school's scrap pile was dwindling. An accusing finger was pointed at "Mr. Smith," a pet goat of 14 year old Dolores Vowadnik, a student at Mount Greenview.

Might Cause Ulcers!

Allegedly, "Mr. Smith" was seen wit ha choice piece of scrap iron in his mouth—and he was munching on it. "Mr. Smith," unjustly it now appears, was then banished from the school yard for the duration.

"Goats don't eat tin," Dr. B. C. Hunt, assistant state veterinarian, stated conclusively. "They will chew on tin, but they don't swallow it. They can't digest metal, and besides it would probably lead to ulcers."

He was supported in these views by C. M. Weeks, a Glen Ellyn goat raiser. Mr. Weeks was even more indignant about this ancient slur on the goat family—which it seems is aristocratic and discriminatory to a high degree.

Just Curious, That's All.

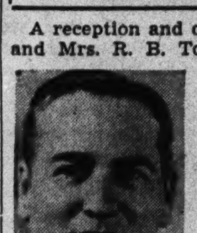
"If their hay falls on the floor when I'm feeding them," Weeks said with fervor, "they won't touch it. They don't want anything off of the floor.

"This old wives' tale about eating tin cans arose from a commendable characteristic of the goats. They are very curious. Very often I find mine have pulled some newspapers off a table. They just want to look at them—and maybe chew them a little. They won't eat them."

Nathaniel Leverone, state director of scrap metal salvage, closed the case by issuing a directive, "Until further notice, all scrap wardens should regard goats with suspicion—and that's no kidding."

RECEPTION THURSDAY TO HONOR NEW HEAD OF YORK HIGH SCHOOL

A reception and open house for Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Tozier will be held by the board of education of York Community High school Thursday night in the girls' gymnasium at the school in Elmhurst. Dr. Tozier is the new superintendent at York this year, and the board is taking the opportunity to present him and his wife to parents of York students and to the community.



Dr. R. B. Tozier.

President Otto W. Arnstach of Villa Park and Mrs. Arnstach, and Mayor Auken of Elmhurst have been invited to join the receiving line. Representatives of the Parents' club and members of the faculty are aiding the board in making plans for the reception. Student members of the National Honor society will act as guides.

Members of the board of education are James Sykora, president; Dr. Earl E. Graham, secretary; Louis Falb, Jack Stolz, and George Billett.

BERWYN BLOCK WILL DEDICATE MEMORIAL TODAY

Men in the service will be honored at a public dedication of the victory memorial corner at 13th street and Maple avenue, Berwyn, at 2 o'clock today. On the honor roll for block AX-2 are George Holl Jr., only Berwyn casualty; Joseph Catalano, Don Washco, Robert Washco, W. B. McGowan, and Norman Fairchild. Mr. and Mrs. George Holl Sr. will be honored on the program.

At the same ceremony, block AX-1 will dedicate its victory corner at Roosevelt road and Maple avenue. The honor roll includes Robert G. Mickow, Richard J. Dvorak, Daniel Costello, Edward L. Cross, and Edward M. Hughes.

Speakers on the program will be C. H. Coyle, OCD coördinator for Berwyn; Sergt. Charles Rudderham of the Berwyn police, and the Rev. Constantine Viktora of St. Mary of Celles church. The Berwyn American Legion post under direction of Commander Martin G. Glass, will present the colors.

Few Bad Boys in Chinatown—Credit Family

At least one Chicago community has little need for an agency to reduce juvenile delinquency. It's Chinatown, centered at Cermak road and Wentworth avenue.

The juvenile delinquency rate of this community is so low that officials at the Juvenile Detention home said there was no separate report for the Chinese, altho other national groups were listed. Workers who have been at the home many years reported they could not remember a Chinese child brought in for wrongdoing. And Chinatown is a community of more than 2,000 persons, one-fourth of whom are less than 21 years old.

Capt. Edward Kelly of the 3d police district, in which Chinatown is located, termed the community "the quietest place in my district." He said he had almost no trouble from Chinese children. In fact, he added, there was little difficulty to be had in the community, either from children or adults. Teachers at Haines elementery school, which serve the district, reported there was almost no truancy among the Chinese children.

Ideal Family Life.

The reason for this almost ideal state? According to the Rev. John Mao, pastor of St. Therese church, the only Chinese Catholic church in the middle west, it is derived from the family life of the Chinese.

"The reason there is little crime and delinquency," he said, "is that in China the family name is so highly respected that every member of the

THEOSOPHICAL GROUP TO OPEN SEASON WITH LECTURE BY S. A. COOK

Sidney A. Cook, president of the Theosophical Society in America, will speak this afternoon at the national headquarters in the first of a series of monthly lectures for the 1942-'43 season. His topic will be "The Way to the World We Want." The public is invited.

Sidney A. Cook.

Headquarters of the society are on Main street one mile north of Wheaton. Mr. Cook will speak in the dual rôle of a student of theosophy and a successful business man. Tea will be served after the lecture.

DOWNERS GROVE GRID PROCEEDS TO BUY YANKS GIFTS

Proceeds from the football game this afternoon at Downers Grove between the Downers Grove Mustangs and the Elmhurst Travelers will be used to send Christmas gifts to Downers Grove men serving with the nation's armed forces. The game, starting at 2 o'clock, will be played at the high school field. Representatives of all organizations in Downers Grove are members of a committee to canvass the village in a ticket selling drive.

Your Congressman

An Editorial

Raymond E. Trafelet, the able young Berwyn lawyer who is the Republican nominee in the 6th congressional district, is a just man even when dealing with the record of Blind Tom O'Brien, the gambler's friend and Kelly-Nash tool who is the Democratic nominee in the district.

Mr. Trafelet, in one of his campaign statements, has corrected the impression generally held that Blind Tom during his previous tenure in congress spent all of his time in Chicago handbooks. Apparently, he actually appeared in Washington some time during his term, not, of course, to engage in the deliberations of the floor of the house—a function from which his clownishness naturally barred him—but at least to engage in some political lobbying in the bureaus of Washington.

This sole monument to O'Brien's previous congressional activity is his demand that the jobs in the Veterans' hospital at Maywood, within the 6th district, be turned over to him as political patronage. If he had had his way, heroes of the last war would have been dependent upon Blind Tom's ward heelers for the service which a grateful government spends hundreds of millions of dollars to provide. Another Democratic politician recognized that this course was political suicide and stepped in to put a quietus on the activities of the greedy little corruptionist.

This experience of having his acts condemned by the leaders of his own party has by now become a commonplace to O'Brien. State's Attorney Courtney has condemned every phase of his administration of the office of sheriff of Cook county. Peter B. Carey, the machine nominee to succeed him, has found it necessary to pledge the voters of the county that if elected he will clean out the whole mess of graft, incompetence, and corruption which O'Brien is leaving behind him.

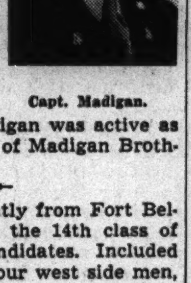
That is the man whom the Kelly-Nash machine is trying to foist on the voters of the 6th district as their representative in congress. It is no wonder that they are reduced in backing his candidacy to the ridiculous contention that anybody who votes the Republican ticket is "pleasing Hitler." Any argument, no matter how nonsensical, is better than running their candidate on his record.

O'Brien in the past has betrayed every one around him except the machine bosses whose puppet he is. He is publicly pledged to betray the people of the 6th district if they are so foolish as to send him to Washington. His vote is delivered in advance to the New Deal plotters of dictatorship for any further measures they may want to shackle the liberties of the people.

Two years from now it may be too late to save liberty if a congress made up of such faceless men goes to Washington. Give the internal foes of American freedom another two years and no one will dare vote as he thinks in the 1944 election for fear of reprisals by a dictator government. The voters in the 6th district can defend themselves against this grave threat by sending the able, intelligent, and independent Mr. Trafelet to Washington.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

George P. Madigan, now a captain in the United States army, has taken up his duties as exchange officer of the post exchange at West Point Military academy. He was on furlough for 10 days prior to that, having completed his training at the officers' school of the army exchange service, at Princeton university. Before receiving his commission, Capt. Madigan was active as secretary-treasurer of Madigan Brothers store.



Capt. Madigan.

Graduating recently from Fort Belvoir, Virginia, was the 14th class of engineer officers candidates. Included in the class were four west side men, all commissioned second lieutenants: Milton Joseph Bejeck, 1829 South 59th court, Cicero; Edmund William Beyer, 409 North 7th avenue, Maywood; Elmer Eugene Fox, 4932 Washington street, Downers Grove, and Loris Francis Fredman, 550 Western avenue, Glen Ellyn.

Melvin J. Reichhold, stationed at Camp Gruber, Oklahoma, has been promoted to staff sergeant. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Reichhold, 1231 South Kolin avenue.

Frank E. Kalal, son of E. J. Kalal, 2231 South Kedzie avenue, has been promoted to technical sergeant at the army air force bombardment base, Will Rogers field, Oklahoma. His former home was 4244 Cermak road. Since Sept. 5, 1941, he has been on duty at Will Rogers field as supervisor of line duty.

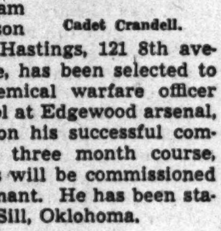
Lieut. Paul W. Frillman, 601 North Ninth street, Maywood, is one of hundreds of executives of specialized businesses and industries now being trained at the new air force officer training school, Miami Beach, Fla., to direct administrative and supply operations of the rapidly expanding ground forces. Before entering the service, Lieut. Frillman was a missionary.

Harold Winpar, 3601 Roosevelt road, has been advanced to sergeant at McClellan field, California, where he is stationed with the army air force.

Sergt. Frank Kusner, son of Louis Kusner, 1242 South Albany avenue, has been admitted to officer candidate school at Miami Beach, Fla., from the army air force basic training center at Kearns, Utah. He enlisted on July 17, 1939, and had been stationed at Utah since last July. Sergt. Kusner is a graduate of Crane Technical High school.

Sergt. Kusner.

Jack L. Crandell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Crandell, 907 Garfield avenue, Aurora, has enlisted for aviation cadet training in the air force primary flying school at Cimarron field, Oklahoma City, Okla. He attended North Central college at Naperville.



Cadet Crandell.

Sergt. William R. Hastings, son of William A. Hastings, 121 8th avenue, La Grange, has been selected to attend the chemical warfare officer candidate school at Edgewood arsenal, Maryland. Upon his successful completion of the three month course, Sergt. Hastings will be commissioned a second lieutenant. He has been stationed at Fort Sill, Oklohoma.

Carol E. Finn, son of Mrs. Marguerite LaCroix, 2409 Fillmore avenue, was recently advanced to fireman, second class, at the naval air station at Pensacola, Fla. He enlisted in the navy in May, 1941, and received preliminary training at Great Lakes station.

James E. Kent has been promoted to sergeant at Maxwell field, Montgomery, Ala., where he is stationed with the army air force. He is the son of Mrs. H. E. Murray, 1845 South Kedzie avenue.

Sander W. Rotstein, 1904 South Albany avenue, has been promoted to private first class at Selfridge field, Michigan, where he is stationed with the army air force.

Charles William Ehlerding graduated recently from the Victorville army flying school, Victorville, Cal., as a bombadier, and was commissioned a second lieutenant. His home is at 185 Woodside road, Riverside. He attended the Riverside-Brookfield High school and Northwestern and Loyola universities.

Twenty-four years of active service with one company came to a temporary halt last week for Joseph O. Wright, 587 Glen Ellyn place, Glen Ellyn, when he left Marsh & McLennan, insurance firm, to start army officer training.

Joseph D. Wright.

Wright is the third of his family to enter service. One brother is stationed with the coast guard on the Atlantic coast, and another is in Hawaii with an anti-aircraft unit. Wright has served the company since 1918.

He was a guest Friday night at a farewell dinner of fellow employés in the Atlantic hotel. Speakers were Vice Presidents William Otter and Lawrence Myers, and Al Johnson and C. D. Meyers composed the committee on arrangements.

RETIRE SHERIFF TO PRIVATE LIFE, VOTERS ASKED

G.O.P. Nominee Sees Win for Congress.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Blasting at the political record of Thomas J. O'Brien both as a congressman and as sheriff of Cook county, his Republican opponent, Raymond E. Trafelet, called upon the voters of the 6th congressional district last week to retire the sheriff to private life on Nov. 3.

"Sheriff O'Brien unable to succeed himself in office, is being taken care of by Pat Nash," Trafelet declared at a joint Cicero-Berwyn Republican rally in Berwyn Friday.

"The present congressman from the 6th, A. F. Maciejewski, is being pushed out to make it possible for the city hallers to add to the 40 consecutive years of the public pay rolling of Tom O'Brien. But the real patriotic followers of the Democratic party, and the nonconformists of the Kelly-Nash dictatorship have indicated they are against O'Brien.

O'Brien Record Merits Defeat.

"Politics is known to produce strange men. The record of O'Brien as sheriff fully warrants his retirement from political life. Instead, the Kelly-Nash combine insists that he go to Washington and lend his voice in the congressional councils on conducting the war and on the framing of the peace that is to follow."

Trafelet declared O'Brien's record of political failures and omissions alone would fill several volumes. He said O'Brien as a congressman had made such a glaring attempt to inject politics into the administration of the Hines Memorial hospital that a fellow Democrat halted it. He charged O'Brien had demanded that jobs in the hospital be tossed into the Democratic patronage hopper.

"If he tried to play politics with the wounded veterans of the last war, what would be his activities in behalf of the dead and injured and dependents in this great war?" Trafelet asked.

Failed in Sheriff Duties.

As sheriff, O'Brien has failed signally to halt gambling, suppress vice and protect industry from a few unscrupulous labor leaders, Trafelet said.

"His inability to locate a bookie is a common story," the G. O. P. nominee declared. "His penchant for charging subordinates with his own failures is another revealing example of the O'Brien character. It was this shifting of responsibility that caused the grand jury's hesitation when O'Brien's indictment was sought.

"A fellow Democrat, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, condemned the entire administration of O'Brien as sheriff. Another fellow Democrat, the present nominee for sheriff, felt it necessary to apologize for the O'Brien régime and promise a cleanup if he is elected.

"Party considerations have gone overboard in this fight for congressman of the 6th district, and all right thinking Democrats are against O'Brien. These Democrats not only have pledged their own votes to me on election day, but are organizing independent clubs and by circulars and otherwise inducing other Democrats to help defeat the Kelly-Nash candidate."

Trafelet assailed the entry of Mayor Kelly into the political picture by charging that "any one who votes the Republican ticket is pro-Nazi."

"That theme of O'Brien's political boss is resented not only by patriotic Republicans but also by the good Americans who are followers of the Democratic party.

Hits "Shirttail Patriots."

"No single group has a monopoly upon patriotism. The shirttail patriots sponsoring Tom O'Brien are of his own stripe. They are peculiarly able to brush aside a man's qualifications or disqualifications as of no consequence by comparison with the obligations of a political machine.

"Mn entry into the face for congressman was made at the request of public spirited Americans, both Republicans and Democrats, who put country above party. My election as congressman of the 6th district will mean that the people of the district and not the bosses will have representation in Washington."

FATHER AND SON, BOTH PASTORS, TO SPEAK AT DINNER

The Rev. Paul L. Kluender will speak in behalf of the fathers, and the Rev. M. R. Kluender will speak for the sons at the 12th annual fathers' and sons' banquet to be held Nov. 10 by the Men's club of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church, Circle avenue and Washington street, Forest Park. The Kluenders, father and son, are pastors of the neighboring St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church of Melrose Park. Vaughn Shoemaker, cartoonist, will talk also and the Taylor quintet, acrobats from Oak Park, will help entertain. Emil F. Roehlke will be toastmaster. Wilbur W. Kuhlman is president of the club.

BARR SEEKS 11TH TERM IN SENATE AGAINST HRUBY

Visit of Navy Son Holds Veteran's Interest.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Sen. Richard J. Barr [R.].

Otto J. Hruby [D.].

With a world record for continuous legislative service in his pocket, State Sen. Richard J. Barr of the 41st district last week was thinking less about winning his 11th four year term than about the visit home of his navy aviator son.

The veteran Republican is nearing 77 and has yet to lose his senate seat or his composure. Ordinarily he might have evinced "professional worry" about the Nov. 3 election just to make sure that his supporters don't relax too much. But Richard Jr. holds the stage right now.

"He's my elder son," Sen. Barr says. "He has 10 days leave before being transferred from Norfolk, and I want to make the most of it. My other son, Bill we call him, has trained at two southern army airfields and now is attending ground school here. They're pretty good boys and it's hard to think about other things."

"Hope I Beat Him."

What about the campaign?

"The only talk I hear is Republican talk," the tall, pink and white senator replies. "O, once in a while you hear of a Democratic meeting."

That is in his district, made up of Will county where he lives, and Du Page county, containing Hinsdale, the home of his Democratic opponent, Otto J. Hruby. What about his opponent?

"He's a nice fellow. I've met him a few times," Sen Barr answers softly without a change of verbal expression, and in the same even tone adds: "I hope to beat him."

To a newer generation the question might occur: If this is no pose, what manner of man is this elegantly attired self-styled "farmer, not a lawyear, because the law is a jealous mistress, and I have spent too much time on my farm."

"This Is His Senate."

Probably the best answer ever written was that of the late James O'Donnell Bennett of THE TRIBUNE of June 6, 1925, when the legislature was in a session. Here are excerpts from the Bennett sketch of 17 years ago:

"'This is his senate.'

"With a quick, confident glance, the utterer of these words indicated a tall, lean, rangily built man of 60 years, but not seeming so old, who was standing in the center of the Illinois senate chamber and speaking in a moderate but carrying voice.

"My friend, a seasoned observer on this scene, added:

"'When he talks it goes into legislation.'

Easy Manner, Fortright.

"The man, to whom half a dozen senators standing within a dozen feet of him were listening attentively and to whom 40 other senators seated at their desks were giving interested heed, was Richard J. Barr, who boxed his way into the mayoralty of Joliet many a year ago, and who for 23 years has been a member of our senate.

"While Sen. Barr was speaking he stood with an admonitory lead pencil in one hand and his noseglasses poised on two fingers of the other hand. His manner was easy and his matter seemed to be simple, forthright, rational, and crowded with facts. His tone was penetrating and a little nasal. Neighborly, perhaps, would be the more exact word.

"The face is interesting, a touch of distinction, of Whistler the painter, in the high arched eyebrows and the pronounced yet delicate features. Despite the sharp lines there is a look of youth in his countenance, as tho age had overlaid but not extinguished the youthfulness in the man.

"Smooth, But Not Devious."

"Sen. Barr is a lawyer, but likes to toy with agriculture. He is also a born trader, and it has been said of him that he 'could go out with a cat and come home with a kennel.' He was born in the hamlet of Manhattan, in Will county, in 1865; took a literary course at the University of Illinois, graduated in the law at the University of Michigan, and became city attorney and mayor of Joliet.

"He is smooth and slick but not devious. They say he is to be trusted. He attempts no crusades or impossibilities. He is patient, and often he is wearily tolerant of things that should not be.

"That's politics.

Takes Life as It Is.

"He is not a Small follower nor yet an anti-Small follower. He is middle of the road, where the possibilities lie. He and the governor's lieutenant on the senate floor, Sen John Dailey, 'the orator,' have arranged that between them.

"Barr, then, is not impotently valiant, but careful and clever. He would rather do right than wrong, but the doing of wrong by others does not inflame him to burning wrath.

"Only to cynical disfavor.

"His idea—or ideal—is that life and politics have to be taken pretty much as they are not fought or violently reshaped, and that it is futile to try much to reshape them. His 'notion is' that those processes of reshaping are automatic and leisurely and that men won't be dragged upward and onward."

Brother a House Leader.

Democrat Hruby comes of old political stock. His father, John Hruby, was the last west town collector in Chicago before the office was abolished. The third generation of Hruby family in this country since 1848, the nominee is affiliated with all Slav organizations in the district, he said.

His brother, John Hruby, was house minority leader in the legislature under Gov. Deneen, he said, and a cousin by the same name also served in the house. Rep. John O. Hruby of the 19th district, on the west side of Chicago, is another cousin, the nominee declared.

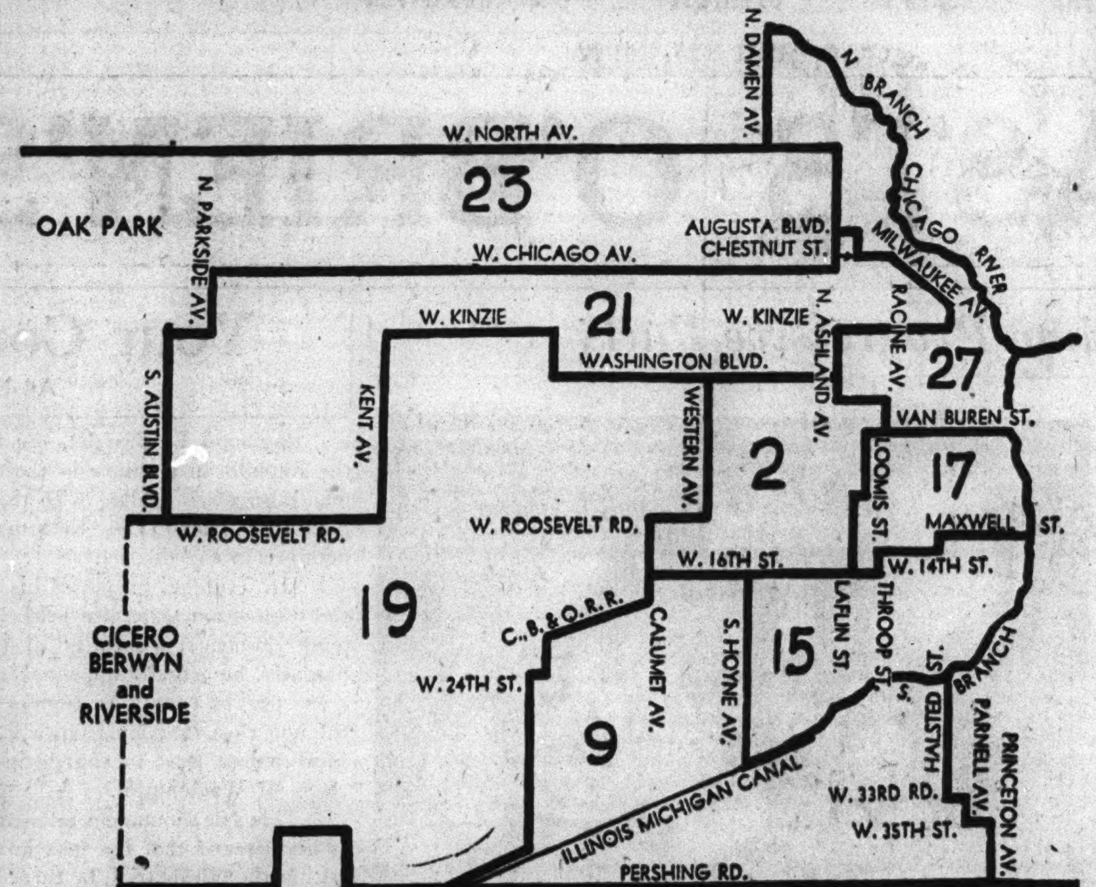
Otto J. Hruby, to get out of the family forest, is a tax expert in business for himself on La Salle street—the Illinois Bond Collection service.

Would Amend Constitution.

"When you think of all the tax bills coming up at Springfield it's easy to see my place there," he said. "I've been studying tax problems for a long time. I'm interested in abolishing the personal property tax. It's an imposition upon the public.

"Take a man who buys furniture—it really doesn't belong to him because of the personal property tax on it. A replacement tax? Cut down on public expenditures. Amend the constitution. Naturally, it would have to be amended for my purpose, but we can't let difficulties stand in our way."

Legislative Districts of the West Side



Boundaries of the legislative districts in the west area are defined in this map. The 7th district also includes those townships in Cook county outside of Chicago which are not in the 6th, 19th or 23d districts. Kane and Kendall counties comprise the 14th district. The 41st district includes Du Page and Will counties.

Brooks Campaigner Honored

Committeeman Louis J. Meyers of the 29th ward was honored recently when Republicans of Chicago, Cook county, and Illinois affiliated with the drive now in progress to re-elect United States Sen. Wayland Brooks, united in presenting him a watch for his birthday. At the presentation ceremony were, left to right, William L. Morgan, Republican candidate for chief justice of the Municipal court; State Auditor Arthur C. Lueder, Committeeman Meyers, and Stanley R. Pulaski, Republican candidate for Probate judge of Cook county.

RED CROSS CHIEFS BEGIN CITY-WIDE MEETING SERIES

One of a city-wide series of orientation meetings being held by the Red Cross will take place Tuesday evening at Austin Town hall, 5610 Lake street. These meetings are planned to acquaint chairmen of Red Cross production units, Red Cross general chairmen, and other community leaders with all activities of the organization. Talks on Red Cross activities by members of the speaker's bureau, first aid motion pictures, and skits depicting activities of all volunteer services will feature the meetings, according to Mrs. John T. Pirie Jr., chairman of the public speaking service of the Red Cross.

No Community Juvenile Crime Problem.

family feels the dishonor of any individual's wrong doing." There are only 100 families in all the millions of Chinese.

The family name, being highly respected, is given first, not last, as is the case with other nationalities. If an individual demonstrates he has lost ability to uphold the family name, it is taken away from him. He is almost the same as a man without a country in China. Father Mao cited the axample of Wang Chiu-Wei, who became the Japanese puppet governor in Nanking.

Punished by Family.

When this treachery was committed against China the Wang family took away his name. An individual who has suffered this fate can be taken back into the family if he demonstrates he has repented and will no longer do wrong. Fther Mao indicated that Chiu-Wei will have a difficult time getting himself reinstated.

The Chinese family is organized with the mother at the head of the family so far as affairs inside the home are concerned. The father is leader of outside affairs. When a son marries he brings his bride to the home of his father, which keeps the family unit together.

Where there are several members of a family in one place they establish a family headquarters, the center of family affairs in that area. There are seven family headquarters in Chicago, altho there are more than that number reperesnted. The Moys and Lees are the largest family groups in Chicago, as well as being among the largest in China.

Teach Parental Respect.

Respect toward parents, age, scholarship, and dignity, are taught Chinese children from their earliest years. He is obedient because he knows that by being bad he will dishonor all members of his family. He has the goal of being able to live to a respected old age.

During the depression there were few Chinese on relief. The family system kept them from taking the dole. If a member came upon hard times, he was lent money and food by the family until he got on his feet again.

Father Mao cited a Chinese proverb—"It is a shame to accept and an honor to give"—which sheds light on the Chinese attitude toward governmental relief. This idea need not apply to loans by the family. It explains, Father Mao said, why a Chinese was reluctant to come to the United States if other members of his family were not here.

DU PAGE COUNTY ENROLLS NEARLY ALL 1940 VOTERS

53,927 Registered; 5,000 in Military Service.

So successful have been the efforts in Du Page county to bring about the permanent registration of 60,723 persons who voted in the county in the last Presidential election that 97.03 per cent of the number are now on the books. This means that fewer than 2,000 persons on Nov. 3 will be required to sign a nonregistered voters affidavit if they wish to vote. It is estimated that the process for meeting last minute requirements will take about five minutes.

Clarence V. Wagemann, county clerk, said that the registration meant long hours and hard work, but coöperation of the public had made the efforts worthwhile.

Many Register Since Sept. 19.

The picture in brief reveals that before Sept. 19 registrations outside the county clerk's office totaled 37,498, with the number that came to the office 3,093, a total of 40,591. Precinct registration on Sept. 19 were 6,292, an on Oct. 6, 7,044, a total of 13,336.

The grand total registered was 53,927, and the number of persons from the county in military service was placed at 5,000, making a total of 58,927 accounted for.

The 60,723 vote at the last Presidential election, on which percentages have been based, represented the peak vote for all time in the county. In comparison with the 1938 vote of 41,856, the recent registration showing is considered all the more remarkable.

Vote on Three Propositions.

Three special propositions will come before Du Page county voters at this election: Shall the forest preserve district of Du Page county be included within the provisions of an act creating the Illinois Municipal Retirement fund, and shall the county be included within the provisions of an act creating the Illinois Municipal Retirement fund? The third short ballot offers an opportunity to vote on an act relating to the care and treatment by counties of persons afflicted with tuberculosis and providing the means therefor.

The law relating to the care of tuberculosis is now in effect under an election held previously but another vote has been made necessary for the reason that the Supreme court held that in another county having the same act the ballot was not properly worded.

Block Rites Today

94 PER CENT IN KANE

Kane county has better than 94 per cent of its voters registered, based upon the county's all-time record high vote of 68,697 cast in 1940. The total is now 63,837.

County Clerk Charles Lowry was charged with the registration of voters in the 79 precincts outside the city of Aurora which has operated for some years under the election commission law.

Mr. Lowry sent deputy registrars into each of the county's 16 townships during the summer, and personally visited many of the larger industries and busienss houses. The registration staff also visited fairs and neighborhood gatherings.

Kane county approached the first general registration date of Sept. 19 with approximately 20,000 names on the books, exclusive of the 25,000 registered in Aurora. The Sept. 19 registration added 6,000 names to the rolls, and on Oct. 6 another 11,000 were added, increasing the grand total to 63,837.

Mr. Lowry said he hoped the attorney general may render an opinion authorizing the deputizing of election judges as deputy voter registrars on Nov. 3.

Edward Sullivan, and Mrs. Thomas J. Terrell.

Austin Woman's Club.

The music department will be in change of tomorrow afternoon's program, for the Austin Woman's club, with Mrs. William A. Nelson as chairman. She will present J. Charles Gilbert, in "The Mirth and Melody of Gilbert and Sullivan." His accompanist will be Rhea Shelters. On the morning program at 11:15 o'clock, Mrs. Paul H. Patton, chairman, will introduce Mrs. William C. Hammer, director of consumer relations for the Celanese Corporation of America, who will tell of the development of celanese.

Austin Evening Auxiliary.

Dr. Paul L. Schroeder, superintendent of the Institute for Juvenile Research and attending physician of Cook County Psychopathic hospital, will speak on "Children in Wartime" at the meeting of the evening auxiliary of the Austin Woman's club at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in the Washington Pine West hotel, 5511 Washington boulevard.

Miss Lois Schauer, vocalist, will present a group of songs. Miss Esther Jorgensen, 1114 North Lorel avenue, is program chairman.

Cicero Woman's Club.

The annual card party and bake sale sponsored by the Cicero Woman's club will be held at the Karel Jonas hall, 5510 25th street, Cicero, at 1 o'clock Wednesday. More than 30 organizations are aided annually from the returns of this party.

Mrs. John Meyer, chairman of ways and means, is assisted by Mrs. George Bartizal, Miss Gertrude Cullom, Mrs. Joseph Danek, Mrs. William Cervenka, Mrs. Donald Gray, Mrs. Frank Hejhal, Mrs. George Korous, Mrs. F. J. Kotalik, Mrs. John A. Kropacek, Mrs. William Kozelsky, Mrs. R. I. Robinson, Mrs. Martin Sadilek, Mrs. A. R. Tuma, and Mrs. J. C. Steiner.

Elmhurst Woman's Club.

Men's night of the Elmhurst Woman's club will be at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday at the Spinning Wheel tearoom in Hinsdale. Frank Smothers, foreign correspondent, will speak on "World Perspective." Music will be by the Elmhurst male quartet.

La Grange Woman's Club.

Mrs. Raymond A. Ryder, chairman of the Bible department of the La Grange Woman's club, will present Edith King Campbell, speaking on "The Bible as Living Literature" at 2 o'clock Tuesday. Red Cross sewing at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning will be under direction of Mrs. R. E. Coulter, chairman.

Nineteenth Century Club.

Mrs. E. A. Ribal, program chairman of the Nineteenth Century Woman's club of Oak Park, will present Dr. Will Durant, noted philosopher and historian, at the meeting of the club tomorrow afternoon. Dr. Durant will speak on "What Are the Lessons of History?" At the morning meeting, Mrs. James S. Mahan, chairman of the music department, will introduce Mrs. L. I. Replogle, in a musical program entitled "Our Heritage from the Old World." In the program she will be assisted by Marjorie Strub, pianist, and Hugh Ewart, violinist.

Villa Park Church Fete.

St. Alexander's church, Villa Park, will hold a harvest party and dance Saturday night at Anderson's hall, 54 East St. Charles road.

The boys in the outposts of the Sears Y, 3210 Arthington street, will be guests at a party at 7:30 o'clock Saturday night at the new Sears' boys building, where singing, movies, stunts, and games will precede a costume parade. Several clubs at the Maxwell street Y are planning individual parties. Parties for all ages are being conducted in the Duncan Y, 1515 Monroe street, beginning with a soldiers' party on Thursday. Membership compaigners will celebrate Friday at a report meeting. Residence men and boys will take part in an event on Halloween. Boys and girls will join in the Austin YMCA party Friday evening.

EARLY SETTLERS OF WEST SIDE TO GATHER TUESDAY

Ashland Club Reunion to Feature Society Session.

The West Side Historical society's annual meeting of early settlers will be held at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Henry E. Legler branch library, 115 South Pulaski road. The society was organized in 1930 by Miss Pearl I. Field, librarian of the Leglar branch library, with the assistance of Garfield park business men, to collect and preserve historical material bearing on the west side. Now, in addition to their ever growing collection of historical items, the society has a membership of more than 800.

As in former years, the program will be divided into two sections. The first will be in charge of Harlo R. Grant, and the second will be conducted by the president, T. H. Golightly.

The reunion of Brown school pupils, a feature of last year's meeting, was voted such a success that Mr. Grant has planned a similar reunion of the Ashland club, a west side social group active a few years ago. The Ashland club building stood on the northeast corner of Washington boulevard and Wood street, and was the center of many a successful social season on the west side. It counted in its membership such names as Harvey T. Woodruff, William P. McEvoy, and Harlo R. Grant. Mr. Grant is anxious to see a large turnout of the former members at the reunion.

Talk on Woman's Club.

Miss Augusta LaKamp, 2916 Warren beoulevard, will speak on the development of the West End Woman's club. Seward Gunderson of Oak Park will be another speaker on the subject of the Ashland avenue neighborhood.

At 8:45 o'clock Mr. Golightly will introduce Thomas H. Hoy, principal speaker of the evening. Born 78 years ago on the west side, he was baptized at St. Patrick's Catholic church, and is a graduate of St. Ignatius school. For 10 years he toured the country with Otis Skinner and other stars of the legitimate stage. Among his intimate associates was the late Oliver Wendell Holmes, justice of the United States Supreme court. Mr. Hoy was connected with the legal department of the Chicago Surface Lines, is a charter member of the Lawndale order of Catholic Foresters, and a past grand master of Damen council, Knights of Columbus. Mr. Hoy's two sons are in the army, one a major in Washington, D. C., and the other a colonel stationed in Baltimore, Md.

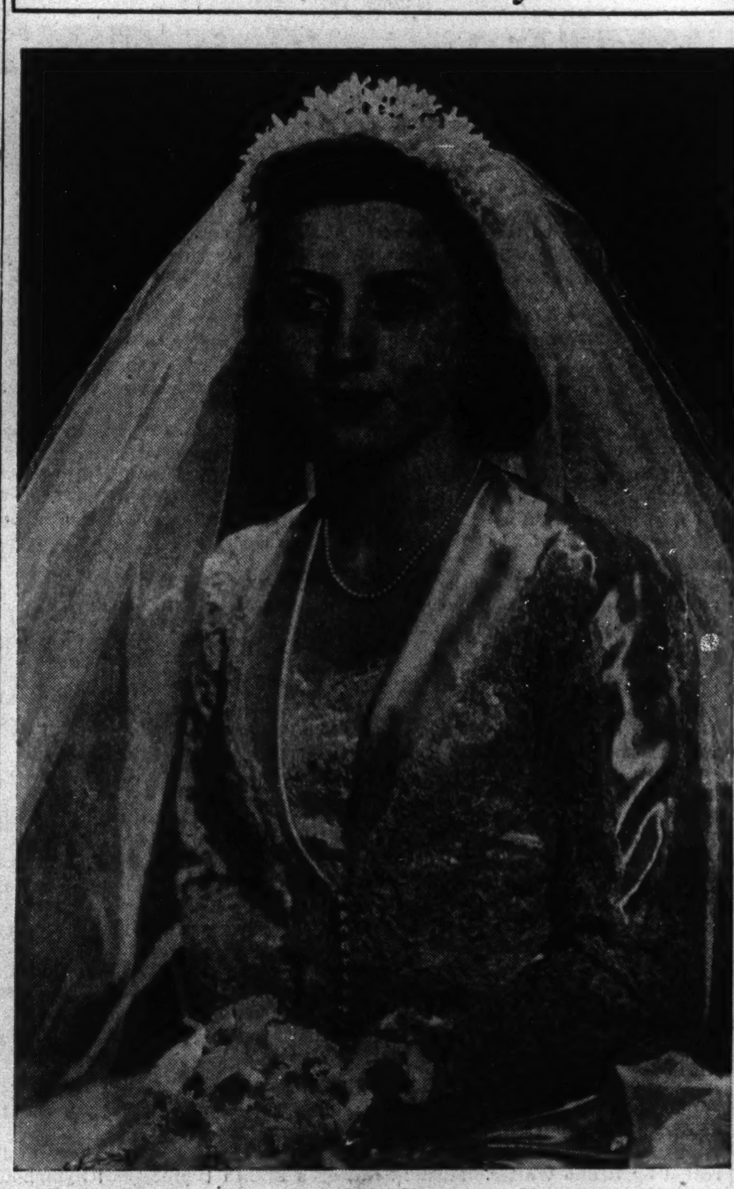
Dr. Otto Eisenschiml, author of the new best seller, "Without Fame," will introduce the 1941-'42 radio quiz prize winners from five high schools in the district covered by the society—Austin, Harrison, McKinley, Tuley, and Steinmetz. Teams of history students from these schools took part in radio quiz contests conducted by Dr. Eisenschiml and Miss Clara Reaum of the Legler library staff. Dr. Eisenschiml also will discuss his plans for the quiz contest to be held during the 1942-'43 season. Miss Reaum will speak on the library's part in the war program.

Exhibit Historical Items.

An exhibit of historical material acquired by the society in the last year will be a feature of the meeting, and may be viewed at the library for the following two weeks. The society is requesting material of historical value, such as photographs, church and school programs, newspaper articles, and other documents which make valuable additions to the history of the community. Donations may be made to Mrs. Gertrude I. Jenkins, secretary-historian of the society, at the Legler branch library.

Officers for the year are: President, Mr. Golightly, president of the Madison-Crawford National bank; vice president, J. C. Miller, 420 Wisconsin avenue, Oak Park; Harlo R. Grant, 2322 Madison street; Miss Lois M. Bergh, 2651 North Marmora avenue, and Charles W. Carter, 2663 Monroe street; treasurer, Miss Roberta Metcalfe; honorary life president, Miss Pearl I. Field.

Married Recently



Before her recent marriage, Mrs. Volney A. Cheney was Margaret Mary McCarty, daughter of Mrs. Dennis McCarty, 5817 Washington boulevard. [Koehne Photo.]

100 MEN, WOMEN STUDY TYPING TO MAKE COMEBACK

Seek Government Jobs to Fill War Need.

Civil service examiners will move into the classrooms of Washburne Trade school, Division and Sedgwick streets, the first week in November to test the competency of the new graduates of the school's experimental course, designed to train junior clerks and junior typists for the government in six weeks' time.

Under the direction of Miss Astrid Paulson, head of the commercial department, more than 100 men and women have undergone the intensive training in touch typing and filing. Some, who returned to the school to brush up on the knowledge they had gained years ago, may be eligible for higher positions in the government service, Miss Paulson states.

No Age Minimum.

The need for trained workers to fill the offices of the alphabetical agencies and provide civilian help for the army and navy in Chicago is acute, according to Mrs. Kathryn Stedham, local civil service recruiter. "While graduates cannot be guaranteed jobs after passing our examinations, chances are that all will be placed almost immediately by our appointing officers working directly with the agencies."

Minimum age for a civil service employée is 17, but there is no maximum age limit. In Washburne's first class is a retired railroad general passenger agent, now over 70 years old. He took the civil service examination a few months ago but failed because he typed the "hunt and peck" method.

Demand Eagerness.

Postoffice workers are among the hundred students. By extending their capabilities they hope to gain promotions. Young men about to be drafted come for clerical training for use in the army. One woman attends faithfully the two hours each day because her husband soon will enter the army and she wants to be able to make her own living.

Two retired Chicago school teachers — "young 65s" — pound their typewriters vigorously. A handicapped college graduate studies typing and filing, alongside a Russian born naturalized citizen whose son is serving in the army.

HINSDALE OPENS DRIVE TOMORROW FOR SCOUT FUND

Boy and Girl Scout organizations in Hinsdale will start their second annual joint drive for funds tomorrow night with a meeting in the Hinsdale Memorial building. Julian O. Heppes is general chairman.

Scout leaders and workers hope the $5,000 brought in by the drive last year will be exceeded. There are now 520 members in Hinsdale Scout organizations.

Members of the drive committee under the chairmanship of Mr. Heppes are Richard H. Wayne, treasurer; Fred A. Schaefer, N. M. Symonds, Mrs. John B. Parker, Mrs. N. H. Whiteside Jr., Mrs. E. Dean Cherry, and O. R. Pringle.

DR. VERA M. DEAN TO SPEAK BEFORE OAK PK. COUNCIL

"Steps Toward World Order" will be the theme of the eleventh annual institute of the Oak Park Council on International Affairs, to be held Tuesday and Wednesday at the Nineteenth Century club. Mrs. Ernest Tomlinson is president of the council, and Mrs. Roy Sorenson is program chairman.

The institute will open with a dinner for sponsoring groups at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening. Principal speaker will be Dr. Vera Micheles Dean, director of the research department of the Foreign Policy association in New York, who will give her address at 8:30 o'clock.

At 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, Dr. Louis Wirth, consultant to the National Resources Planning board, professor of sociology and associate dean of the social science division of the University of Chicago, will speak on "Social and Economic Steps Toward World Order." Luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock. Dr. J. Martin Klotsche, professor of history at State Teachers' college in Milwaukee, will speak at 1:45 on "Political Steps Toward World Order."

RADIO EYES FOR ALL PROMISED AT END OF WAR

Television's Bright Future Told by Dunlap.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Just as ships at sea took on radio voices linking them to land after the first World war, so trans-Atlantic planes will see by means of television after this war. That is the picture envisioned by Orrin Dunlap in his new book "The Future of Television," just published.

Television is being greatly advanced by wartime research and engineering in radio and electron optics, Dunlap reports. After this war sightseeing by radio will become a national pastime, according to Dunlap. Homes everywhere will have all-seeing eyes, because the science of electronics will put television sets within the price range of the masses, just as it has radio sets, says Dunlap. Radio, which made a whispering gallery of the heavens, is described as preparing to turn the whole world into a hall of mirrors, thru television.

Sees New Art Forms.

Reconversion of radio manufacturing plants to postwar production of civilian receiving sets will mark the opening date of the new television era, he forecasts. [But it must be remembered that experts have been asserting that television is just around the corner for the last 15 years.]

Dunlap says there is no danger that sound broadcasting, as we know it, will "dry up" overnight. But he predicts that television will make tremendous strides forward introducing new art forms in much the same fashion as the screen developed Mickey Mouse and radio its Amos 'n' Andy.

"Radio characters who have lived in the world of imagination and illusion will come out of hiding," says Dunlap, "as television adds sight to sound to make radio drama more real than ever before."

A National Sports Arena.

Television will no more kill the theater than did radio, he asserts. "To the actor and vaudevillian, whether tap dancer, juggler, acrobat, or magician, television offers the dawn of a new day," he states. Television also will turn the nation into a coast to coast sports arena, making fights, baseball, football, and other sports events visible to everybody.

Television is full of promise in the realm of education, too. While some problems remain to be solved, Dunlap says that color television with images of 18 by 24 inches is in the offing for homes.

The images will be so accurate, says Dunlap, that televiewers of the future will fill albums with snapshots of pictures they make of television views flashing to their homes.

Dunlap, for many years radio editor of the New York Times, is now associated with the Radio Corporation of America. His book is published by Harper's.

GLIMPSES BEHIND JAPAN, OBJECT OF REVIEW STAND

The Northwestern University Reviewing Stand will discuss "Behind the Face of Japan" on W-G-N and the Mutual network from 10 to 10:30 a. m. today.

Guests for the program will be Upton Close, authority on Far Eastern affairs; Prof. Franklin D. Scott, and Frederic S. Marquardt, foreign correspondent.

Among the points to be discussed will be the philosophy of the Japanese, their economic status, their religious and political habits, and their attitude toward America. James H. McBurney will be moderator.

Youth Draft Subject of Forum of Air Tonight

The American Forum of the Air will consider the timely question, "How Can We Best Use Our Conscripted Youth?" on its broadcast over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual network from 7 to 7:45 o'clock tonight. The speakers will be Rep. Jennings Randolph, West Virginia; Rep. Emanuel Celler, New York; Warren H. Atherton, chairman of the national defense committee of the American Legion; Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War, and Dr. Harry A. Overstreet.

N. Y. Philharmonic Plays Schubert, Mahler Works

The New York Philharmonic symphony orchestra returns to the air today at 2 p. m. on WBBM-CBS. The orchestra under the direction of Bruno Walter will present Schubert's Eighth Symphony [Unfinished] and Mahler's First Symphony in D major. Deems Taylor will be the intermission commentator.

Bob Becker to Be Guest on Mary Afflick Program

Bob Becker, Tribune outdoor editor, will be interviewed by Mary Afflick on the Women for Victory program on W-G-N from 4:15 to 4:30 p. m. tomorrow. Becker will discuss his plan for the conservation of meat, fats, sporting ammunition, and feathers. He will indicate how each will aid the war effort.

'ROBIN HOOD' IS NEXT OPERETTA IN W-G-N SERIES

Marion Claire, Knight to Be Starred.

The romantic story of Robin Hood, as portrayed in song and drama by Reginald De Koven in his operetta by that name, will be unfolded on the Chicago Theater of the Air next Saturday evening. The operetta will be broadcast from 8 to 9 o'clock over W-G-N and the Mutual system.

Felix Knight, will sing the title rôle; Marion Claire will take the part of Lady Marian.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Others in the singing cast will be Arwin Schweig, bass, who will be making his network radio debut, as Will Scarlett; Bruce Foote, baritone, as Little John, and John McDonald, bass, as the sheriff of Nottingham.

A cast of distinguished Chicago actors will take the dramatic rôles in the presentation.

The musical background will be provided by the W-G-N symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and the chorus, led by Robert Trendler. Kenneth MacGregor will be the producer.

All of the familiar music will be presented, including the perennial favorite, "O, Promise Me."

SALUTE BLOOM TOWNSHIP HIGH ON W-G-N HOUR

Bloom Township High school of Chicago Heights will be saluted on the "Citizens of Tomorrow" program on W-G-N from 1 to 1:30 p. m. today. For the first time in the series, which now numbers 70 broadcasts, the program will originate and be recorded at the school itself.

This procedure has become necessary because of transportation problems. Whenever it is necessary in the future, programs will originate in schools that are far distant from the studio.

Raymond D. Meade, principal at Bloom, will speak on the program. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies.

The Bloom choir of 19 boys and 41 girls, under the direction of Don VandenBerg, will sing "Dark Water" by James, and "Today There Is Ringing" by Christiansen. Harold Turner, W-G-N staff pianist, will provide the accompaniment.

Two more senior high scool students will be added to the program's honor roll. They are Thomas Ryan, 16, president of the senior class at Dubuque, Ia., High school, and Judith Tornow, also 16, a senior at Bloom.

'Ridin' 6 White Horses' Is First Nighter Play

An original play, "Ridin' Six White Horses" will be broadcast on the First Nighter hour from 5 to 5:30 p. m. today on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

The leading rôles will be played by Les Tremayne and Barbara Luddy. Tremayne will portray the rôle of a novelist who went to the mountains for peace and quiet. Miss Luddy will be cast as his wife. Musical background for the First Nighter will be supplied by Eric Sagerquist and his orchestra.

Lois Wallner Will Sing 'Indian Love Call' Tuesday

"Indian Love Call," from Friml's "Rose Marie," will be the solo selection of Lois Wallner, soprano star of the Northerners, on W-G-N at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday. The all-male octet, under the direction of Harry S. Walsh, will sing four numbers.

Six Amateurs on W-G-N.

Six talented amateurs will participate in the "Stars of Tomorrow" hour on W-G-N from 8 to 8:30 tonight. The three amateurs voted best by mail ballot will receive wrist watches. All the amateurs will receive war stamp awards.

SPIRIT OF WAR TO ENTER FETES AT HALLOWEEN

Expect Park Parties to Curb Vandalism.

The west side's celebration of Halloween this year will combine the war spirit with almost all of the customary weird festivities of the Eve of All Hallows. Most west side parks are planning their usual Halloween parties and festivals for Friday evening for children and adults alike. All park supervisors, according to a request issued by Robert J. Dunham, president of the park district, have been asked to omit all festive bonfires.

Reasons listed by Mr. Dunham for this year's black-out Halloween are that bonfires constitute a fire hazard, they use up too much wood, and they take too long to extinguish in case of an air raid or trial blackout.

Parties in 96 Fieldhouses.

Nearly 150,000 boys and girls thruout the city are expected to make use of its 96 park fieldhouses and playgrounds in their ghostly revels as black cats, hobgoblins, and witches on broomsticks. They will all be guests of the park district. Instead of bands of vandals roaming the city's streets, this year's Halloween, it is expected, will find hundreds of youths adding a contemporary note by wearing costumes and masks made in fieldhouse classes and resembling not the devil and wicked members of the supernatural world but Hitler, Mussolini, Tojo, and Hirohito.

George T. Donoghue, park district general superintendent, anticipates that this year's civilian defense spirit in the parks' neighborhood celebrations will greatly reduce vandalism, thus effecting for citizens of Chicago a saving of thousands of dollars in property damage.

The following is the schedule of west side parks' Halloween parties announced by Oscar C. Rose, regional supervisor of the west side recreation division:

Tuesday.

Columbus park, Congress street and Central avenue—Service men's party, 8 o'clock, dancing and refreshments. Twelve recreational classes of Columbus park will hold their own group club parties during their regular class meeting periods this week.

Thursday.

Douglas park, 14th street and Albany avenue—Party for Red Cross production unit, 7:30 o'clock, refectory building; Betty Klemchuk and Jeanette Berman, co-chairmen.

Friday.

Douglas park—Girls' gym class party, 3 o'clock, gymnasium. Sylvia Winer is physical instructor.

Douglas park—Parade around lagoons, 7:30 o'clock; movies, amateur vaudeville, marshmallow and weiner roast, costume judging for prizes; sponsored by Douglas park Boy Scout troop. Clyde Walter is park supervisor.

Dvorak park, Cullerton avenue and Fisk street—Parade at 6:30 o'clock, followed by six settlement house parties at 8 o'clock at Sacred Heart school, St. Procopius, Bethlehem center, Howell center, Halsted Street institute, and Dvorak park. Thomas P. Fogarty is park supervisor.

Franklin park ,14th place and South Kolin avenue—Parade at 7 o'clock; costume judging, games, community singing; sponsored by Yarmo-Devere post, American Legion, OCD block and zone captains, and Franklin Park Boy Scout troop. George Smith is park supervisor.

Garfield park, 100 North Central Park avenue—Parties at 7:30 o'clock for all members of classes, activities, and clubs in the recreation center building; costume parade, Chamber of Horrors, entertainment, community singing. Leonard Sterling is park supervisor.

Harrison park, 18th and Wood streets—Parade at 7:30 o'clock, costume judging for prizes, stunts, movies. A. P. Butler is park supervisor.

Shedd park, 23d street and Lawndale avenue—Parade at 7:30 o'clock, patriotic events, costume judging, apple ducking, and contests. Del Frank is park supervisor.

Sheridan park, Polk and Aberdeen streets—Group parties for 15 classes at 7:30 o'clock, parade, costume judging for prizes, games, apple bobbing, pie eating, and other contests, Spirit of Halloween room. Children's party at 2:30 o'clock. William Steinhaus is park supervisor.

Saturday.

Columbus park—Second party for service men, 8 o'clock, refreshments and dancing.

Stanford park, 14th place and Union avenue—Marshmallow roast at 7:30 o'clock, costume judging for prizes, refreshments. B. F. Kiest is park supervisor.

Union park, Lake street and Ashland avenue—Parade at 7:30 o'clock, girls' and boys' indoor track meet in gym building, costume judging for prizes, dancing, refreshments. Lucy Bowden is girls' gym teacher and Malcolm Christian is park supervisor.

Austin Town Hall park, Lake street and Central avenue—Parade at 7:30 o'clock, movies, entertainment, refreshments, costume judging for prizes, sponsored by Austin Lions' club.

Monday, Nov. 2.

Austin Town Hall park—Old fashioned barn dance in assembly hall, 8 o'clock; games, Halloween costumes optional. Fred Bosserman is park supervisor.

MARCY CENTER FETE

How to reduce vandalism during the Halloween season will be demonstrated at Marcy center, 1539 South Springfield avenue, at 7 o'clock Saturday night. At that time the staff of the center will conduct its annual program, effectiveness of which has been demonstrated by the record of past years. Since the programs were begun several years ago not one false fire alarm has been turned in from the immediate vicinity on Halloween and all police calls have been outside of the immediate district.

The program this year will begin at the center playground. There will be a parade led by the Yarmo-Devere Sons of the American Legion drum and bugle corps. They will gather the youngsters from the community as they march along, and return them to the playground. There a huge bonfire will be lighted, especially for a wiener roast. Judging of costumes will be a feature of the program. Community merchants have donated prizes for the event. After the wiener roast there will be several comedy movies.

To make this program as successful as those of former years the center has enlisted the aid of the following community agencies: Fillmore police station, fire engine company 38, hook and lalder company 48, Yarmo-Devere Sons of the American Legion drum and bugle corps, local merchants, William Penn elementary school, Manley High school, and Marshall High school.

A crowd of 5,000 to 7,000 boys and girls is expected to take part in the program. In former years they have been additional spectator crowds of between 10,000 and 12,000 lining the parade route.

Married People's Club.

Young Married People's club will hold a Halloween party Saturday evening in the Logan Square temple, 3135 Fullerton avenue.

Wedding in River Forest

Miss Shirley Ann O'Mara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. O'Mara, 559 William street, River Forest, was married recently to Alexander Edward Burke, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Burke, also of River Forest. The wedding took place at St. Luke's church in River Forest, followed by a reception at the Racquet club. [Du Bois Photo.]

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

ROBERT GOMER JONES has been selected to serve as choirmaster and organist of Grace Episcopal church, Oak Park. In additional to taking over this new post, Mr. Jones is continuing his directorial work with the Chicago Welsh Male choir and his chairmanship of the music department of Chicago City colleges. Mr. Jones is a member of the Royal College of Organists, London, England, with both master and bachelor of music degrees from Trinity college, London.

Priscilla Anderson, 2036 South 4th avenue, Maywood, a graduate of Proviso High school and now a sophomore at Carthage college, was recently pledged to Alpha Tau chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota, national music fraternity. Her social sorority is Chi Delta Kappa.

VIRGINIA NOVY, 2707 South Austin boulevard, Cicero, has joined the WAVES and Lois Stith, 563 Saylor avenue, Elmhurst, enlisted recently in the WAACs. They are two of the five women employés of Standard Oil company who have enlisted in one of the two branches of the service.

Miss Joan Bundy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Bundy, 707 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, has been pledged to the X. L. social club at Ward-Belmont school, Nashville, Tenn.

MR. AND MRS. HERMAN F. C. WILLERT, 5948 Walton street, celebrated their golden wedding recently with a company of 80 guests at the Central Plaza hotel. Both were born in Germany. Mr. Willert came to Chicago 57 years ago, working at his profession as a barber at Chicago and Ashland avenues. Their two daughters, Mrs. Walter Schaefer and Mrs. Bert Holmes, were present for the celebration, as were their grandsons, Robert Holmes and Wilbur Schaefer. The latter came by plane from his post with the army air corps in Rhode Island to help his grandparents celebrate.

Also present were Mr. Willert's two brothers, William and August, who attended him at the wedding 50 years ago, and the bridesmaid, Mrs. Martha Hulsebury. Mrs. Francis Schiff, sister of Mrs. Willert, and the families of the brothers and sisters also attended. W. F. M. Fetridge of Oak Park acted as master of ceremonies.

NAVY DAY SHOW TO BE BROADCAST OVER NBC TODAY

A special program calling attention to Navy day will be broadcast over WMAQ-NBC from 1 to 2 p. m. today. There will be many pickups from naval stations and ships at sea and talks by navy leaders.

The speakers will include Adm. Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States fleet; Vice Adm. Frederick J. Horne; Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of Pacific fleet; Adm. Harold R. Stark, commander of the United States naval forces in European waters; Adm. Royal E. Ingersoll, commander in chief of Atlantic fleet; Vice Adm. Charles S. Freeman, commander of northwest sea frontier, and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox.

Also featured will be a description of activities of PT and PC boats, navy blimps, aircraft carriers, woman workers in a naval torpedo station, Seabees, "ship hospitals," WAVES, a marine raider battalion, and music by Coast Guard academy band and enlisted choir at Great Lakes Naval Training station.

MOZART SCHOOL, CALUMET HIGH IN SCRAP DRIVE LEAD

Mozart elementary school at 2200 North Hamlin avenue and Calumet High school at 8131 South May street were well in the lead last week in school scrap collections, totaling about 1,200 tons of material.

The five leaders among elementary and high schools were announced as follows:

Elementary—Mozart, 75,000 pounds; Gary, 3000 South Ridgeway avenue, 65,254 pounds; Hamilton, 1650 Cornelia avenue, 54,000 pounds; Whitney, 2815 Komensky avenue, 51,456 pounds, and Mount Greenwood, 10851 Homan avenue, 60,000 pounds.

High schools — Calumet, 75,000 pounds; Schurz, 3601 Milwaukee avenue, 57,000 pounds; Steinmetz, 3030 North Mobile avenue, 42,000 pounds; Lindblom, 6130 South Wolcott avenue, 32,000 pounds; Hirsch, 7740 South Ingleside avenue, 52,992 pounds.

200 TONS IN DAY IS SCRAP RECORD SET IN ELMHURST

More to Come, Chairman Nielsen Reports.

With approximately 400,000 pounds of scrap metal turned in by Elmhurst householders on a single Sunday and with still more scrap on the way to the big pile, Chatfield J. Nielsen, chairman of the heavy metal collection in the suburb, has high praise for those who made the success of the drive possible.

John Hogan, city foreman, and his men worked from 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning until midnight making the collection. The previous Saturday morning Mr. Hogan received 78 calls to pick up articles too heavy to be carried to the parkway, making a total of 253 calls during the campaign.

"Success of the drive," said Mr. Nielsen, "is due to the splendid coöperation of those who planned it, those who performed the many tasks necessary to its execution, and to the people of Elmhurst who contributed so freely of their scrap metal.

Praise Coördinator, Aids.

"Thanks go to Ray Johnson for laying out and printing the broadside mailed to all residents, to press publications for publicity given the drive, the York theater for its screen announcements, the women and girls who folded, stuffed and stamped the 4,300 broadsides, and those merchants who hung signs in their windows, and with a window decoration in one case."

Others praised by Mr. Nielsen include James Sykora, coördinator for the Elmhurst Civilian Defense council; Marc L. Liston, chief warden; Jack Sheldon, general salvage warden; R. A. Stroube, R. J. Johnson, F. H. Woy, captains, lieutenants, and wardens of the OCD, Oliver Johns, city electrician, Rabe's dairy, and Foreman Hogan and his men.

Gives Souvenir Grenade.

Joseph Wagner, Hugo McComb, Fred Tedrahn, Joseph Widen, William Potvine, Robert Hier, George Ochs, Jack Cederholm, Howard Johns, Bradley Taylor, and Hugo McComb Jr.

Those who helped mail the broadsides were Mrs. Lionel McDole, Mrs. Albert H. Glos, Mrs. John H. Butt, Mrs. E. H. Krell, Mrs. Justin J. Bednorz, Mrs. Harry J. Blum, Mrs. E. W. Wellner, Mrs. Lilli Mueller, Mrs. Thomas J. Gutcher, Miss Alice Clark, Miss Mary Thompson, Elizabeth Hammerschmidt, Jean Wuerfel, Jackie Reid, Demaris McDole, Betty Thoma, and Mary Harris.

Sidney Sorenson turned over to the pile a hand grenade he had obtained as a souvenir from World War I. Jack Sheldon reports that city trucks have collected and shipped 8½ tons of tin. Tin collections are made the last week of each month.

LAUD BERWYN SCHOOLS

Mayor Anton Janura, chairman of civilian defense in Berwyn, pays high compliment to both school districts in his city, their teachers and pupils, for their work in the scrap metal drive. The salvage was delivered by city garbage trucks and trailers to the Levin Iron company, 1103 South Washtenaw avenue, Chicago. Charles Coyle is Berwyn civilian defense coordinator.

Nine dollars per ton was paid to children's salvage group at each school. Lincoln, Custer, Jefferson, and Havicek schools of district 98 brought in some 70,000 pounds of scrap and received checks totaling $303.70.

Komensky, La Vergne, Emerson, Pershing, Piper, and Irving schools of district 100 brought in some 30,000 pounds and received checks totaling $131.04.

245 TONS IN CICERO

Cicero has collected 245 tons of metal scrap in aiding the nation's war effort, according to estimates of Lewis C. Hineman, salvage chairman for the town. Tin is collected Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesdays by town trucks. Seventeen tons of tin scrap have been sent to the shipping depot in Clearing.

Fred Ginsberg, 5625 Cermak road, is credited with having taken in 40,000 tin cans during September, paying prizes in war stamps for contributions.

William Galvin, coördinator of civilian defense in La Grange, reports that his village has collected 82 tons of metal scrap. Tin is gathered the last Monday of each month by the public works department, and some eight tons has been collected. Mrs. John C. Tully, chairman of salvage, is assisted by Byron Greenlee, village superintendent of public works.

The orchestra under the direction of Mr. Kostelanetz will play Strauss' "Tales from the Vienna Woods," Xavier Cugat's "Nightingale," and the "Vocalise" by Rachmaninoff.

RIVERSIDE SENDS PHOTOS OF HOME SCENES TO YANKS

Billfolds to Be Christmas Gift from Community.

What to send men from the community at Christmas time has been decided upon by the Riverside Service Men's committee. The gift will be a billfold with compartments for six snapshot photographs. Also in the package there will be candy made by girls of the domestic science department at Riverside-Brookfield High school.

Inspiration for the idea of the type of gift came from the knowledge that men in uniform now in camps or at the front asked in their letters home that they be sent family snapshots. The billfolds being prepared will contain four general views of scenes in the community and two personal pictures.

The personal snapshots may be of members of the immediate family, a sweetheart, or friends. They are being taken by a group of volunteer amateur photographers.

View of Speeding Train.

The four general snapshots will include a picture of the water tower—a Riverside landmark; the Burlington Zephyr as it speeds thru the village; a churchgoing throng on Sunday morning, and a high school picture. The church will be of the denomination to which the particular service man belonged.

The Riverside Service Men's committee, made up of representatives from all civic organizations and churches in the suburb, already has completed 60 sets for men now serving their country in all parts of the world. These will be mailed before Nov. 1. Another 300 sets are being prepared for mailing before the first week in December. Each package will be accompanied with an appropriate greeting card.

A total of $1,000 as a fund for carrying out the project includes a donation of $100 from the Riverside American Legion post, $750 made part of the community fund budget for 1942, and individual and group contributions of $150.

They Really Like Pictures.

As an indication of how much the men away from home appreciate home photographs, and the study they give them, John Jansen, now in the South Pacific, wrote that he noticed something new had been placed on the mantle in the living room scene he had received. He inquired what it was.

The billfold sets will be sent to all men who later enter the service. Members of the Riverside Service Men's committee in charge of the continuous project for the duration are:

Herbert Bassman, chairman; William J. Ripkey, treasurer; Mrs. George A. Novak, secretary, who, with Mrs. Frank Zeman and Ray L. Gustafson, make up the executive committee.

Others active in the project are H. S. Welch, president of the Riverside Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Adam R. Smith, Ames school PTA; Mrs. M. H. Cook, Central school PTA; Mrs. Robert S. Worline, high school PTA; James W. Ivins, Presbyterian church; Rudolph Ellensohn, St. Mary's church, and the Rev. Roy B. Grobb, St. Paul's church.

Nurse to Army

Miss Ruth Gosch, 24, of 1116 Elgin avenue, Forest Park, has been ordered to report for army duty Wednesday at Fort Sheridan. She is a graduate of Oak Park hospital school of nursing. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Gosch of Forest Park. [Root Photo.]

TEACHER TAKES HIS CLASSROOM TO THE STUDENTS

School on Wheels Gives Diesel Training.

Modern inventions may have deprived many young men of jobs that were open to the generation before them, but they also have created new opportunities for careers far more interesting than anything dreamed in a slower moving age. Among the fortunate who have kept pace with transportation trends is Donald D. Smith of La Grange.

Donald Smith.

As a farm boy near Flemington, N. J., Donald knew America only thru the lessons in his school books. At 29 he has journeyed 50,.000 miles back and forth and up and down the country from coast to coast, and during a four year period has contacted some 40,000 railroad men of 20 of the nation's major roads.

Tis Touring Teacher.

It all happened as the result of Mr. Smith's coming to La Grange to work in the new Diesel plant six months after it began operations in 1936. For two years he was employed in the shop and service office. Then came his chance for one of the most unique and interesting jobs ever offered an adventurous and scientific minded American.

Mr. Smith is an instructor on a car of the Pullman type purchased by the electromotive division of General Motors, La Grange, and converted into school purposes. With his companion, R. J. Muehlhausen, with whom he alternates as teacher, he tours the country in explaining to engineers, firemen, and shop mechanical and electrical maintenance forces the operation and maintenance of Diesel electric passenger, freight, and switching locomotives.

Lectures are given to attentive railroad men who are veterans in the handling of locomotives operated by steam but who realize that, despite his youth, Mr. Smith has something new on the ball. The method of taking instruction to the men in the field has been found much more satisfactory than having the railroaders travel to La Grange and attend classes.

Show Control Panel.

Equipment of the school car includes 44 seats for students, two full size cross sections of a Diesel engine, and a complete electrical panel of a passenger streamlined locomotive. Also there is a sound movie projector for visualizing the equipment and for explaining the Diesel engine's principles.

The car is transported to division points where a stay of two weeks is made for classes that are held three times a day until railroad men have been given a complete demonstration of the operating and maintenance of a Diesel locomotive.

Mr. Smith's teaching experience not only offers a contrast to that of those who address inexperienced pupils within the same four walls day after day, but the view beyond his school windows is constantly changing. The shifting environment takes in the mountains, the desert, the green valleys, the semi-tropics, and the frozen fields of a land of varied topography and climate. His air conditioned car also provides his sleeping quarters.

Records Dialects.

Nor is his experience limited to classroom routine. During leisure hours he is invited to the homes of his railroad men pupils and is taken on local sightseeing trips. He treasures colored movies photographed about the country from his car window. His main hobby, however, is phonograph recording of casual conversations of his railroad men friends which demonstrate the difference in dialects to be found in the 48 states.

"Certainly," agreed Mr. Smith, "I can't say I've never had a chance to travel. Nor have I yet reached the stage where it doesn't provide a thrill."

Soprano Giving Concert.

Ilma Bayle Dunning, soprano, will present a concert at the Grand Avenue Congregational church, 1301 North Hamlin avenue, at 8:15 o'clock Friday evening for the benefit of Firman house, 1109 South Ashland boulevard. She will be assisted by Edda Mae Hildebrand, organist.

1,000 POLICEMEN WILL TAKE PART IN MASS OF ST. JUDE'S LEAGUE

More than 1,000 city policemen will receive communion at a mass to be celebrated next Sunday by Bishop Joseph M. Preciado of Panama, at Our Lady of Guadalupe church, 91st street and Brandon avenue. The occasion is the general communion of the police branch of St. Jude's league. Our Lady of Guadalupe church is the national shrine for the organization.

The ceremony will start with a procession of 40 seminarians of St. Jude's seminary, at Momence, from the rectory to the church, with members of Police post of the American Legion forming the color guard. This ceremony will also be a tribute to policemen now serving in the country's military forces.

Following the service, a breakfast will be held in the church auditorium. Among the speakers will be Father Tort, first spiritual director of the league, James J. Doody, Capt. Raymond Crane of the Woodlawn district, and Eddie Cavanaugh, W-G-N artist, who will be master of ceremonies. The Casino male chorus will sing.

Heading the committee in charge of the services and breakfast are Rev. Joseph M. Puigvi and James Doody, vice president of the league.

Betrothal Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Remi J. Gits, Riverside, announce the engagement of their daughter, Marie Virginia, to Harold Seeger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander L. Mitchell of Northwood, Ia. Mr. Seeger is a graduate of Grinnell college and has been with American Airlines in Columbus and Cincinnati. He is now stationed in Chicago with the military division. Miss Gits attended Marywood school in Evanston, the Art institute, and is a member of Alpha Chi Omega and Delta Phi Delta sororities at the University of Wisconsin. For the last year she has been in New York, Cincinnati, and Dayton with American Airlines.

WARNS AGAINST LETTING SCREENS OR GUTTERS RUST

Painting Now Prevents Winter Damage.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Of concern to home owners, now that October is nearly gone: House screens!

Screens and gutters are doubly precious now and no one can afford to let them rust away this coming winter.

If screens are well painted and in good shape, a thoro cleaning is all they need. The suction brush of a vacuum cleaner is convenient for this, or a whisk broom, vigorously applied on both sides of the screen will do the work.

A damp cloth and kitchen cleanser will remove any hardened dirt on a screen edging and benzine can be used to remove greasy deposits from kitchen screens. [Keep benzine away from fire and use only in well ventilated place.]

Identify Screens with Tags.

When screens are tagged with permanent identification of some sort, life will be easier in the spring. Where screening is broken at any point, patch the spot before storing.

In storing screens see that they do not come in contact with any basement floor dampness. It is always wise to lay them flat in a dry place and cover them with canvas or paper as protection against dust and dirt. If it is hard to store them flat because of screen hardware, lath strips can be slipped between the frames.

Black iron screening sometimes needs painting every year, depending on the climate, but painting of frames, hardware, and wire as protection against rust and rot is usually advised every other year.

Paint Is Easy to Obtain.

Your paint dealer or store where paints are sold carries the varnish or paint needed for this protection.

There are special screen enamels for galvanized iron screens, manufactured thin to keep the meshes from clogging. If you cannot get the color you wish, use an ordinary good grade of house paint, considerably thinned with turpentine.

Varnish Copper Screens.

Bronze and copper screening requires no painting but you can protect it against greenish oxidation [that can damage frames and walls below when it washes off] by application of a good spar varnish. For frames of screens a good grade house paint is recommended.

If you have galvanized iron gutters and leaders, see that these are kept painted—and that the paint is in good shape. Apply one coat of red lead paint and two coats of house paint after thoro cleaning and treatment of metal with copper sulphate solution.

If your gutters and leaders are of copper you can prevent any staining of house walls from oxidized coating by application of paint or varnish. If you wish to keep the metallic luster of gutters and leaders, use a clear spar varnish.

Three Coats Suggested.

If you wish to paint them, apply coat of red lead paint and two coats of house paint—after thoro cleaning and treatment of metal with copper sulphate solution.

As paint and varnish are preservatives of great value, so is wax. There is still a large supply of wax on hand and a shelf with paste and liquid waxes for woodwork and furniture, paraffin and turpentine for a host of little waterproofing jobs, self-polishing waxes for floors and even automobile wax for the exterior of a refrigerator mean longer life for your home possessions.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Oct. 26

Unless the ground is frozen making spading impracticable, spade up all areas that will be planted next spring. Do this now. The action of frost will kill insect pests, mellow the soil, and make it possible to get into garden work early next spring.

A number of annuals can be sown this fall, especially the hardy annuals that lie in the ground all winter and come up early in spring. One gains from one to three weeks in the blooming period. A little protection on the seed beds will serve to keep them thruout the winter.

Tuesday, Oct. 27

Plant the outdoor window boxes with small evergreens. If the soil is kept well watered the plants will keep in fine condition and can be planted in the garden in spring. Suitable varieties can be obtained from nurseries. Drain the sprinkling system before the pipes freeze and are damaged.

Remove all statues and garden furniture to the protection of a shed. Repair hotbed sash and frames; clean and oil all tools before placing them in storage for the winter. Burn all weeds that can be burned for the place will be neater and many seeds will be destroyed.

Wednesday, Oct. 28

It is time to rake up fallen leaves and it is wise to compost them with soil because they are a fine souce of humus. Keep the compost pile moist. Add peat moss or manure to increase the supply. It takes several months to decay. Turn it at intervals.

Chrysanthemums are in bloom, both indoors and outdoors, altho the latter may have frozen by this time. Buy only varieties that usually bloom before Oct. 12. Plant them in spring and not in fall unless the fall planted stock is protected either in a cold frame or by other means.

Thursday, Oct. 29

Take care of the lily-of-the-valley by giving it a light mulch with old manure, leaf mold, or peat. With good care the plants will grow vigorously and produce many more flowers and excellent foliage.

Try growing a collection of cacti in the widows this winter for they make fine indoor subjects. They last a long time when grown in novelty containers that have no drainage hole. Care during winter consists of watering at very infrequent intervals or just enough to keep the plants from shriveling. Large cacti of the barrel type and others need very little water if any.

Friday, Oct. 30

More people ask about growing the beautiful saintpaulia or African violet than any other. It is easily grown under suitable conditions. It may stand in the east window and should be watered by placing the base of the pot in a saucer of water and leaving it until the soil is moist, remove the pot and drain and place again in the window.

Saturday, Oct. 31

Be sure that the newly planted evergreens do not dry out or they may not survive the winter. Place the hose, with nozzle removed, near base of each plant and allow the water to soak in for half an hour. In addition, syringe the tops on warm days. If the weather is quite hot, syringing may be done late in the day.

Triple Flag Raising Planned Today at Lawler and Iowa

A triple flag raising ceremony will be held this afternoon at Lawler avenue and Iowa street. Bulletin boards at the southwest and northeast corners were designed by E. G. Dannhausen, Austin artist, while Edward Kleinfeld built and donated the board and honor roll on the southeast corner. Zone captain is Dan Lyons. Block captains are J. P. Kohl, J. J. Moriarty, and W. T. Keyworth.

CAB FIRMS GET 157 NEW TIRES ON WEST SIDE

Ration Boards Allot 489 Casings During Week.

New tires for taxicab companies accounted for nearly one-third of the total allotted to west side individuals and firms by ration boards during the week ending Oct. 14. The Checker Taxi company got 85 and the Yellow Cab company 72.

A total of 489 tires and 385 tubes were doled out. Fifty-four motorists obtained permission for 221 tires and 146 tubes for use on passenger vehicles, while 76 were granted 268 truck tires and 239 tubes.

FOWLER-CLIFTON CHURCH TO MARK 51ST ANNIVERSARY

The 51st anniversary homecoming celebration of Fowler-Clifton Methodist church, 23d street and Millard avenue, will be celebrated this afternoon and evening. Fowler-Clifton, a combination of five Methodist churches, was founded in 1891, and later joined with the Clifton Park church, a combination of Maxwell street and Robey street churches, and the Emmanuel church.

The afternoon homecoming service will be held at 3:30 o'clock. Dr. Joseph Haroutunian, associate professor of theology at Presbyterian Theological seminary, will be the speaker. Both the adult and junior choirs will sing under direction of Mrs. Wallace Kimmett.

There will be an informal reception at 5:30 o'clock in the church parlors, in charge of the Women's Society of Christian Service. An old-fashioned song service will be held at 7:30 o'clock, with Charles and Velma Edwards leading the music. Dr. John Schneider, district superintendent, will be the speaker. The Rev. William M. Shepard is pastor of Fowler-Clifton church.

Virginia Maurer Wed

Mrs. Lawrence Paul Jordan was Miss Virginia Rae Maurer, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Maurer, 319 South Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, before her recent marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jordan of Chicago. Both were graduated from the University of Illinois last June.

FIFTH OF COUNTY FARM MACHINE PLEAS REFUSED

Only '42 Needs Given Board Sanction.

An estimated 80 per cent of the requests for new farm machinery made to the Cook county farm machinery rationing board have been approved, Frank Powell said last week. The county rationing committee, whose headquarters are in the offices of the Cook county farm bureau at Arlington Heights and Blue Island, was set up about Oct. 1, following the nationwide WPB order limiting the sale of certain pieces of farm machinery.

Carl M. Bormet, Tinley Park, is chairman of the committee. He is also a member of the county AAA program. Serving with Bormet are four farmers, William Freize, Arlington Heights; Homer J. Long, Glenview; William Heatherwick, Orland Park, and Frank Diekman, South Holland.

Refuse 1943 Needs.

Only applications for farm machinery to be used in 1942 are accepted by the committee this month. After Nov. 1 applications for equipment intended for use in 1943 will be received. The committee meets twice weekly to consider the requests presented to it. Refusal occurred in about 20 per cent of the cases because machinery asked for was intended for next year's operation or the committee did not recognize need for the requested equipment this year.

All farm machinery dealers have applications for farmers to fill in. The completed form is sent to one of the two offices of the rationing committee.

The WPB has divided farm machinery into three groups. The larger pieces, which contain vital materials and in which the supply is limited, include beet lifters and loaders, combines, corn pickers, disc harrows, feed grinders, fertilizer spreaders, grain drills and elevators, pickup and hay balers, lime and manure spreaders, milk coolers, milking machines, potato diggers, shredders, and tractors.

Restriction Less Severe.

Committee approval is not necessary for items in group B, but an application form is left with the dealer. Included in this group are such pieces as planting, seeding, and fertilizing machinery, spraying outfits, poultry farm equipment, and weeders, among others. Group C can be purchased without application.

The farmer gives information as to whether his new machinery would replace similar worn out equipment, whether old equipment could be repaired, and if his need could be satisfied by renting equipment or by exchange arrangements. The board would like to know if the farmer would be willing to rent his new machinery to others or do custom or exchange work.

If the new machinery will replace hand labor the board asks why the farmer wishes to change and what efforts he has made to obtain laborers.

A fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than 10 years, or both, is the penalty for falsification of facts.

7 GIRLS, 158 BOYS PREPARE TO FLY AT PROVISO HIGH

Seven girls are among the 165 students who have enrolled in Proviso High school's pre-flight aeronautics classes. Proviso is one of 400 schools in the country that have adopted the special aeronautics course outlined by the government in order to cut down the training period of future army and navy airmen by eight weeks.

After the one year course, boys are eligible to take examinations given to army and navy recruits who have completed two months work on the elementary phases of aeronautical training.

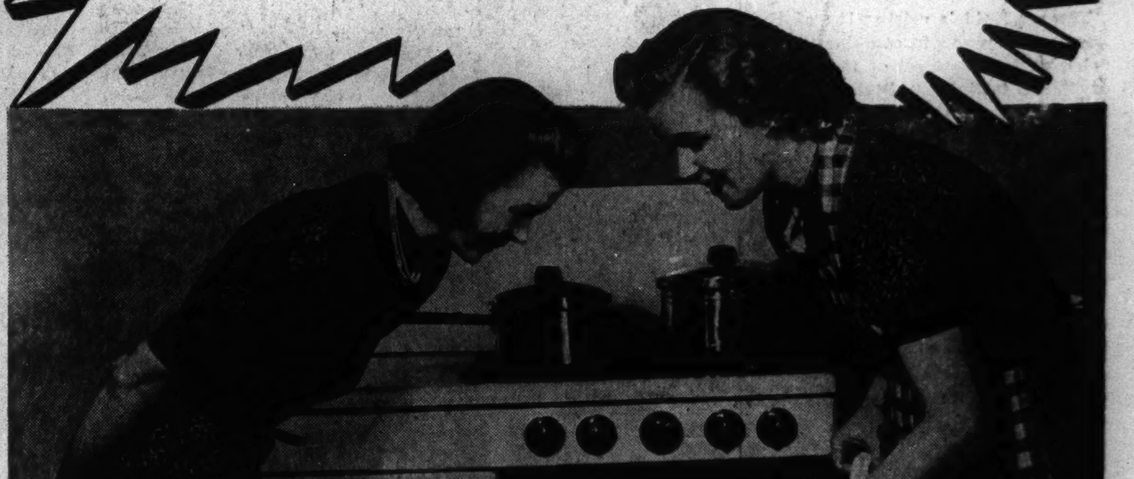
The aeronautics course at Proviso consists of 12 definite phases. Each student knows exactly what he will study and the approximate amount of time he will spend on each topic.

The history of aeronautics is first on the outline. Civil air regulations follow. Next are the studies of aerodynamics, aircraft structure, navigation, meteorology, power plants of aircraft, instruments, aircraft identification, radio code, parachutes, and aeronautics as a vocation. By the end of the year each student is required to make a model that will fly 100 feet. Each student must also keep a notebook of mimeographical material, vocabulary, class notes, and identification of aircraft.

So far, the classes have studied the history of aeronautics and civil air regulations, one of the absolute essentials of aviation knowledge, and they have been familiarizing themselves with aircraft terms.

IT'S FUN TO COOK NOW!

"This apartment has the best stove I've ever used."



What is your pet desire in an apartment? A good stove? Venetian blinds? Nearness to schools? Cross ventilation? Whatever it is, you can find the apartment you want much more easily by consulting the rental columns of the Tribune, which prints more apartments to rent want advertising than any two other Chicago newspapers combined.

For your convenience, the offers are arranged by locations in the city and suburbs and by numbers of rooms. Make a list of those which interest you before you start out to look. By doing so, you avoid useless stairclimbing to inspect apartments which do not appeal to you. Choose your next apartment from Chicago's most comprehensive apartment guide—the Tribune want ad section.

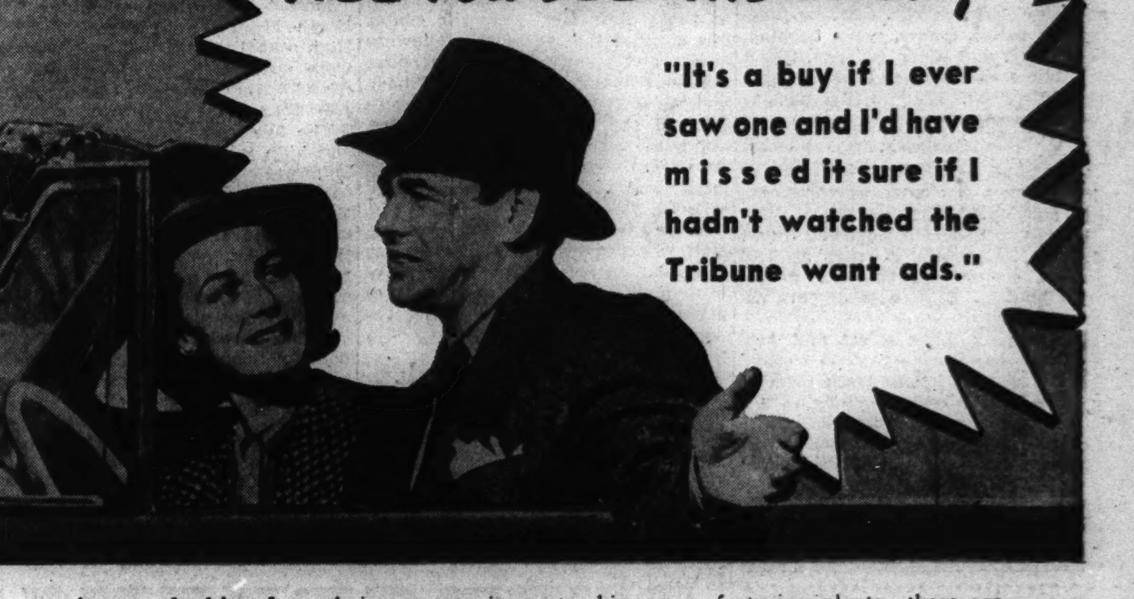
I GOT A JOB TODAY!

"I've been watching the Tribune Help Wanted ads."

Seldom, if ever, has there been such a demand for capable, willing workers in practically every line. You can help the war effort, directly or indirectly, by taking a job. Review today's employment columns in the Tribune want ad section. Employers and employment agencies place in the Tribune more than twice as much help wanted advertising as they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined. The great volume and variety of openings offered daily in these columns include opportunities you would be sorry to miss. Watch the employment columns in the Tribune to find the job you want.

JUST WAIT TILL YOU SEE THIS SHOP!

"It's a buy if I ever saw one and I'd have missed it sure if I hadn't watched the Tribune want ads."



Are you looking for a choice opportunity to get into some business of your own? Watch the Business Opportunities column in the Tribune want ad section. It is Chicago's most active marketplace for going enterprises. Partnerships, retail stores, hotels, distributorships, manufacturing plants—these are just a few of the types of businesses which are described and offered for your selection daily in this newsy, helpful column. Don't miss the chance you've been looking for by missing these offers. See today's Business Opportunities column in the Tribune want ad section now.

Because they get better results, want ad users place in the Tribune more total want advertising than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

Get what you want and save time, energy, and money with helpful Tribune want ads.

SPEECH SEEN PLOT TO SMEAR BUSBEY

'MYSTERY MAN' NEFF PILES UP JOBS FOR 1,325

Many Who Benefit Attend Rally.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

"Mystery Man" Hobart E. Neff studied the Tuesday night outpouring of enthusiasm at 2800 South Park way and said that Republican legislative candidates in the 1st district ought to get enough votes Nov. 3. Neff is G. O. P. nominee for state senator, and his running mates for the house are Rep. Ernest A. Greene and Edward A. Welters.

Evidently upset by the tactics Neff has used to put zip in the Republican party, the Democratic machine last week assailed him as "Mystery Man." The Neff followers gleefully adopted the name as one connoting the "miracles" he has been able to perform in getting jobs for Negro citizens.

There was a plentiful sprinkling of recipients at the meeting to bear witness. Neff said that 1,325 jobs in private industry have been obtained. This program was started in the primary campaign, which resulted in the defeat of Sen. Daniel A. Serritella, 1st ward committeeman.

100 Stand During Meetings.

Neff called four of the job holders up to the front of the hall in which 300 men, women, and children applauded the proceedings. About 100 stood patiently thruout the three hour meeting. A dozen children sat dozing on the floor, backs against the wall, as the hour neared 11 o'clock.

"To those Democrats and disgruntled Republicans who are going around saying there's nothing to it, here's the living truth," Neff said, asking each witness to testify.

They did, shyly. A middle-aged woman said her job was fine, better than the one Neff got her before. Two girls said they liked their new jobs in the Illinois Central yards, and the pay of 57 cents an hour. A husky man said his laundry job was good, and the pay 60 cents an hour.

"When I can call up employers and say 'This is Sen. Neff' instead of 'This is Candidate Neff,' I'll be able to do even more to help you," Neff said.

Turn Up Vote Frauds.

"And the Business Men's committee, with Bernard S. Black its 1st ward leader, is uprooting a lot of vote frauds. Remember this — the man who votes under another name, falsely registers, or 'floats' is the enemy of all of us. And Ed Kelly, who had a fine Sanitary district job in the last war and became a millionaire, is the master who sanctions vote frauds in Chicago.

"As to Lawrence Dowd, my Democratic opponent, he would represent the syndicate in Springfield just as he does in the South State street court where he stands for the bookies every day. My name is in the telephone book, but try to find Dowd's name in the book. And if his name isn't in the book before election, you know it won't be there afterward."

Larry Dowd is the defense attorney for handbook owners. He has represented thousands of them during the last decade, and this was the basis for Neff's charge. Since the army took over the Congress hotel Dowd has lived in the Blackstone hotel as has Ald. Michael [Hinky Dink] Kenna, aged 1st ward boss.

Organization Grows Fast.

Neff is a stocky blond securities salesman who played football when the University of Chicago had good teams. The Democratic organization dubbed him "Mystery Man" with the contention that his interest in living conditions in the 1st legislative district is political.

"We started off with a couple of people and now look around you," Mrs. Addie Payne, senatorial committee member, told the assemblage with a wave of her arm. "This is only a part of our organization—and there are 4,500 business men behind us.

"Let's stay with Mr. [Mystery Man] Neff. Let's travel with Gov. Green and the rest of the Republicans, because the Republican party is our salvation."

Lauds G. O. P. for Aid.

Mrs. Ashby Berriman made an impassioned speech.

"If any one within the sound of my voice is ungrateful for the Republican party, he is less than a man," she said. "It's the only organization that's done anything for my people. If you follow a Democrat to the polls or to the north pole he won't be able to look you in the eye, because he knows what he has done to my people!"

Dr. J. B. Martin, candidate for county commissioner, recalled the days when he was a Republican leader in Memphis, Tenn.

"The Crump machine closed our headquarters on Beale street, and ordered my hundred workers to go home," Dr. Martin said.

Roosevelt Not Running.

"But now even the Democratic precinct captains tell me that folks won't go along with them any longer. Don't let them fool you about supporting Roosevelt. Roosevelt is not running for anything now, and we'll take care of him in 1944—plenty!"

Bernard S. Black, 1st ward leader of the Business Men's committee which revitalized the ailing G. O. P., announced that Gov. Green is doing everything possible to help the campaign along.

Victory Commandos Helping Win War on Home Front

"Junior Commandos," made famous by Little Orphan Annie, popular Tribune comics strip character, have been brought into real life by a group of more than 30 youngsters in the neighborhood of 82d street and South Shore drive. Nancy Johnson, 3102 East 83d street, left, and Leonard Laczynski, patrol the sidewalk before a night war worker's home to insure him a quiet sleep. The children call themselves "Victory Commandos."

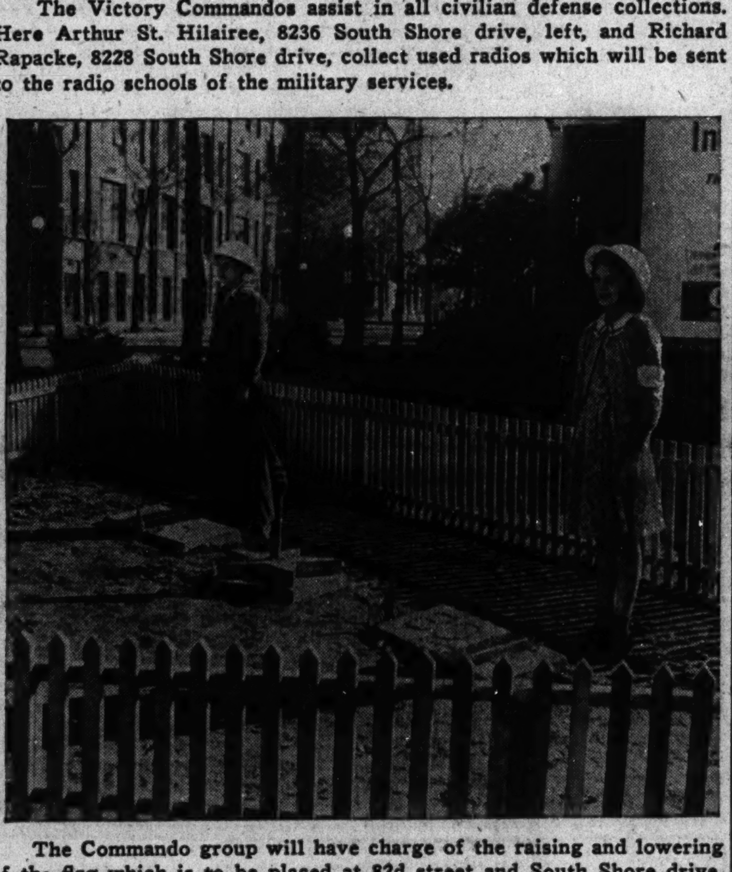
The Victory Commandos assist in all civilian defense collections. Here Arthur St. Hilairee, 8236 South Shore drive, left, and Richard Rapacke, 8228 South Shore drive, collect used radios which will be sent to the radio schools of the military services.

Theresa Siadak, 8209 Coles avenue, explains the principles of the organization to a group of younger Commandos of the neighborhood who have just joined up.



The Commando group will have charge of the raising and lowering of the flag which is to be placed at 82d street and South Shore drive. Standing at attention in the lot which has been prepared for the flagpole are Stanley Lacey, 8213 Coles avenue, and Dorothy Fatczak, 8215 Coles avenue.

Goats Eat Tin? Silly! But OCD Still Suspects

Goats don't eat tin anymore than stenographers can be said to eat gum. Nervous creatures, and not having much to do except be goats, they merely chew on the tin. Actually they are extremely finicky about what they swallow—refusing an apple if somebody else has already taken a bite of it.

This was the consensus of the assistant state veterinarian, the head of the Lincoln park zoo, an officer of the Anti-Cruelty to Animals' socity, a capriculturist [goat raiser], and the director of the state scrap metal salvage campaign.

The issue arose when it was discovered a few days ago that the Mount Greenview grade school's scrap pile was dwindling. An accusing finger was pointed at "Mr. Smith," a pet goat of 14 year old Dolores Vowadnik, a student at Mount Greenview.

Might Cause Ulcers!

Allegedly, "Mr. Smith" was seen wit ha choice piece of scrap iron in his mouth—and he was munching on it. "Mr. Smith," unjustly it now appears, was then banished from the school yard for the duration.

"Goats don't eat tin," Dr. B. C. Hunt, assistant state veterinarian, stated conclusively. "They will chew on tin, but they don't swallow it. They can't digest metal, and besides it would probably lead to ulcers."

He was supported in these views by C. M. Weeks, a Glen Ellyn goat raiser. Mr. Weeks was even more indignant about this ancient slur on the goat family—which it seems is aristocratic and discriminatory to a high degree.

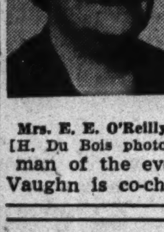
Just Curious, That's All.

"If their hay falls on the floor when I'm feeding them," Weeks said with fervor, "they won't touch it. They don't want anything off of the floor.

"This old wives' tale about eating tin cans arose from a commendable characteristic of the goats. They are very curious. Very often I find mine have pulled some newspapers off a table. They just want to look at them—and maybe chew them a little. They won't eat them."

Nathaniel Leverone, state director of scrap metal salvage, closed the case by issuing a directive, "Until further notice, all scrap wardens should regard goats with suspicion —and that's no kidding."

HOSPITAL TO BENEFIT FROM CATHOLIC CLUB CARD PARTY THURSDAY



Mrs. E. E. O'Reilly.

Members of the South Side Catholic Woman's club, under the leadership of Mrs. Edward E. O'Reilly, president, will hold their annual charity card party for Misericordia hospital at 1:30 o'clock Thursday at St. Sabina's community center, 78th street and Racine avenue. Mrs. William J. Delehanty is general chairman of the event and Mrs. Arkell Vaughn is co-chairman.

Few Bad Boys in Chinatown—Credit Family

At least one Chicago community has little need for an agency to reduce juvenile delinquency. It's Chinatown, centered at Cermak road and Wentworth avenue.

The juvenile delinquency rate of this community is so low that officials at the Juvenile Detention home said there was no separate report for the Chinese, altho other national groups were listed. Workers who have been at the home many years reported they could not remember a Chinese child brought in for wrongdoing. And Chinatown is a community of more than 2,000 persons, one-fourth of whom are less than 21 years old.

Capt. Edward Kelly of the 3d police district, in which Chinatown is located, termed the community "the quietest place in my district." He said he had almost no trouble from Chinese children. In fact, he added, there was little difficulty to be had in the community, either from children or adults. Teachers at Haines elementery school, which serve the district, reported there was almost no truancy among the Chinese children.

Ideal Family Life.

The reason for this almost ideal state? According to the Rev. John Mao, pastor of St. Therese church, the only Chinese Catholic church in the middle west, it is derived from the family life of the Chinese.

"The reason there is little crime and delinquency," he said, "is that in China the family name is so highly respected that every member of the family feels the dishonor of any individual's wrong doing." There are only 100 families in all the millions of Chinese.

The family name, being highly respected, is given first, not last, as is the case with other nationalities. If an individual demonstrates he has lost ability to uphold the family name, it is taken away from him. He is almost the same as a man without a country in China. Father Mao cited the axample of Wang Chiu-Wei, who

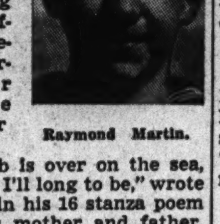
BAPTISM OF WAR FIRE BRINGS OUT THE POET IN SOUTH SIDE SAILOR



Raymond Martin.

A south side young man, who has been under fire five times since he joined the navy a year ago, sent home last week a poem he had written for his mother while he was in the hospital recuperating from burns suffered while defending the aircraft carrier Yorktown. The carrier later sank.

"When my job is over on the sea, back to my folks I'll long to be," wrote Seaman Martin in his 16 stanza poem dedicated to his mother and father. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Leo Martin, 8033 Marquette avenue.

Young Martin, a graduate of Bowen High school, has further distinguished himself by sending home funds to buy a $50 war bond each month. His brother, Elmer, is also in the navy serving as a hospital apprentice.

17TH WARD G. O. P. ROUND TABLE TO HEAR LEGISLATOR

Mrs. Bernice T. Vander Vries, member of the state house of representatives from the 7th senatorial district, will speak at the meeting of the 17th ward Republican round table at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Rowantrees hotel, Normal boulevard and Englewood avenue. Mrs. Vander Vries has been in the house of representatives since 1934. She now is chairman of the women's division of the Cook County Central Republican committee. Other speakers will include Mrs. Bertha Baur, national Republican committeewoman from Illinois and Rep. Stephen A. Day, Party for Sailors.

South Bryn Mawr juniors will entertain a group of service men from the naval training station at the University of Chicago with a Halloween party at 8 o'clock Saturday at the home of Miss Juanita Coombes, 7948 Euclid avenue.

Your Congressman

An Editorial

The Republican leadership of Illinois has already made a fitting reply to the disreputable Democratic device of screaming "Nazi" at every opponent, and the voters can be trusted to make the same reply on Nov. 3.

The voters know that the election of Republican congressmen is their protection against a developing New Deal tyranny. They know that when the little dictators of the Kelly-Nash machine say that the election of Republicans would cause "rejoicing in Berlin and Tokio," what they are really asking is a Hitler one party election. They know that no machine choice is ever a free choice and no representative government is ever representative when the party in power attempts to stamp out all opposition on the grounds that to oppose its policies is to be "unpatriotic."

The salvation of the people is still in their own hands. They must send to congress Republicans who know that the American heritage will be lost if the methods of Hitler can be successfully used to silence the people.

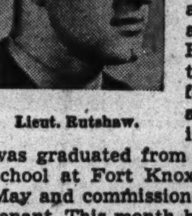
In the 1st congsessional district, the representative of the party that commands you to obey the New Deal "or else" is William L. Dawson. He is worthy of inspection. As recently as 1938 Mr. Dawson didn't admit that he belonged to Boss Kelly and Boss Nash. That arrangement may have existed, but Mr. Dawson called himself a Republican. Perhaps he was a Republican, but Mr. Dawson had yet to discover publicly that to get his share, he had to be a Democrat. There is a considerable body of evidence, however, that he had made the discovery privately. His campaign for congress that year against Arthur W. Mitchell, nominally the only Democrat in the race, looks from this distance a little like a dry dive.

Secret bipartisan arrangements of this sort which betray the voter by depriving him of any real choice of candidates are by no means confined to Mr. Dawson. Voters who look in the list of Democratic candidates for Municipal court judge will find another renegade in the person of Wendell E. Green. Green was appointed to the Chicago civil service commission as a Republican. His notorious conduct in the trial of some corrupt policemen disclosed his allegiance to the Kelly-Nash crowd, and now he is frankly a machine candidate for the bench.

Fortunately, it is within the power of the people of the 1st district to obtain honest representation, now that the frauds of the past are known to them. Their choice for congress will unquestionably be William E. King, state industrial commissioner. Nobody has ever had to wonder where Mr. King stood. He is a lifelong Republican, and for 12 years, as state representative and state senator, he served honorably, articulately, and with distinction in Springfield. As congressman, he will ably represent the 1st district. As a Negro he will speak for all of the 13 million Negroes in the nation and his usefulness will not be hampered by commitments to the Democratic party that fights poll taxes and anti-lynching legislation. He will be free to fight beside Sen. Brooks, who has valiantly championed the colored citizen's constitutional rights.

The cure for turncoats is men who fight in their shirtsleeves. The antidote for a Dawson is a Sen. King. The indicated action will not only put able and honorable men into position of trust in public life, but will bypass the trail down which Boss Kelly and Boss Nash would lead the people to one party government.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS



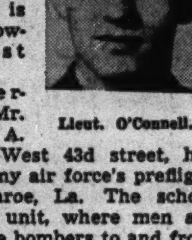
Lieut. Rutshaw.

The son of a World War I. veteran, Arthur J. Rutshaw Jr., 4440 Emerald avenue, is now a first lieutenant in the army's armored division at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia. Lieut. Rutshaw went into the army as a private in April, 1941. He was promoted to a corporal the following June and to sergeant in October. He was graduated from officer candidate school at Fort Knox, Kentucky, last May and commissioned a second lieutenant. This month he was graduated from the provost marshal general school, and made a first lieutenant.

His father is Arthur J. Rutshaw, 852 West 50th place, Republican candidate for 4th district congressman.

Corp. William C. Bauske, son of Mrs. Emma Bauske, 8607 South Paulina street, has been promoted to a sergeancy at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. The base is a field artillery replacement center.

Two southwest side soldiers at a the army air force's replacement training center at Atlantic City, N. J., were given promotions recently. Edward J. Marron, son of Peter Marron, 1542 West 64th street, was advanced from private first class to corporal. Sergt. William J. Morrow, husband of Mrs. Helen Morrow, 6026 South Bishop street, was raised to staff sergeant.



Lieut. O'Connell.

Phillip B. O'Connell, an alumnus of Mount Carmel High school, is now an aviator in combat service in China. He received his wings and commission as lieutenant at Kelly field, Texas, in March, 1941. His mother is Mrs. A. T. Powers, 2018 West 101st place.

Emanuel Sherbin, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Sherbin, 3051 West 43d street, has entered the army air force's preflight school at Monroe, La. The school is a navigator unit, where men are trained to guide bombers to and from their destination. Aviation Cadet Sherbin attended Northwestern university. Before joining the armed forces he was associated with his father in the Brighton Park News agency, distributors of THE TRIBUNE.

In the same class with Sherbin is Aviation Cadet Fred G. Grovic, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Grovic, 5935 Justine street. He attended Lindblom High school and Woodrow Wilson Junior college. Until his induction he was employed at the Crane company.

The commission of second lieutenant was awarded recently to Florian J. Sergey, son of Mrs. Mary S. Larcher, 2422 West 47th place, at Mather field, Sacramento, Cal. He was graduated from the army air force's advanced flying school.

Promotions have been coming thick and fast for Robert E. Frome, 11125 Michigan avenue. Two days after he was promoted from staff sergeant to technical sergeant, Frome was made a first sergeant at Camp Crowder, Missouri. Before he entered the army in March, 1941, he was a tractor driver for a Galva, Ill., firm.

HYDE PARK ROTC PLATOON HELPS AT FLAG RAISINGS

A picked platoon of 60 uniformed cadets of the Reserve Officers Training corps at Hyde Park High school is all out this fall for community defense flag raising or other ceremonies. The boys will drill at one flag raising today and two next Sunday.

Today's program is scheduled for 3 o'clock at East 67th street and Dorchester avenue, in connection with a defense block flag raising. Next Sunday the boys, will take part in similar programs at 47th street and Drexel avenue and at 62d street and Harper avenue. On Nov. 15, they will give an exhibition for an OCD program in a drill hall, details to be announced. Last Sunday, the boys led a parade for block 3, at East 68th street and Harper avenue.

First Lieut. Morton Levine commands the platoon.

PLAN ANTI-LYNCH RALLY TODAY AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Walter White, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, will speak at the men's day program of the Greater Bethesda Baptist church, 53d street and Michigan avenue, at 3 o'clock today. William H. Coleman, general chairman of the meeting, termed it "a call to arms to help eradicate the widespread lawlessness evidenced by the three lynchings in Mississippi." Mr. White has long been active in behalf of anti-poll tax and anti-lynching legislation.

KELLY PREPARES A LAST MINUTE MACHINE TRICK

Nominee Is Known for Americanism.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

An 11th hour effort to smear Fred E. Busbey, Republican nominee for representative from the 3d congressional district, was foreshadowed last week by a speech inserted in the congressional record by his Democratic opponent, Congressman Edward A. Kelly.

The speech, obviously addressed to the voters of the 3d district, appeared in the appendix of the Oct. 14 record of congressional proceedings as an extension of remarks made by Kelly from the floor of the house.

Members of congress frequently use this device to have their campaign utterances printed by the government printing office [at the congressmen's expense] so the pamphlets can later be mailed out to their constituents under the representatives' franking privilege. Not uncommonly these franked speeches reach the voters a few hours before the polls open, which gives the individuals attacked in them no time to make adequate reply.

Speech Perverts Fact.

Kelly's speech drew attention to a fact that Busbey has repeatedly revealed himself—that he once enrolled in a Communist school to gather ammunition for his fight, which he has carried on for 21 years under American Legion auspices against un-Americanism.

By inference, the fact was perverted to convey the impression that Busbey had belonged to the Communist organization, which the G. O. P. nominee contemptuously has denied.

The speech also construed Busbey's appearance before a federal grand jury investigating sedition charges against Robert A. Chino, a half Japanese United States citizen who refused to carry his draft card, as evidence that Busbey, too, was under investigation. THE TRIBUNE learned that Busbey was called before the grand jury as a government witness, to help clarify a situation that had a bearing on the government's case.

"Must Explain" to Voters.

Kelly's speech opened with a criticism of those who opposed the administration after the President made his "quarantine the aggressors" speech in Chicago.

"These obstructionists have plenty to answer for," the speech continued. "So has Mr. Busbey, when he has spoken repeatedly to organization after organization of paid propagandists whose only hope is that Hitler will win this war. . . . My opponent must explain to the good American people in the district he aspires to represent why his Americanism was questioned."

The congressman then read into the record a story from a Chicago afternoon newspaper about the Chino case which mentioned that Mr. Busbey was one of the witnesses called.

"Prostitution of Office."

"Furthermore," the speech went on, "Mr. Busbey should explain to the people why he enrolled in one of the early Communist workers' schools in Chicago and attended their classes regularly. . . . I never had to join any subversive organizations in America to know what their principles are, and I call upon the good people in my district to be cautious and to be forewarned as to the quality and the type of man aspiring to hold the high office of representative in the halls of congress, that their reputation be sound."

Busbey, when apprised of the Kelly speech, termed it "a prostitution of the office of congressman."

He declared his record is the only reply necessary to the charges and innuendoes contained in the speech. He cited the fact that for the last 21 years he has devoted much time to exposing activities of un-American organizations.

Learned What He Fought.

In 1927 and 1928 he was Americanism officer for the Illinois department of the American Legion, and he led the fight against the effort to abolish the reserve officers training course from public high schools and the University of Chicago.

"Any one who knows me well knows I attended a Communist school here when I was gathering material to fight subversive influences," Busbey said. "My friends also know that I was appearing on lecture platforms, exposing such subversive elements, while I was attending the school. Any one with ordinary intelligence should know that because I attended the school I learned at first hand exactly what I was fighting and would continue to fight."

Busbey was a member of Battery B of the 124th field artillery regiment in the 33d division in the last war. He participated in the Saint Mihiel, Argonne, and Meuse-Argonne offensives.

For a Rationed Winter

Clothes to keep you warm and well dressed this winter are shown and described in detail

The Today's COLOR PICTURE SECTION

WARNS AGAINST LETTING SCREENS OR GUTTERS RUST

Coat of Paint Prevents Damage During Winter.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Of concern to home owners, now that October is nearly gone: House screens!

Screens and gutters are doubly precious now and no one can afford to let them rust away this coming winter.

If screens are well painted and in good shape, a thoro cleaning is all they need. The suction brush of a vacuum cleaner is convenient for this, or a whisk broom, vigorously applied on both sides of the screen will do the work.

A damp cloth and kitchen cleanser will remove any hardened dirt on a screen edging and benzine can be used to remove greasy deposits from kitchen screens. [Keep benzine away from fire and use only in well ventilated place.]

Identify Screens with Tags.

When screens are tagged with permanent identification of some sort, life will be easier in the spring. Where screening is broken at any point, patch the spot before storing.

In storing screens see that they do not come in contact with any basement floor dampness. It is always wise to lay them flat in a dry place and cover them with canvas or paper as protection against dust and dirt. If it is hard to store them flat because of screen hardware, lath strips can be slipped between the frames.

Black iron screening sometimes needs painting every year, depending on the climate, but painting of frames, hardware, and wire as protection against rust and rot is usually advised every other year.

Paint Is Easy to Obtain.

Your paint dealer or store where paints are sold carries the varnish or paint needed for this protection.

There are special screen enamels for galvanized iron screens, manufactured thin to keep the meshes from clogging. If you cannot get the color you wish, use an ordinary good grade of house paint, considerably thinned with turpentine.

As further insurance against clogging, use one of the new screen painting brushes which are nothing more than a piece of carpet attached to a metal base. Or make your own brush by tacking a piece of carpet, nap outward, to a wood block.

Varnish Copper Screens.

Bronze and copper screening requires no painting but you can protect it against greenish oxidation [that can damage frames and walls below when it washes off] by application of a good spar varnish. For frames of screens a good grade house paint is recommended.

If you have galvanized iron gutters and leaders, see that these are kept painted—and that the paint is in good shape. Apply one coat of red lead paint and two coats of house paint after thoro cleaning and treatment of metal with copper sulphate solution.

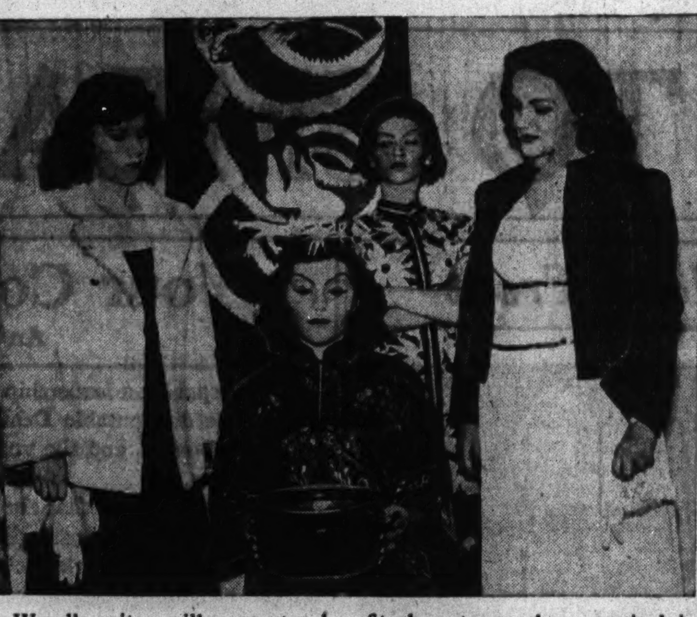
If your gutters and leaders are of copper you can prevent any staining of house walls from oxidized coating by application of paint or varnish. If you wish to keep the metallic luster of gutters and leaders, use a clear spar varnish.

Three Coats Suggested.

If you wish to paint them, apply coat of red lead paint and two coats of house paint—after thoro cleaning and treatment of metal with copper sulphate solution.

As paint and varnish are preservatives of great value, so is wax. There is still a large supply of wax on hand and a shelf with paste and liquid waxes for woodwork and furniture, paraffin and turpentine for a host of little waterproofing jobs, self-polishing waxes for floors and even automobile wax for the exterior of a refrigerator mean longer life for your home possessions.

In Benefit Show for USO



Woodlawnites will present a benefit show to purchase musical instruments for the Midway USO at 8:15 o'clock next Saturday and Sunday in the recital hall of the Wilson School of Music, 6255 Kimbark avenue. Participants in "The Toy Heart," part of the entertainment, include, from left to right, standing, Barbara Gleich, 6426 Ellis avenue; Ann Knoll, 6142 Kimbark avenue; Regina Wehling, 1426 East 63d place, and Lois Shamberg, 6820 Cornell avenue, kneeling.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 26

Unless the ground is frozen making spading impracticable, spade up all areas that will be planted next spring. Do this now. The action of frost will kill insect pests, mellow the soil, and make it possible to get into garden work early next spring.

A number of annuals can be sown this fall, especially the hardy annuals that lie in the ground all winter and come up early in spring. One gains from one to three weeks in the blooming period. A little protection on the seed beds will serve to keep them thruout the winter.

Peonies may be planted now, altho they should have been in the ground before this. Plant tulips and cover after the ground freezes. Prices are comparatively high but the group offers such a fine show in spring that it is almost priceless. One should plant all he can afford for best results.

Pot a number of bulbs of all kinds for indoor use. Most bulbs should be placed in a cool, dark place until rooted or before bringing to the window, otherwise the foliage will grow rapidly with a very short flower stalk.

Tuesday, Oct. 27

Plant the outdoor window boxes with small evergreens. If the soil is kept well watered the plants will keep in fine condition and can be planted in the garden in spring. Suitable varieties can be obtained from nurseries. Drain the sprinkling system before the pipes freeze and are damaged.

Remove all statues and garden furniture to the protection of a shed. Repair hotbed sash and frames; clean and oil all tools before placing them in storage for the winter. Burn all weeds that can be burned for the place will be neater and many seeds will be destroyed.

Be sure to collect all withered vegetation for it may contain disease and insects. The spores of fungi may live over winter on old plants and every care should be taken to destroy it.

Wednesday, Oct. 28

It is time to rake up fallen leaves and it is wise to compost them with soil because they are a fine souce of humus. Keep the compost pile moist. Add peat moss or manure to increase the supply. It takes several months to decay. Turn it at intervals.

Chrysanthemums are in bloom, both indoors and outdoors, altho the latter may have frozen by this time. Buy only varieties that usually bloom before Oct. 12. Plant them in spring and not in fall unless the fall planted stock is protected either in a cold frame or by other means.

Thursday, Oct. 29

Take care of the lily-of-the-valley by giving it a light mulch with old manure, leaf mold, or peat. With good care the plants will grow vigorously and produce many more flowers and excellent foliage.

Try growing a collection of cacti in the widows this winter for they make fine indoor subjects. They last a long time when grown in novelty containers that have no drainage hole.

Friday, Oct. 30

More people ask about growing the beautiful saintpaulia or African violet than any other. It is easily grown under suitable conditions. It may stand in the east window and should be watered by placing the base of the pot in a saucer of water and leaving it until the soil is moist, remove the pot and drain and place again in the window.

Like all plants, it has a short period of rest when it does not flower and during this period water may be withheld, but the soil must not dry out.

Saturday, Oct. 31

Be sure that the newly planted evergreens do not dry out or they may not survive the winter. Place the hose, with nozzle removed, near base of each plant and allow the water to soak in for half an hour. In addition, syringe the tops on warm days. If the weather is quite hot, syringing may be done late in the day.

Clear off vacant lots in your vicinity for self-defense or there may be an influx of insects next season. Cleared land has an air of cleanliness while weeds are an eyesore.

Womens Medical Auxiliary Giving Tea to Aid Sailors

The South Chicago branch of the Woman's auxiliary of the Chicago Medical society will have a business meeting at the home of Mrs. Warren W. SHOW PROCEEDS TO HELP MIDWAY USO BANDSMEN

Woodlawn Youths Giving Two Performances.

Youths of the Woodlawn community will give a benefit entertainment to raise funds for band instruments for the Midway USO at 8:15 o'clock next Saturday and Sunday evenings at the recital hall of the Wilson school of music, 6255 Kimbark avenue. The USO center is organizing a band for the navy men on the south side, most of whom are stationed at the University of Chicago.

The entertainment is backed by the Woodlawn Business Men's association. The show also will be given Nov. 9 at St. Paul's Episcopal church, 50th street and Dorchester avenue.

Songs and Dances.

The program will open with the pledging of allegiance to the flag, led by Nat Lovell. There will be song solos by Mary Lou Burton, Lois Shamberg, Joy Schaumacher, Marion Cuicci, and Regina Wehling.

Peggy Burnett and Barbara Gleich will dance and Jackie Fox and Richard Michaelson will play a trumpet duet. Other features include vocal numbers by Lorraine Lynn; a piano solo by Wilbert Kopriva; vocal numbers by Miss Burnett; a reading by Nancy Smoot and Nat Lovell; a saxophone solo by Bob Fritz; and a vocal number by John Zultner. Part two of the entertainment will be a Chinese play entitled "The Toy Heart." Players are: Ann Knoll, Lois Shamberg, Barbara Gleich, and Regina Wehling. The entire performance is under the direction of Alma Wilson McMahill.

List Instruments Needed.

The drive to obtain band instruments for the USO center is headed by a committee composed of Mrs. Ida M. Headley, chairmon; Mrs. Nelle Wall and Mrs. Ora Bogen. They are asking residents of the community to donate instruments which they no longer need. Instruments which are needed include a flute in C, seven Bb clarinets, two Eb saxophones, four baritone saxophones, two Bb cornets, a bass drum, three snare drums, a pair of cymbals, music lyres for six trumpets, six trombones, three mellophones, two French horns, and 10 clarinets.

Woodlawn Auxiliary.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Woodlawn hospital will meet at 2 o'clock Wednesday at the Plaisance hotel, 60th street and Stony Island avenue.

U. OF C. OFFERS NEW COURSES TO POSTGRADUATES

2 Studies for Alumni Open Tuesday.

Alumni of the University of Chicago came back to college in such numbers last year when two special survey courses were arranged for them that opportunities for their postgraduate education will be continued this year. Courses in the social sciences and the humanities will open Tuesday.

Last year 430 alumni registered for 23 weeks courses in the social sciences and biological sciences, which were adaptations of general courses given undergraduates on the Midway. The oldest student was from the class of 1899.

"Really Go to School."

Eight university faculty members are in charge of this year's two courses, which will be held on alternate Tuesdays thru the fall and winter quarters.

"These courses mean," Paul V. Harper, university trustee and chairman of the alumni education committee, explained, "that the university has thrown open its activities to the entire later lives of its graduates. Former students may come back—not just to see the campus, not just to see a few old friends for the moment, not just to talk to an old time teacher—but really to go to school again; to brush up on their former studies; to be schooled in fields they missed while in college; to give their thinking and understanding of the times more clarity and depth."

Lecture Subject Matter.

The course in social sciences, in which Maynard C. Krueger, assistant professor of economics, and Joseph D. Lohman, instructor in sociology, will be regular lecturers, will be offered every other Tuesday to April 13. The courses in the humanities will be on alternate Tuesdays, beginning Nov. 3. Lecturers will be Napier Wilt, Walter Blair, David Daiches, and Louis Landa of the English department, and David Grene and Benedict Einarson of the department of Greek.

Subject matter to be covered in the course in the humanities includes the work of historians, playwrights, and novelists of the western world. Early lecture subjects in the social sciences division include: "Democracy and Dictatorship," Tuesday; "Race and Culture," Nov. 10, and "The American Standard of Living," Nov. 24.

Anti-Lynch Legislation to Be Meeting Subject

Antilynching legislation will be the topic of discussion at a meeting sponsored by the Commonwealth Independent Political league at 5438 State street at 8 o'clock Thursday evening. Claudius A. Reid, president of the league, will serve as chairman of the meeting.

Mt. Carmel Alumni Mothers Giving Card Party Friday

Alumni Mothers of Mount Carmel High school will hold a card party in the school gymnasium, 6410 Dante avenue, at 2 o'clock Friday. Mrs. Joseph Latham, 8108 Jeffery avenue, is chairman. Mrs. J. H. McLaughlin, 6841 Paxton avenue, is alumni vice president.

FESTIVE GHOSTS TO REVEL SANS PARTY BONFIRES

Park District Ban Cites Fire, Black-Out Hazard.

Celebrational bonfires at south side park Halloween festivities have been added to the war's casualty list. They will be omitted this year at the request of Robert J. Dunham, president of the park district.

Mr. Dunham gave three reasons for abandoning this phase of the usual program: they use too much wood; bonfires constitute a fire hazard; and they take too long to extinguish in the event of an air raid or trial black-out. Nearly 150,000 boys and girls thruout the city are expected to take part in ghostly festivities this week-end as guests of the park district. It is expected the usual witches and goblin masks will be replaced with lifelike costumes of Hitler, Mussolini, Tojo, and Hirohito, to add a contemporary note.

Parade in South Chicago.

According to George T. Donoghue, park district general superintendent, the emphasis on conservation and "this year's civilian defense spirit in the parks' neighborhood celebrations will greatly reduce vandalism."

One of the most elaborate of the gala fêtes will be that at Bessemer park, 89th street and South Chicago avenue, which will begin at 7 o'clock Saturday. There will be a parade thru the South Chicago business district and prizes will be awarded for the best costumes. The event is sponsored by the South Chicago Chamber of Commerce.

There will be a series of Halloween parties at Jackson park, 56th and 57th streets and Lake Michigan. Daily parties for group classes are scheduled Wednesday thru Saturday. Parties for children six years old and younger will be held at 2 o'clock Thursday and Saturday. The Jackson Park Archery club will have a specialty shoot at 7:30 o'clock Friday on the indoor range. This will include such novelty events as pinning tails on black cats and hitting pumpkin jack-o-lanterns in the eyes.

Expect 800 at Calumet Park.

Most of the celebrations will be held Friday evening. An annual Halloween dance will be held at 7:45 o'clock at Avalon park, 83d street and Dorchester avenue. It is expected that 550 persons will attend the dance which is sponsored by the community.

A party at Calumet park, 103d street and Lake Michigan, will begin at 7:30 o'clock. The entertainment will include games, novelty stunts, and costume judging for prizes. Approximately 800 children are expected. The event is sponsored by the East Side Chamber of Commerce and the Illiana post, No. 220, American Legion. Gustave Uddman is in charge of arrangements with C. P. Mustard, park supervisor.

The Madden park celebration, beginning at 8 o'clock, will include a parade, stunts, apple bobbing; costume judging for prizes; and the Phillips high school pep meeting for the Du Sable high school football game. It is sponsored by the Madden Park Boy Scout troop and the community civilian defense organization. Approximately 500 children are expected.

WOODLAWN BUSINESS WOMEN URGE 9 P. M. CURFEW FOR YOUTHS

Women members of the Woodlawn Business Men's association will outline a program to correct undesirable social conditions in the community brought about by the war at a luncheon meeting Tuesday at the Hayes hotel, 64th street and University avenue, it was announced by Mrs. Howard L. Ray, chairman of the committee on arrangements.

The program will urge stricter supervision of taverns with the objective of excluding minors; the establishment of a 9 o'clock curfew for all children under 16, and the immediate organization of a day nursery.

Miss Jessie Binford, executive director of the Juvenile Protection association, will discuss the causes of undesirable social conditions and corrective measures which should be adopted.

POLICE STATION PARTY

Members of the Woodlawn branch of the Chicago Boys club will take a recess from their fall war program Friday evening for a Halloween party to celebrate the fourth anniversary of the graup.

Police should have little trouble from Halloween pranks of the guests at this party. It will be held in the organization's headquarters on the second floor of the Woodlawn police station. The club is designed to give a recreational program to boys of the Woodlawn community. It is organized on the basis of several clubs in the one organization.

Stress Military Preparation.

Members of the club recently opened their fall activities program, which stresses preparation for war service. One of the groups is working on the fundamentals of radio short wave and codes. Charles Eserhut, 14, of 6226 Harper avenue, who, club officials believe, is the youngest radio "ham" in the nation holding a license, instructs the group. He is assisted by three advanced pupils, Ramsey Pridgen, 1568 East 62d street; Clarence Hallberg, 6421 Harper avenue, and Joe Mall, 1532 East 65th street.

Another activity which may lead several of the members to more efficient war service is the kite and model airplane group. The boys have devised ways of attaching cameras to kites and powered model planes to take pictures from the air. They have taken pictures over Jackson park with their apparatus. They hope to build a radio controled plane which will takeoff, make the pictures, and return to the operator.

Leaders in this activity are Eugene Martini, 6150 Dorchester avenue; Tom Gallagher, 6351 Blackstone avenue, and Alfred Knorr, 6355 Blackstone avenue.

Many Already in War.

Many former club members have already joined one of the military services and are scattered to such far away places as Alaska, Africa, and the south Pacific. Two groups of about 15 each, according to Arthur L. Griswold, club manager, have joined as a body. The "Eagles," he said, joined the coast guard and are now all on the same boat which is patroling the Atlantic for submarines. The "Senators," he added, volunteered as a body, and now are fortunate enough to be in the same naval unit.

The club has assisted the community in gathering all kinds of salvage for the civilian defense organization. The sports program of the group stresses exercise which will prepare the older boys for military service.

HYDE PARK ART CENTER BEGINS 1942-'43 SEASON

The Hyde Park art center opened its new season with a meeting recently at which plans were make for its child and adult classes and for lectures and exhibits thruout the winter. The free art classes, principal activity at the center's studio in Cable court, off Harper avenue, between 56th and 57th streets, will be held for adults on Monday and Wednesday evenings.

RADIO EYES FOR ALL PROMISED AT END OF WAR

Television's Bright Future Told by Dunlap.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Just as ships at sea took on radio voices linking them to land after the first World war, so trans-Atlantic planes will see by means of television after this war. That is the picture envisioned by Orrin Dunlap in his new book "The Future of Television," just published.

Television is being greatly advanced by wartime research and engineering in radio and electron optics, Dunlap reports. After this war sightseeing by radio will become a national pastime, according to Dunlap. Homes everywhere will have all-seeing eyes, because the science of electronics will put television sets within the price range of the masses, just as it has radio sets, says Dunlap. Radio, which made a whispering gallery of the heavens, is described as preparing to turn the whole world into a hall of mirrors, thru television.

Sees New Art Forms.

Reconversion of radio manufacturing plants to postwar production of civilian receiving sets will mark the opening date of the new television era, he forecasts. [But it must be remembered that experts have been asserting that television is just around the corner for the last 15 years.]

Dunlap says there is no danger that sound broadcasting, as we know it, will "dry up" overnight. But he predicts that television will make tremendous strides forward introducing new art forms in much the same fashion as the screen developed Mickey Mouse and radio its Amos 'n' Andy.

"Radio characters who have lived in the world of imagination and illusion will come out of hiding," says Dunlap, "as television adds sight to sound to make radio drama more real than ever before."

A National Sports Arena.

Television will no more kill the theater than did radio, he asserts. "To the actor and vaudevillian, whether tap dancer, juggler, acrobat, or magician, television offers the dawn of a new day," he states. Television also will turn the nation into a coast to coast sports arena, making fights, baseball, football, and other sports events visible to everybody.

Television is full of promise in the realm of education, too. While some problems remain to be solved, Dunlap says that color television with images of 18 by 24 inches is in the offing for homes.

The images will be so accurate, says Dunlap, that televiewers of the future will fill albums with snapshots of pictures they make of television views flashing to their homes.

GLIMPSES BEHIND JAPAN, OBJECT OF REVIEW STAND

The Northwestern University Reviewing Stand will discuss "Behind the Face of Japan" on W-G-N and the Mutual network from 10 to 10:30 a. m. today.

Guests for the program will be Upton Close, authority on Far Eastern affairs; Prof. Franklin D. Scott, and Frederic S. Marquardt, foreign correspondent.

Among the points to be discussed will be the philosophy of the Japanese, their economic status, their religious and political habits, and their attitude toward America. James H. McBurney will be moderator.

Helen Jepson Guest on Kostelanetz-Spalding Show

Helen Jepson, Metropolitan opera soprano, and Bob Hannon, tenor, will be guests of Andre Kostelanetz and Albert Spalding on their program at 3:30 p. m. today over WBBM-CBS. Miss Jepson will sing "Serenade" by Toselli, and Mr. Hannon will sing the "Valse Huguette" from Friml's "The Vagabond King."

N. Y. Philharmonic Plays Schubert, Mahler Works

The New York Philharmonic symphony orchestra returns to the air today at 2 p. m. on WBBM-CBS. The orchestra under the direction of Bruno Walter will present Schubert's Eighth Symphony [Unfinished] and Mahler's First Symphony in D major. Deems Taylor will be the intermission commentator.

Six Amateurs on W-G-N.

Six talented amateurs will participate in the "Stars of Tomorrow" hour on W-G-N from 8 to 8:30 tonight. The three amateurs voted best by mail ballot will receive wrist watches. All the amateurs will receive war stamp awards.

Claude Rains on Radio's Reader's Digest Tonight

Radio's Reader's Digest will have Claude Rains, stage and screen actor, as guest at 8 tonight over WBBM-CBS. Mr. Rains will reënact the story, "The Missionary and the Gangster." Another guest will be Kay Thompson.

MIKE TRENT

You remember Mike Trent, of course—master magician and suave sleuth who ripped the lid completely off confidence games and gambling rackets in last season's "Easy Money" programs. Mike has got a bigger job now—using his prowess in prestidigitation to run down saboteurs. Employing his lore of legerdemain to ensnare a band of tire thieves, Trent turns one of the neatest tricks of his career in this week's "Easy Money" thriller. Hear the whole story tonight at 6:30 on W-G-N.

30 YOUNGSTERS TAKE TIP FROM 'ORPHAN ANNIE'

Form 'Victory Commando' Army for War Effort.

Following in the footsteps of Little Orphan Annie, Tribune comic character, and her pals, a group of more than 30 youngsters from one south side block have organized themselves as Commandos to contribute to the war effort on the home front.

The boys and girls live in the block bounded by 82d and 83d streets, South Shore drive and Coles avenue. The organization was supervised by Mrs. Veronica Siadak, 8209 Coles avenue, who said she got the idea for the group, who call themselves Victory Commandos, from The Tribune comic strip.

Gather Salvage, Radios.

Like Orphan Annie's Junior Commandos, the south side group is vitally interested in keeping the streets about war workers' homes free from unnecessary noise when they are sleeping. Most of the men in the neighborhood work in the steel mills. Those on the 11 to 7 o'clock in the morning shift sleep days. The Commandos have obtained the coöperation of peddlers and tradesmen to reduce noise.

They are affiliated with the civilian defense organization of the Russell square community and have participated in the various scrap and salvage campaigns. The community OCD last week sent more than 40 radios to the service radio schools to be used in instruction. The Commandos collected most of them and brought them to OCD headquarters. They also are getting instruction in first aid.

List First Recruits.

The group is organized along military lines. Frank Kruszynski is captain. He is assisted by Richard Ostrowski and Anthony Pelewski, lieutenants. There are four sergeants: Robert Mikolajczyk, Bernadene Ogrodowicz, Dorothy Jatczak, and Leneard Furmankewicz.

The staff is completed by Bernadene Fliszak, secretary, and Theresa Siadak and Jackie Billeck, corporals. Among the first to join the Commandos were Jackie Jatczak, Albina Laczynska, Gerald Siadak, Leneard Laczynski, Paul Fliszak, Conrad Siadak, Teddy Boguslawski, Buddy Billeck, John Cybulski, Stanley Laczynski, and Bobby Lewandowski, Gina Jedraszkiewicz, Leo Jedraszkiewicz, Rose Mary Graczyk, and Donald Zakrzewski.

ANNUAL PARLEY OF HOUSEWIVES TO OPEN TODAY

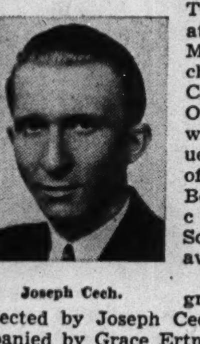
"Housewives, be prepared for vital war service," has been selected as the theme of the fall conference of the Original Illinois Housewives association to be held at Poro college, 4415 South Park way today, tomorrow, and Tuesday. Mrs. Grace Stevens, president of the Woodlawn unit, is chairman.

The program will begin at 3:30 o'clock today. The business meeting will be held at 1 o'clock tomorrow with Mrs. Lillian Le Vine presiding. Speakers from the OPA and the consumer information service are to explain food control regulations, price control, and priority distribution.

The conference will close with a banquet honoring the past presidents. Mrs. Lelia Taylor, second vice president, is dinner chairman.

LINNEA AID SOCIETY TO GIVE CONCERT AT ENGLEWOOD CHURCH

The Linnea Aid society will present its annual fall concert at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Englewood Mission Covenant church, 59th and Carpenter streets. On the program will be the Emanuel Choral society of the Emanuel Bohemian Baptist church, 2520 South Lawndale avenue.



Joseph Cech.

The 55 voice group will be directed by Joseph Cech and accompanied by Grace Ertner and Mildred Oul. Jarmila Boubelik, Charles Tucek, Paul Schmidt and Evelyn Wettersten will give vocal and instrumental solos. Several selections will be read by Minnie Moreland Dow.

The Linnea Aid society has been engaged in charitable work in Chicago for the last 36 years. More than 1,000 women in 21 churches from McKinley park to south shore, comprise the society's membership.

PANAMA BISHOP TO SAY MASS FOR ST. JUDE'S LEAGUE

1,000 Policemen Will Take Part in Rites.

More than 1,000 city policemen will receive communion at a mass to be celebrated next Sunday by Bishop Joseph M. Preciado of Panama, at Our Lady of Guadalupe church, 91st street and Brandon avenue. The occasion is the general communion of the police branch of St. Jude's league. Our Lady of Guadalupe church is the national shrine for the organization.

The ceremony will start with a procession of 40 seminarians of St. Jude's seminary, at Momence, from the rectory to the church, with members of Police post of the American Legion forming the color guard. This ceremony will also be a tribute to policemen now serving in the country's military forces.

Following the service, a breakfast will be held in the church auditorium. Among the speakers will be Father Tort, first spiritual director of the league, James J. Doody, Capt. Raymond Crane of the Woodlawn district, and Eddie Cavanaugh, W-G-N artist, who will be master of ceremonies.

Heading the committee in charge of the services and breakfast are Rev. Joseph M. Puigvi and James Doody, vice president of the league.

On Reception Committee.

Included in the reception committee to greet Bishop Preciado will be the following police officers and men: Capt. Richard Gill, Capt. James B. Conlisk, Capt. Patrick Bonner, Capt. Raymond Crane, Capt. David Flynn, Capt. Patrick Collins, Capt. Walter Healy, Capt. John Scott, Capt. John Egan, Capt. Frank Demski, Capt. Thomas Connally, Joseph Regan, Lieut. W. A. Balswick, Lieut. Michael Spatz, Lieut. William Smith, Sergt. Ray Kenny, Sergt. John Flaherty, Sergt. Walter O'Neill, Sergt. Thomas Lee, Joseph J. Carmody, John L. O'Malley, John McCann, Edmond Swain, Charles Morris, Ray Forest, and Thomas McInerney.

U. OF C. TEACHERS GIVING LECTURES AT ART INSTITUTE

Topics ranging from the philosophy of Thomas Jefferson to Latin American relations will be discussed in four public lectures at the Art institute this week by University of Chicago faculty members. T. V. Smith, professor of philosophy, will speak on "Thomas Jefferson and the Ideal of Privacy" at 6:45 o'clock Tuesday. Two of the lectures are scheduled for Wednesday. Davis Edwards of the department of speech will give a lecture reading of "Life with Father," by Clarence Day, at 6:45 o'clock, and J. Fred Rippy will speak on "Tapping Forest Products by Jungle Railroad" at 8 o'clock. Sunder Joshi, lecturer in comparative religion, will discuss "President Manuel Quezon" at 6:45 o'clock Friday.

Pastor to Dedicate Flag Today at 77th, Ridgeland

A flag will be dedicated at 5 o'clock today at 77th street and Ridgeland avenue for block 4 of zone 28 of the South Shore community. The Rev. Wilbur M. Childress of the Southfield Methodist church, 1750 East 78th street, will speak and will be assisted in raising the flag by the Boy and Girl scout troops of his church.

South Side Bride

Miss Evelyn Marie Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Anderson, 7011 Dante avenue, became the bride of Jack Aldridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren C. Aldridge, 6809 Dorchester avenue, in a recent ceremony in Hilton chapel of the Chicago Theological seminary. Mr. Aldridge attended Northwestern university and his bride attended the University of Illinois.

ETTA MOTEN HAS LEADING ROLE IN 'PORGY AND BESS'

Miss Etta Moten.
[Bloom Photo.]

The feminine title rôle in "Porgy and Bess," folk opera by George Gershwin, which opens at the Studebaker theater the night of Nov. 2, will be played by a south side resident, Miss Etta Moten of 3548 Vernon avenue, a contralto. Miss Moten played the part of Bess while the show was in New York and later on a tour. She has appeared on the stage and has given many radio performances. In private life Miss Moten is the wife of Claude A. Barnett, director of a Negro press association.

SALUTE BLOOM TOWNSHIP HIGH ON W-G-N HOUR

Bloom Township High school of Chicago Heights will be saluted on the "Citizens of Tomorrow" program on W-G-N from 1 to 1:30 p. m. today. For the first time in the series, which now numbers 70 broadcasts, the program will originate and be recorded at the school itself.

This procedure has become necessary because of transportation problems. Whenever it is necessary in the future, programs will originate in schools that are far distant from the studio.

Raymond D. Meade, principal at Bloom, will speak on the program. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies.

The Bloom choir of 19 boys and 41 girls, under the direction of Don VandenBerg, will sing "Dark Water" by James, and "Today There Is Ringing" by Christiansen. Harold Turner, W-G-N staff pianist, will provide the accompaniment.

Two more senior high scool students will be added to the program's honor roll. They are Thomas Ryan, 16, president of the senior class at Dubuque, Ia., High school, and Judith Tornow, also 16, a senior at Bloom.

'ROBIN HOOD' IS NEXT OPERETTA IN W-G-N SERIES

Miss Claire, Felix Knight to Sing Leads.

The romantic story of Robin Hood, as portrayed in song and drama by Reginald De Koven in his operetta by that name, will be unfolded on the Chicago Theater of the Air next Saturday evening. The operetta will be broadcast from 8 to 9 o'clock over W-G-N and the Mutual system.

Felix Knight will sing the title rôle; Marion Claire will take the part of Lady Marian.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Others in the singing cast will be Arwin Schweig, bass, who will be making his network radio debut, as Will Scarlett; Bruce Foote, baritone, as Little John, and John McDonald, bass, as the sheriff of Nottingham.

A cast of distinguished Chicago actors will take the dramatic rôles in the presentation.

The musical background will be provided by the W-G-N symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and the chorus, led by Robert Trendler. Kenneth MacGregor will be the producer.

All of the familiar music will be presented, including the perennial favorite, "O, Promise Me."

KNOX AND KING ON MUTUAL NAVY DAY BROADCAST

Secretary of the Navy Knox and Adm. Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet, will be presented on W-G-N and the Mutual network in a special Navy day broadcast from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Tuesday. Secretary Knox will speak at the Navy day dinner at the Waldorf Astoria hotel in New York from 8:30 to 8:45 p. m. At the end of his talk, the program will switch to Adm. King, who will speak from the Navy day banquet at the La Salle hotel from 8:45 to 9 p. m.

QUIET OF SOCIAL SECURITY PALLS; TAKES WAR JOB

English Veteran of '17 Is Aiding Adopted Nation.

A short time ago George A. Maquay, 7439 Ellis avenue, took a look around, saw the biggest war in history in session and decided it was no time for a veteran of the last conflict to be sitting around watching things.

Today, two years after he retired at 65 to reap the benefits of social security, Maquay is back at work. He's an inspector of powder and explosives at the Kankakee ordnance works. He helps make sure the nation's fighters get the right quality of ammunition.

Taking Chemistry Course.

Maquay is back at school, too. When he's not receiving practical training and experience at the ordnance works, he's attending the Joliet Township High school where he's brushing up on his chemistry. He had studied its previously at the Central Technical college, London, from which he graduated in 1896.

He worked, after graduation, as an electrical engineer in English, Welsh, Spanish and West African power houses. He came to the United States in 1909 and took charge oi the generators and other electrical equipment at South works, Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation in South Chicago.

Served in Dunkirk in '17.

He left here in 1917 in answer to England's appeal for soldiers. He expected to be sent to the front but the British Royal Engineers needed electrical experts and they assigned him to the port of Dunkirk, France. Here he directed the erection and maintenance of electric cranes. He recalls that there was no battle of Dunkirk in the last war, just frequent bombings.

Maquay was born in Ireland, but spent his youth and manhood in London. It was there that he attended primary and secondary schools.

YOUNG WOMEN PLAN DEDICATION OF SERVICE FLAG

Residents of the 38th precinct of the 10th ward will dedicate a service flag for the 23 men from that section in service at 4 o'clock today at 107th street and Avenue F. The dedication was arranged by the following young women: Elaine Engstrom, Jeanette Pearson, Lois Engstrom, Doris Engstrom, Marie Klemm, Jean Aronson, Ruth Klemm, Laverne Calaboum, and Eloyse Anderson.

The program was arranged under supervision of Mrs. William J. Rosenbach. Henry Smith, president of the East Side Chamber of Commerce will be master of ceremonies. Speakers will include the Rev. John Filben of Annunciato church, the Rev. William Fisher of St. Francis De Sales church, the Rev. Hans Jacoby of St. Petri's Evangelical church, the Rev. Lawrence W. Stauss of Trinity Evangelical church, and the Rev. William Mattson of Bethesda Lutheran church.

Following the dedication there will be a mardi gras and street dance at the site of the ceremony. Miss Eloyse Anderson will be crowned queen of the mardi gras.

INSTALL DOUBLE SIGNS AT GRAND TRUNK CROSSING

Double warning signs have been installed at the Grand Trunk railroad crossing at Kennedy avenue, near Highland, according to the Lake county area council of the Chicago Motor club, which had recommended that improvements be made at the crossing.

At a recent meeting the council suggested that gates would eliminate the dangers of the crossing. However, lack of materials made it impossible to install the gates at this time.

Installation of traffic signals at the intersection of 150th street and Calumet avenue, Hammond, as recommended by the council, has been authorized by the state highway commission, but the contract for the work has not yet been awarded.

The council's recommended improvements at the Nickel Plate railroad crossing at Ridge and Grant streets in Gary are now in the hands of the railroad. The state already has agreed to the installation of the signals suggested by the council.

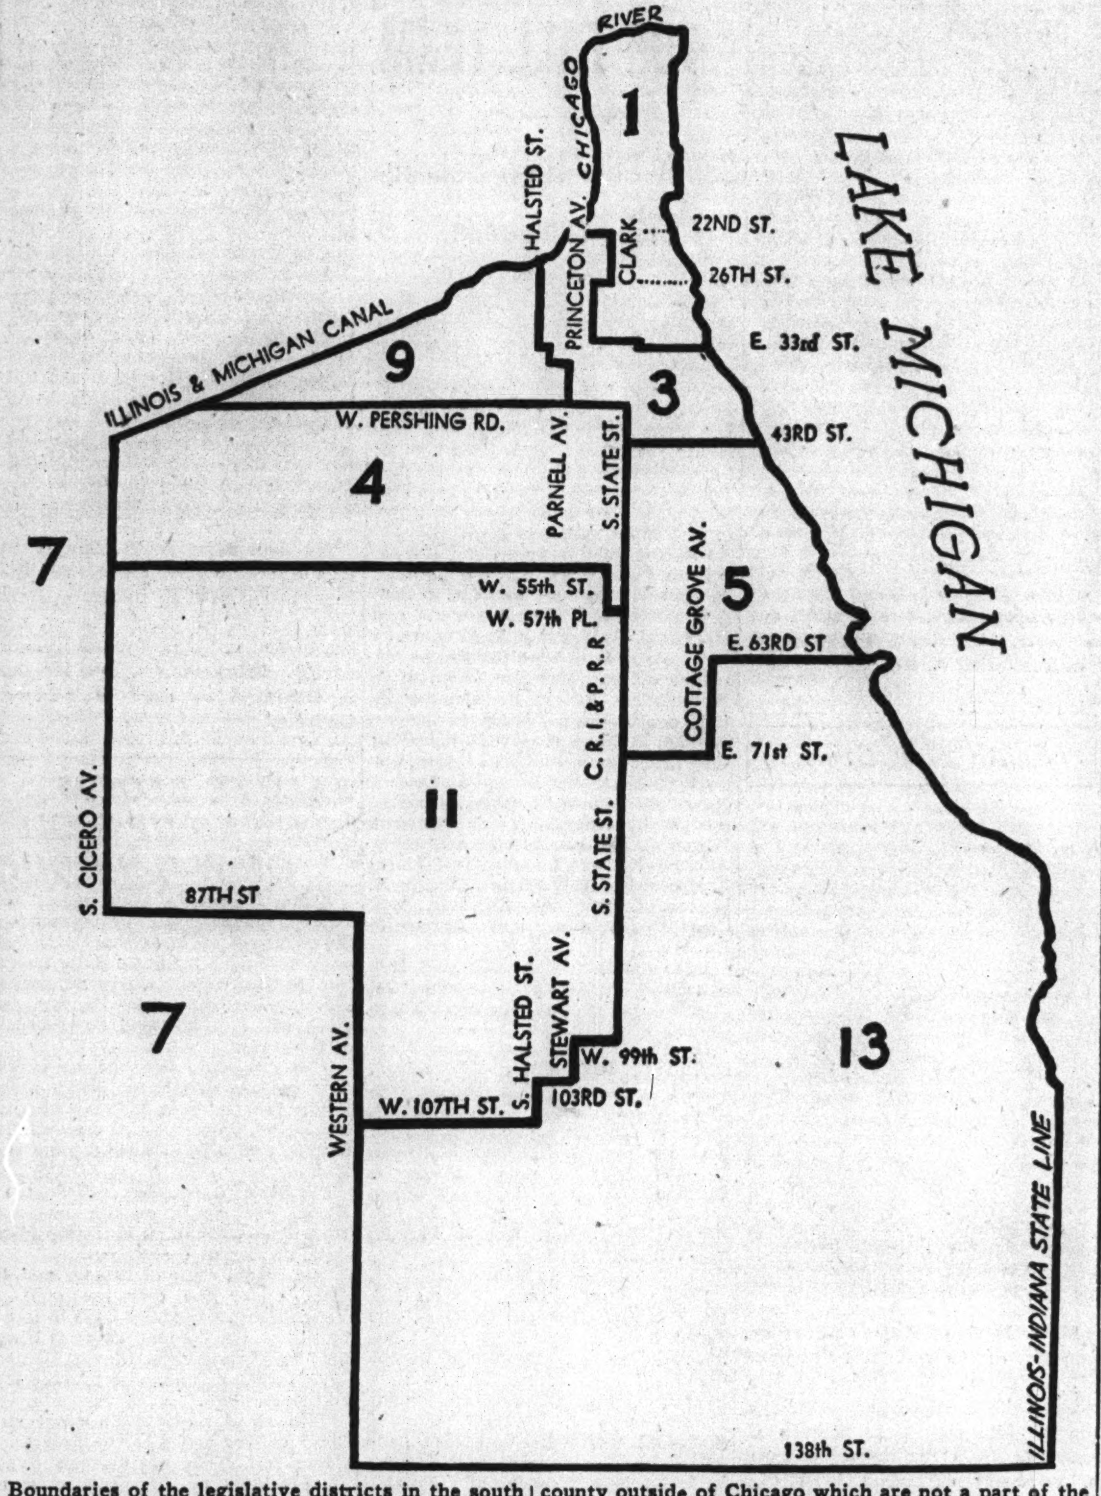
Legislative Districts of the South Area

(Story on page 1.)



Boundaries of the legislative districts in the south area of Cook county are defined in this map. The 7th district also includes all townships in Cook county outside of Chicago which are not a part of the 6th, 19th or 23d districts. The 41st district is made up of Will and Du Page counties.

325 Tires Go to South Siders in Week; Yellow Cab Gets 76

Ninety-two south siders were included among Chicagoans granted permits to buy new tires and tubes during the week ending Oct. 14. Ration boards permitted the purchase of 325 new tires and 179 tubes.

Largest single allotment—76 passenger car tires—went to the Yellow Cab company. Fifty-eight motorists received permits for 185 passenger tires and 117 tubes, while 34 individuals and firms were granted permission to buy 140 truck tires and 62 tubes.

SALE OF LIQUOR AT STAKE NOV. 3 IN EIGHT AREAS

Seven Elections Slated on South Side.

Seven of eight Chicago local liquor option elections in connection with general elections of Nov. 3 are to be held in south side areas, where nearly half of the city's dry precincts are located.

In the 6th ward, with 21 dry precincts, second largest number in the city, four elections will be held. If all the elections should favor stopping liquor sales, this ward would go ahead of No. 19, in the far southwest section of the city, where 23 of 58 precincts are dry now.

122 Already Dry.

In all, the city now has 122 dry precincts out of a total of 3,029. Forty are on the south side, in the 3d, 5th, and 6th wards.

In the 5th ward of 88 precincts, 12 are dry now and another precinct election is scheduled this fall. In the 3d, with seven dry precincts already, another is to vote this fall. There are no dry precincts in the 4th ward, where part of the 59th is to vote.

Precincts to vote this fall are in scattered locations except in the case of Nos. 1, 2, and 3 in the 6th ward, where the three form an elbow shaped continuous territory. These three also are the only ones in which voters will ballot according to present precinct boundaries.

This is because their boundaries have not changed since Nov. 8, 1932, when national prohibition was repealed. A state statute governing local option elections requires that such votes shall be conducted within precincts as they existed at the time of the repeal.

Boundaries Explained.

Votes will be held in precincts as they existed in 1932 as follows:

Third ward, precinct 54—Eligible to vote, all of precinct lying north of 54th street. This cuts off about half a square block of the present precinct. Boundaries of the liquor vote area are 53d and 54th streets, and Indiana and Prairie avenues.

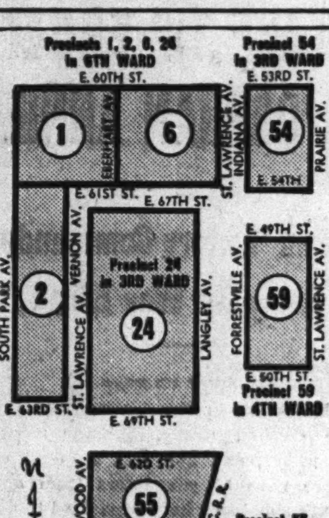
Fourth ward, precinct 59—Eligible to vote, all north of East 50th street, cutting off about half a block lying between Forrestville and St. Lawrence avenues.

Old 55th Precinct.

Fifth ward, old 55th precinct, now all of 105 and part of 49. This cuts off a section of the present 49 between 61st and 62d streets. Boundaries of the vote area are 62d and 63d streets, Kenwood avenue, and the Illinois Central railroad.

Sixth ward, precinct 1—Boundaries of vote area, 60th and 61st streets, South Park avenue and Eberhart avenue. Precinct 2—Boundaries, 61st and 63d streets, South Park and Vernon avenues. Precinct 6—Boundaries, 60th and 61st streets, St. Lawrence and Eberhart avenues. Old precinct 24—Parts of present precincts 19 and 24. Boundaries, 67th and 69th streets, St. Lawrence and Langley avenues.

Dry Vote Areas



These maps show boundary lines of seven south side precincts as they existed in 1932, in which areas local option votes on the liquor question will be held Nov. 3.

became the Japanese puppet governor in Nanking.

When this treachery was committed against China the Wang family took away his name. An individual who has suffered this fate can be taken back into the family if he demonstrates he has repented and will no longer do wrong. Fther Mao indicated that Chiu-Wei will have a difficult time getting himself reinstated.

The Chinese family is organized with the mother at the head of the family so far as affairs inside the home are concerned. The father is leader of outside affairs. When a son marries he brings his bride to the home of his father, which keeps the family unit together.

Where there are several members of a family in one place they establish a family headquarters, the center of family affairs in that area. There are seven family headquarters in Chicago, altho there are more than that number reperesnted. The Moys and Lees are the largest family groups in Chicago, as well as being among the largest in China.

Respect toward parents, age, scholarship, and dignity, are taught Chinese children from their earliest years. He is obedient because he knows that by being bad he will dishonor all members of his family.

During the depression there were few Chinese on relief. The family system kept them from taking the dole. If a member came upon hard times, he was lent money and food by the family until he got on his feet again.

100 MEN, WOMEN STUDY TYPING TO MAKE COMEBACK

Civil service examiners will move into the classrooms of Washburne Trade school, Division and Sedgwick streets, the first week in November to test the competency of the new graduates of the school's experimental course, designed to train junior clerks and junior typists for the government in six weeks' time.

Under the direction of Miss Astrid Paulson, head of the commercial department, more than 100 men and women have undergone the intensive training in touch typing and filing. Some, who returned to the school to brush up on the knowledge they had gained years ago, may be eligible for higher positions in the government service, Miss Paulson states.

The need for trained workers to fill the offices of the alphabetical agencies and provide civilian help for the army and navy in Chicago is acute, according to Mrs. Kathryn Stedham, local civil service recruiter. "While graduates cannot be guaranteed jobs after passing our examinations, chances are that all will be placed almost immediately by our appointing officers working directly with the agencies."

SPEECH SEEN PLOT TO SMEAR BUSBEY

KELLY PREPARES A LAST MINUTE MACHINE TRICK

Nominee Is Known for Americanism.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

An 11th hour effort to smear Fred E. Busbey, Republican nominee for representative from the 3d congressional district, was foreshadowed last week by a speech inserted in the congressional record by his Democratic opponent, Congressman Edward A. Kelly.

The speech, obviously addressed to the voters of the 3d district, appeared in the appendix of the Oct. 14 record of congressional proceedings as an extension of remarks made by Kelly from the floor of the house.

Members of congress frequently use this device to have their campaign utterances printed by the government printing office [at the congressmen's expense] so the pamphlets can later be mailed out to their constituents under the representatives' franking privilege. Not uncommonly these franked speeches reach the voters a few hours before the polls open, which gives the individuals attacked in them no time to make adequate reply.

Speech Perverts Fact.

Kelly's speech drew attention to a fact that Busbey has repeatedly revealed himself—that he once enrolled in a Communist school to gather ammunition for his fight, which he has carried on for 21 years under American Legion auspices against un-Americanism.

By inference, the fact was perverted to convey the impression that Busbey had belonged to the Communist organization, which the G. O. P. nominee contemptuously has denied.

The speech also construed Busbey's appearance before a federal grand jury investigating sedition charges against Robert A. Chino, a half Japanese United States citizen who refused to carry his draft card, as evidence that Busbey, too, was under investigation. THE TRIBUNE learned that Busbey was called before the grand jury as a government witness, to help clarify a situation that had a bearing on the government's case.

"Must Explain" to Voters.

Kelly's speech opened with a criticism of those who opposed the administration after the President made his "quarantine the aggressors" speech in Chicago.

"These obstructionists have plenty to answer for," the speech continued. "So has Mr. Busbey, when he has spoken repeatedly to organization after organization of paid propagandists whose only hope is that Hitler will win this war. . . . My opponent must explain to the good American people in the district he aspires to represent why his Americanism was questioned."

The congressman then read into the record a story from a Chicago afternoon newspaper about the Chino case which mentioned that Mr. Busbey was one of the witnesses called.

"Prostitution of Office."

"Furthermore," the speech went on, "Mr. Busbey should explain to the people why he enrolled in one of the early Communist workers' schools in Chicago and attended their classes regularly. . . . I never had to join any subversive organizations in America to know what their principles are, and I call upon the good people in my district to be cautious and to be forewarned as to the quality and the type of man aspiring to hold the high office of representative in the halls of congress, that their reputation be sound."

Busbey, when apprised of the Kelly speech, termed it "a prostitution of the office of congressman."

He declared his record is the only reply necessary to the charges and innuendoes contained in the speech. He cited the fact that for the last 21 years he has devoted much time to exposing activities of un-American organizations.

Learned What He Fought.

In 1927 and 1928 he was Americanism officer for the Illinois department of the American Legion, and he led the fight against the effort to abolish the reserve officers training course from public high schools and the University of Chicago.

"Any one who knows me well knows I attended a Communist school here when I was gathering material to fight subversive influences," Busbey said. "My friends also know that I was appearing on lecture platforms, exposing such subversive elements, while I was attending the school. Any one with ordinary intelligence should know that because I attended the school I learned at first hand exactly what I was fighting and would continue to fight."

Busbey was a member of Battery B of the 124th field artillery regiment in the 33d division in the last war. He participated in the Saint Mihiel, Argonne, and Meuse-Argonne offensives.

Your Congressman

An Editorial

The Republican leadership of Illinois has already made a fitting reply to the disreputable Democratic device of screaming "Nazi" at every opponent, and the voters can be trusted to make the same reply on Nov. 3.

The voters know that the election of Republican congressmen is their protection against a developing New Deal tyranny. They know that when the little dictators of the Kelly-Nash machine say that the election of Republicans would cause "rejoicing in Berlin and Tokio," what they are really asking is a Hitler one party election. They know that no machine choice is ever a free choice and no representative government is ever representative when the party in power attempts to stamp out all opposition on the grounds that to oppose its policies is to be "unpatriotic."

The salvation of the people is still in their own hands. They must send to congress Republicans who know that the American heritage will be lost if the methods of Hitler can be successfully used to silence the people.

In the 3d congressional district the undistinguished New Deal rubber stamp, Edward A. Kelly, has adopted the customary smear procedure, with elaborations. While the downtown bosses cry "Nazi," Mr. Kelly seeks to convey the palpably absurd implication that his Republican opponent, Fred A. Busbey, is also a Communist. On Oct. 12 he abused his congressional prerogatives by reading into the Congressional Record at the taxpayers' expense a roorback that is not unlikely to be sent under congressional frank to the voters between now and election.

Mr. Busbey, as state Americanism director of the American Legion, attended sessions of a Communist workers' school some years ago to obtain ammunition against Mr. Kelly's present bedfellows of the New Deal. He also was consulted by a federal grand jury which sought to avail itself of his expert knowledge of pacifistic influences in the schools. Mr. Kelly sought to distort these facts to make political capital, altho Mr. Busbey's constant appearances as a platform lecturer exposing communism constitute a complete refutation of the charge.

The voters of the 3d district are constrained to compare the kind of campaign with which Mr. Kelly insults their intelligence with the dignified appeal of Mr. Busbey, who has been conducting a campaign directed to the business man and home owner on the sound theory that if campaigns were fought out on valid issues more business men could be induced to seek public office, with a consequent increase in governmental responsibility.

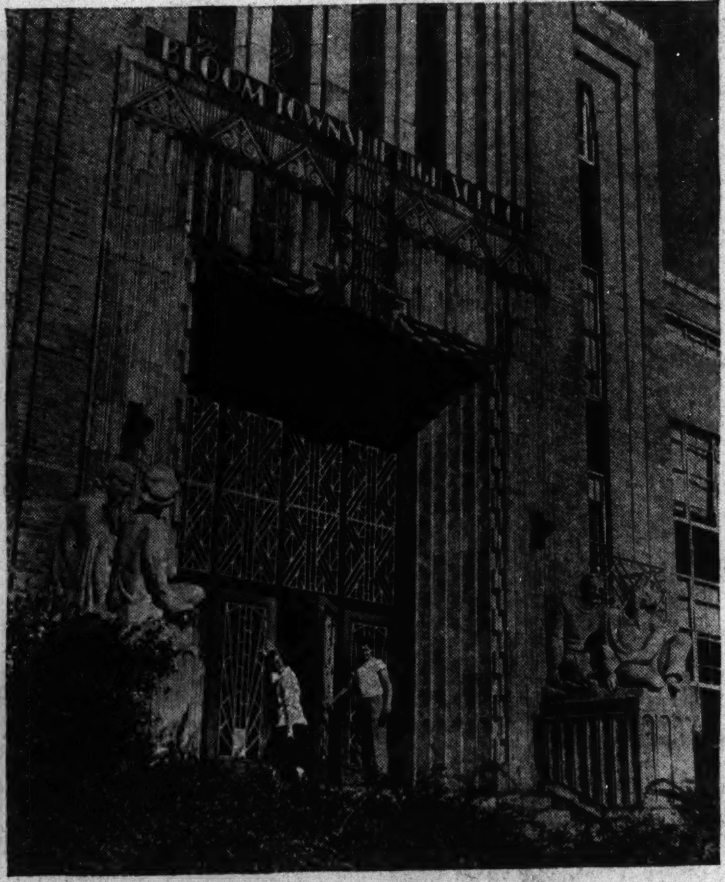
The Kelly-Nash machine's injection of dictatorial methods into its campaign on behalf of Mr. Kelly will also not have escaped the attention of the voters. Two block captains were dismissed at the behest of the bosses for permitting Mr. Busbey, who is in great demand on patriotic occasions, to appear on the platform at a civilian defense flag dedication ceremony. The press of Democratic office seekers at these events is frequently so great that the impression might easily be gained that the New Dealers are also seeking to extend their monopoly over the flag, as well as the seats of congress.

The people of the 3d district may be expected on election day to reject emphatically all such appeals by which it is sought to lead them down the New Deal road to one party government.

Students at Bloom High Trained for Jobs and Civic Responsibility

The faculty at Bloom Township High school, Chicago Heights, has selected Judith Emily Tornow, 18322 Dundee avenue, Homewood, as Bloom's honor student. She will be interviewed at 1 o'clock today on radio station W-G-N, when Bloom is saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program. Judy is 17, a senior.

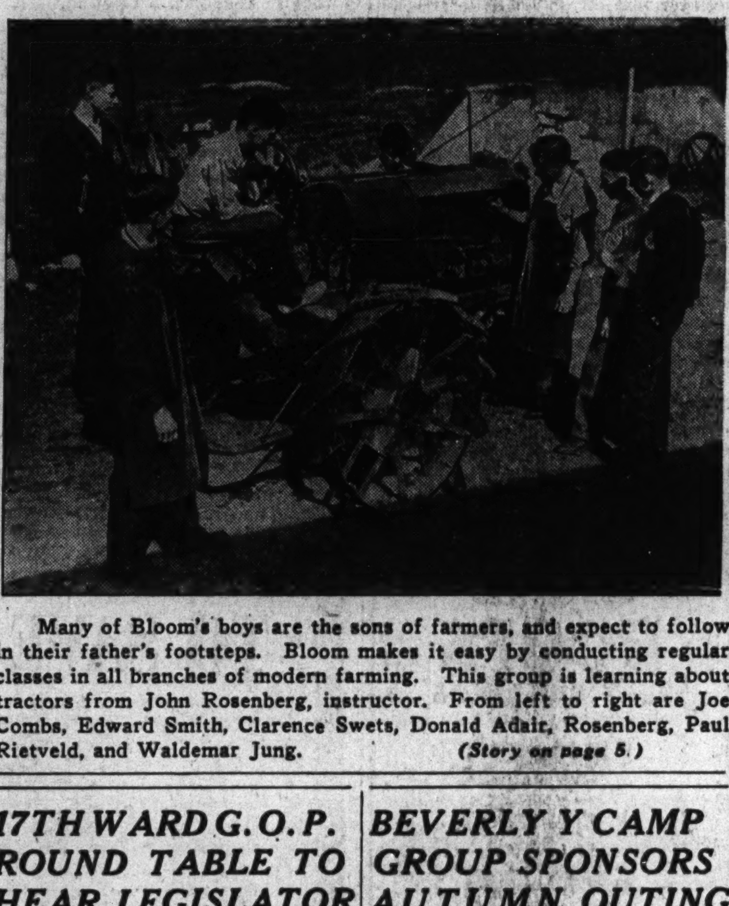
[TRIBUNE Photo.]



This is Bloom Township High school, a $1,000,000 structure. Bloom township's residents are justly proud of the building and send 1,700 children to it. The school specializes in vocation proficiency and civic responsibility. If its citizens of tomorrow are graduated with these two faculties, Principal Raymond D. Meade is well satisfied. Entering the school are Doris Singleton and Victor Martello.

Merchandising has created a lot of interest at Bloom and Eleanore Hareckny, Paul Barwig, Violet Chappelletti, and Lillian Dublinsky are exchanging trade secrets. The library at Bloom is one of the busiest places in the building. That's Jean Patno leaving.

Lots of work requires lots of food, and the students at Bloom find that meals are cheap and nutritious in the school's cafeteria. Peggy Green and Eileen Lorenzon are waiting to pay off, while Dominick Sesto and Frederick Hesemann engage in some swift calculating. Vincent Pastore is seeing how the ice cream's holding out.



Many of Bloom's boys are the sons of farmers, and expect to follow in their father's footsteps. Bloom makes it easy by conducting regular classes in all branches of modern farming. This group is learning about tractors from John Rosenberg, instructor. From left to right are Joe Combs, Edward Smith, Clarence Swets, Donald Adair, Rosenberg, Paul Rietveld, and Waldemar Jung.

Goats Eat Tin? Silly! But OCD Still Suspects

Goats don't eat tin anymore than stenographers can be said to eat gum. Nervous creatures, and not having much to do except be goats, they merely chew on the tin. Actually they are extremely finicky about what they swallow—refusing an apple if somebody else has already taken a bite of it.

This was the consensus of the assistant state veterinarian, the head of the Lincoln park zoo, an officer of the Anti-Cruelty to Animals' socity, a capriculturist [goat raiser], and the director of the state scrap metal salvage campaign.

The issue arose when it was discovered a few days ago that the Mount Greenview grade school's scrap pile was dwindling. An accusing finger was pointed at "Mr. Smith," a pet goat of 14 year old Dolores Vowadnik, a student at Mount Greenview.

Might Cause Ulcers!

Allegedly, "Mr. Smith" was seen wit ha choice piece of scrap iron in his mouth—and he was munching on it. "Mr. Smith," unjustly it now appears, was then banished from the school yard for the duration.

"Goats don't eat tin," Dr. B. C. Hunt, assistant state veterinarian, stated conclusively. "They will chew on tin, but they don't swallow it. They can't digest metal, and besides it would probably lead to ulcers."

He was supported in these views by C. M. Weeks, a Glen Ellyn goat raiser. Mr. Weeks was even more indignant about this ancient slur on the goat family—which it seems is aristocratic and discriminatory to a high degree.

Just Curious, That's All.

"This old wives' tale about eating tin cans arose from a commendable characteristic of the goats. They are very curious. Very often I find mine have pulled some newspapers off a table. They just want to look at them and maybe chew them a little. They won't eat them."

Nathaniel Leverone, state director of scrap metal salvage, closed the case by issuing a directive, "Until further notice, all scrap wardens should regard goats with suspicion—and that's no kidding."

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Warrant Officer Frank Tritton, former Chicago musician who has been bandleader of the infantry troops on duty in the district of Sault Ste. Marie at Fort Brady, Michigan, recently was assigned as a student at the army administration officers candidate school, Gainesville, Fla. His wife, Mrs. Lydia Tritton, lives at 7653 Clyde avenue. Upon graduation from the school he will be commissioned a captain.

Tritton has been with the infantry troops since 1935 and was assigned bandleader about a year later. During World War I he was in the navy and was on duty on the U. S. S. Mississippi. He was awarded the service medal.

Three south side soldiers stationed at Selfridge field, Michigan, recently were promoted. They are: Thomas D. Sanders, 3978 Lake Park avenue, to corporal; and Joshua H. Meachum, 437 East 44th street, and Andrew C. Hyde, 3007 Calumet avenue, both to private, first class.

B. S. Kandyba, son of Joseph Kandyba, 8010 Exchange avenue, recently was promoted to 1st lieutenant at Camp Polk, Louisiana. A graduate of the University of Illinois he entered active duty in October, 1940, and formerly served at Camps Lee and Pickett, in Virginia, and at Carlisle barracks, Pennsylvania.

Boris C. Bruce, 20, son of Mrs. Anna Bruce, 9807 Avenue L, recently was graduated from recruit training at Great Lakes naval station as honor man of his company of 130. Before he enlisted several weeks ago he was a student at Chicago Teachers college. He has been assigned to a navy service school. Bruce was graduated from Bowen High school in February, 1939, where he was elected to the National Honor society.

He is an ardent sailing enthusiast. Last summer he traveled 750 miles in a 32 foot sailing cruiser. He is a member of the Lake Michigan Yachting association and the park district Rainbow fleet.

Lieut. Layne Rogers Sr., 7150 Cyril avenue, recently was enrolled at a student officer in the army air forces preflight school, Maxwell field, Alabama. He attended Virginia Military institute, Lexington, Va., where he played football and baseball and was an assistant instructor in boxing.

Lieut. Homer H. Willhite, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther O. Willhite, 6756 Cornell avenue, recently was assigned to a medium bombardment group as a pilot at the Columbia army air base, Columbia, S. C. He received preflight training at Kelly field, Texas, and basic training at Randolph field, Texas. He also trained at Midland army air school, Midland, Texas. In civilian life he was an oil blender.

Lieut. Bernard M. McGowan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James J. McGowan, 7202 University avenue, recently reported for duty with an observation squadron at Will Rogers field, Oklahoma. He was commissioned at Maxwell field, Alabama, in April, 1941. He was graduated from Mount Carmel High school and De Paul university.

Thomas F. Berteau, 3014 Lake Park avenue, recently was graduated from officer candidate school at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. He was commissioned a 2d lieutenant in the field artillery. Lieut. Berteau, the son of Mrs. Bernice Harris, reported to Fort Sill from Fort Bragg, North Carolina, and has been assigned to the A. P. Hill Military reservation, Virginia. Before entering military service he was employed by the National Biscuit company.

Another south sider, Charles M. Haggerty, son of Mrs. Dorothy R. Haggerty, 8058 Jeffery avenue, recently was promoted to corporal and was selected to attend officer candidate school at Fort Sill.

MOZART SCHOOL, CALUMET HIGH IN SCRAP DRIVE LEAD

Mozart elementary school at 2200 North Hamlin avenue and Calumet High school at 8131 South May street were well in the lead last week in school scrap collections, totaling about 1,200 tons of material.

The five leaders among elementary and high schools were announced as follows:

Elementary—Mozart, 75,000 pounds; Gary, 3000 South Ridgeway avenue, 65,254 pounds; Hamilton, 1650 Cornelia avenue, 54,000 pounds; Whitney, 2815 Komensky avenue, 51,456 pounds, and Mount Greenwood, 10851 Homan avenue, 60,000 pounds.

High schools — Calumet, 75,000 pounds; Schurz, 3601 Milwaukee avenue, 57,000 pounds; Steinmetz, 3030 North Mobile avenue, 42,000 pounds; Lindblom, 6130 South Wolcott avenue, 32,000 pounds; Hirsch, 7740 South Ingleside avenue, 52,992 pounds.

Institute Honors Four Men in Meat Industry 50 Years

Four southwest residents were given gold service buttons recently by the American Meat institute for completion of a half century in the meat packing industry. They are Carl A. Anderson, 7742 Lowe avenue; William D. Budge, 6531 Green street; William B. Sherman of the Stock Yards inn, and Andrew Neufert, 7048 Ashland avenue.

Few Bad Boys in Chinatown—Credit Family

At least one Chicago community has little need for an agency to reduce juvenile delinquency. It's Chinatown, centered at Cermak road and Wentworth avenue.

The juvenile delinquency rate of this community is so low that officials at the Juvenile Detention home said there was no separate report for the Chinese, altho other national groups were listed. Workers who have been at the home many years reported they could not remember a Chinese child brought in for wrongdoing. And Chinatown is a community of more than 2,000 persons, one-fourth of whom are less than 21 years old.

Capt. Edward Kelly of the 3d police district, in which Chinatown is located, termed the community "the quietest place in my district." He said he had almost no trouble from Chinese children. In fact, he added, there was little difficulty to be had in the community, either from children or adults. Teachers at Haines elementery school, which serve the district, reported there was almost no truancy among the Chinese children.

Ideal Family Life.

The reason for this almost ideal state? According to the Rev. John Mao, pastor of St. Therese church, the only Chinese Catholic church in the middle west, it is derived from the family life of the Chinese.

"The reason there is little crime and delinquency," he said, "is that in China the family name is so highly respected that every member of the family feels the dishonor of any individual's wrong doing." There are only 100 families in all the millions of Chinese.

The family name, being highly respected, is given first, not last, as is the case with other nationalities. If an individual demonstrates he has lost ability to uphold the family name, it is taken away from him. He is almost the same as a man without a country in China. Father Mao cited the axample of Wang Chiu-Wei, who became the Japanese puppet governor in Nanking.

Punished by Family.

When this treachery was committed against China the Wang family took away his name. An individual who has suffered this fate can be taken back into the family if he demonstrates he has repented and will no longer do wrong. Fther Mao indicated that Chiu-Wei will have a difficult time getting himself reinstated.

The Chinese family is organized with the mother at the head of the

BARRETT RULING GIVES UNREGISTERED VOTER RIGHT TO CAST BALLOT

Persons who have not registered in the new permanent registration territory outside Cook county may vote nevertheless in the Nov. 3 election by taking an oath before the election clerk.

This obscure provision of the 1941 registration law was pointed out last week by Attorney General George F. Barrett. The unregistered voter also must give the clerk information to be placed on his registration card. This card is to be marked incomplete and treated as an application for registration. Then the applicant, if he is eligible otherwise, will be permitted to vote. Those who vote under this provision may not vote again until they have completed their applications.

Drives in Will, Grundy, and Kankakee counties, however, have brought registration of a large majority of the estimated voters in advance. In Will county, 56,169 out of an estimated 65,000 are enrolled. In Grundy, 10,500 are registered and only a few more are unsigned. In Kankakee county, 27,120 of an estimated 30,000 are registered, officials reported.

PRESBYTERIANS IN CHICAGO LAWN TO SEAT PASTOR

The Rev. R. C. Stone.

The Rev. Rolland C. Stone, former pastor of the Endeavor Presbyterian church on the north side, will be installed as pastor of the Chicago Lawn Presbyterian church, 62d street and St. Louis avenue, at 8 o'clock tonight. The installation ceremony will be participated in by six ministers.

They are the Rev. William McInnes, pastor of the Mayfair Presbyterian church, who will preside; Dr. Robert H. Sawyier, former president of Presbyterian college; the Rev. Cliffodr Earle, pastor of Lake View Presbyterian church; Dr. Ovid R. Sellers, dean of McCormick seminary; the Rev. Kenneth H. Hildebrand, former pastor of the Chicago Lawn church and now assistant pastor at the Fourth Presbyterian church; the Rev. James T. Ross, Cabery, Ill., a classmate of the Rev. Stone.

The new pastor is a graduate of the University of Redlands, Cal., and of the McCormick Theological seminary here. He and Mrs. Stone came to the church as newlyweds. They were married in August.

Beverly Hills Club Will Feature 'Win War' Debate

The Beverly Hills Woman's club will attend a program sponsored by its international relations department at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. A debate on "Let's Win the War for Good" will feature the afternoon session.

BARR SEEKS 11TH TERM IN SENATE AGAINST HRUBY

Visit of Navy Son Holds Veteran's Interest.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Sen. Richard J. Barr [R.].

Otto J. Hruby [D.].

With a world record for continuous legislative service in his pocket, State Sen. Richard J. Barr of the 41st district last week was thinking less about winning his 11th four year term than about the visit home of his navy aviator son.

The veteran Republican is nearing 77 and has yet to lose his senate seat or his composure. Ordinarily he might have evinced "professional worry" about the Nov. 3 election just to make sure that his supporters don't relax too much. But Richard Jr. holds the stage right now.

"He's my elder son," Sen. Barr says. "He has 10 days leave before being transferred from Norfolk, and I want to make the most of it. My other son, Bill we call him, has trained at two southern army airfields and now is attending ground school here. They're pretty good boys and it's hard to think about other things."

"Hope I Beat Him."

What about the campaign?

"The only talk I hear is Republican talk," the tall, pink and white senator replies. "O, once in a while you hear of a Democratic meeting."

That is in his district, made up of Will county where he lives, and Du Page county, containing Hinsdale, the home of his Democratic opponent, Otto J. Hruby. What about his opponent?

"He's a nice fellow. I've met him a few times," Sen Barr answers softly without a change of verbal expression, and in the same even tone adds: "I hope to beat him."

To a newer generation the question might occur: If this is no pose, what manner of man is this elegantly attired self-styled "farmer, not a lawyear, because the law is a jealous mistress, and I have spent too much time on my farm."

Probably the best answer ever written was that of the late James O'Donnell Bennett of THE TRIBUNE of June 6, 1925, when the legislature was in a session. Here are excerpts from the Bennett sketch of 17 years ago:

"'This is his senate.'

"With a quick, confident glance, the utterer of these words indicated a tall, lean, rangily built man of 60 years, but not seeming so old, who was standing in the center of the Illinois senate chamber and speaking in a moderate but carrying voice.

"My friend, a seasoned observer on this scene, added:

"'When he talks it goes into legislation.'

Easy Manner, Fortright.

"The man, to whom half a dozen senators standing within a dozen feet of him were listening attentively and to whom 40 other senators seated at their desks were giving interested heed, was Richard J. Barr, who boxed his way into the mayoralty of Joliet many a year ago, and who for 23 years has been a member of our senate.

"While Sen. Barr was speaking he stood with an admonitory lead pencil in one hand and his noseglasses poised on two fingers of the other hand. His manner was easy and his matter seemed to be simple, forthright, rational, and crowded with facts. His tone was penetrating and a little nasal. Neighborly, perhaps, would be the more exact word.

"The face is interesting, a touch of distinction, of Whistler the painter, in the high arched eyebrows and the pronounced yet delicate features. Despite the sharp lines there is a look of youth in his countenance, as tho age had overlaid but not extinguished the youthfulness in the man.

"Smooth, But Not Devious."

"Sen. Barr is a lawyer, but likes to toy with agriculture. He is also a born trader, and it has been said of him that he 'could go out with a cat and come home with a kennel.' He was born in the hamlet of Manhattan, in Will county, in 1865; took a literary course at the University of Illinois, graduated in the law at the University of Michigan, and became city attorney and mayor of Joliet.

"He is smooth and slick but not devious. They say he is to be trusted. He attempts no crusades or impossibilities. He is patient, and often he is wearily tolerant of things that should not be.

"That's politics.

Takes Life as It Is.

"He is not a Small follower nor yet an anti-Small follower. He is middle of the road, where the possibilities lie. He and the governor's lieutenant on the senate floor, Sen John Dailey, 'the orator,' have arranged that between them.

"Barr, then, is not impotently valiant, but careful and clever. He would rather do right than wrong, but the doing of wrong by others does not inflame him to burning wrath.

"Only to cynical disfavor.

"His idea—or ideal—is that life and politics have to be taken pretty much as they are not fought or violently reshaped, and that it is futile to try much to reshape them. His 'notion is' that those processes of reshaping are automatic and leisurely and that men won't be dragged upward and onward."

Brother a House Leader.

Democrat Hruby comes of old political stock. His father, John Hruby, was the last west town collector in Chicago before the office was abolished. The third generation of Hruby family in this country since 1848, the nominee is affiliated with all Slav organizations in the district, he said.

His brother, John Hruby, was house minority leader in the legislature under Gov. Deneen, he said, and a cousin by the same name also served in the house. Rep. John O. Hruby of the 19th district, on the west side of Chicago, is another cousin, the nominee declared.

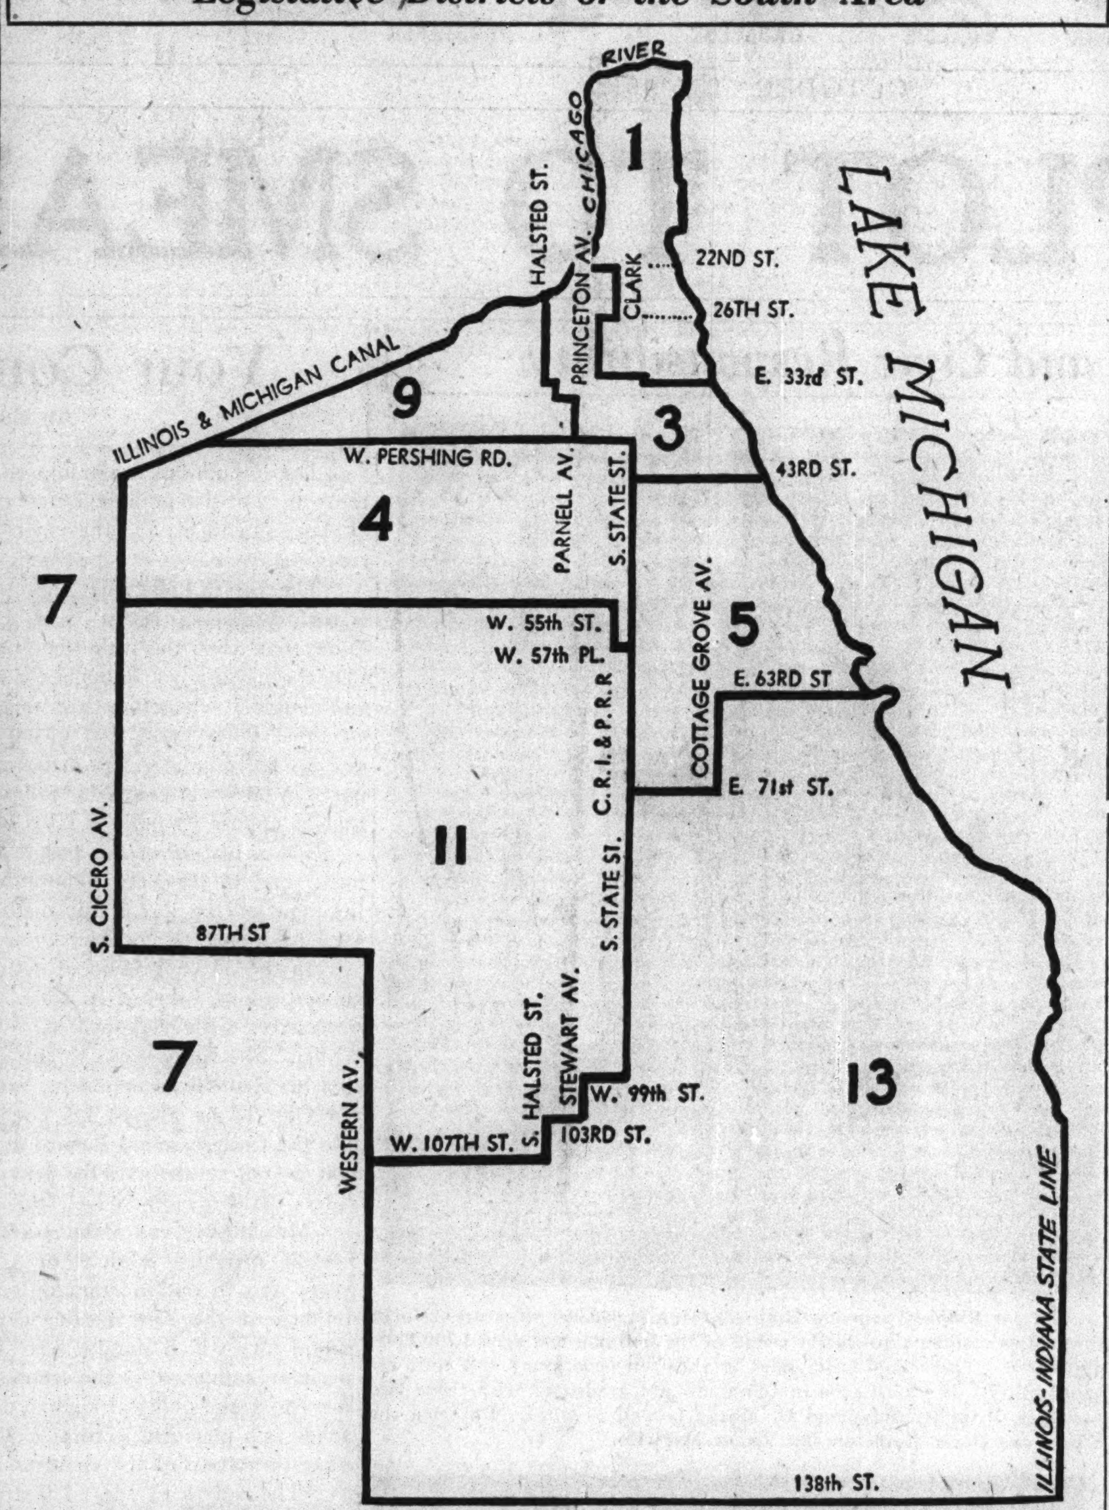
Otto J. Hruby, to get out of the family forest, is a tax expert in business for himself on La Salle street—the Illinois Bond Collection service.

Would Amend Constitution.

"When you think of all the tax bills coming up at Springfield it's easy to see my place there," he said. "I've been studying tax problems for a long time. I'm interested in abolishing the personal property tax. It's an imposition upon the public.

"Take a man who buys furniture—it really doesn't belong to him because of the personal property tax on it. A replacement tax? Cut down on public expenditures. Amend the constitution. Naturally, it would have to be amended for my purpose, but we can't let difficulties stand in our way."

Legislative Districts of the South Area



Boundaries of the legislative districts in the south area of Cook county are defined in this map. The 7th district also includes all townships in Cook county outside of Chicago which are not a part of the 6th, 19th or 23d districts. The 41st district is made up of Will and Du Page counties.

PANAMA BISHOP TO SAY MASS FOR ST. JUDE'S LEAGUE

1,000 Policemen to Take Part in Rites.

More than 1,000 city policemen will receive communion at a mass to be celebrated next Sunday by Bishop Joseph M. Preciado of Panama, at Our Lady of Guadalupe church, 91st street and Brandon avenue. The occasion is the general communion of the police branch of St. Jude's league. Our Lady of Guadalupe church is the national shrine for the organization.

The ceremony will start with a procession of 40 seminarians of St. Jude's seminary, at Momence, from the rectory to the church, with members of Police post of the American Legion forming the color guard. This ceremony will also be a tribute to policemen now serving in the country's military forces.

Following the service, a breakfast will be held in the church auditorium. Among the speakers will be Father Tort, first spiritual director of the league, James J. Doody, Capt. Raymond Crane of the Woodlawn district, and Eddie Cavanaugh, W-G-N artist, who will be master of ceremonies.

Heading the committee in charge of the services and breakfast are Rev. Joseph M. Puigvi and James Doody, vice president of the league.

On Reception Committee.

Included in the reception committee to greet Bishop Preciado will be the following police officers and men: Capt. Richard Gill, Capt. James B. Conlisk, Capt. Patrick Bonner, Capt. Raymond Crane, Capt. David Flynn, Capt. Patrick Collins, Capt. Walter Healy, Capt. John Scott, Capt. John Egan, Capt. Frank Demski, Capt. Thomas Connally, Joseph Regan, Lieut. W. A. Balswick, Lieut. Michael Spatz, Lieut. William Smith, Sergt. Ray Kenny, Sergt. John Flaherty, Sergt. Walter O'Neill, Sergt. Thomas Lee, Joseph J. Carmody, John L. O'Malley, John McCann, Edmond Swain, Charles Morris, Ray Forest, and Thomas McInerney.

ADAMS TO HEAD KIWANIS CLUBS ON SOUTHWEST SIDE

Glenn D. Adams.

Glenn D. Adams, 9245 South Throop street, was elected lieutenant governor of division 4 in the Illinois-Eastern Iowa Kiwanis district, at a recent district convention at the Hotel Sherman. His post involves the supervision of all clubs in the south side of Chicago, including Archer road, Englewood, Hyde Park, Roseland, South Central, South Chicago, Southwest Chicago, Town of Lake, Woodlawn, and South Shore. Adams formerly was a member and director of the Chicago Loop club, then of the Roseland unit, and a charter member of the Kiwanis club of South West Chicago. He is executive secretary of the Beverly YMCA.

GRUNDY TO VOTE ON TAX PROVIDING TUBERCULAR AID

Grundy will be the only southwest county to concern itself with local problems in the Nov. 3 election. Its 10,500 registered voters will vote for or against a tax not to exceed a mill and a half on each $1 valuation, to provide aid for the county's tubercular patients.

In the last off year election in 1938, 8,688 Grundy residents voted. In 1940, the year of the Presidential election, 10,797 went to the polls.

Will county's voters turned out 49,412 strong in 1938, and in 1940 cast 63,000 votes to set a county record. Registered for this year's election are 56,169 persons.

The Kankakee county clerk's records show that 29,983 persons voted in 1940, as compared with 23,669 in 1938. A total of 27,120 are registered to vote in the Nov. 3 election.

This is the first time in downstate counties that the permanent registration act is in effect. However, even those persons who have not registered may vote, Attorney General George F. Barrett said. He based his opinion on an obscure provision of the law enacted in 1941.

Unregistered voters desiring to vote may take an oath and give the election clerk the information required. This will be placed on a card marked "incomplete," and treated as an application for registration. The applicant then will be permitted to vote.

SEEK MEMBERS FOR NURSES' AID IN BLUE ISLAND

Prospective candidates for the Red Cross volunteer nurses' aid corps will be interviewed Tuesday at St. Francis hospital, Blue Island. Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 50, in good health, and be American citizens. When 30 applicants have been accepted a nurses' aid class will begin at St. Francis. It consists of 40 hours of classroom work and 45 hours of practical training in hospital wards under supervision of graduate nurses.

PEGGY'S DANCING TOUR LEADS HER HOME FOR HOTEL ENGAGEMENT

Peggy Turner.

Members of the graduating class of 1939 at Morgan Park High school remember Peggy Turner as a girl who would rather dance than eat. They didn't see too much of her in those days because she was either dancing, or chasing off to a lesson in tap, toe or ballet. They haven't seen much of her recently, either, because she has been touring the country as a professional dancer. She's returning this week, tho, for an engagement at the Edgewater Beach hotel as the feminine half of the ballroom dancing team of Joe and Betty Lee.

Peg used to dance in shows at St. Margaret's elementary, school, and later at Morgan Park. She danced for the first time professionally when she was 16 as a member of the Dorothy Dorben dancers.

Her chance to dance cross country was accidental. Joe Lee, ballroom dancer, dropped in at the hotel one night to talk to Dorothy Dorben. He asked her if she knew some one about five feet tall, good in ballet and graceful. He was looking for a partner. Miss Dorben recommended Peggy and they've been dancing together since.

Their combination probably will be broken up soon, tho, as Joe is awaiting call into the navy's aviation corps. Peg is 20 now, and will make her home while she is here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Turner, 10517 Hale avenue. Her father is a grain supervisor at the United States grain, feed and seed inspection office, 3025 East 82d street.

St. Rita Mothers' Club Giving Fall Card Party

JUBILEE SO MUCH FUN OLD TIMERS DEMAND REPEAT

Harvey Gets Out Bustles for Second Celebration.

Harvey celebrated its golden jubilee last year and every one had such a fine time that the village is staging another celebration this week. The old timers are dragging out their finery of the '90s, and will spend the week in bustles and plumes as the village begins its second 50 years of existence.

The start-of-the-second-50-years celebration is being sponsored by the Harvey Association of Commerce. It will begin tomorrow with a series of costumed receptions and open houses.

In deference to war workers, the merchants of the village are adjusting their hours of service, and the celebration is being keyed to provide entertainment for a great portion of these war workers.

Parade Next Saturday.

A party for children will be held Friday night along the village's main street, 154th street. Arrangements are being made for entertainment and refreshments for 5,000 children at a colorful Halloween fête.

A large parade is scheduled Saturday night. It will have the costumed villagers, American Legion, and Veterans of Foreign Wars bands and color guards in the long line of march thru the village's main streets. It will be followed by a street dance, and a midnight show at a Harvey theater. Charles H. Applegate Jr. is mayor of the village.

Claude N. Breeden and Paul W. Soenksen are co-chairmen of the affair. The parade and entertainment are in charge of William P. Miller.

List Committeemen.

Committee members are Bill Wilder, Alfred Vagineres, J. S. Badis, George Tesar, Edward Bastar, Walter Muszinski, Pete Iverson, Frank Evely, Ted Volkert, Alfred Friske, Miss Hattie Geiman, Clarence Bell, George Gilley, Robert Burke, Horace Hammer, Fred Bauer, Sidney Lee, Walter Grometer, A. Swartz, Mrs. Grace Surma, Bert Timmons, Mrs. Kathryn Moore, John Van Vorst, Henry P. Sirski, I. B. Atlas, David R. Jones, Norman Wax, David Kaplan, A. A. Abrahamson, August Goebels.

John Bardwick Jr. is president of the association; Paul W. Soneksen, Foss P. Miller, vice presidents; George F. Thies, treasurer, and Edgar J. Bell, secretary-manager.

family so far as affairs inside the home are concerned. The father is leader of outside affairs. When a son marries he brings his bride to the home of his father, which keeps the family unit together.

Where there are several members of a family in one place they establish a family headquarters, the center of family affairs in that area. There are seven family headquarters in Chicago, altho there are more than that number reperesnted. The Moys and Lees are the largest family groups in Chicago, as well as being among the largest in China.

Respect toward parents, age, scholarship, and dignity, are taught Chinese children from their earliest years. He is obedient because he knows that by being bad he will dishonor all members of his family.

During the depression there were few Chinese on relief. The family system kept them from taking the dole. If a member came upon hard times, he was lent money and food by the family until he got on his feet again.

Plan Card Party

Jeanette Pauling (top) and Anne W. Pehler are committee members of the Whiting Girls' club of the Whiting corporation, Harvey, which is sponsoring a fashion show and card party Thursday evening at Moose hall, 15321 Broadway, Harvey. Proceeds will go for presents for the men from the company now in the armed services. The club was founded in October, 1925. Eighty girls comprise the membership.

TRAINING SCHOOL FOR LEADERS IS SPONSORED BY 'Y'

The 16th annual school of leadership training, sponsored by the Southtown Church YMCA coöperation program, will be held on six consecutive Mondays starting tomorrow. For the first time in the series, two sessions of the school will be held. One will meet at the Englewood YMCA, 6545 South Union avenue, and the other at the Lorimer Baptist church, 73d street and St. Lawrence avenue.

Emphasis of this year's school for leadership training will be on church history. Dr. Matthew Spinka, professor of church history at the Chicago Theological seminary, will teach the course in the YMCA building.

The same course will be taught at the Lorimer church by Dr. John McNeill, professor of the history of European Christianity in the University of Chicago Divinity school.

Other courses will be offered in religious education for adults and church work with primary children. Walker M. Alderton, professor of religious education at the Chicago Theological seminary, will teach the adult course at the Lorimer church, and Richard Miller, chairman of the young people's division of the Chicago Church Federation will conduct the course at the Englewood YMCA.

A course on methods and materials in religious education of children will be taught by Miss Wynn Plummer, director of week day church schools of the Chicago Church federation. This will be given at the Lorimer church. A similar course will be offered at the YMCA by Miss Buelah Clearwaters, former director of religious education at the First Presbyterian church, La Grange.

Community Center Plans Fall Fiesta in Palos Park

A fall festival and barn dance will be held at the Community Center foundation, Palos Park, Saturday night. A Halloween straw ride is included. The proceeds will go toward the foundation's building fund. Cooperating on arrangements are Lebora Bluf, 12336 South Michigan avenue; Mrs. Roy Elke, 8429 South Loomis boulevard, and George Brown, Maywood.

RADIO EYES FOR ALL PROMISED AT END OF WAR

Television's Bright Future Told by Dunlap.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Just as ships at sea took on radio voices linking them to land after the first World war, so trans-Atlantic planes will see by means of television after this war. That is the picture envisioned by Orrin Dunlap in his new book "The Future of Television," just published.

Television is being greatly advanced by wartime research and engineering in radio and electron optics, Dunlap reports. After this war sightseeing by radio will become a national pastime, according to Dunlap. Homes everywhere will have all-seeing eyes, because the science of electronics will put television sets within the price range of the masses, just as it has radio sets, says Dunlap. Radio, which made a whispering gallery of the heavens, is described as preparing to turn the whole world into a hall of mirrors, thru television.

Sees New Art Forms.

Reconversion of radio manufacturing plants to postwar production of civilian receiving sets will mark the opening date of the new television era, he forecasts. [But it must be remembered that experts have been asserting that television is just around the corner for the last 15 years.]

Dunlap says there is no danger that sound broadcasting, as we know it, will "dry up" overnight. But he predicts that television will make tremendous strides forward introducing new art forms in much the same fashion as the screen developed Mickey Mouse and radio its Amos 'n' Andy.

"Radio characters who have lived in the world of imagination and illusion will come out of hiding," says Dunlap, "as television adds sight to sound to make radio drama more real than ever before."

A National Sports Arena.

Television will no more kill the theater than did radio, he asserts. "To the actor and vaudevillian, whether tap dancer, juggler, acrobat, or magician, television offers the dawn of a new day," he states. Television also will turn the nation into a coast to coast sports arena, making fights, baseball, football, and other sports events visible to everybody.

Television is full of promise in the realm of education, too. While some problems remain to be solved, Dunlap says that color television with images of 18 by 24 inches is in the offing for homes.

The images will be so accurate, says Dunlap, that televiewers of the future will fill albums with snapshots of pictures they make of television views flashing to their homes.

Helen Jepson Guest on Kostelanetz-Spalding Show

Helen Jepson, Metropolitan opera soprano, and Bob Hannon, tenor, will be guests of Andre Kostelanetz and Albert Spalding on their program at 3:30 p. m. today over WBBM-CBS. Miss Jepson will sing "Serenade" by Toselli, and Mr. Hannon will sing the "Valse Huguette" from Friml's "The Vagabond King."

Understanding attention to every important detail characterizes our service—a care-eliminating feature that makes our name synonymous with good judgment.

'ROBIN HOOD' IS NEXT OPERETTA IN W-G-N SERIES

Marion Claire, Knight to Be Starred.

The romantic story of Robin Hood, as portrayed in song and drama by Reginald De Koven in his operetta by that name, will be unfolded on the Chicago Theater of the Air next Saturday evening. The operetta will be broadcast from 8 to 9 o'clock over W-G-N and the Mutual system.

Felix Knight will sing the title rôle; Marion Claire will take the part of Lady Marian.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Others in the singing cast will be Arwin Schweig, bass, who will be making his network radio debut, as Will Scarlett; Bruce Foote, baritone, as Little John, and John McDonald, bass, as the sheriff of Nottingham.

A cast of distinguished Chicago actors will take the dramatic rôles in the presentation.

The musical background will be provided by the W-G-N symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and the chorus, led by Robert Trendler. Kenneth MacGregor will be the producer.

All of the familiar music will be presented, including the perennial favorite, "O, Promise Me."

CHICAGO HEIGHTS SCHOOL SLATED FOR RADIO HONOR

Citizens' Show Will Tell Story of Bloom High.

Bloom township's million dollar high school in Chicago Heights will be honored at 1 o'clock today on radio station W-G-N on the Citizens of Tomorrow program. Bloom has 1,700 citizens of tomorrow who "learn by doing" in class work and in the school's broad extra curricular activities. Vocational proficiency and civic responsibility are the two major objectives of the school.

The program of training at Bloom is geared to meet the student's needs. There are vocational shops, farm training, and a liberal amount of academic and background courses. The school, too, is facing the realities of war. Months before Pearl Harbor, Bloom was cognizant of the increasing tempo of the national defense program. In July, 1941, defense training courses were inaugurated in machine shop, welding and gas engine mechanics. Later in the summer, a unit of the civil pilot training program was organized. Ground school courses in meteorology, navigation, and air regulations were offered. Several students graduated from this course are now flying in the air corps.

Extend Part Time Work.

The second semester of 1941-'42 resulted in two organizational changes. The daily schedule was altered so that boys possessing skills needed in industry could attend school on a part time basis. When school closed in the spring of 1941, over 100 boys and girls were so employed. The other change was a similar arrangement on behalf of farm youth. Bloom's vocational agriculture department classes were suspended during the spring planting season and when necessary, students worked a half day and attended school a half day. This arrangement still is in effect.

This year, the part time work and part time school program is being extended. Merchandising classes have been added as a means of training students to replace sales people called into service. Also added have been courses in Red Cross home nursing, academic classes in aeronautics, and the revision of the shop mathematics course to include aviation mathematics.

There has been a new interest this year in physical education. The course, altho not intended as a preinduction hardening course, has captured the interest of the older boys who expect to be called to service.

Enrollment Increased.

The history of Bloom township high school goes back to 1891 when the citizens of Chicago Heights decided to establish a unit. The building was a one room structure with accommodations for 20 pupils and one teacher. The first class, with four students, was graduated in 1895. In 1900, the residents of Bloom township, of which Chicago Heights is the largest community, organized the Bloom township high school district. It now includes an area of 39 square miles and serves a population of 40,000 persons.

Shortly after 1902, the structure now known as the "Old Bloom" was constructed. It originally consisted of six rooms but the rapidly increasing enrollment necessitated an addition. When the enrollment passed 1,000 it became obvious that more spacious accommodations were needed. In 1928, a bond issue of $760,000 was voted to purchase a new school site and erect a new building. After 30 years at the same location, the school moved to a new building on the outskirts of Chicago Heights, and the "Old Bloom" was abandoned. The new building has four stories surmounted by a 100 foot tower.

Principal to Speak.

Raymond D. Meade is principal of Bloom, a position he has held three years. He succeeded Dr. Roswell C. Puckett, who died on the opening day of the school in 1939. Meade was born in Indiana, reared in Oklahoma, where he attended high school and the state university, and has taught in Illinois during most of his career. He was associated with the Illinois Boys' state, an American Legion citizenship training program, as dean of counselors, and is the author of manuals used nationally by this organization. He's a war veteran and member of educational and civic organizations.

He will speak today on the Citizens of Tomorrow program, and so will Bloom's honor student, Judith Emily Turnow, 18322 Dundee avenue, Homewood. Judy will be interviewed by Radio Principal Phil Maxwell. The program was recorded for broadcast last week at Bloom High school. For the first time in the series of over 70 broadcasts, the recording was made at the school. Heretofore, they have been recorded at W-G-N. The next Citizens of Tomorrow program will be recorded from the W-G-N audience studio, Wednesday afternoon between 4:30 and 5 o'clock. St. Mary of Perpetual Help school, 1039 West 32d street, will be honored. This program will be broadcast at 1 o'clock Sunday, Nov. 1.

Preparing for Halloween

The finishing touches on props for Gage park's Halloween party are being taken care of by Margaret Falsey, 2124 West 55th street; Barbara Jean Camphauser, 2116 West Garfield boulevard, and Helen Magee, 2714 West 56th street. They'll all be there.

Louise and Evelyn Choffin, 5345 Marshfield avenue, 12 year old twins, listen to Marie Eigenbauer, 5303 Laflin street, rehearse a ghost story for the Hallowen party to be held Friday evening at Sherman park, 53d street and Racine avenue.

YANKS' PARENTS TO BE FETED IN BRIGHTON PARK

Parents of Brighton Park's service men will be guests of the Brighton Park Woman's club Tuesday evening at McKinley park. Guest speakers will be the Rev. Patrick Maloney, known for his work with the Catholic Youth Organization and parole board; Dr. J. E. F. Liabe, commander of McKinley Park OCD; Dr. Gustav Gosicki, commander of Brighton Park OCD; Anthony Zintak, commander of McKinley American Legion post. Mrs. C. L. Duax is program chairman, and Mrs. Harry H. Lepinske, president.

BONFIRES COLD, BUT HALLOWEEN SPIRIT TO BLAZE

Expect Throngs at Park Fetes Despite War Edict.

The traditional bonfires of Halloween will be blacked out this year, in deference to war, but the spirit of the holiday will blaze briskly at seven southwest parks where parades and parties are scheduled.

The black-out was requested by Robert J. Dunham, president of the park district, on the grounds that the bonfires create a fire hazard, that they consume too much wood, and would take too long to extinguish in the event of an air raid or trial black-out.

The park district expects that 150,000 boys and girls in the city will make use of the 96 park fieldhouses and playgrounds. F. E. Kardes, regional supervisor of the southwest recreational division, said that hundreds of children were adding a contemporary note to the celebration by planning to attend in caricatures of Hitler, Mussolini, and Hirohito. The celebrations are expected to reduce vandalism and damage.

Largest Fête at West Pullman.

The largest of all the parties will be that at West Pullman park, 123d street and Stewart avenue, where Park Supervisor Forrest Lull said arrangements are being made to accommodate 2,000 children. The celebration is being sponsored by the West Pullman Civic club; St. Mihiel post, Polish Legion of American Veterans and its auxiliary; Roseland Community club and the West Pullman Office of Civilian Defense. It will start with a parade at 8 o'clock Friday evening. Costume judging, races and contests, and roller skating will round out the program. A separate party will be held at 7:30 o'clock for children under 6 years old.

Twelve hundred children are expected to attend the party at Sherman park, 53d street and Racine avenue. It will be held at 7 o'clock Friday evening, Joseph B. Detloff, park supervisor, said. The program will be comprised of a parade, amateur and variety shows, pie eating and nail driving contests. Mary Wiese, physical instructor, will be in charge of girls' events.

McKinley Park Party Thursday.

The earliest party of the season will be held Thursday at McKinley park, 39th street and Western avenue. A parade will be preceded by separate parties in the fieldhouse gymnasiums for boys and girls. William Hoff is the park supervisor.

Joseph Meegan, supervisor at Davis Square park, 45th street and Marshfield avenue, anticipates an attendance of 800 at the parade and party to be held at 7 o'clock Friday evening. Dorothy Frasor, physical instructor, will arrange the girls' events.

At 4 o'clock on Friday and Saturday afternoons Halloween parties will be held at Ada park, 113th and Ada streets. Friday's party will be attended by 80 members of the Park Boys' Republic club, with Henry Wendell, boys' gymnasium instructor, in charge. Seventy-five girls will attend parties for the junior and intermediate girls. Elizabeth Jackson, girls' gymnasium instructor, will be in charge of the girls' events. John Turner is the park supervisor.

Two parties are scheduled for Halloween proper. James H. Lackey, supervisor of Hamilton park, 72d street and Normal boulevard, expects 400 children to play games, listen to ghost stories, and watch a magician in action. Mark White square, 29th and Halsted streets, will hold its party at 8 o'clock. Nine hundred Bridgeport children are expected to participate in the parade and party sponsored by Fellowship House, Benton House, and the Valentine Boys' club. P. J. McCarthy is supervisor.

Fall Wedding

Peace Memorial church provided the scene for the wedding of Miss Jeanne V. Weed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Weed, 8047 South Marshfield avenue, and William Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Martin, 1057 North Kilbourn avenue.

Raise Service Flag Today at Block Captain's Home

A service flag will be dedicated at 3 o'clock today in front of Frank C. Kartzke's home, 514 West 117th street. Kartzke is block captain of block 6 in zone 3 of community 14. Speakers will be Leslie V. Beck and Charles W. Novak Jr., community and zone commanders of the area. The flag will be dedicated to the block's nine residents, now in the country's service.

CULVER LISTS 8 SOUTHWEST SIDE FIGHTER ALUMNI

Eight graduates of Culver Military academy, Culver, Ind., listed with Chicago southwest addresses are now in the armed services, according to an announcement from the school.

They were listed as: Lieut. E. W. Sproul, 9822 Longwood drive; C. E. McFarland, 1243 West 63d street; Lieut. J. A. Roesch III., 129 South Jefferson street [business address]; Second Lieut. C. B. FIFTH OF COUNTY FARM MACHINE PLEAS REFUSED Needs for 1942 Only Get Board Sanction.

An estimated 80 per cent of the requests for new farm machinery made to the Cook county farm machinery rationing board have been approved, Frank Powell said last week. The county rationing committee, whose headquarters are in the offices of the Cook county farm bureau at Arlington Heights and Blue Island, was set up about Oct. 1, following the nationwide WPB order limiting the sale of certain pieces of farm machinery.

Carl M. Bormet, Tinley Park, is chairman of the committee. He is also a member of the county AAA program. Serving with Bormet are four farmers, William Freize, Arlington Heights; Homer J. Long, Glenview; William Heatherwick, Orland Park, and Frank Diekman, South Holland.

Refuse 1943 Needs.

Only applications for farm machinery to be used in 1942 are accepted by the committee this month. After Nov. 1 applications for equipment intended for use in 1943 will be received. The committee meets twice weekly to consider the requests presented to it. Refusal occurred in about 20 per cent of the cases because machinery asked for was intended for next year's operation or the committee did not recognize need for the requested equipment this year.

All farm machinery dealers have applications for farmers to fill in. The completed form is sent to one of the two offices of the rationing committee.

The WPB has divided farm machinery into three groups. The larger pieces, which contain vital materials and in which the supply is limited, include beet lifters and loaders, combines, corn pickers, disc harrows, feed grinders, fertilizer spreaders, grain drills and elevators, pickup and hay balers, lime and manure spreaders, milk coolers, milking machines, potato diggers, shredders, and tractors.

Restriction Less Severe.

Committee approval is not necessary for items in group B, but an application form is left with the dealer. Included in this group are such pieces as planting, seeding, and fertilizing machinery, spraying outfits, poultry farm equipment, and weeders, among others. Group C can be purchased without application.

The farmer gives information as to whether his new machinery would replace similar worn out equipment, whether old equipment could be repaired, and if his need could be satisfied by renting equipment or by exchange arrangements. The board would like to know if the farmer would be willing to rent his new machinery to others or do custom or exchange work.

If the new machinery will replace hand labor the board asks why the farmer wishes to change and what efforts he has made to obtain laborers.

A fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than 10 years, or both, is the penalty for falsification of facts.

Governor Aids Welcome Fete

Gov. Green recently presented Miss Loretta Kucharski with a set of traveling bags while her father, Felix Kucharski, Republican 12th ward committeeman, looked on. The presentation was made in behalf of several hundred persons who gathered to welcome Miss Kucharski from Wisconsin, where she had been recuperating from a long illness. Richard J. Lyons, G. O. P. leader, told the guests to give solid support to Sen. Wayland Brooks, "who kept his pledge to the people of Illinois." [Cynal Photo.]

English Veteran of '17 Aids Adopted Country

A short time ago George A. Maquay, 7439 Ellis avenue, took a look around, saw the biggest war in history in session and decided it was no time for a veteran of the last conflict to be sitting around watching things.

Today, two years after he retired at 65 to reap the benefits of social security, Maquay is back at work. He's an inspector of powder and explosives at the Kankakee ordnance works. He helps make sure the nation's fighters get the right quality of ammunition.

Taking Chemistry Course.

Maquay is back at school, too. When he's not receiving practical training and experience at the ordnance works, he's attending the Joliet Township High school where he's brushing up on his chemistry. He had studied its previously at the Central Technical college, London, from which he graduated in 1896.

He worked, after graduation, as an electrical engineer in English, Welsh, Spanish and West African power houses. He came to the United States in 1909 and took charge of the generators and other electrical equipment at South works, Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation in South Chicago.

Served in Dunkirk in '17.

He left here in 1917 in answer to England's appeal for soldiers. He expected to be sent to the front but the British Royal Engineers needed electrical experts and they assigned him to the port of Dunkirk, France. Here he directed the erection and maintenance of electric cranes. He recalls that there was no battle of Dunkirk in the last war, just frequent bombings.

Maquay was born in Ireland, but spent his youth and manhood in London. It was there that he attended primary and secondary schools.

28 YEAR RESIDENT OF BRAZIL WILL DISCUSS NATION

Mrs. M. G. White, lecturer on Brazilian affairs, will be the principal speaker at a buffet dinner to be given at 6 o'clock Thursday evening at the Bryn Mawr Community church by the South Shore League of Women Voters. Mrs. White has lived in Bahia, Brazil, for the last 28 years. She will discuss "The Importance of Brazil to the United States in a Post-war World." The public is invited to the dinner. Mrs. Raymond Heath, chairman, of 7748 Colfax avenue, and Mrs. C. E. Ridley of 6940 Euclid avenue, are taking reservations.

Film Lecture to Be Given at Morgan Park Church

Sam Campbell will address members of the Woman's council of the Morgan Park Presbyterian church, 111th street and Longwood drive, at 8 o'clock Friday evening. He will give a motion picture lecture entitled, "Scrap Book of the West."

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Oct. 26

Unless the ground is frozen making spading impracticable, spade up all areas that will be planted next spring. Do this now. The action of frost will kill insect pests, mellow the soil, and make it possible to get into garden work early next spring.

A number of annuals can be sown this fall, especially the hardy annuals that lie in the ground all winter and come up early in spring. One gains from one to three weeks in the blooming period. A little protection on the seed beds will serve to keep them thruout the winter.

Tuesday, Oct. 27

Plant the outdoor window boxes with small evergreens. If the soil is kept well watered the plants will keep in fine condition and can be planted in the garden in spring. Suitable varieties can be obtained from nurseries. Drain the sprinkling system before the pipes freeze and are damaged.

Remove all statues and garden furniture to the protection of a shed. Repair hotbed sash and frames; clean and oil all tools before placing them in storage for the winter. Burn all weeds that can be burned for the place will be neater and many seeds will be destroyed.

Wednesday, Oct. 28

It is time to rake up fallen leaves and it is wise to compost them with soil because they are a fine souce of humus. Keep the compost pile moist. Add peat moss or manure to increase the supply. It takes several months to decay. Turn it at intervals.

Chrysanthemums are in bloom, both indoors and outdoors, altho the latter may have frozen by this time. Buy only varieties that usually bloom before Oct. 12. Plant them in spring and not in fall unless the fall planted stock is protected either in a cold frame or by other means.

Thursday, Oct. 29

Take care of the lily-of-the-valley by giving it a light mulch with old manure, leaf mold, or peat. With good care the plants will grow vigorously and produce many more flowers and excellent foliage.

Try growing a collection of cacti in the widows this winter for they make fine indoor subjects. They last a long time when grown in novelty containers that have no drainage hole.

Friday, Oct. 30

More people ask about growing the beautiful saintpaulia or African violet than any other. It is easily grown under suitable conditions. It may stand in the east window and should be watered by placing the base of the pot in a saucer of water and leaving it until the soil is moist, remove the pot and drain and place again in the window.

Saturday, Oct. 31

Be sure that the newly planted evergreens do not dry out or they may not survive the winter. Place the hose, with nozzle removed, near base of each plant and allow the water to soak in for half an hour. In addition, syringe the tops on warm days. If the weather is quite hot, syringing may be done late in the day.

WARNS AGAINST LETTING SCREENS OR GUTTERS RUST

Coat of Paint Prevents Damage During Winter.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Of concern to home owners, now that October is nearly gone: House screens!

Screens and gutters are doubly precious now and no one can afford to let them rust away this coming winter.

If screens are well painted and in good shape, a thoro cleaning is all they need. The suction brush of a vacuum cleaner is convenient for this, or a whisk broom, vigorously applied on both sides of the screen will do the work.

A damp cloth and kitchen cleanser will remove any hardened dirt on a screen edging and benzine can be used to remove greasy deposits from kitchen screens. [Keep benzine away from fire and use only in well ventilated place.]

Identify Screens with Tags.

When screens are tagged with permanent identincation of some sort, life will be easier in the spring. Where screening is broken at any point, patch the spot before storing.

In storing screens see that they do not come in contact with any basement floor dampness. It is always wise to lay them flat in a dry place and cover them with canvas or paper as protection against dust and dirt. If it is hard to store them flat because of screen hardware, lath strips can be slipped between the frames.

Black iron screening sometimes needs painting every year, depending on the climate, but painting of frames, hardware, and wire as protection against rust and rot is usually advised every other year.

Paint Is Easy to Obtain.

Your paint dealer or store where paints are sold carries the varnish or paint needed for this protection.

If you have galvanized iron gutters and leaders, see that these are kept painted—and that the paint is in good shape. Apply one coat of red lead paint and two coats of house paint after thoro cleaning and treatment of metal with copper sulphate solution.

If your gutters and leaders are of copper you can prevent any staining of house walls from oxidized coating by application of paint or varnish. If you wish to keep the metallic luster of gutters and leaders, use a clear spar varnish.

Paragraphs About People You May Know

DURING World War I., when every one was knitting for the Red Cross, Mrs. Benita McCormick, 8052 Vernon avenue, wasn't. She couldn't. She made several vain attempts and gave up the idea. For her part, tho, she painted and gave to the Red Cross a poster which they used quite extensively.

Now, in World War II., Mrs. McCormick still can't knit. Her contribution this time is a song, "You're An American, 'n' that Means Free." It's being readied for publication now. She got the idea for the song when she saw movies of the battle of the Midway. She was much impressed with two young anti-aircraft fighters who were shown briefly, and remarked later, "We'll surely win with boys with Plymouth Rock chins like that." That provided the inspiration for her song, and it has a line, too, about the "Plymouth Rock chin."

Mrs. McCormick is a former member of the motion picture censor board, and is now secretary of the Delphian society.

THE 61st wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney M. Pugh, 8836 Carpenter street, will be celebrated tomorrow with a gathering at their home. Married in North Carolina, they have made their home in Chicago for the last 31 years. They are the parents of 8 grandchildren, grandparents of 14, and great grandparents of 7. One of their grandsons, Harry F. Cuzner Jr., 10209 Yale avenue, is an air cadet in San Antonio, Tex.

Wedding in St. Rita's

In a recent ceremony at St. Rita's church, Miss Louise T. Gay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gay, 6234 South Francisco avenue, was married to Walter F. O'Keefe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis O'Keefe, 4518 Union avenue. [H. Du Bois Photo.]

SOUTHWEST SIDE STUDENTS TAKE LEAD AT ROSARY

Theotokeions Choose Francis Gorman.

Southwest side students at Rosary college are figuring prominently this year in school activities. Miss Frances Gorman, 1118 West Garfield boulevard, has been elected president of Theotokeion, scholastic honor society. The youngest of four sisters to study at Rosary, she is a senior in the department of political science and economics.

Miss Mary Jane Reynolds, 2843 West 39th place, was elected junior member of the student government council. She also is chairman of the ticket committee for the father-daughter dinner being given by the Home Economics club Tuesday evening, and of the refreshments committee for the annual formal ball to be given at the college Saturday, Nov. 7, by the student government association.

Angela Testin Elected.

The secretary of the sophomore class is Miss Mary Wright, 2106 West 101st street, a graduate of the Academy of Our Lady. Representing the sophomore class on the student government board is Miss Bernadette Ward, 1815 West Garfield boulevard. Miss Angela Testin, 10552 Longwood drive, is treasurer of the junior class. She is a student in the art department.

Miss Rosemary Dunne, 1951 West 102d street, is co-chairman of the Sociological society. A co-member of the group is Miss Mary Hultgen, 1518 West Garfield boulevard, a junior.

Freshman Leader.

Activities of the freshman class will be governed by Miss Mary Alice Bush, 9329 Winchester avenue, until elections are held the first of next year. She is co-chairman of the class, a graduate of Visitation High school.

WOMEN TO OPEN DRIVE FOR MORE BOND PURCHASES

Five hundred women this week will begin a house to house canvass of the 110 blocks of the Woodlawn community in a drive to increase the community's war bond pledge in excess of 10 per cent of income.

The drive is the first step in a campaign by the Woodlawn 20 per cent club to boost bond sales. The canvass will be directed by a committee headed by Mrs. Robert Hann. Others are Mrs. W. H. Lawshe, Mrs. William Dustin, and Paul Hoff.

Salvation Army Presented Canteen by Harvey Group

Employés of the Ingalls Sheppard division of Wyman Gordon company, 146th and Wood streets, Harvey, last week presented the Salvation Army with a mobile canteen unit. Lieut. Commissioner J. J. Allan, head of the Salvation Army in the central states, accepted it in behalf of the organization.

Jack Morrow, former editor of the Japan Times and Mail of Tokio and of the Maui News of Hawaii, will speak on "This Japan We Must Conquer" at a meeting of South Side B'nai B'rith lodge at the Shoreland hotel at 8:15 o'clock Wednesday. Mr. Morrow spent 16 years in the east as a soldier, correspondent, and editor. Also on the program will be Abel E. Berland, director of the community service of the Anti-Defamation league, who will discuss his work. Both speakers will answer questions from the floor. Herbert Mintz is program chairman.

Homewood Juniors' Dance to Aid Army-Navy Relief

The army-navy relief fund will benefit from a dance sponsored by the Homewood Junior Woman's club Saturday night at the Ravisloe Country club. Mrs. Ernest Spencer and Mrs. Harrold Vincent will be co-chairmen. Mrs. L. W. Carter, Mrs. Roy Auguston and Mrs. Elwood Cook will assist them.

South Side Cinema Club Will View Prize Films

The South Side Cinema club will present two of Curtis Talbot's prize winning films at its meeting Wednesday evening at the Hamilton park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard. Milton N. Nelson is president of the club; Charles T. Mack, secretary, and Oscar J. Bergman, treasurer.

25 MORE NAMED RATION AIDS ON SOUTHWEST SIDE

Will Facilitate Work on New Allotments.

Twenty-five more southwest siders have been named to both old and newly created rationing boards in anticipation of increased duties this winter, Michael F. Mulcahy, OPA director for the Chicago area, has announced. The boards, which have been alloting tires, tubes, sugar, automobiles and typewriters to Chicagoans eligible under the rationing code, are soon expected to have such commodities as fuel oil, gasoline and meats placed in their jurisdiction.

The new appointees were sworn into office by Mayor Kelly when they assembled in the city hall. The rationing boards are similar to the selective service boards, the members acting as a public service. They receive no compensation.

Appointees in Area.

The new appointees are:

Board 11—John F. McGuane [chairman], 2959 South Halsted street, realtor; Thomas J. Burns, 3636 South Lowe avenue, packing foreman; Stanley P. Mazieka, 3319 South Lithuanica avenue, undertaker; James Meaney, 2937 Lyman street; and Alexander Bukowski, 2850 South Keeley street.

Board 18—Thomas M. Crane, 1560 West 69th street, president of Undertakers association; John I. Lynch, 8000 South Wolcott street, president of Hoisting union; Howard Berdelle, 8047 South Paulina street, realtor; and Henry Vedder, 7944 South Ada street, meat dealer.

Board 19—Lester W. Miner, 10170 South Seeley avenue, vice president of the First National bank; William Waddell, 9641 South Winchester avenue, coal dealer; David J. Hefferman, 9545 South Hamilton avenue, school official; C. M. Johnson, 1523 West 103d street, druggist; Richard Burr, 9925 South Hoyne avenue, retired; and Arthur A. Baer, 9001 South Damen avenue, merchant.

Others on List.

Board 12—Joseph Bigane, 3596 Archer avenue, coal dealer; Albert O. Dallege, 3517 South Hoyne avenue, cement dealer; Justine Mackiewich, 4192 Archer avenue, bank president; Edward Obrzut, 4336 Archer avenue, realtor, and Mrs. Theodore Johnston, 2302 West 35th place, housewife.

Board 17—Max Fenneman, 7323 Lafayette avenue, president of ward community council; L. L. Mulay, 845 Normal boulevard, city editor, City News bureau; and Glenn C. Worst, 7824 South Winchester avenue, principal Calumet High school.

Board 18—Thomas McLaughlin [chairman], 7954 South Hermitage avenue, placement director, Washburne Trade school; Howard D. Evans, 8357 South Peoria street, sales representative; and Albert Dykema, 914 West 73d street, glass dealer.

LINNEA AID SOCIETY TO GIVE CONCERT AT ENGLEWOOD CHURCH

Joseph Cech.

The Linnea Aid society will present its annual fall concert at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Englewood Mission Covenant church, 59th and Carpenter streets. On the program will be the Emanuel Choral society of the Emanuel Bohemian Baptist church, 2520 South Lawndale avenue.

The 55 voice group will be directed by Joseph Cech and accompanied by Grace Ertner and Mildred Oul. Jarmila Boubelik, Charles Tucek, Paul Schmidt and Evelyn Wettersten will give vocal and instrumental solos. Several selections will be read by Minnie Moreland Dow.

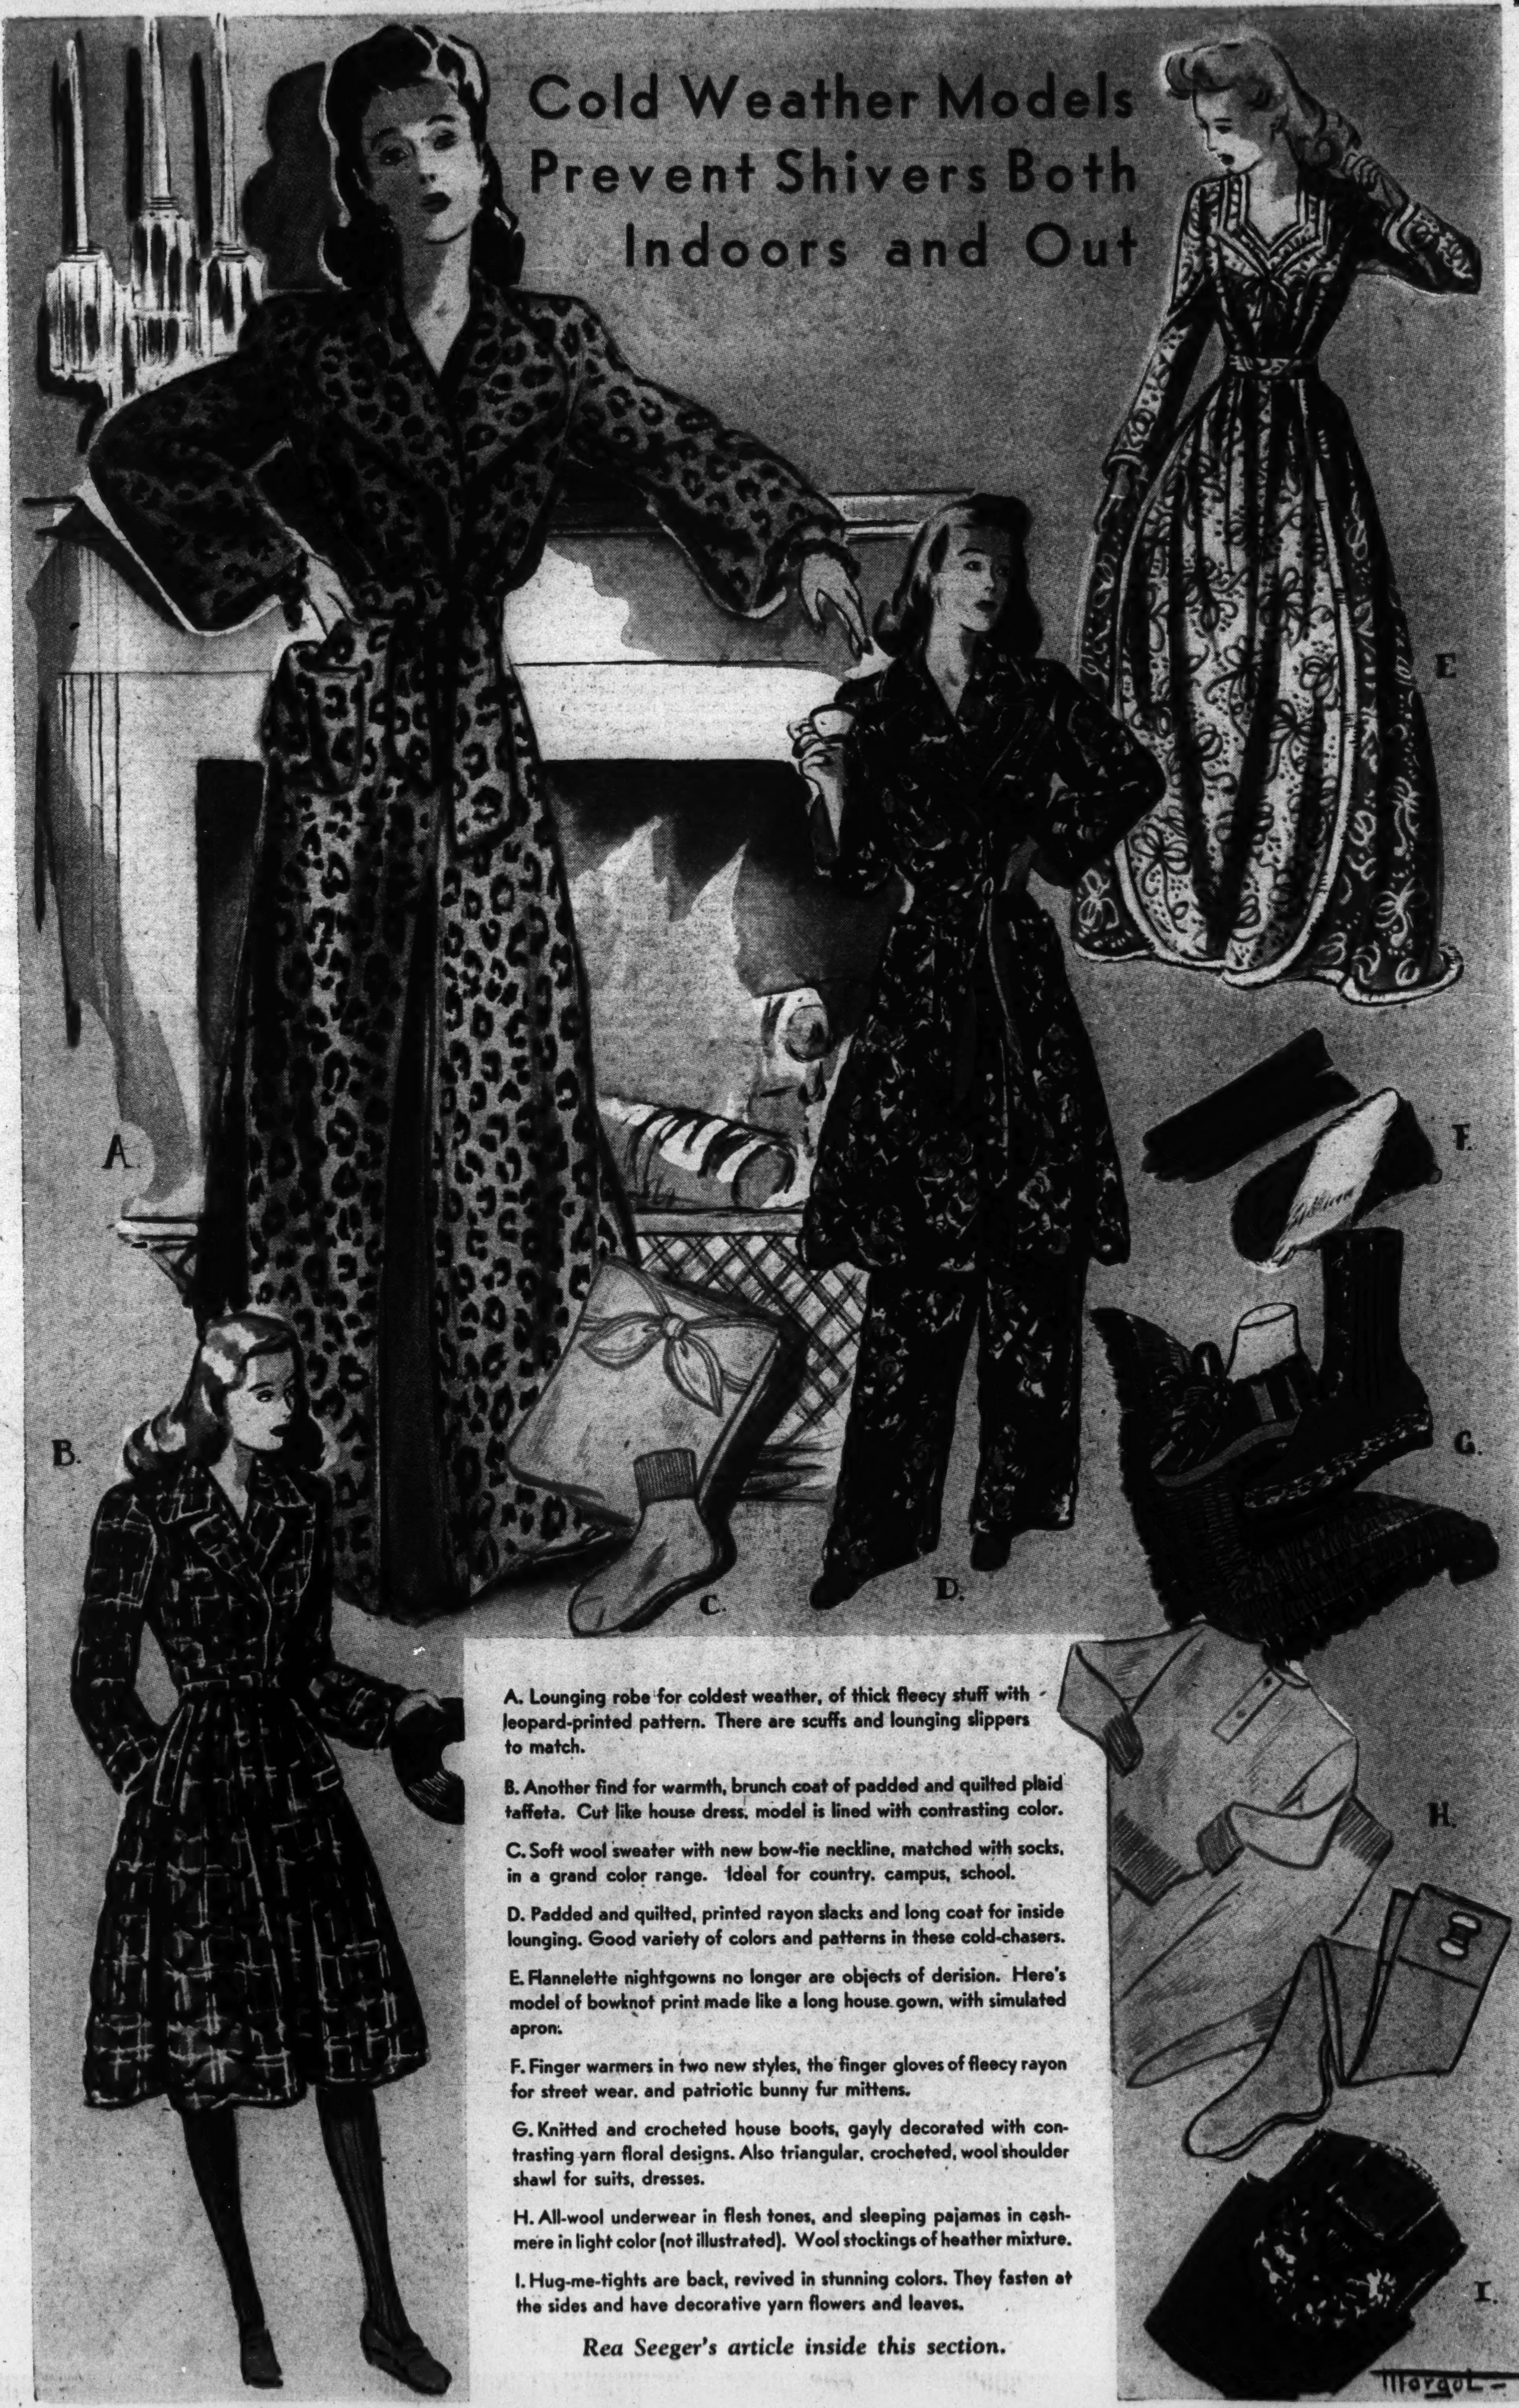
Cold Weather Models Prevent Shivers Both Indoors and Out



A. Lounging robe for coldest weather, of thick fleecy stuff with leopard-printed pattern. There are scuffs and lounging slippers to match.

B. Another find for warmth, brunch coat of padded and quilted plaid taffeta. Cut like house dress, model is lined with contrasting color.

C. Soft wool sweater with new bow-tie neckline, matched with socks, in a grand color range. Ideal for country, campus, school.

D. Padded and quilted, printed rayon slacks and long coat for inside lounging. Good variety of colors and patterns in these cold-chasers.

E. Flannelette nightgowns no longer are objects of derision. Here's model of bowknot print made like a long house gown, with simulated apron.

F. Finger warmers in two new styles, the finger gloves of fleecy rayon for street wear, and patriotic bunny fur mittens.

G. Knitted and crocheted house boots, gayly decorated with contrasting yarn floral designs. Also triangular, crocheted, wool shoulder shawl for suits, dresses.

H. All-wool underwear in flesh tones, and sleeping pajamas in cashmere in light color (not illustrated). Wool stockings of heather mixture.

I. Hug-me-tights are back, revived in stunning colors. They fasten at the sides and have decorative yarn flowers and leaves.

There are two leading men in "The Talk of the Town." Cary Grant, seen here, is one. Ronald Colman is the other. Jean Arthur is the leading lady. Coming to the Apollo soon.

Folk of Catfish Row to Move In at the Studebaker

'Porgy and Bess' Keeps Many of Original Cast

By Cecil Smith.

Fifteen years ago Du Bose and Dorothy Heyward, with the collaboration of the Theater Guild, acquainted the American theatergoing public with Catfish Row and the people who live there. Catfish Row is a street in Charleston, S. C., along the water front, inhabited by humble colored folk whose simple living has not been greatly altered since long before the Civil war.

Georgette Harvey.

It was in a play called "Porgy" that Catfish Row came to life in New York in 1927. The Theater Guild, then in its golden era of imaginative and creative achievement, gave "Porgy" a memorable performance in which the daily life of its characters burst forth into the intense yet spontaneous music of Negro spirituals.

The play made a deep impression upon George Gershwin, whose chief talents until then had been devoted to the composing of bright, incisive scores for up-to-date Broadway musical shows. For a number of years Gershwin pondered over the "Porgy" story. Finally the announcement was made that he had composed a "folk opera" on the Heywards' libretto, and the Theater Guild would undertake the production of the operatic version of its earlier success.

It would be a misstatement to say that "Porgy and Bess," as the opera was called, won an unqualified triumph at its first presentations in New York in 1935 and in Chicago the following year. The general public, unprepared for so serious a vein of thought in Gershwin's music, and perennially convinced that no American opera could be worth listening to, came away with mixed and reserved judgments. At the Erlanger theater here, I am told, the box office was a bit queasy, tho the engagement was by no means a failure.

But soon the fate of "Porgy and Bess" began to take on a more cheerful and positive aspect. Even tho the score had sounded novel and unfamiliar at first hearing, there was something about the tunes that made them stick, something that brought performers and listeners back to them again and again. To the radio must go the principal credit for the fact that the music of "Porgy and Bess" gradually became popular—and, it now seems, enduringly so.

Last year Cheryl Crawford acquired the rights to "Porgy and Bess" and restaged it at the Majestic theater in New York. The revival broke the usual precedent in the case of revivals by attracting much more business, and for a longer period of time, than the original production.

Now after many months of anticipation, "Porgy and Bess" is about to return to Chicago. On Nov. 2 it will relight the Studebaker theater, which has been dark since the exodus of the "Best Foot Forward" youngsters a week ago.

Many of the original performers have returned to the parts they sang in 1935-'36. Todd Duncan, the original Porgy, is back in the cast; his only Chicago appearance since 1936 was in the refreshing "Cabin in the Sky" in the spring of 1941. Georgette Harvey was not only in the first cast of "Porgy and Bess," but also created the part of Maria in "Porgy" itself. Ruby Elzy as Serena, J. Rosamund Johnson as Frazier, Harriett Jackson as Clara, Warren Coleman as the dangerous Crown, Edward Matthews as Jake, and Eva Jessye and her choir were all participants in the original production.

Etta Moten, as Bess, is new to the cast. Gershwin himself wanted her to create the part, but circumstances did not permit, and the rôle went to Anne Brown. Miss Moten studied at the University of Kansas, and later won success on the radio and in the movies. In private life she is the wife of Claude Barnett, editor of the Negro Associated Press. Avon Long is also new as the insouciant Sportin' Life.

Alexander Smallens, the well known American conductor who has directed both Chicago Opera association and Ballet theater performances in this city, will be in the pit. The stage director is Robert Ross. Herbert Andrews designed the settings and Paul du Pont, a former Chicagoan, the costumes.

The American Theater Wing, whose professional members have performed acts of great value to service men, has now extended its membership to include members of nonprofessional theater groups. The famous Stage Door Canteen in New York was conceived by the American Theater Wing, and continues to be operated by them. The activities of the organization receive the enthusiastic blessing of the war department.

Here in Chicago the nonprofessional members of the American Theater Wing are joining in a nation-wide endeavor to raise funds to establish Stage Door Canteens in other cities. Chicago is not among the cities indicated for this effort. Any service man who has been across the continent will tell you that our Service Men's centers already provide more joyous recreation and more adequate facilities than the New York Stage Door Canteen, or than any comparable places of recreation in other large cities.

In order to fulfill its generous purposes toward cities less fortunately equipped than Chicago, the American Theater Wing is asking the coöperation of dramatic groups thruout the country. Here in Chicago a working committee is being formed. Already some groups—Minnie Galatzer's Actors' Company of Chicago among others—have promised to give the proceeds of at least one performance of a play to the cause.

SPANISH DANCER

Argentinita, one of the greatest exponents of the Spanish dance, receives stellar billing in "Priorities of 1942," the vaudeville revue coming to the Erlanger theater on Nov. 2.

Notes of the Theater

"Without Love," Philip Barry's new play with Katharine Hepburn and Elliott Nugent featured, begins a fortnight's engagement — the only pre-Broadway showing—at the Cass theater in Detroit tomorrow evening. The supporting cast includes Audrey Christie, Tony Bickley, Robert Chisholm, Neil Fitzgerald, Sherling Oliver, and Royal Beal. The play is expected in Chicago later in the year, as a probable Theater Guild subscription item.

In "Priorities of 1942," the vaudeville revue opening at the Erlanger theater Nov. 2, a featured comic unknown to Chicago is Gene Sheldon. A native of Columbus, O., he entered show business at 13 when his father, a vaudeville performer, needed a willing subject in a new act presenting an unwonted method of sawing the human body in half. After two years at this he graduated to the ukulele, then to the mandolin, and finally to the banjo. For a time he appeared in an act in which a youngster named Jackie Heller distinguished himself by playing the washboard with tablespoons. Jack Haley gave Sheldon the advice which led to success. "Pick the funniest guy you know, and imitate him," Haley advised. Forthwith Sheldon began to study the technique of Harry Langdon. He won his first stellar successes in London. "Priorities of 1942" was his first big time Broadway assignment.

Samson Raphaelson's "Jason," a comedy about a dramatic critic and a Saroyanlike playwright which was produced in New York last year, will be brought to Chicago's attention Nov. 18 by the Actors' Company of Chicago. Meanwhile "Heaven Can Wait" continues at the theater at 218 South Wabash avenue, with performances Wednesday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings.

The Jewish People's Institute players opened their 33d season last night at 3500 Douglas boulevard with Sylvia Regan's "Morning Star." It will be repeated tonight, tomorrow night, and next Sunday evening. The play, not to be confused with Emlyn Williams' "The Morning Star" of more recent date, was produced in New York in 1940 with Molly Picon as its star. The J. P. I. players claim the Chicago première, in which they are in error, for a small group gave the play in painfully amateurish fashion at Forester's hall in 1941. Your drama editor knows; he was there for one act. The J. P. I. performance, which undoubtedly uncovers more of the merits of the play, has been directed by Jean David.

◆

James Hargis Connelly has received the welcome news that four theater groups in Ohio and Missouri plan to present his mountain comedy, "Rat Holler." Last season Mr. Connelly presented week-end performances of his plays for several weeks in his Kimball building little theater. If "Maid in the Ozarks" is a success at the Great Northern, Mr. Connelly deserved to fill the Civic Opera house for his play.

◆

"The Eve of St. Mark," the new Maxwell Anderson war play which has received the accolades of New York critics, will probably be represented here in a few weeks by a second company. Since the project is still in a preliminary stage, no players have been announced for the cast.

Rumors of plays which may visit Chicago are numerous, but dependable facts are scarce. Henry Duffy, the former Pacific coast producer who has moved his office to Detroit, talks of sending us Joe E. Brown in "The Show Off." The revival of the George Kelly comedy was well received in the motor city. Mr. Duffy is also staging John Van Druten's "Old Acquaintance," with Jane Cowl in her original rôle, and this may also come here if business is good in Detroit.

Also in the offing, mayhap, is a revival of "Topsy and Eva" with the Duncan Sisters, Vivian and Rosetta, in their very own parts. The musical revival expects to begin life in Hollywood almost immediately, and may work its way to Chicago in fairly short order.

Howard Lang, co-producer with Al Rosen of "Good Night, Ladies," the gold mine at the Blackstone, will continue in the producing field single handed. While Rosen goes ahead with plans for a new farce to be known as "Harem Scarem," Lang is giving serious thought to the notion of producing "The Sun Field," Milton Lazarus' dramatization of a novel by Heywood Broun. He is now hunting for some one to play the leading part of a ball player. If he finds the right actor, the play may go into production in a month or two. Incidentally, Lang says that he owns one-half of "Good Night, Ladies." Rosen owns one-sixth, he reports, and the other two-sixths are held by Buddy Ebsen and Skeets Gallagher, stars of the show.

Katherine Cornell's star-studded revival of Chekhoff's "The Three Sisters" will be presented for the first time anywhere at the Cass theater in Detroit on Nov. 16. In addition to Miss Cornell, a spectacular cast includes Judith Anderson, Ruth Gordon, Gertrude Musgrove, Edmund Gwenn, Tom Powers, and McKay Morris. The costumes and settings will be done by Motley of London. Guthrie McClintic will direct.

"The Corn Is Green." If Ethel Barrymore's whereabouts interest you, the following schedule will keep you posted about the wanderings of the star and her company during the next fortnight: Tomorrow, Paramount theater, Toledo; Tuesday and Wednesday, Victory theater, Dayton; Thursday, Shrine auditorium, Fort Wayne; Friday, State theater, Kalamazoo; Saturday, Keith theater, Grand Rapids; Nov. 2, Palace theater, South Bend; Nov. 3, Parkway theater, Madison; Nov. 4-6, Davidson theater, Milwaukee. This is Miss Barrymore's third season in the Emlyn Williams drama.

West Coast Army Show Entitled "Hey, Rookie"

A soldier show modeled in an unassuming way after the famous "This Is the Army," has been presented in Los Angeles by soldiers from Fort McArthur. The title is "Hey, Rookie." One of the featured performers is Pvt. Sterling Holloway, former movie comedian.

CHICAGO PLAYBILLS

CONTINUING:

"Good Night, Ladies," farce by Cyrus Wood, with Buddy Ebsen and Skeets Gallagher; Blackstone theater; 29th week.

"Maid in the Ozarks," mountain comedy by Claire Parrish; Great Northern theater; seventh week.

"Junior Miss," comedy by Jerome Chodorov and Joseph Fields, with Lenore Thomas, Lois Wilson, Harry Ellerbe, and Eddie Nugent; Harris theater; sixth week.

"Spring Again," comedy by Isabel Leighton and Bertram Bloch, with Grace George and C. Aubrey Smith; Selwyn theater; third week. [Second subscription play of American Theater Society and Theater Guild].

COMING:

"Porgy and Bess," folk opera by George and Ira Gershwin and Du Bose Heyward; Studebaker theater; opens Nov. 2.

"Priorities of 1942," variety show with Argentinita, Lou Holtz, Willie Howard, Hank Ladd, and Bert Wheeler; Erlanger theater; opens Nov. 2.

"Arsenic and Old Lace," comedy by Joseph Kesselring, with Boris Karloff, Jean Adair and Josephine Hull; Selwyn theater; opens Nov. 9.

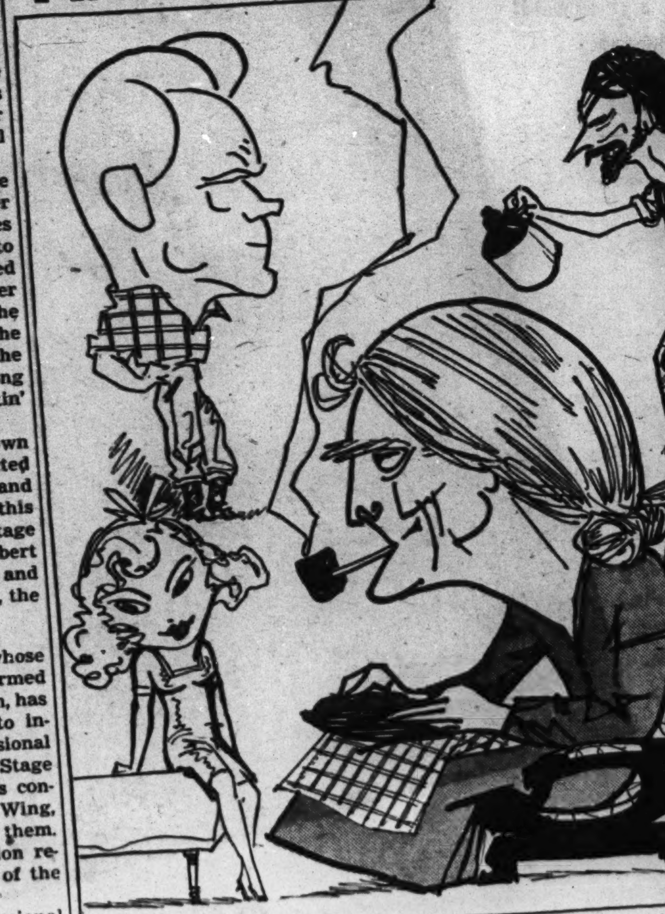
"This Is the Army," all-soldier show with music by Irving Berlin; Civic Opera house; opens Jan. 4 for two weeks.

SUB-PROFESSIONAL:

"Heaven Can Wait," comedy by Harry Segall; presented by the Actors Company of Chicago, 218 South Wabash avenue, on Wednesday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings.

"Morning Star," drama by Sylvia Regan; presented tonight, tomorrow, and next Sunday evenings by Jewish People's Institute players, 3500 West Douglas boulevard.

PRIMITIVES OF OZARKS



"Maid in the Ozarks" deals with life and love in primitive Arkansas. Seen here are Valeria Fisher as "Gram" Calhoun, Jenny Stevens as a city girl, Temple Calhoun, and hillbilly Cypress Young, played by Robert Dale, and Burman Bodel. It's at the Great Northern.

[Drawing by Ben Cohen.]

Paul Robeson Appearance in "Othello" Is Delayed

Paul Robeson's projected stage appearance in Shakespeare's "Othello" will probably be put over into next year. Mr. Robeson's concert schedule is so heavy that he cannot find time to undertake the play this winter or spring, as had been hoped originally.

Germans Invade Vermont in Wylie-Geiger Drama

An imagined Nazi invasion of Vermont furnishes the subject matter of "Bed Rock," a new play by Max Wylie and Milton Geiger, scheduled for production on Broadway. The invaders run afoul of descendants of Ethan Allen.

A Powerful Tale: War in GrandCanyon

"GRAND CANYON," by V. Sackville-West. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50.]

Reviewed by John Frederick Nims.

Miss Sackville-West's first novel in eight years is intended to be "a cautionary tale." She imagines the world as it might be a few years from now—a world in which Germany has already defeated Great Britain. The United States, having humbled Japan, and reluctant to continue fighting alone against a Europe united under Hitler, falls into the same Nazi trap that was successful at Munich: The United States government is flattered into signing the pact of Berlin and collaborating with Germany "in the name of humanity"—a collaboration thru which is destroyed the last country in which "humanity" might survive.

For the Germans rapidly construct an elaborate system of air bases in South America and Mexico, from which thousands of bombers can be launched against American cities, those of the midwest as well as those of the coastal areas, and from which thousands of transport planes can set out to unload Jap and German soldiers on unprotected sections of the western plains.

The action of the novel begins just before the vast air armadas of the axis are loosed without warning on the United States. Since it combines the violence and peace, the catastrophe and quiet of nature, the Grand canyon is an effective locale; more than that, it is a symbol of the great cities of our civilization and of the gulf that divides men and brings them to battle. In this book, it is also a kind of Shangri-la, a realm of weirdness and wonder deep in the earth, into which men can escape to become spectators of the crawling armies and the darkened sky.

As a cautionary tale, Miss Sackville-West's novel is effective and graphic. Perhaps not terrifying—because Mr. Dale and Mrs. Temple, her central observers, have lost themselves in an attitude which, if not indifferent, is at least detached, insulated by temperament and experience. They have seen war and defeat in England; the state of mind they bring to America is one of elegant fatigue and contrived resignation.

When the German planes come over, Mr. Dale, Mrs. Temple, and several other guests of the canyon hotel escape, thru explosions, to the depths of the canyon, where they later learn, by radio, of the terrible attacks on scores of American cities, the landing of army after army on the unprotectable plains, the devastating assault on New York by sea and air and its final destruction by earthquake. The whole axis attack is violent, fantastic—and possible. You have read the papers: De te fabula. These pages are likely to be salutary reading for the preaviation mind that likes to believe isolation possible in a world where oceans can no longer isolate.

While America is being leveled, strange things are happening to the little band in the canyon. They lead a kind of unreal, idyllic life; an aviator crashes on the rocks, falls unmarked, and revives in the arms of the girl he loves. A blind man recovers his sight; a deaf man, his hearing. Sadie, the consumptive maid, is sick no longer. One of the excellences of the book [always excellent technically] is the subtlety and surprise with which certain aspects of the story are brought out in the final sections. An old trick, perhaps, but managed here with restraint and freshness.

It is apparent that the author goes well beyond her stated purpose. She is not only urging us never to make a compromise-peace with a still powerful enemy; she is also investigating the nature of war among men and the possibility of preventing it. But the devotees of curative politics, her answers will be without interest. They are traditional: Life is and always will be a fight against evil and folly, whether it passes under the name of Hitler or of some other. There is hope for man, but only beyond this world of splendor and of horror: "Is it indeed necessary that man should die in order to uncover the meaning of life? It seems so . . ."

Simple, rich, and what many will think profound in content, easy and controled in technique—this book yet leaves me with a sense of incomplete satisfaction. Purposes seem a little confused, answers a little facile and unexplored, character a little weary and inducing weariness. Excellently done as this book is, it nevertheless confirms my feeling that fantasy is the method of entertainment and escape, not the method of earnestness and courage. For me, Peter Pan loses a good deal of charm when he becomes Peter Panzer.

Norma Ashe: She Tried to Rekindle Life

"NORMA ASHE," by Susan Glaspell. [Lippincott, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan.

Probably a great many readers will be comforted and uplifted by this book, because its story is one of valiant and unconquerable idealism and its theme—roughly, "be all that you can be for the sake of others"—is perhaps especially pertinent in such times of disunity and violence as these in which we live.

But, despite approval of its purpose and sympathy with its theme, one can hardly call "Norma Ashe" a first rate achievement in novel making. As a book it is top-heavy with message. And at times even the message suffers from vague and misty expression.

"Norma Ashe" is the story of its title figure, whom the reader meets for the first time as the almost middle aged widow of Max Utterbach. Impoverished, and generally beaten down by the exigencies of running a third rate boarding house, Norma Ashe Utterbach is turning into a sharp and shrewish old woman.

In the midst of her worries about the coal bill and her daughter and her son and a dozen other things including a leaky roof and boarders who want to cook in their rooms, she is visited unexpectedly by a disillusioned but still hopeful friend of her youth, who has sought her out deliberately on the chance that Norma may be able to rekindle in her the flame of a rather mysterious youthful ardor—idealism, enthusiasm, faith, it might go by any of these names—which at one time had burned bright in them both.

Norma, realizing that she has lost the gift which her friend had hoped to find in her, tries to look back and discover what has happened to her, when, how, and why she has changed; she tries to relocate the radiant and young Norma Ashe whom her friend remembered.

This first part of the novel is honest and convincing work. Norma Utterbach is more real here, more authentic in her misery, than Norma Ashe with her schoolgirlish idealism is convincing in the long flashback which follows. In this flashback we follow Norma from her graduation from college, thru her marriage to the prosperous, unscrupulous, go-getting Max Utterbach, to the poverty which follows his death. Her love for Max dominates this period of her life, altho it is in strong conflict with her urgent [if vague] idealism.

Susan Glaspell does not define exactly her central character's idealism. It is a gift, a secret, a light, a vision of truth. Perhaps it is deliberately left vague, so that it may be all things to all men.

There is a very real nobility in the book. But perhaps it is explicit where it should have been implicit. A novel, basically, is a story about people doing things. And out of the people and their deeds should rise, naturally, like fragrance from the earth, whatever meaning the total experience has in it. Surely there is meaning in the experience of Norma Ashe.

Editor Won't Let Fleeting Tempus Fugit

By Charles Henry Hamilton.

Richmond, Va.

Some men try vainly to make two blades of grass grow where one grew before, but Dr. Douglas Southall Freeman has achieved a more difficult feat: he lives two days for every one marked on the calendar.

This was brought out more forcibly than ever thru publication of his latest work—"Lee's Lieutenants: A Study in Command"—by Scribner's on Oct. 19. Dr. Freeman is author of the 1934 Pulitzer prize winner, "R. E. Lee," a four volume work. His "Lee" is often called America's greatest biography and it has had the largest sale of any work of its class.

A newspaper editor for 30 years, Dr. Freeman daily produces 11 editorials for the Richmond News Leader. A list of his published works would include numerous magazine articles: "The South to Posterity," a book on southern historical sources; "The Last Parade," "Reports on Virginia Taxation," "Virginia—A Gentle Dominion," "Lee's Dispatches" and other books and articles.

His books are distinguished by painstaking research and by voluminous footnotes and indices.

Dr. Freeman's associates long ago concluded that his enormous capacity for work was due to some superhuman ability, but the Richmond editor denies that.

"No one should envy me," he says. "I simply have worked twice as hard as most men are willing to work."

Dr. Freeman early decided that by doing two days' work each day he could realize his ambitions. He has done that for 30 years and now, in his middle 50s, he packs 200 pounds on a 6 foot frame and sees no slow-up ahead. Sometimes he thinks he is slowing up a little, physically, but then he walks 5 miles a day, or 10, and reassures himself.

It is no figure of speech to say that he works two days in each 24 hours. He arrives at his office at 4:40 a. m.. He goes thru the Associated Press report and prepares several editorials by 8:10. Then comes a conference with key men on the news staff. At 8:25 the conference breaks up and at 8:27 Dr. Freeman is on his way to station WRNL, just across an areaway. At 8:30 he is on the air with a 15 minute report on international news. At 8:50 he is back at his desk where he finishes his editorials. At 10 o'clock he visits the composing room to make up the editorial page.

Then he returns to his office, studies a mass of articles and reports, dictates to his secretary, and begins his day's voluminous hard reading. From 10:30 until he leaves, his secretary schedules visitors, and on some days his calendar is full. At 12:30 o'clock the city editor gives a digest of local news. About 12:45 Dr. Freeman signs his letters, takes a last look at the news report, and at 1 o'clock is on the air for another 15 minute discussion of the news. Then he goes home to lunch, and one of his "days" is over.

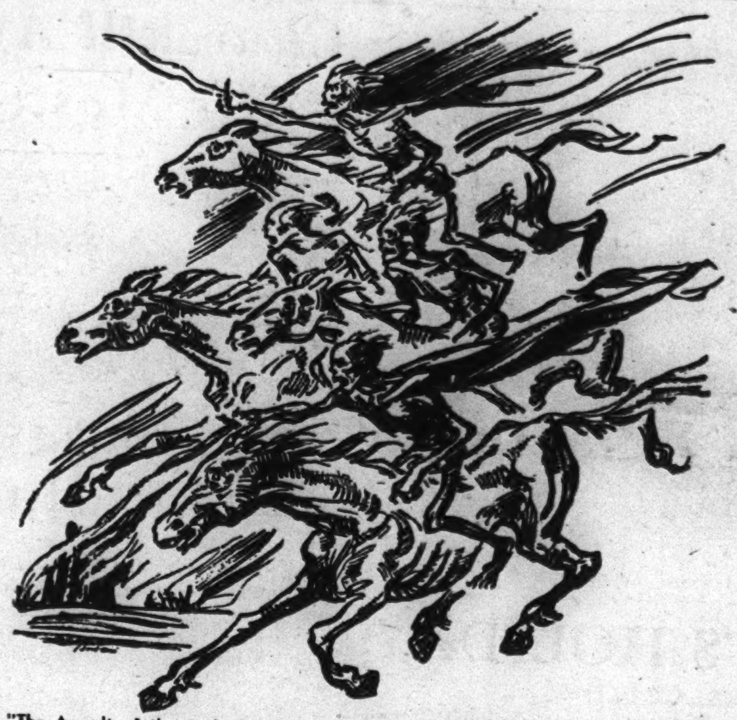
After lunch he takes off his clothes and goes to bed. He may sleep 15 minutes, or possibly as much as an hour—never longer. The main thing is to relax and lose consciousness.

"Then I get up, refreshed," he says, "and I start a new day."

After lunch he digs into the literary task at hand, allows himself time for a brisk hike along the roads bordering his imposing estate and has dinner with his family around 6 o'clock. He has two daughters, one married and one away at school, and there is a broad shouldered, 6 foot 2 inch 17 year old son.

Normally, there is a brief period of conversation, and then Dr. Freeman gets back to his literary labors. Usually he is sound asleep by 9 p. m.



"The Assault of the Barbarians," from "THE MEDITERRANEAN: Saga of a Sea," by Emil Ludwig. (Whittlesey House.)

Halper Gives Chicago a Keen Going Over in "Little People"

things happen to average people. Only one thing makes those people, or those events important — the affectionate accuracy of the author in telling about them. The excitement the employés feel, even the humblest, at moving into the new, streamlined store on Michigan boulevard is shared by the reader. It is finely expessed by John Narhigian, the Armenian shipping clerk, who goes around looking at the stainless steel, the lights, the glass, muttering, "America! . . . What a great, genius country! . . . It's the wonderful!"

The conversation of the people is the best part of the book. In it their individual natures are strictly differentiated. And in it the quality of their lives is wholly uttered. That is because, as Halper says in a note on the jacket, "These are the people who have never learned to fake their language because their language is a living lingo."

The weakest portions of the book are the narrative and descriptive passages. There is something very much like Dreiser's early writing here, in which the intention was terrifically honest and the style terrifically awkward. There is the same powerful concern for getting the people down on the page correctly, and what seems almost an unconcern for getting the words down on the page with any care for the sound and form they make there. Toward the end of the book, as the emotional level heightens, Halper writes one of the best scenes, in which the rugged hatter, Oscar Bresslin, and the young girl, Helen, haltingly tell their love while fighting westward along freezing streets in a snowstorm.

Yet at this same moment the author can find no more intense or uncommon way of describing Oscar's state of mind than these dull, confused, and unconvincing sentences: "Life's great decisions were at stake. A heroic breeze blew thru the hatter, cleaning out the cobwebs of his middle aged, frayed, and half mast hopes. Now was the time; this was the moment! Oscar felt himself swept up, like a cork on a great bounding wave."

The book is good in spite of lapses like that. It is good because there are people in it like Roosty, the wrapper, who howls and whistles whenever the day gets chaotic and tense and clerks quarrel and the plumbing breaks. There is the elevator boy, Al, surely one of the most genuine characters I have seen in American fiction for a long time. Moving as he does from floor to floor, he is the relater of gossip for the whole store. He swoops into the basement, opens the door, steps forward, and announces, in a loud voice, one detail about the newly hired and handsome clerk upstairs: "Latest bulletin! Ladies are falling in the aisles! . . . I'll be back in a flash with a flash! I remain your State street correspondent; please stand by!"

At the end the reader is grateful to see how unaffectedly the final sections are written. There is no forcing of event to emphasize sorrow. The man actually marries the woman and, knowing them both as well as we do, we can expect them to have a certain happiness together. There's no slick stuff in it. Nor is there, over the whole scheme and execution of the book, any high degree of imagination which might have made it a profound novel.

But there is a care for the particular detail and the rightness of the many lives that is almost imaginative. And there are at times whole paragraphs and pages of writing as clean and sudden and American as: ". . . and when you come out on the sidewalk your grin fades and the evening melts in your mouth like that thin cotton candy you used to eat in your childhood."

Beattie Tells of War in Making

after the great defeat on the continent all was changed, and Britain began to work as she had never worked before, producing war materials while she trained her home guards with broomsticks and toy cannon.

In the later chapters the author tells absorbing stories of the heroism of the Britons under the aerial blitz, and of the miracle men who make up the RAF. His evidence indicates that the Germans actually were ready to invade an unarmed Britain in the late summer of 1940, and would have made the attempt if their invasion fleets had not been smashed in the harbors by the flyers from the island.

When the time comes to write the inclusive history of this war, books like Beattie's should prove a grand gift to the historian; he knows and has expressed the opinions—good, bad, and indifferent—of the millions in Europe who suffer and fight on and will not be defeated.

Churchill Again Proves Mastery

hell [as I am sure that would be necessary in any balanced system]. It is not his duty to set up a new order or to create a new heart in the human breast."

And he rises to classical heights of eloquence when fundamental human values are at stake. The eulogy of his predecessor, who has humiliated Churchill like no other man did, is a masterpiece of moderation, taste and style.

As to the verdict of history, that "with its flickering lamp stumbles along the trail of the past": "The only guide to a man is his conscience; the only shield to his memory is the rectitude and sincerity of his actions." What of appeasement Churchill fought against tooth and nail? "It fell to Neville Chamberlain in one of the supreme crises of the world to be contradicted by events, to be disappointed in his hopes, and to be deceived and cheated by a wicked man."

Here is a book from which a great deal of "political science" can be learned.

How Frederick Stock Prepared for Music Career

Devoted Long Hours to Learn Art of Mastering the Violin

[This is the first of a series of articles about Frederick August Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, who died last Tuesday.]

By Cecil Smith.

In order to know and understand the life of Frederick Stock it is necessary to look back over the career of a young music student at Cologne conservatory in the '80s and '90s.

In the year 1886 a youngster of 13, full of the love of music and willing to work day and night to advance himself in his command of the art, came to the historic cathedral city to enroll himself as a student of violin in the conservatory, which was then one of the most famous and admired music schools in Europe. As is so often the case with the most talented music students, Frederick Stock possessed more talent and enthusiasm than money.

But he was no more afraid of hard work 56 years ago than he was when he conducted his last concerts a few days before his death, and he set himself the difficult task of attending to his studies in the daytime hours and picking up a living in off hours. Modern students, who often think themselves ill-used when they are required to attend 12 or 15 hours of classes a week, would stagger and collapse if they were required to keep up the scholastic pace of Cologne conservatory in those earnest years.

Apart from his special study of the violin, the future conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra was subjected to a most rigorous discipline in musical theory, composition, and analysis. It was a major crime to cut classes, and young Stock, like his colleagues, kept his nose to the grindstone—except for those rare but memorable occasions when ebullient spirits led to the unpermitted luxury of skipping a class, a lapse of behavior which required the invention of some excuse plausible enough to be accepted by the stern instructor.

As he advanced in the conservatory's course of study, perfecting his command of the violin, Frederick Stock was given a chair in the municipal orchestra. Altho this was classed as professional employment, neither the hours nor the pay would meet with union approval nowadays. The orchestra filled the double function of playing symphonic concerts and officiating in the pit at operatic performances. By his ninth year at Cologne, the young violinist had gained an extensive acquaintance with both orchestral and operatic music, an acquaintance which was to serve him well in his later career.

While the musicians of Cologne in the '90s represent names unknown to Americans today—except for Engelbert Humperdinck, one of Mr. Stock's teachers, who was working on the score of "Hansel and Gretel" at that very time—a number of celebrated composers and conductors made guest appearances upon occasion. One of these was Richard Strauss, who arrived to direct a performance of his newest work, "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks," during Mr. Stock's last year in Cologne.

In 1895 Theodore Thomas visited Cologne. The eminent conductor had then been in charge of the newly organized Chicago orchestra for four years. During his summer vacation in Europe he had hired a few new players for Chicago. By the time he reached Cologne he had obtained all the players he needed. But Mr. Stock, undaunted by Thomas' lack of interest in still another violinist, managed to obtain an audition. Thomas was so impressed that he immediately invited Mr. Stock to come to Chicago as a member of the violin section of the orchestra.

Since Mr. Stock was in his usual impoverished condition, Thomas gave him money for his steamship ticket. So great was the young violinist's jubilation, however, that he spent virtually all of the money on a lavish celebration of his impending adventure to the new world. Fortunately he was able to persuade Thomas to make a further advance, and under cover of night he crept away from Cologne in greatest secrecy. His contract with the Cologne orchestra had not expired, and at 22 he could devise no way of abrogating it except to leave without warning.

After a third class steamship voyage and a train trip out to the unfamiliar middle west, Mr. Stock reached Chicago shortly before the opening of the fifth season of the Chicago orchestra. To his dismay, Thomas' ardor seemed to have cooled, and the newcomer was informed that there was, after all, no opening for a violinist. But could he play the viola? If so, he could have a place in the viola section.

Mr. Stock had never played the viola in his life. But since it was a matter of staving off starvation, he professed a thoro knowledge of the instrument. Thomas will never know the truth, he reasoned, for I will be put at the back stand, and he will not notice when I fumble and miss the notes. Whereupon he hunted out one of the members of the viola section and borrowed a spare instrument.

The first rehearsal came along, and where do you suppose Mr. Stock found himself seated? In the second row, directly behind the first stand, where Thomas could keep his eye on the newcomer and fully judge his abilities!

And so, under these unpromising circumstances, Frederick Stock's association with the Chicago Symphony orchestra began.

[Another article on Mr. Stock will appear in next Sunday's Chicago Tribune.]

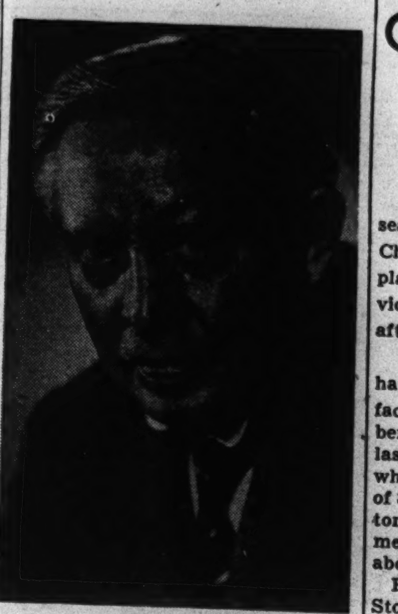
Rosenthal Birthday Concert on December 18

Moriz Rosenthal will celebrate his 80th birthday Dec. 18 as guest of honor at a jubilee concert to be given by well known artists at Hunter college auditorium, New York City. The Polish pianist made his formal debut in Vienna in 1876.



Dr. Frederick Stock.

Guest Conductors With Philharmonic for a Busy Season

Having started its 101st season, with Arturo Toscanini back on the Carnegie hall podium, the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra has six other conductors on its busy schedule. Bruno Walter will conduct for six weeks, divided over three periods of two weeks each, and will end the season with three performances of Bach's St. Matthew's Passion, in an English translation by Henry S. Drinker of Philadelphia.

Artur Rodzinski will present a complete performance of Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," featuring Jarmila Novotna, René Maison, Ezio Pinza, and the Westminster chorus—the second major Berlioz work of the season. Mr. Toscanini opened his concerts with the rarely heard "Romeo and Juliet."

Dimitri Mitropoulos, previously announced as conductor of Roy Harris' Folk Song Symphony, also will direct the world première of Ernst Krenek's "I Wonder As I Wander," a set of variations on a South Carolina folk song. The Greek conductor will make his New York debut as pianist, playing Prokofieff's third concerto.

Fritz Reiner, who had listed William Schumann's Prayer for Freedom, adds the Shostakovich sixth symphony and the world première of Béla Bartok's concerto for two pianos, to be played by the composer and his wife. John Barbirolli, taking over in February, plans to contribute Scriabin's "Prometheus" and Debussy's Fantasie for piano and orchestra.

SINGS IN OPERA NOV. 14

Kerstin Thorborg, celebrated Swedish contralto, who will make her debut with the Chicago Opera company when she sings Amneris in "Aida" at the Civic opera house Saturday afternoon, Nov. 14. The cast also holds Dusolina Giannini, Giovanni Martinelli, Lawrence Tibbett and Virgilio Lazzari.

Orchestra, Mourning Stock, to Carry on Wartime Season

By Claudia Cassidy.

The death of Frederick Stock was a stunning blow to the opening of a season struggling courageously to sustain music in time of World war. The Chicago Symphony orchestra will go on with this week's programs as planned, with Hans Lange conducting Brahms' Tragic Overture and Shostakovich's Seventh Symphony Tuesday afternoon, Thursday night, and Friday afternoon at Orchestra hall.

Any one who knew Mr. Stock will need no reassurance that he would have preferred death in action to life in retirement—or even work in the face of diminishing powers. I remember vividly his grief and shock at the last tragic appearance of Paderewski, who made his farewell, a broken man of 80, in disastrous recital at the Auditorium. Out of that experience he told me a story, which is now my favorite about both great men.

Half a century ago, when Frederick Stock was a young violinist in the Cologne orchestra, a brilliant young pianist with a nimbus of fiery hair arrived to appear as soloist. That was the first meeting of Frederick Stock and Ignace Jan Paderewski.

A few years later, when Theodore Thomas had persuaded Stock to come to Chicago and into the viola section of our orchestra, Paderewski came like a comet, again as soloist. Stock told Thomas of their previous meeting, and Thomas arranged another. "I was not at all sure Paderewski would remember me," said Stock, "but the minute I walked up to him he smiled and said, 'Ah, the boy from Cologne.'"

So the years went by and the one became the most popular of pianists, the other one of the most distinguished among conductors. Many a time they appeared on the same stage to share applause. Stock visited him in his political palace in Switzerland and shook his head over the magnificence, complete with peacocks, that surrounded "that simple man."

Then, in 1940, a sick old man, his once flaming hair a silver aureole, walked feebly on the Auditorium stage and played a sad recital, because he needed the money. Sitting in a box, Frederick Stock suffered agonies for his old friend. But a trouper is a trouper, and when the concert was over, Stock went to pay his respects at Paderewski's dressing room.

"There he sat," he told me, "that broken old man, worn out, tragic, knowing he had reached the end. But when he saw me at the door, he smiled, and his eyes filled with tears, 'Ah,' he said, 'the boy from Cologne.'"

Little by little, plans for the Chicago Opera season dribble out of headquarters at the Civic Opera house. Josephine Tuminia, coloratura soprano, who appeared with the company in 1940 as Gilda in "Rigoletto," has been reëngaged.

The first week's repertoire, assembled at long last, looks like this:

Opening night, Nov. 7, at 8—Délibès' "Lakme," in nonsubscription performance, with Lily Pons, Anna Kaskas, Raoul Jobin, and Alexander Kipnis. Patricia Bowman, newly signed première danseuse, will appear with Ruth Page, ballet director, and Vera Mirova, guest artist, in a ballet which apparently intends to featherstitch the oriental with a touch of "les pointes."

Monday, Nov. 9, at 8—Verdi's "Rigoletto," with Josephine Antoine, Anna Kaskas, Jan Kiepura, John Charles Thomas, and Nicola Moscona [debut].

Wednesday, Nov. 11, at 8—Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," with Lily Pons, James Melton, Richard Bonelli, and Virgilio Lazzari.

Friday, Nov. 13, at 8—Board of education series opens with Flotow's "Martha," in English, with Josephine Antoine, Coe Glade, James Melton, and Douglas Beattie.

Saturday, Nov. 14, at 2—Verdi's "Aïda," with Dusolina Giannini, Kerstin Thorborg [debut], Giovanni Martinelli, Lawrence Tibbett, and Virgilio Lazzari. This marks Mr. Tibbet's first Chicago appearance as Amonasro.

Saturday, Nov. 14, at 8—Gounod's "Faust," with Licia Albanese singing her first Marguerite in Chicago, with a cast including Richard Crooks as Faust, Richard Bonelli as Valentine, Nicola Moscona as a new Mephistopheles, and the Chicago mezzo, Margery Mayer, as Siebel.

No conductors are listed, but Fortune Gallo announces the return of William Wymetal as stage director, with Louis Raybaut as stage manager, assisted by Philip Fein.

Meanwhile, the opera company has given contracts to its 1942 audition winners, Gladys Zeiher, 19 year old mezzo-soprano, and Bruce Foote, 32 year old baritone. Both will appear with the company during the five week season, and both are privileged to attend all rehearsals and all performances.

Chicago's two major series of recitals are about to begin their eighth subscription seasons. Claudio Arrau, the Chilean pianist, opens the musical arts piano series at Orchestra hall Nov. 3, after a private performance at the Arts club Nov. 1. Recently dubbed "Hijo Predilecto," which seems to mean "Beloved son of Mexico," Mr. Arrau will devote his program to music of Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Debussy, and Ravel. He will be followed on that remarkably low priced series [$1.50 to $5 on subscription] by Artur Schnabel, who arrives Dec. 1 to play two Mozart sonatas and two posthumous Schubert sonatas. Other artists include: Dorothy Crost, contest winner, Jan. 5; Rosalyn Tureck, Feb. 2; Guiomar Novaes, March 2; Rudolf Serkin, March 16.

The History and Enjoyment of Music series [when will it drop that outmoded title?] starts at the Civic Opera house Sunday afternoon, Nov. 8, with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, featuring Robert Casadesus, brilliant French pianist, playing Liszt's concerto in A. Our own orchestra jumped in to replace the Philadelphia orchestra, forced by travel priorities to cancel its tour.

Other attractions on this brilliant list are Fritz Kreisler, violinist, Nov. 15; Marian Anderson, contralto, Nov. 29; Vronsky and Babin, duo pianists, with Gregor Piatigorsky, cellist, Dec. 13; Rise Stevens, mezzo-soprano, Jan. 17; Minneapolis Symphony orchestra under the direction of Dimitri Mitropoulos, with Yehudi Menuhin, violinist, Jan. 31; Ballet Theater, Feb. 25; Artur Rubinstein, pianist, March 14. All concerts are on Sunday afternoons, except the engagement of Ballet Theater, which takes place on a Thursday night.

The subscription sale for this series just closed with more than 3,100 season tickets sold. Tickets for individual concerts go on sale at the Civic Opera house tomorrow.

Lily Pons will appear in "Lakme" in the opening night performance of the Chicago opera season on Nov. 7.

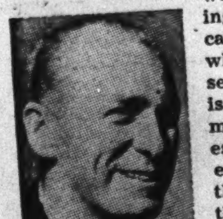
Tauno Hannikainen has been appointed conductor of the Duluth Symphony orchestra. He replaces Capt. Paul Le May, who was called into service with the army air corps.

"Beat the Band" Familiar but Cast Is Good

Players Come from Radio, Night Clubs

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK—[Special].—We have had the not unusual experience this week of welcoming a new musical comedy in which the presenting company is individually much more interesting than the entertainment they offer. It is the cast that saves the bacon for me, so far as George Abbott's "Beat the Band" is concerned. But this may be true because I happen to be the fellow who doesn't care much for jive music. Sometimes I am convinced that if I were never again to see and hear a hot orchestra throw out its stomachs in place of its chests and drift casually into what is known as a jam session I should still rest content.



George Abbott.

"Beat the Band" is the story of a hot band leader's adventure. His daffy brother substitutes his [the band boy's] name for that of a gentleman who is expecting a goddaughter from the Caribbean. The goddaughter arrives; she is pretty and sings; she is devilish and flirts, and there are complications. A familiar stage story, as you may see, and unworthy the George Marion Jr. who wrote it and also wrote "Too Many Girls." Mr. Marion may in turn reply that his producer, Mr. Abbott, also had a hand in the writing, but I don't imagine he will. Authors seldom try to shift the blame to their producers.

To accompany the story Mr. Abbott employed Johnny Green, who also is an orchestra leader and who fairly flourishes on jive and orchestral jam sessions. I will confess the first night audience was more in Mr. Green's groove than mine. One of his numbers is entitled "Steam on the Beam," being played in the furnace room of a New York hotel, and for this there was sustained applause. Despite the steam I remained unheated and unresponsive.

But I was impressed with the cast of youthful newcomers to the Broadway stage that Mr. Abbott has picked out of various night clubs and radio programs. Formerly aspiring youngsters approached this theater capital by way of western stock companies or by making long tours with second companies playing established hits. Now night clubs and the soap operas of the air have replaced these training schools.

The heroine of "Beat the Band" is Susan Miller. Marilyn Miller is her real name, I've been told, but she dropped the Marilyn because it sounded phony. It probably represented a mother's devotion to the first star of that name. Susan is still in her late teens, blonde, modestly soprano, and definitely attractive. She has been around quite a bit with mother. Out in the picture country she was among those who supported Charles Boyer and Margaret Sullavan in "Appointment for Love." She has had her experiences singing in Earl Carroll's Hollywood revue in Hollywood and on Rudy Vallee's broadcast. She was doing a vaudeville bit when Master Abbott decided she was the girl he was writing for. Of course all this adventuring has given Susan a somewhat sophisticated air, but she still is more appealing than most of her young jive age sisters.

• • •

The chief comedian is Jerry Lester. He, it appears from his confessions, majored in philosophy at Northwestern university, where the Messrs. Olson and Johnson majored in having fun. Jerry has come up by way of the night clubs and a flyer or two in such revue shows as Earl Carroll's lesser "Vanities." Jerry is still searching for the right groove for his stage talents. It isn't easy for your intimate comic, used to working on a dance floor or over the air, to take on a stage assignment, but they learn.

COMING TO BLACKSTONE

Beautiful Renee De Marco brings her dancing unit to the Mayfair room of the Blackstone hotel Friday for a limited engagement.

[Seymour Photo.]

There are five or six others in the "Beat the Band" cast making their Broadway stage bows. Some you have no doubt heard or seen. Romo Vincent, a husky fellow from the University of Chicago, who sings; Marc Platt, who used to be a ballet dancer and called himself Marc Platoff, a very good ballet dancer, too; Toni Gilman, a pretty girl who has been wasting her beauty before the microphone; Johnny Mack and Leonard Sues, a drummer and a trumpeter from the "Name Band" group. Johnny is a tap dancer, but Leonard sticks to his trumpet. They are both good. Wise of Mr. Abbott to go into the byways searching for talent. He still has Jack Whiting as his anchor man.

• • •

Personality scored again this week when Molly Picon took over the Jolson theater in upper 7th avenue near Central park, renamed it the Molly Picon theater, and began showing there a cavalcade of her stage life. Frankly Molly, who has long been an idol of the Yiddish stage, admits that when she was a "wee mite of a girl" she sang for a Yiddish manager at the Arch street theater in Philadelphia and was advised to forget the stage and learn to do something useful.

Molly Picon.

Molly is considerably less wee than she was 32 years ago, but she is still active and as buoyant of spirit as she ever was. It is her buoyancy that endears her to her public. She sings character songs with a nice feeling for character and a serviceable voice.

She went to Boston from Philadelphia, according to the cavalcade, where she met and married Jacob Kalich, Yiddish actor and producer. He has written most of her plays since then. He took her to Europe to polish her technique and perfect her speech. She came home some years later and was an immediate success in 2d avenue. Once she thought she had rather play in English. They found a play for her called "Morning Star," not bad, but not good enough. So Molly went back to 2d avenue.

The death the same week of Effie Ellsler in Hollywood and of Marie Tempest in London had nothing more in common than that they were two greatly beloved actresses in their day, one in America, the other in Britain.

Miss Ellsler was 87, a star of your grandmother's day if granny was old enough. In the early '80s she played the heroine of a drama about an abused heroine named "Hazel Kirke," and for many years after that the play served her as "The Old Homestead" served Denman Thompson and as "Shore Acres" served James A. Herne. She came back to the stage in her later years to play in the two year run of "The Bat," and out west she had small parts in a couple of pictures.

Marie Tempest died at 78 after a full life of stage triumphs. She was bombed out in 1940 in London, and was still playing the provinces a few months before she died. Older American playgoers may remember when she was a popular singing comedienne in such gayety theater successes as "The Geisha" and "San Toy," but more will remember her as a sprightly straight comedienne in "The Marriage of Kitty" and "Nell Gwynn."

A Call for Odets.

Clifford Odets, author of "Awake and Sing" and "Golden Boy," has been approached by the Theater Guild to put the language of Harris Moss' adaptation of Konstantin Simonoff's "The Russian People" into "acting English."

Music Still Is Watchword in Moscow

Music, as usual, is the watchword in Moscow, according to the following report from Ralph Parker, which includes an interesting sketch of Dmitri Shostakovich, young soviet composer who recently declined an invitation to conduct the New York Philharmonic symphony:

Moscow's musical winter season has begun. This year there was not the usual summer break, and opera, ballet and concerts continue to be patronized by people who were denied holidays. A concert devoted to Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" and symphonies by Borodin and Mussorgsky were followed by another featuring Shostakovich's Seventh symphony to mark the opening of the new season. Tickets for the performance of the Seventh by Moscow's Radio Committee orchestra were made available to the Moscow public, which had an opportunity to hear this noble and stirring work in the spring and which has taken it very much to its heart.

I met Dmitri Shostakovich this week for the first time since he described to me the purpose of the still unfinished symphony last December. The young composer, who in the winter gave me the impression of poor health and straining nerves, now looks perfectly fit, altho during our talk the doctor rang up to remind him not to forget to take his tonic.

Like so many Russians today, Shostakovich travels light, and all that was to be seen of personal possessions was a small grip, a copy of a football paper open on the desk, and a bottle of tonic. I asked the celebrated composer with the face of a slightly bad tempered schoolboy, who uses rapid, nervous speech and who has a habit of crumbling cigarets in his fingers, whether he thought that the Seventh symphony had "got across" to the people, for when we had last talked he told me that this was his principal anxiety.

"I have no doubt of it," he replied. "I have had an enormous number of letters from all kinds of people who have heard the symphony broadcast or in concert halls. There is nothing special about them. Just ordinary letters from ordinary people, but all the more gratifying to me for that. What was interesting were the number of people who had written poems to accompany the music. So far as I know it is rare for poetry to be written for music. Usually it is the other way around."

Noted Band Leader and Actor Now in the Army

Two notables of the entertainment world are now stationed with the seventh service command of the United States army at Omaha, Neb. They are Capt. Glenn Miller, former band leader, and Capt. Maurice Evans, noted Shakespearean actor. Both will devote their time and talents to morale building by means of providing suitable entertainment for soldiers within the area.

Vaudeville

Chicago theater. Bob Crosby, Bing's younger brother, is back on the stage at the head of his well known orchestra. During the summer Bob served as substitute for Bing on the latter's radio program. Billy Rayes, erstwhile comedian of George White's "Scandals," is also featured in this week's stage show, along with Evelyn Farney, dancer and comedienne, and Ray and Trent, knockabout dancers.

Bob Crosby.

Oriental theater. Tiny Hill, "365 pounds of massive maestro," occupies his full share of the Oriental stage this week, directing his orchestra and presenting his own group of entertainers. Other featured performers are Glenn Miller's singing stars — Marion Hutton, Tex Beneke and the Modernaires; Carl Emmy and his Mad Wags; and the comedy act of Hibbard, Bird and LaRue.

Helsing's Vodvil Lounge. The new revue is topped by Billy Costello, the original Popeye the Sailor in the movies. He is supported by Jimmy Leeds, harmonica player; Dorothy Davis, singer; the Four New Yorkers, and Chet Roble, pianist.

Rialto theater. The Rialto is making a strong attempt to capture feminine interest by engaging Raoul Mastiere as designer of the costumes for chorus, show girls and principals. This week's Rialto headliner is Valerie Parks. Among the other players are Bobby Morris, June Marshall, Jack Diamond, Ethel Deveaux and Lester Mack.

Pioneer Story Humanized by Simple Reality

"THE DAY MUST DAWN," by Agnes Sligh Turnbull. [Macmillan, $2.75.]

Reviewed by James Gray.

The pioneer mother has been the subject of many sentimental tributes in the gentle—too gentle—arts. Yet it has remained for Agnes Sligh Turnbull to clothe her in simple reality so that her homespun strength seems actually to have been designed for everyday wear.

Martha Murray, who dominates the pages of "The Day Must Dawn," is not the heroic figure of the sculptor's dream of granite grace whose garments drape her in majesty like those of the Victory of Samothrace. She is a woman, warm and troubled, devoted to the day of small things. It is because of her that Mrs. Turnbull's new novel seems to be much the best of her three.

When Pennsylvania was the wild frontier of America's little world, the Murray family sprung out of rugged Scotch-Irish stock, lived in Hannastown. This was the very edge of terra cognita, with the howling wilderness just beyond. Out of that wilderness came many bitter threats, of which the worst was represented by the Indians. Hannastown's citizens huddled close for security, valuing even the snow that enclosed their community for months at a time in a kind of safety.

The embodiment of Hannastown's excellence of temper and loyalty is Martha, who serves her neighbors, gossips with them, maintains her own morale by decorating her primitive cabin with touches of beauty, maintains the morale of her friends by presiding over an occasional party. In short, she preserves in her heart and mind the best ways of the world. Yet she longs for the gentler traditions she has left behind. A flowered plate is to her the symbol of lost graciousness. When a mirror comes into her hands, after many years of doing without one, it is a moment of intense drama. The mirror speaks to her of the good past, and yet severely reminds her that her beauty has been sacrificed to the harshness of the frontier. Mrs. Turnbull makes so much of this incident that it becomes a curiously memorable one, dramatizing all the pity and courage of the pioneer world.

The time of the novel is that moment of tension when the Revolution was not going well for the colonists, when Indians harried the dwellers on the fringe of civilization, and when the colonists struck back with massacres which sometimes destroyed chiefly squaws and children. Mrs. Turnbull has obviously read the contemporary documents well and reproduced their problems honestly. For she shows the cruelties and betrayals practiced by the white man as well as by the Indian. Her young soldiers are revolted by what they call "squaw campaigns."

One of the many persuasive things about the book is precisely the uncertainty with which the frontiers men face their difficulties, now enflamed to indignation by attacks on their settlements, now bitterly ashamed of their own fumbling efforts, but always human—never upheld by that improbable prevision of a world in the making which has marred so many historical novels.

It is the enfolding warmth of Martha that gives the book quality. The drama that her experience enfolds is commonplace enough. Mrs. Turnbull tries to step up its emotional quality by giving the story of her young lovers a kind of classic tension. Reared as brother and sister, Violet and Hugh, who are not actually blood relatives, discover that they no longer regard each other with casual affection. But Mrs. Turnbull is not actually after the regretful ardor of a Phædra or an Oedipus. Her mind is too wholesome to be attracted by the morbid possibilities of such a theme.

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By CHARLES COLLINS.

THE title of this column, whose longevity we do not guarantee, is also the title of a book published last February by Vincent Starrett, Chicagoan of letters. When we discovered the duplication, we expressed our horror and dismay to Mr. Starrett, who answered: "Keep right on using it. Maybe it will help to sell my book." Spoken like an author and a gentleman.

"Great Caesar's ghost!"—A common expression of consternation which came into the English language in bygone years when the general public was familiar with the acting of Shakespeare's plays. It refers to the appearance of Caesar's ghost to Brutus before the battle of Philippi. We bring up the matter to preface the announcement that Julius Caesar actually had a "ghost"—that is to say, a ghost writer.

Caesar's ghost writer was Aulus Hirtius, an eminent Roman who rose to the consulship and died in the civil wars that followed Caesar's assassination, fighting against Mark Antony. The 8th book of Caesar's "Gallic Wars," a work that every American high school student had to read, in part, before education became modern, was written by Hirtius.

We tackled a German book the other day—"Young Henry of Navarre," by Heinrich Mann, elder brother of Thomas ["Magic Mountain"] Mann and said to have been regarded in Germany as the better man. It is typical of the current fashion in historical novels—a long chronicle consisting of countless dabs of episode not closely related. Plots, it seems, are out of fashion in historical novels, altho still stylish in politics. . . . We dropped "Young Henry of Navarre" after skimming, on the floor, where it clunked more heavily than "Mein Kampf." So far as its period and characters are concerned, we prefer Dumas' "Marguerite de Valois," "Chicot the Jester," and "The Forty-Five."

Book titles often run in trends, and we're expecting a large addition to the ditto mark category because of Ludwig Bemelmans' "I Love You, I Love You, I Love You." A modest competitor in the ditto mark handicap has already been entered—"I Remember, I Remember."

* * *

The best titles, of course, are phrases that give a vivid idea of the book's content or purpose without obscure literary trimmings. Many authors, however, seem to think that learned quotations, amputated to make them more cryptic, are in order when their works are baptized. Examples, "One Braver Thing," "No Brighter Glory." These also follow a trend and fall into the comparative adjective category.

* * *

We find two examples of a Kipling trend in a new bulletin issued by a Chicago bookshop: "The Lieutenant's Lady," which plainly comes from Kipling's line about the colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady, and "Gentleman Ranker," which merely substitutes the singular for the plural in the title of a bit of Kipling's verse.

* * *

"Nobody's Vineyard," a current mystery story by H. C. Bailey, has a double source—a short story by Kipling and the Old Testament. See Kipling's "Naboth," in the collection of tales called "In Black and White," and the incident of Naboth's vineyard in 1 Kings XXI.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Lloyd Wendt.

ERSKINE CALDWELL, whose "All Night Long" has been bought by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, is sunning in Tucson, Ariz., and working on "American Folkways." . . . W. C. Handy who authored "Father of the Blues" after making the chants of Beale street part of our national music, is still a performer and composer at heart. While appearing nightly at Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe in New York, he's taken time out for another blues song: "Go Get the Enemy Blues." . . . Miss Jackie Martin, camera girl who snapped the scenes for "Frontier by Air," is in the WAACs, as their official photographer. Alice Rogers Hager, author of the book, has become Washington representative of a new aviation magazine, "Skyways."

When a representative of the Office of War Information hopped off for England recently, he carried with him what Elmer Davis' office thought were the 10 most significant American war books. One of the 10 was Stanley Johnston's "Queen of the Flattops." . . . Irvin S. Cobb has written an American chant called "Roll Call," to be published soon in a book of 45 pages. Expect to hear it often on the radio. . . . Marquis James, the biographer, is trying a new attack on the biographical form—this time showing how the biography of a business reflects the history of a country. . . . Children and adults who love "Bambi" will have more of same soon. Felix Salten, now a German refugee in Switzerland, has sent out from exile, "A Forest World."

• • •

After a Chicago visit, Elizabeth Chevalier ["Drivin' Woman has now printed 190,000 copies"] is lecturing at the Boston and Philadelphia book fairs. . . . Franz Werfel's "Song of Bernadette," a best seller thruout America, has been made the November choice of the Book Society of London. . . . Curt Riess, author of "Total Espionage" and other books on spies and underground, has a new one coming soon: "The Self-Betrayed," inside story of the German generals.

Churchill Again Proves His Mastery of English

"THE UNRELENTING STRUGGLE": War Speeches by the Right Hon. Winston S. Churchill, C. H., M. P., compiled by Charles Eade. [Little, Brown, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Dr. Melchior Palyi.

You may have heard about the banker who introduced Bernard Shaw to a New York audience. "Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "George Bernard Shaw." And stopped there. When asked why he was so brief, his answer was: "What can one say about G. B. S. that everybody wouldn't know?"

Well, this is the Right Honorable Winston S. Churchill. The present volume collects the public utterances of a grand master of the English, nay, of the human language, between Nov. 12, 1940, and the last of last year. It begins in a hopeful but restrained tone when the assault on England had been beaten back and victories were gleaming on the Mediterranean horizon, and ends on a note of subdued cheerfulness about America entering the struggle. No more of the bitter sarcasm and of the painful search for the soul as in "While England slept," nor of the somber and dramatic sadness of "Blood, Sweat and Tears."

The period covered in the present volume was not one to inspire literary efforts. The national crisis of Britain gave way to the manifold routines of a long war. The 68 speeches and announcements reflect the prime minister's preoccupation with the day to day technicalities of strategy, administration and diplomacy, with constitutional and economic problems interspersed. They rarely go into details, and often short cut the vital issues, leaving the reader intellectually thirsty.

Churchill is at his wittiest when he has to fight back or to put the enemy on the spot, spicing his answers with the pungent humor of a true realist. To the Vichy generals who claimed that in three weeks England will have her neck wrung like a chicken, he merely answers: "Some chicken; some neck."

"A word" about the minister for postwar reconstruction should be remembered by New Dealers: "It is not his task to make a new world, comprising a new heaven, a new earth, and no doubt a new

Recent Books on 'Must' List

Excellent books of the last few months, not now on the current best seller lists, but well recommended by critics and booksellers:

"Lover of Life," by Zsoht Harsanyi. A novelized life of the painter Rubens.

"Year of the Wild Boar," by Helen Mears. A story of woman's life in Japan.

"Old Soldiers Never Die," by James Ronald. A retired army officer, "too old to serve," finds real service as a host to refugee children.

"Black Lamb and Gray Falcon," by Rebecca West. Excellent account of life in Jugo-Slavia, home of the "Chetniks."

"Jefferson," by Saul Padover. Unusual biography of man who drafted Declaration of Independence and became President.

"Plume Rouge," by J. U. Terrell. Story of life on the old Oregon trail. Splendidly descriptive.

"He Wanted to Sleep in the Kremlin," by Gerhardt Schacher. An account of Hitler's designs on Russia.

"America's Strategy in World Politics," by Nicholas Spyhman. A thorogoing study by American expert in field of geopolitics.

"Story of Everyday Things," by Arthur Train Jr. Story of life, customs, dress, and foods of early American colonists.

"Dialogue with Death," by Arthur Koester. Autobiography of a man who faced death often in the war in Spain.

Hugo's Story Told at Last —Full Length

"VICTOR HUGO," by Matthew Josephson. [Doubleday-Doran, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Kenneth C. Kaufman.

Jean Cocteau once wisecracked that "Victor Hugo was not Victor Hugo, he was a crazy man who thought he was Victor Hugo." Matthew Josephson's fine biography leads to the conclusion that he was not Victor Hugo but the hero of every book Victor Hugo ever wrote. For either in the spirit or, more often, in the flesh, he experienced the triumphs and tragedy of Jean Valjean.

He was, on occasion, as fantastically melodramatic a rebel as Hernani. Young Marius was the young Victor who wooed and won Adèle Foucher; he was the older Victor who fought behind the barricades in '48. The double handed giant Gilliatt, clinging to his lonely rock and struggling superhumanly with hurricane, ocean and octopus, was symbolically, the vieux marcheur sombre clinging stubbornly and defiantly to his exile for 15 years after Louis Napoleon issued his general amnesty, and battling proudly with the forces of privilege and moral darkness. And no great body of lyric poetry has ever been so utterly personal. As Mr. Josephson says in his foreword, "His writing is a long endeavor to know himself and explain himself."

Yet he was far more than an eloquent examiner of his own soul. He was perhaps more than any other the man of his century. Born into the solid middle class, amid the crashing of Napoleon's cannon, trailing his father thru the decadent medievalism of Spain and Italy, turned against him for his mother's sake, he came first to scorn, later to admire the man on horseback.

A precocious child, a successful poet at 14, he had overthrown the literary tradition of two centuries before he was 30. He accepted a pension from the throne, and was a pious legitimist, only to become successively a constitutional royalist, an extreme liberal, and a democratic republican.

He welcomed Louis Napoleon back to France, fought him in the Assemblée Legislative and preferred prolonged banishment to a pardon from the man who had wronged him. Gradually he went over to socialism and became the champion of the underdog. He was a dreamer, yet his insight into politics and his political prophecies shamed the practical politicians. And he was a furious success. "Les Misérables" sold seven million copies in his lifetime, and he died worth a million and a half, dollars, not francs. His inconsistencies were those of his age and generally represented evolution rather than perverseness.

The mid-19th century bears more than a superficial resemblance to our own time. Hitler is no more a total despot than was Louis Napoleon. A Hugo among the exiles who throng the cities of Britain and America, with his scathing philippics and his trumpeted war songs, might be worth many a division. But there is, neither in nor out of France and Germany, a national poet.

Mr. Josephson's work was needed, for in spite of the fact that more books have been written about Hugo than any other Frenchman except Napoleon, there was no modern complete biography in English. It is surely not the definitive biography the publishers claim it to be; that will have to be written in French, for Hugo was greatest as a lyric poet, and it is quite impossible to demonstrate that greatness in a foreign tongue.

But it is based on a thoro knowledge of the great mass of Hugo material made available in the last decade or two, and it is, altho frankly purposing to counteract some of the venom of Biré and his English follower Davidson, penetrating, judicious, and fair.

They're All Writing About the War Effort These Days

aware of the shortcomings of congress, and suggests various reforms, but he insists that it is still "the citadel of our freedom," and that if we discard it we will be headed for "a one-man tyranny of some variety."

Dr. Beard expresses his views forcibly for the American Mercury. He denies that the executive branch knows the country better than congress does. He discounts the sniping at the Congressional Record; it publishes many absurdities, but it also publishes many addresses "which, for breadth of knowledge, technical skill, analytical acumen, close reasoning, and dignified presentation, compare favorably with utterances made in the preceding century by the so-called great orators." Dr. Beard blames the Gallup poll for much of "the prevailing low opinion respecting congress," calling it irresponsible and saying that it is preposterous that the answers of Tom, Dick, Susan, and Harriet, obtained in the highways and byways, should be called "the opinion of the people." And he adds: "We cannot kill off congress without committing suicide as a democratic nation."

While many of the attacks on congress are made on behalf of patriotism, I have suspected that some of their authors would be glad to see parliamentary government abolished and totalitarian methods substituted. Dr. Beard's argument comes at just the right time; perhaps it will spread a little common sense.

Every time Ben Hecht comes back from Hollywood laden with huge earnings, I am reminded of the unique service he performs as an intermediary who carries large sums from the producers to the United States treasury. Ben has just returned from his longest term in Hollywood—nearly 10 months. His banker tells me that his earnings since Jan. 1 amount to $230,000. Just keep that in mind for a moment and I'll tell you a story.

A long time ago, when Ben and I were legmen on Chicago newspapers, there was an opening in the city room of the News, and I suggested hiring Ben Hecht. The city editor, Richard D. Hebb, now with Swift & Co., had long admired Ben's scoops on the Journal and asked me to make him an offer. "But don't go over $30 a week," said Hebb, naming a reasonable sum for those halcyon days.

I arranged a secret appointment with Ben and we walked up and down West Madison street while I felt him out. "I'm getting $25 now," he said, "and I won't come for less than $30." So I assured him that I would try to get that for him, and Ben came over.

Now as to that $230,000. It seems that Ben had a session with his lawyer and discovered that after he had paid his indebtedness to the United States treasury, the state of California, the state of New York, and his agent and accountant, he had about $43,000 free with which to pay his regular expenses, and, as Ben is a generous man, these are large.

When another studio in Hollywood discovered that he was at liberty, it asked him to do a quick job at $60,000. Ben was just about to accept when he determined to ask his lawyer what this would net him, on top of the rest of his earnings. The lawyer said he would retain something under $6,000.

"Forget it," said Ben. "I'm going home to get some rest."

Ben's way of getting a rest is to work twice as hard writing a novel, which will earn him a great deal less.

Disturbing Book Delves Into the Negro Problem

"NO DAY OF TRIUMPH," by J. Saunders Redding. [Harpers, $3.]

Reviewed by Marcia Winn.

This is a difficult book to review. Should one attempt to analyze it on its literary merits, which are considerable, or as an effort to delve into the troublous Negro problem of America, which it is?

"No Day of Triumph" is a good book and, as any book must inevitably be which deals honestly and faithfully with the Negro problem, it is a sad and disturbing book. It reminds one over and over again of those bitter lines from the pen of a Negro poet who questioned the force that " . . . made a poet black and bade him sing."

By the slide rule now in use J. Saunders Redding must be considered a northern Negro. Of the years of his life before he set out to discover America, and at the same time himself, he writes sensitively and grippingly in a long, autobiographical foreward. He had one grandmother who was severely black, caustic, and imbued with a hatred of all white persons. His other grandmother was lemon yellow and well to do, as was his family. The conflicts aroused by these two, as well as by his excellent education, were still unappeased within him when he set out two years ago to discover America—or was it himself?

He set out with the subsidy and blessing of the Rockefeller Foundation who said merely: "Go out into Negro life in the south. Go anywhere you like and see what you find." The results strike us as being amazingly honest. Mr. Redding draws no conclusions, waves no flag for his race, makes no justification for the black man's torpor, when he finds it, or the white man's violence and prejudice, when he finds that, too. He merely portrays, and portrays with a powerful, truthful pen, what he found. To one bred in the south, as was this reviewer, there can be no question as to the accuracy of his findings.

Richard Wright, in an introduction, terms the book "a manifesto to the Negro and a challenge to America." These are ringing words and are bandied about a bit too freely for our taste in almost every circumstance these days, but certainly this is a provocative book, and well worth reading by men of all colors in this year of the four freedoms. One division is entitled, "Don't Be Weary, Traveler," but somehow, by the time you have finished the 342 pages you are weary—weary of soul, not of foot.

Beattie Tells How He Saw a War Begin

"FREELY TO PASS," by Edward W. Beattie. [Crowell, $3.]

Reviewed by William Shinnick.

This is a thoroly honest book. It begins with Edward Beattie's job as a foreign correspondent in 1937. He served in Japan and China before going to Europe to watch the unfolding drama of a continent that wanted peace—so far as the common man was concerned—but went unwillingly to war when the prodding of the gangster government in Berlin became unbearable.

Beattie starts by explaining that he is not writing a "think pieee"; that he is not telling inside secrets of chancelleries but simply setting down his recollections of what happened to him in each country to which the United Press sent him. He has faithfully adhered to his formula and the result is a solid, straightaway narrative with the gripping interest that good factual reporting, ably handled, will always command.

He does not tell us, for example, that he could see clearly the Japs were preparing five years ago to whip the white man out of the orient. Instead he gives the facts; the bombing of the Chinese civilians and an occasional "accidental miss" bomb that just happened to hit where British and American nationals were in danger.

One of the most clear cut chapters has to do with the fall of France. The refugees on the roads, clogging the movement of military forces, are dealt with sympathetically. The book tells how they piled little items of property, usually of no value, into the cars, carts, and trucks in which they fled southward—anywhere—to escape the Germans in 1940. Beattie tells also of the poor equipment of the French and the complacency of the army officers and the man in the café; solemnly studying maps and just before the debacle, insisting that Hitler has overreached himself and will end up in disaster. The honest author admits that he didn't realize the weaknesses of the French in advance.

The double headed war mentality of the British people is clearly outlined. Beattie draws the dividing line at Dunkirk. Pre-Dunkirk England was marked by almost indolent confidence: the blockade would win the war and there was not much use getting excited. But

New Shows Scheduled for Night Spots This Week

Sophie Tucker Comes Back to Chez on Friday

By Will Davidson.

After a quarter of a century in show business, a big, hearty, wonderful gal named Tucker can rightly heave one of her gargantuan sighs and say, "Sophie, so good!"

Sophie is one of the imperishables of that very perishable world of entertainment. When she comes back to Chez Paree Friday night you will know exactly what to expect, and yet it will not be quite the same as the last time you heard her there, two years ago. She'll sing "Some of These Days," and build it up into a masterpiece of heart warming hokum. She'll kid her size and her age, and she'll be patriotic and naughty. And she'll be a wow.

With Sophie in the new show will be Lou Breese and his orchestra, one of the better dance bands, and top ranking as a show player. Mata and Hari, dance satirists, return, as do the tapping Callahan sisters. Ventriloquist Paul Winchell and the Adoreables fill out the revue.

On the same night Renee De Marco opens at the Blackstone hotel, in Emil's magnificent Mayfair room. I have never seen Renee dance as a single, but no less competent an observer than Dean Murphy tells me she is delightful. She will have Neil Bondshu's impecable music behind her, which is a break for both Renee and the clientele.

Out at the Aragon Friday night there will be much merrymaking over the return of Dick Jurgens. Dick's band is one of those personable outfits that make stanch friends, and they've been waiting for this night. On Saturday both the Aragon and Trianon will have special Halloween parties.

Dark haired Virginia Hayes came back to Chicago last week to sing her songs and play her piano in the Camellia House of the Drake hotel. Her opening night performance, as opening night performances are wont to do, fell short of her standard. Perhaps she was mistaken in singing so many songs straight, without her own accompaniment. Camellia House has had every sort and quality of girl singer and it takes a very special talent to get the Camellians out of that "here we go again" feeling when a pretty girl stands up and hides her expression, if any, behind a mike that should be in the scrap pile anyway. Virginia's forte is piano singing, and when she took as an encore that delightful Hawaiian boogie number both she and the audience relaxed and had fun.

Virginia Hayes.
[Seymour photo.]

I know that in the eyes of several booking agents and managers I am a meddling amateur because I occasionally suggest something that seems to me would improve an act, but for that matter I have found that these gentlemen oftentimes don't know their own acts any too well. Something leads me to suspect that Virginia has been given instructions born of loyalty to a formula for café success rather than to a complete understanding of her real talent. Which would be a shame, for Virginia has definite possibilities in this difficult room.

Boswelling the bistros:

Teddy Majerus, mine host of L'Aiglon restaurant, is a farmer by day, and a good one. . . . That Kassel-Hart-Harriet Smith-Valett revue at the Bismarck is Chicagoan to the core. . . . One of the aces of Chico Marx's band at the Blackhawk is another Chicagoan, Mel Torme, singer and composer of uncommon promise. . . . José Manzanares and his La Salle band boys are regular patrons of a gymnasium, it says here. . . . Griff Williams records continue to pile up in the Empire room of the Palmer House. Now it's a new single night total and a new mark for a month. Don't be surprised if Griff comes back after Hildegarde has patted her last ringside bald head, and stays for a long time. . . . I like extremely Marion Odmark's incisive description of Dwight Fiske as a lyrical leprechaun. . . . Jimmy Blade and band are in Detroit. . . . Dean Murphy and George [Latin Quarter] Bernard relay the story that the navy is about to ring its bells on regular hours because it feels that even a sailor has a right to know what time it is. . . . and Dorothy Dorben air mails from New York her discovery that the reason so many cafés have their press tables on Fridays is that those are supposed to be beefless days.

OLD FAVORITE

Aragon ballroom patrons will greet an old favorite, Dick Jurgens, Friday night when he returns from a successful road trip east.

Film Publicity Stunts That Backfire Cause Many a Laugh

Hollywood [Wide World].—Here in this cinematic wilderness of both smart and corny press agentry publicity stunts that backfire provide film gagsters with their choicest snickers.

There was, for instance, the case where one studio, to publicize a certain picture, spent considerable dough in shipping a huge hippopotamus here from England in a special tank. Then an oversize truck had to be built to cart the tank and hippo to the studio, where, attracted by more ballyhoo, large crowds gathered around a deep pond built to receive the gargantuan beast.

But when the truck's rear door was opened, Mr. Hippo slid kerplunk into the placid water, sank to the bottom, and never came up. To bewildered spectators, the studio explained the poor critter probably died of a heart attack, or possibly of exhaustion from the long trip, poor thing.

Then there was the press agent who, to ballyhoo a detective mystery thriller, decked himself out in a two way Sherlock Holmes cap, big pipe, and magnifying glass and started out to make a house to house snoop, pretending to be looking for fingerprints on people's back doors.

A frightened housewife called the cops, however, and the imaginative publicist soon found himself in jail. When studio executives learned of the incident they promptly told police to leave him in there for a while—anybody who would try a stunt like that, they said, ought to be jailed.

Carol Ann Beery Finds Pop in Jail 31st Time

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. [Wide World].—Carol Ann Beery was obviously disgusted. Her famous pop was in the clink again.

The adopted daughter of Wallace Beery came on the "Salute to the Marines" set and found her favorite actor in jail. To Beery's favorite fan it seemed he was always in jail—in the movies, of course. Beery counted back 53 pictures and discovered he's been jailed in 31 of them. "Daddy," demanded Carol Ann, "can't you make them stop putting you in jail?" Daddy simply grinned.

Good Morning!

Sherlock Holmes—streamlined—still carries on!

In the mortal—and modern—coil of Basil Rathbone, he writhes and wraps around a British war problem, eventually choking all the mystery and terror out of it. . . . In so doing he proves of great service to his country.

For a long time an unknown radio broadcaster has been creating panic among the English people. . . . Each night his "Voice of Terror" comes on the air, jeeringly pointing to past depredations, promising future acts of sabotage, and revealing the appalling fact that many supposedly secret plans of the allied nations are an open book to the Nazi high command.

WHO is this "Voice of Terror?"

Is he broadcasting from where he says he is?

Mr. Holmes is summoned from 221 Baker street by the British intelligence inner council, and assisted by his Dr. Watson [Nigel Bruce, displaying the SWEETEST Bambi-like naïveté!] tackles a mammoth task and brings it to triumphant completion.

Conan Doyle's famous detective still lovingly plays his violin and says "Elementary, my dear Watson!" but a fedora hat replaces the checkered double visored hunting cap, and the needle has been abandoned in the haystack of ye olden dayes.

Mr. Rathbone plays Holmes with suavity, subtlety, and just the right touch of gentle satire. . . . He is interestingly haggard, and when he speaks folks jump. . . . He is the seventh Holmes to appear on the screen. . . . The first was William Gillette who created the rôle on the stage in 1899, and made the original Sherlock Holmes movie two generations ago. . . . The sleuth has been portrayed at various times by the late John Barrymore, Eille Norwood, Arthur Wontner, Raymond Massey, and Clive Brook.

Evelyn Ankers is competent, pretty, and pitiful in an important rôle. . . . Nice work by Reginald Denny and several other veteran actors. . . . Thomas Gomez, who has been under contract to Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt for several years, makes his screen debut—an impressive one—in this movie.

The film is interestingly staged, photographed, and dialogged. Suspense runs high.

I left the theater hoping soon to sit in with the "Wizard of Baker Street" on another case as intriguing as "Sherlock Holmes and the Voice of Terror."

See you tomorrow.

Carl Sandburg Abridges Epic of War Years

"STORM OVER THE LAND: A Profile of the Civil War," by Carl Sandburg. [Harcourt, Brace. $3.50.]

Reviewed by John Abbot Clark.

"Storm Over the Land" is carved out of Sandburg's monumental four volume "Abraham Lincoln: The War Years" and constitutes, without any intention on the author's part to make it so in a full and detailed sense, one of the most graphic and moving short histories of the Civil war that has yet been done.

From Sumter to Appomattox, the major battles and crises—political, military, and psychological — are summarized in brisk, muscular prose, with the poetry and commentary cut to the bone. The poetry is here, but, as is not always the case in the larger work, it is implicit and organic. The maps, photographs, and drawings add much to the interest and usefulness of the book.

"The tale," observes Sandburg, "is not idle. It means more than passing the time of day or making a long wait somewhere a little shorter. It holds valor and struggle worth looking at, days of doom and humility not lacking their lessons, psalms of desolation and the silent writhing of the agonized, rainbow promises of hope and dream for the American Union of States."

Not so long ago Prof. Douglas Bush of Harvard declared that American education had been undermined by "an army of professors of education and their allies," and just as one example, cited the case of a young woman who was asked whether she could teach English history. She replied that she thought she could, because she had had it twice, "once in clay and once in sand." The future of this country is very liable to be writ, not in sand or in clay, but in water, and probably ditch water at that, unless we begin throwing out at once all the flapdoodle that passes today, especially in our high schools, for courses in citizenship and history.

If we had our way, Sandburg's "Storm Over the Land" would be made required reading matter in all the homes, schoolhouses, and college classrooms of the land. Big Business needs to read this book, and so does Big Labor, while Big Government needs to read it most of all. It is veritably packed with lessons in wisdom and humility for Big Military. And as for the little man in the rear ranks, it could hardly fail to buck up his morale no end, in the most honorable, cant-free way.

Here are a few sample quotations, selected very much at random, from which the reader may extract his own "lessons": Lincoln on the swarms of office seekers: "I am like a man so busy in letting rooms in one end of his house, that he can't stop to put out the fire that is burning in the other." Artemus Ward on supreme sacrifices: "I have already given two cousins to the war, & I stand reddy to sacrifiss my wife's brother, ruthur'n not see the rebellion krusht." Lincoln to a woman who wanted him to use his influence on her behalf at the war department: "It's of no use, madam, for me to go. They do things in their own way over there, and I don't amount to pig tracks in the war department."

• • •

For a world full of sorrow and misery, and growing more savage and vengeful by the hour, there is courage and strength and hope in "Storm Over the Land." One may find in it a thousand good reasons for taking pride in being an American—not because it tells the story of a conflict that Americans all fought, but simply because, if such a thing is possible, it was one of the few civilized wars on the epic scale that the world has ever seen. Men on both sides may have had qualms at times about the ultimate rightness of their cause. But on neither side were men ever assailed by doubts as to why they were fighting or for what. Both sides knew that there are worse things in this life than death, better things than full bellies and jingling pockets.

And the finest and truest thing that can be said of "Storm Over the Land" is that, far more than most recent books of a hortatory cast, it serves to remind us that men will die gladly for a country that puts its Washingtons, its Lincolns, its Lees ahead of its gadgets and creature comforts. Whether we are at the present moment that kind of a country is a question, and a most serious and critical one.

"A nation," says Froude, "which does not respect its past will have no future which will deserve respect." Read this book of Sandburg's—and then if you still think it more patriotic to melt down Civil war statues and cannon before parting with the bumpers on your car, we have nothing more to say.

A Great Woman Tells the Drama of Her Life

"THIS IS MY LIFE," by Agnes Hunt. [G. P. Putnam's Sons, $2.50.]

Her name means little to the layman, but Agnes Hunt is one of the great women of our time. Altho crippled, she defied tradition and entered the hitherto closed field of nursing. Later she founded the first great English hospital for orthopedic cases and rose to the top of her profession in World War I. She was a trusted associate of Sir Robert Jones, greatest orthopedic surgeon of the day. In this gay and candid book she restages the drama of her life, starring that iron willed and doughty old character—her mother. The scenes of her Victorian childhood are particularly fine. Those were the days when youngsters were "not to blab and not to blub." L. W.

They're All Writing About the War Effort These Days

By HARRY HANSEN.

New York.

EDNA ST. VINCENT MILLAY has now joined Carl Sandburg in using voice and pen on behalf of the war effort. Like Sandburg, she is a volunteer and collects no money from the government for her efforts. I respect her all the more for this, because I think the government already is topheavy with authors who, whatever their patriotic motives, might be better employed elsewhere.

After giving many readings of his poem about the Norwegian who had his fingers broken by a Nazi, Sandburg is now reading a poem honoring the defenders of Leningrad and Shostakovich. And Miss Millay responded to the request of the Writers' War board and wrote a long narrative poem, called "The Murder of Lidice," which many Chicagoans must have heard at its première on the air last Monday evening. It was read before a distinguished company, with Alexander Woollcott presiding. It is being issued in booklet form by Harper's.

It is not a great poem, but it lends itself to effects when read aloud, and it makes its point when the victims of Lidice call on us to be watchful: "Good people, all from our graves we call to you, so happy and free!"

In New York City authors are either writing books or drafting resolutions. Innumerable men and women are engaged in publicizing phases of the war effort, and the phone is constantly ringing with reminders of meetings that must be attended, or else—well, there will be a vacant chair.

The Council on Books in Wartime, Inc., is a well balanced organization of publishers, authors, booksellers, and librarians, with the object of pushing books that will help the war; its skirts are clean of political activity and it isn't engaged in heresy hunting.

The first major author to protest against the indiscriminate abuse of members of congress—a practice that has its origin with overzealous patriots—is Charles A. Beard, and none could speak with greater authority of the performances of congress during our history. Dr. Beard is well

Halper Gives Chicago Keen Looking Over

"THE LITTLE PEOPLE," by Albert Halper. [Harper's, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle.

All too slowly does the fiction-image of Chicago grow. Year after year there are so few novels which seriously attempt to reveal the actual shape of life or even the physical appearance of this strange midwestern city. It is all the pleasanter, therefore, to find another solid novel by Albert Halper about the streets and basements, and attics and stores, and amusement parks of the city he knows so well.

Curiously enough, probably the most varied and sensitive feeling for Chicago is expressed not in any prose, but in the poetry of Carl Sandburg. Yet Albert Halper has almost as clear a sense of the sharp impacts, the sounds and smells, the corn field air meeting the sudden lake air, the jarring "L," the massive, total area of interminable block after block, and the intense lives of the anonymous hundreds of thousands of men and women, children, and cats and dogs to whom those impacts are home.

The strongest single quality of all Albert Halper's writing, and of "The Little People" in particular, is the complete conviction of livingness that all the characters have. Most remarkable of all is the fact that every kind of [illegible] from boss to errand [illegible] is [illegible] created.

There is no sense of unreality about any man or any woman, whether the lowest paid Negress in a store or the higest paid partner. And, in spite of Halper's obvious care and sympathy for all the small human beings of an enormous city, he never submits to a false "proletarian" distortion for the sake of compelling a propaganda idea out of his material. The owners of the exclusive store where all the characters of the book work are as believable as any men in the book. They are neither sweaters of the poor nor guardian angels.

There is no plot in the usual sense of the word. There is only a careful accounting of the lives of a group of employés of a swank Chicago store. We suddenly take up those lives on a certain day, go along with them a while until a few relationships have been settled, a few made happier and a few sadder, and then we leave them all much as they were before. It is all simple and scrupulously right. Average

HILLS OF FEAR

There was a flimsy cabin in the grove, and, where the car stopped, there was one of those homemade mills by which prospectors and owners of small mines operating on a wheelbarrow basis reduce their scanty gatherings of ore to concentrates. Its owner stood beside the riffled table. He held a black box in his hand. He said:

"If you want to see how the trick is done, I'll take you into the tunnel and show you." He was a little man. He looked smaller than he was, because he was so badly warped.

To the offer, Red shook his head. He said: "I'll take your word for it, Sam. All I want to see is what you'll show me tonight. Got any gas?"

"Plumb out." Sam laid down the black box which resembled a portable typewriter case. "Only what's in the car."

"Not so good!" Red frowned. He was silent for a moment, then. "I saw that fellow Piper in Tonopah this morning. He and Billings are the only o-s in Gold Center who know me. I don't think he got sight of me because I ducked behind my car when he went by, but I ran across him that day last week when I was looking things over at Contact Hill. It might be that he was spying on me. I wouldn't know." He rose and stretched his arms. "I'd better get going now. There's a chance he isn't home yet and I've got to stop there to fill up."

"You could," Sam said, "of got gas at Beulah's tavern."

"I could," Red grinned. "As a matter of fact, that's what I was figuring on doing, but while I was eating lunch there, the place was held up. I didn't feel like sticking around for fear they'd want to take my name as a witness and I can't afford to run chances until I know more than I do. So I beat it before anybody noticed me." He climbed in and set the starter going. "I'll be waiting for you up there after dark."

He backed into the pair of ruts and drove away and that was just about the time when Marian arrived in Gold Center.

Marian Finds the Office of Billings

It wasn't hard for her to find the office which she sought. The gilded letters on its plate glass window were the only ones of their kind on the whole street. She parked her car before the one story building, and when she entered the door, she confronted the administrator of her brother's estate.

"Well, well," Herbert Billings settled himself in his swivel chair after shaking hands with her when she announced her identity. "I sure am glad to see you, Miss Farley. Welcome to Gold Center. How do you like the west?"

It was evident that he was repeating a formula, and it was evident that the smile which accompanied the words was the product of long practice.

He was somewhere in his late thirties, and lively in his movements; one of those little men who never can remain in one position for more than a moment at a time. His eyes were the most restless part of him; they were as shallow as a pair of agates. His huge high crowned cowboy hat seemed out of all proportion to him, and while he was speaking, he removed it, revealing a bald head, whose glistening surface gave startling pallid contrast to the tight, sunburned face.

"Now," Herbert Billings asked, "What can I do for you?"

The question was as abrupt as it was unexpected. In the abruptness there was a faint suggestion that Billings wasn't as anxious to learn how he could serve her as he was to do some fast thinking while she answered it. For the first time since she had started on this journey, Marian felt misgivings. She said:

"I want to know about my brother's property." And added, "You're handling the estate?"

"Yes." The bald head nodded. The bright eyes seemed to have hardened just a little. "O, yes. I'm handling the estate. The court appointed me administrator. I usually," he straightened his back and sat forward, "attend to such things here."

"You got my letter?" Billings asked. She shook her head.

"The only letter I got was from the coroner's office at Goldfield. It told me that my brother had been killed in an automobile accident and that you were going to handle the estate. A few days after it arrived, I started west."

"That," Billings told her, "is too bad. Your coming here, I mean. There wasn't any need for you to put yourself to all that trouble. Of course it's a great pleasure to have you with us—but the expense! Unless you were looking forward to the trip—"

"I'm planning to look after the property as soon as there's a distribution," Marian interrupted briskly. "You see, I've had quite a bit of business experience."

"The property," Billings said slowly, "doesn't need handling."

"I don't quite understand," she cried. "Some one has to look after it. Of course I know you're administrator of the estate, but——"

"I wouldn't say there's any need of looking after it," the little man interrupted. He seemed to have made up his mind as to his course of action now and his eyes had grown harder. "I wish you'd waited till you got my letter. I'm afraid you've set your hopes on something that doesn't exist. There are, you see, mines and mines. And this Contact Hill mine isn't—well, it's not so hot. Fact is, it hasn't yielded a dollar for the last 20 years."

"I didn't know it was a mine." Marian felt limp. She managed to hold her voice level, and to make it sound businesslike. "My brother's letters indicate that it is worth a good deal of money."

"This," Herbert Billings sighed, "is not pleasant for me. Your brother, Miss Farley, was like a good many men who came out here from the east. Too optimistic and too trustful. He bought a worthless mine. The chances are that the men who sold it to him had salted it. Time was when this Contact Hill property yielded good values in gold, then the vein pinched out. That was away back in 1910. Years later, during the last World war, a new owner got hold of it and found that the rock contained tungsten. He mined all there was of that and made good money. He shut down in 1921. All that's left now is a big waste dump, some dismantled buildings, and an abandoned mining camp."

The back door of the office opened and Herbert Billings looked around. His face sharpened when he saw his visitor. He rose and nodded to Marian. He said:

"Excuse me a moment please." He went outside with his caller and closed the door behind him.

Marian sat alone with her thoughts. And they were of a mixed nature. For the man who had summoned Herbert Billings was the bearded man whom she had seen in the Mizpah hotel, and his khaki shirt was adorned by a nickel plat-l star.

The unexpected entrance of the man with the corn colored beard had given her a decided shock. There was a blankness in his eyes as he regarded her, which would have brought an uneasy feeling if she had seen it, passing him on a crowded sidewalk. It was like an invisible curtain and there was no way of knowing what lay behind it. She wondered whether it concealed the fact that he had recognized her. Thinking it over after the door had closed behind him and Billings, she found some reassurance in the idea that, even if he did remember having seen her in the elevator a few hours ago, he wouldn't know that she had heard his voice in the air shaft. Nor would he be aware that she was a witness to the robbery which he had helped plan.

But this little crumb of comfort vanished as she realized that he was probably going to meet the pair very soon.

Expecting danger, it looked as if there was nothing for her here. And as this came to mind, dismay came with it. The full meaning of the things which Billings had told her was as stunning as a blow between the eyes.

She was two thousand miles from home, and the travelers' checks in her handbag wouldn't keep her in food and lodgings more than a week with careful management. It was one of those monstrous situations which can confront others but are so evil that, when one finds oneself facing them, they seem unreal.

As its enormity unfolded before her she found herself unable to think coherently, and the only purpose which remained with her during the next few moments was the panicky desire to flee. It would be possible to drive to Reno and sell her second hand car there. She could take a bus back home, she could look for another job and try to forget the whole unpleasant experience after she got it.

LET'S REMODEL PARADISE

"O, I know I shouldn't have accused her—I knew in the bottom of my heart that she didn't love Trait. But it's not only that . . . they went ahead and changed the little house and cut down 16 birches . . . and I hate their damned old 'vista' . . . and I'll never forgive Carlotta. There's nothing you can do about it. So now please be calm and legal and tell me the Vermont laws about divorce."

I got up and glared at him across the desk. "You're being mulish," I said. "I won't have anything to do with your idiotic divorce. You ought to know that."

"Okay," he said sullenly. "Then I'll go to Jepson Storms."

He is the other lawyer in town. "O, that old buzzard," I sneered. "He'd take any divorce case. He rushes them right thru before there's a chance of reconciliation."

"Okay," Tom repeated, rising. "So long, Hank. I hope Storms' office is still open."

Unfortunately it was, and Tom talked over the whole case. As an attorney I have found that once a client discusses his marital grievances with a lawyer he begins to feel he has irrevocably burned his bridges.

Altho Tom moved down to the Traveler's hotel, on Storms' advice, I didn't see him very often. He seemed to avoid me as if we had quarreled. But one day when Tom was eating dinner in the grill I went over to his table. I couldn't stand it any longer. His eyes had that frightened, helpless expression of a lost dog's.

"What are you doing about your place?" I asked in a matter-of-fact way.

"Oh, Im deeding it to Carlotta," he said just as casually. "I insisted. I wouldn't want to live in it again." He laughed. "Paradise Lost, you know." But I saw that his lips began to tremble and he covered them with his hard brown hand. "She can remodel it to her heart's desire," he added. "Storms is drawing up the deed."

"You know," I said, "that you'll have to have a straw man."

"How's that?" he asked, puzzled.

I explained the interesting quirk in our Vermont law which dates back to the fundamental English laws in the days of Blackstone. Apparently Vermont just never saw fit to question the wisdom of the mother country in regard to this solemn legality. In order for a husband to deed a property to his wife [and vice versa] there must be a "straw man," that is, a third party. The husband, in this case, would have to sell the property to the straw man "for the consideration of one dollar" and deed it over to the wife.

"But why? What's the big idea?" asked Tom, as nearly everyone does.

"Because," I said, "in the eyes of the law, you and Carlotta are one. You can't deed a thing to a part of yourself, Tom."

He flushed. "That's nutty," he said.

"Well, you can insult Blackstone if you like," I said, a bit nettled. "The fact remains that Vermont will not allow you to deed your goods to a chattel."

"Can you imagine Carlotta being a chattel!" he muttered.

"Therefore," I went on, "you will have to get around the old fashioned law by a roundabout procedure. You must deed the place to a third party who will in turn deed it to your chattel."

"Stop calling her that!" he protested. "It's insulting."

I added, half in fun: "If I were you I wouldn't have old Jepson Storms for the third party. A straw man must be somebody you trust implicitly. And I wouldn't trust Storms as far as I could throw an elephant."

"You draw up the deed, Hank," he said. "Please."

"Not on your life! I told you I wouldn't have anything to do with it." I still had a hope he and Carlotta might get together again. But it was a faint hope, for too much water had flowed under too many bridges in too quick a time.

I had no idea he would take me seriously about old Storms, and Jepson must have been very much irritated when Tom took Mrs. Hapgood along as the third party.

I met Carlotta in the village green one day and we sat down together on a bench. She looked little and pale and her eyes were more the color of autumn-leaf-brown than butterflies' wings. "I know it's tough," I said. "And it will be tougher until the whole thing ends in court. Isn't it odd to think that you've got the place you wanted but in such a roundabout way?"

I didn't mean to hurt her but she gave a little choking sound. "Don't, Hank. . . . Anyhow I haven't exactly got it yet. But of course I will."

"What do you mean you 'haven't exactly got it yet'?"

"Well, Mrs. Hapgood was the straw man—or straw woman, would you say? But she was so upset—she had a sudden nervous spell, it seems, and her hand trembled so she couldn't sign over the deed. Isn't it funny how Tom had to sell her the place for the consideration of a dollar?"

"That was last Friday," I said as calmly as possible. "I presume she has recovered enough to sign her name by now? This is Tuesday, you know."

"Is it?" said Carlotta as if she would never again care what day it might call itself . . . as if no day would never again care what day it other. "O yes, I suppose it is. Why no, Hank, I telephoned her this afternoon and the maid said she was still keeping very quiet in bed."

I felt reassured. After all, Mrs. Hapgood was their dear, trusted, old friend.

But I asked cautiously, "Wasn't there a clause toward the end of the document, reading: 'This conveyance is made for the purpose of enabling the grantee to convey the property to Carlotta Gilbraith, thus creating an estate in her alone?"

She wrinkled her brow, looking bewildered. "Why, no, Hank."

Mrs. Hapgood Moves Into Little House

I knew the clause wasn't necessary, really, and more lawyers up here will leave it out than put it in, simply because the straw man business has become an ordinary technicality. Yet I fumed at the thought of old Jepson Storms neglecting to protect Carlotta completely—even though he knew Mrs. Hapgood had the young people's interests at heart.

Two days later my 'phone rang and Tom shouted: "Hank, you were right!"

"What's happened?" I shouted back.

"Mrs. Hapgood!" he yelled, choking with fury. "She's moved into the little house, bag and baggage!"

I jumped into my jalopy and drove out there. Mrs. Hapgood was all alone, humming to herself, and putting up some crisp new cottage curtains. She had already moved the furniture about a bit. With incredible effrontery, she said, "It's really so much fun to play pretend at keeping house! I don't think I shall even bring a maid or a cook out here."

I was almost speechless as I looked into her guileful face. I was astounded to think how her wide childish blue eyes and her air of naivete had deceived all of us during the years.

"Mrs. Hapgood," I said, tightening my jaw, "you can't do this."

"Can't do what?" she asked sweetly.

"You can't take advantage of friendship and trustfulness and—"

"O pooh," she said.

"This is the most heinous—"

"But it's legal, Hank. You're a lawyer. You understand that anything legal is ethical. No? Tsk! tsk! I can see you don't believe in the letter of the law."

She was absolutely infuriating. But I saw that I had to go easy. I must handle the woman with gloves or she might manifest a more dangerous form of insanity.

"This is only a mischievous prank," I said soothingly. "May I tell Tom and Carlotta that you are just having fun at their expense?"

She glared at me and clenched her fists. "Hank," she said in a low, ominous voice, "if you do that I shall burn this house down. I swear that I mean it!"

Now I was sure she was mad. I got out of there. The nerves around my spine were pringling.

Back in my office I found Tom waiting. His face was strained and the muscles of his cheeks knotty as if he had been gnashing his teeth for hours.

"Well, what happened?" he asked hoarsely.

"Tom," I said, "the woman is quite mad, quite beyond reason. You'll just have to take it easy for a while. We can apply to a court of chancery for relief from this injustice. . . . But it might mean months and months of litigation before we finally got the deed set aside. We'd better consider other possibilities before we bring action. It just might be that Mrs. Hapgood may repent when she realizes Carlotta is heart broken. Where is Carlotta going to stay?"

"At Mrs. Tyson's tourist home. Hank, she was crying when she telephoned me about Mrs. Hapgood. To think I let that hypocritical woman put such a trick over on me! To think how we've trusted her all these years! I wanted Carlotta to have that little place—right away. She loves it so." And so do you, I thought.

Well, we waited. A week went by and yet Mrs. Hapgood had given no sign of regretting her treachery. I was helpless.

Then on Tuesday night when I was working late, I was startled to have Carlotta and Tom come together to my office. "We had dinner," she admitted, "in the Traveler's Grill and we've been trying to work out a plan of persecution."

"We can fix her, I think," said Tom soberly. "Carlotta and I plan to make her life out there perfectly miserable."

"I thought maybe we could smoke her out," said Carlotta. "Something like that. Or infest her with cockroaches and rats. Or tent caterpillars?"

"No! No!" said Tom. "Gosh, no, honey. We mustn't hurt the trees." I knew the honey had just slipped unconsciously, but Carlotta gave him a quick soft glance from under her dark lashes.

"We'll get the place back, honey," she said.

"I know we will, honey," he said. All at once he held out his arms and she ran into them. The tears were flooding down her cheeks and she blotted them against his khaki shirt.

"We'll fight it out along these lines," she sobbed, "if it takes forever—"

"Forever?" said Tom. "You mean——?"

"Yes, together. . . ." She made a funny little snorting sound of love and anger. For the second time I left them alone in my inner office, carefully closing the door.

Next day Mrs. Hapgood came briskly into my office. She looked pleasant and unabashed. She sat erect in the chair by my desk and fingered the pearls which adorned her plump throat.

"I hear," she said, with her eyes as wide and innocent as ever, "that the Gilbraiths stayed together last night at Mrs. Tyson's tourist home? Can you confirm the rumor?"

"It's true," I said coldly. "But what of it? Why this vulgar curiosity? What do you care?"

She sighed. "Ah me! What do I care? I wish I could stop caring so much for so many people. Making an old fool of myself and going to no end of bother and nuisance—just to get a couple of young idiots together again . . ."

Opening her capacious purse, she placed the deed gently on my desk. It was all signed and in order.

"Of course I've lost their friendship," she said sorrowfully.

Then I saw that her blue eyes were more than childlike. They were wise and beautiful and truly good. And I felt foolish. I felt humble. And I thought, probably she knows more about human nature than I will ever know.

CHICAGO Movies SUBURBAN

. . . . . On Chicago Screens

"Wake Island" continues its successful run at the Garrick. . . , Here is Robert Preston, who gilds the stern stuff with relaxing comedy.

Wissia Dina heads the cast of "They Met on Skis." This French production now occupies the screen of the World Playhouse.

Hollywood Gets Fire Scene With Real Fire

Hollywood, Cal., [Wide World].—Black smoke billowed upward and sheets of fire sweep over the deck. Ship's captain Raymond Massey rushed onto the bridge and ordered all hands to abandon the vessel.

It was all most realistic, but there were a couple of features that reassured a visitor that this was no actual ship torpedoeing, but Hollywood's movie magicians at work.

For one, there was Director Lloyd Bacon, a raspy voiced, kindly expert, who served as a lieutenant commander in the last war. Still, he sounded very official with his orders to the [picture] crew.

But there was another gentleman on the set who belied the realness of the scene. He wore a cap marked "service," and he carried a tray with a glass of orange juice for director Bacon. Yes, this was still Hollywood.

But. Hold on—.

The scene was shot and the controled flames were dying down, but fire, real fire, was licking merrily away on the canvas railing strips.

"Hey, that's a sure 'nuff fire," yelled a voice from below. The flames began making headway. Sideline observers on the bridge began climbing down the steep stairway. One brave soul leaped to the emergency ropes dangling off the portside, just like Humphrey Bogart had done a moment before. Bogart plays a tough chief mate on this Warner brothers picture, "Merchant Marine," a tribute to this branch of the war effort.

Director Bacon puffed calmly on his pipe "This was nothing. We really had a fire scene here yesterday. You should have seen it."

Capt. Jac Jacobsen of the Norwegian merchant marine, a visitor, loked thoughtful. "It was good enough for me, this one today," he said. Bacon smiled.

By this time the real fire had been extinguished by real firemen.

"I hope those sea gulls will be ready," Bacon remarked.

Sea gulls?

"Yes, that's another problem. We are having them trained now."

"We have to make them 'homing pigeon' sea gulls. It should be interesting," Bacon concluded.

Yes, this was still Hollywood. Phoney fires, real fires—and now "homing pigeon sea gulls."

Wiman's 52d Production.

"The Damask Cheek," the John Van Druten comedy brought to Broadway by Dwight Deere Wiman, was Mr. Wiman's 52d production in 16 seasons. His first, presented in 1926, was Robert Sherwood's "The Road to Rome."

A Hard Working Prop Man Delivers Goods for War Film

Hollywood, Cal. [Wide World].—War time priorities and rationing have turned the life of Joe Behm into a nightmare.

Joe has been a prop man at 20th Century-Fox for 10 years. A prop man is the fellow who has to dig up everything used in a picture—except actors, of course.

Several weeks ago Behm was assigned to "The Immortal Sergeant," starring Henry Fonda. Behm will be glad when the picture is completed.

Here are some of the things he had to produce:

One armored Bren gun carrier [British], complete with Bren gun.

One armored car [Italian], to be set afire in one scene.

Five hundred rounds of ammunition.

Six Enfield rifles and one Lewis machine gun [British].

An authentic tin of emergency rations, such as is carried by RAF flyers.

Cheese in a tube, like toothpaste, such as is carried by Nazi troops.

As you can guess, "The Immortal Sergeant" is a story of war as it is being fought on the Libyan desert. And here's how Behm delivered the needed articles:

Two old trucks were taken from the studio motor pool. Each was stripped to its chassis. Working from photographs, the Bren gun carrier was built on one, the Italian armored car on the other. Tires for the latter came from the carpenter shop. They were made of wood.

The government had to be convinced the picture was important as a war epic before the ammunition could be obtained, and Behm located a visiting British officer to find out what a flyer's tin looked like.

As for the tube of cheese, Behm concocted a solution, but claims it is a military secret. He emphatically denied it was ordinary toothpaste.

Wedding Rings in Films Cause Studio Problems

Hollywood, Cal., [Wide World].—Actresses who refuse to take off engagement or wedding rings while working before cameras still present problems to directors. During one picture, Penny Singleton objected to taking off the huge Ceylon sapphire given her by Robert Sparks, and an entire sequence had to be rewritten.

When Anita Louise refused to take off her wedding ring, a studio prop-man deftly covered the ring finger with tape and doped it with flesh colored makeup so it didn't show.

A 'Failure' Comes Back.

HOLLYWOOD [Wide-World].—"Gaslight," which got a brushoff when it played here, now is thriving on Broadway as "Angel Street" and studios are now vieing with each other to bring it back as a movie.

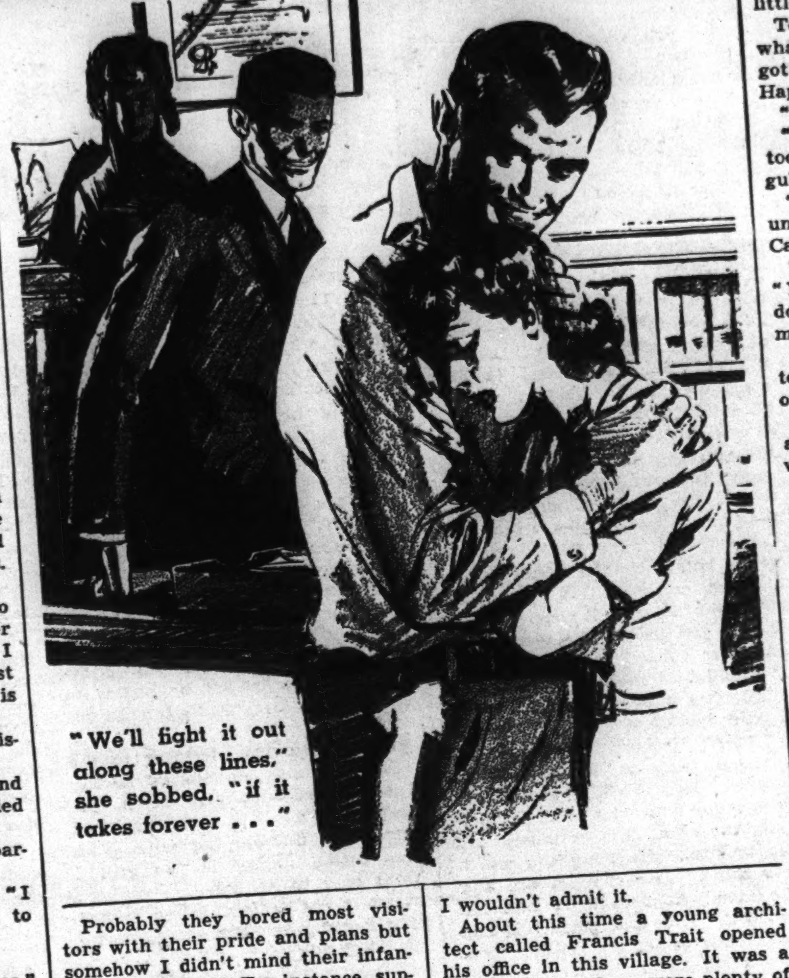
LET'S REMODEL PARADISE

By

Lois Montross

(Copyright: 1942: By Lois Montross Stafford.)



"We'll fight it out along these lines," she sobbed. "if it takes forever . . ."

TOM GILBRAITH dropped into my law offices the first day he met Carlotta. He brought along several bottles of ale and some cigars, so I knew he had come to loaf and talk. It was like our old fraternity bull sessions. But I didn't care for the peculiar glowing expression which lighted up his broad, sunburned face in a foolish way.

"The work at Mrs. Hapgood's is going fine," he said. "The gang started yesterday on trimming and Mrs. H. has also given the order for spraying and feeding her trees. Beautiful blue spruce, you know, and birch and white pine. Not to mention the hemlock hedges and the trained fruit trees."

Tom has a swell job working for a company of tree experts and he gets the orders from the rich summer people around our village. Then he directs the work of his gang. Mrs. Hapgood was fond of Tom and had him take care of all her fine trees. She is a dowager, affluent and friendly, with an estate here in the Vermont hills consisting of just a few hundred acres and a small shack built to house only about 20 guests. She is lonely and surrounds herself with visitors, mostly young people.

"Trained fruit trees," he repeated, opening two bottles of ale while I got out the mugs. "Trained to form a lattice against the garden wall the way they do in France. McIntosh apples and Bartlett pears. Going to try Morello cherries next year. . . . Funny what that girl said."

"What girl?"

"Well, there was a girl—a little bit of a thing with soft brown eyes. You know that soft brown like a butterfly's wings?"

I managed to nod solemnly. Husky, practical old Tom getting poetic? He buried his face in the mug of ale and still came up looking spiritual in spite of a small island of foam clinging to the end of his nose.

"I told her they were trained fruit trees and she asked if they could beg or shake hands."

"Or roll over and play dead?"

He nodded. "She's visiting Mrs. Hapgood. There's a whole crowd up from New York already. . . . This girl had on a white dress."

I snorted. "Is that so remarkable on a warm spring day?"

Tom Reveals Interest in Country Place

He shook his head tolerantly as if to say I couldn't possibly understand his bemusement. After a moment he added, "Like birch—white birch . . . her name is Carlotta."

"I knew a girl once called Carlotta," I said with distaste. "Carlotta Shinlever."

"I don't believe it," said Tom indignantly. "Say Hank, I see you've listed that little place out Prosper way for sale." I deal in real estate on the side. "I was just thinking it's about time I bought a little place of my own. . . ."

Then I saw what had happened to this stout bachelor heart at last. Up until then I had been quite satisfied with his monastic room at the Traveler's hotel.

The place he mentioned is two miles out of the village and you come to it thru a lonely back road bordered by woodland. There are trout brooks, cold and swift, over stony waterfalls and the banks are thick with ferns and trillium and stuff. When you arrive at the top of the hill there is a small stone house with a grove of white birch on one side, flanked by a planted forest of spruce and pine.

"Think of owning all those trees," he said.

"Well, don't do anything rash," I said. "Somehow I can't imagine you keeping house all alone in the woods."

He reddened and changed the subject.

I knew he was seeing Carlotta every day while he worked at Mrs. Hapgood's, and I could well imagine how this Carlotta might stand around and admire a husky, agile tree expert directing his gang of sprayers and trimmers and sometimes even leaping around in the branches, himself, to inspire awe and admiration.

But I hadn't met her until one day she came to my office. She really was awfully pretty and I thought of how Tom had said her eyes were the color of brown butterflies. She was little and had a soft voice and wore a white dress in such a way that I could understand why Tom had noticed it. She was all feminine, gentle curves. I thought, gosh! . . . I didn't blame him.

"Yesterday," she said, "I fell in love—"

"What!" I interrupted, astounded. "The usual thing is to go to a lawyer when you've fallen out of love. I'm not a justice of the peace."

She laughed, her cheeks getting pink. Like apple blossoms, I thought Tom would have said. Still no real man could have exactly condemned Tom's foolishness. She had one of those kissable mouths. O, you know what I mean. Not the hard, lipsticky kind.

"—in love," she hurried on, "with a house. Mrs. Hapgood drove me out to see it. She said you'd listed it for sale at three thousand dollars. So I want to buy it. May I?"

Naturally I didn't want to do Tom a mean turn. "There's another party interested," I said, "and I suppose I'll have to give him first chance. It's Tom Gilbraith who is working at Mrs. Hapgood's."

She scowled, looking bitterly disappointed.

"I can telephone him and find out," I said. I did, and he hurried to my office right away.

They faced each other in embarrassment.

"I had an idea," said Tom, "I just had an idea. I've decided to buy the house."

"O damn!" said Carlotta.

"You haven't heard my idea," said Tom. "It's about thresholds. I thought you would be nice and light to carry over—"

I went into the other office and shut the door. What a nutty proposal, I thought. And yet I could hardly blame old Tom. . . .

That very afternoon the three of us drove out to what they already called "our place." Each one's admiration whetted the other's delight in it. You would have thought they were selling me the property.

There was a small room partitioned off from the living room for no reason at all and Tom said, "Of course we could throw these two rooms into one—?"

"O, we certainly must!" said Carlotta. Then she added thoughtlessly, "Unless you wanted the little one for a sort of workroom and study?"

"Boy. O boy!" cried Tom, "Of course that's what I want! Isn't she a wonderful girl, Hank? I've heard that most women go around knocking down partitions as a hobby. Yes sir! My own workroom!" Carlotta's face fell but she didn't say anythig more, he was so jubilant. Then she gave me a secret smile as if to say, "I'll just bide my time. And you'll see!"

Out on the doorstep they gazed into the trees which crowded around on three sides.

"They look like shy, inquisitive animals," said Carlotta. She considered the dense foliage. "The only thing our place lacks is a view. If you peek between these birches you can see the hills. Tom, we can cut a lane from here to the brook and get a lovely vista."

"Cut——!" exclaimed Tom in horror. "Cut down birches? My God, what is a view compared to birches like these?"

Again she conceded the point by a sweet silence.

So everything was fine. They got their marriage license that afternoon just before our town clerk closed his shoe store.

I never saw two people as happy as Tom and Carlotta were, in that little stone house for a couple of years. They called it Paradise Found, which I thought was positively idiotic. But it seemed that Carlotta had never been happy before in any of her many transient homes.

When a very young girl she had been fought over in the divorce courts—most bitter and notorious litigations. The poor kid's pictures were spread all over the papers. Her mother's reputation was ruined. Her father suddenly committed suicide. Then her mother made two more marriages respectively distressful and weird, and the last one is still hanging on shakily somewhere out in California. When I heard all this I realized how frightened and hurt Carlotta had been. Sometimes if you saw her when she thought herself alone her face still looked sad as if she were scared such happiness couldn't last.

Probably they bored most visitors with their pride and plans but somehow I didn't mind their infantile boastfulness. For instance, suppose I was out there! Tom would tell me all about the magnificent trout in the streams. I never caught any there, myself, tho I think he managed to hook a few eight-inchers. On worms. Nevertheless he believed himself to possess hordes of great rainbow and browntail trout and felt generous when he invited you to fish. The trees, of course, had him in a frenzy.

Carlotta Is Extremely Careful of Garden

What trees they were! The finest white pine and birch in the state, according to Tom, altho previously he had allotted that honor to Mrs. Hapgood. But if he spotted a tent caterpillar you would think he was seeing a hideous automobile accident. Spraying and pruning went on feverishly.

And Carlotta would sigh and snatch a tiny weed from her rock garden as if this pastoral life were a heavy chore. I spent lots of Sundays out at their place and I had to be wary or she would have had me lugging rocks all day for her garden. Yet her strawberry shortcake might have been worth it. That girl had an amazing flair for cooking.

Of course they squabbled lustily sometimes. There were two points of constant disagreement. "Carlotta and her view," Tom would jeer. "She could see it by walking 50 yards, but she wants to sit on the doorstep and hold it in her lap."

Her usual retort was, "Tom and his workroom! He's too lazy to clear it out so he can work in it! Charts and boxes! He keeps fishing tackle on and in his desk. A can of worms in the letter basket!"

Still I agreed with Mrs. Hapgood, who remarked in her soft, placid voice: "Their slight dash of discord is as necessary as salt is to sweet corn."

One day when Tom and Carlotta were outdoors making a silly picnic out of filling a window box with dirt and geraniums and things Mrs. Hapgood looked wistfully about the tiny living room. "Hank," she said, "my lawns are beautifully manicured, aren't they?"

"Certainly are, Mrs. Hapgood."

"And my patio is charming, and my Adam dining room is perfect, and my library is restful?"

"All of that and more."

"Then why do I long for a little house like this?" Her wide blue eyes were puzzled and childlike. "This is ideal. But perhaps it's not the house at all; maybe it's something they've put into it. I don't mean furniture."

"I see what you mean," I said.

"Hank," she said in a very low voice, "I'm not superstitious, but don't you think it was almost too daring of them to call this place Paradise Found? Almost like challenging the gods?"

I had had the same feeling but I wouldn't admit it.

About this time a young architect called Francis Trait opened his office in this village. It was a good idea, for there were plenty of city people crowding in, all dying to tear down old farmhouses and build new farmhouses which would look old. Anyhow that's the way Francis Trait put it—he was an amusing devil.

We met him first at one of Mrs. Hapgood's big garden parties. Her parties were amusing, not to say astonishing, for she chose her friends from the most varied walks of life.

That afternoon the scene looked gay—young people playing badminton and lazy people lolling on the terrace and Mrs. Hapgood beaming at everybody with her wide innocent blue eyes. She had an ingenuous way of going from guest to guest inquiring if they were enjoying themselves.

Tom and Carlotta and I were strolling thru the gardens when we came upon a young man crouching in the path and staring at the house while he shaded his eyes with one hand. He acted as if he had sighted a wild beast. Carlotta demanded anxiously:

"Do you want the elephant gun or just the rifle?"

He stood erect, smiled at her and pretended to receive a weapon. "The elephant gun. Thanks. . . . Now if I miss, run like the devil!"

"How could you miss?" asked Carlotta.

"Yes, it is pretty big, isn't it? Superpituitary. Forgive me for criticizing our hostess' mansion, but after all I'm an architect, and Mrs. Hapgood has a fancy idea that her house could be more—uh—cozy."

He was a dark good-looking fellow with the slim build of a fine tennis player and he made Tom look enormous. Tom's contentment was adding to his original bulk—a surtax contentment often demands. Funny, tho—Carlotta's curves were just as subtle as ever. I suppose women know how to deal with those things.

After we had introduced ourselves he said to them: "So you're the Gilbraiths! Then it was your charming cottage Mrs. Hapgood was telling me about. Yes, that's what made her dissatisfied with this case of elephantiasis."

He was laughing right into Carlotta's brown eyes, ignoring Tom and myself. "You ought to be ashamed to have made Mrs. Hapgood so dissatisfied. She wants this house to be cozy and quaint."

Tom waved toward the densely populated lawns. "And where are all these people going to sleep when you tear down a few dozen bedrooms?"

"Pup tents, I suppose," said Francis Trait, thoughtfully "They're cozy. By the way, I want to see your place. Couldn't we dash out there? I've got to find out what Mrs. Hapgood admires before I make a single suggestion."

This was naturally flattering to Carlotta and Tom. They could hardly wait to show him Paradise Found. I didn't go along. I didn't particularly like the amusing Francis Trait.

Next day I saw Tom down street and we stopped in at the Traveler's for a drink. I asked: "Well, did Trait get any ideas from your lousy little shack?"

Tom scowled. "I guess that's just what he thought it was. Sure he got a lot of ideas. But not for Mrs. Hapgood. For us."

"How do you mean?"

"O, Carlotta could tell you. She took it all in. But you know how gullible women are."

"I know how they are," I said uneasily. "But that's just how Carlotta isn't."

To my astonishment he said: "You're a bachelor, Hank. You don't follow the curvatures of the matrimonial spine."

I looked at my wristwatch. "It's too early for wisecracks. What's on your mind anyhow?"

"O, I finished at Mrs. Hapgood's and I'm going to Burlington to work for a month."

"Carlotta is going with you, isn't she? She planned to—didn't she?"

He ordered two more whiskies and sodas. "O not now. She's going to stay here and make plans with Francis Trait for remodeling our house." I studied his face. I didn't like it when he laughed in that bitter way.

"She wants to remodel the house—our house," he said in an appalled voice. "Architects can't keep their hands off anything even if it is perfect. They narrow their eyes and murmur nasty criticisms. Carlotta is so happy to be backed up in the matter. She says he knows."

I had never seen Tom so heated.

"But Hank, you don't know the worst," he said. "What burns me up is that this Trait supports her in the sacrilegious idea of cutting down some white birches in order to get a 'vista'!"

It looked pretty bad, but I tried to soothe him down. "Come on, now, Tommy, let her dream a little and it will all blow over."

His eyes were miserable. "I don't mind her dreaming. . . . But I don't like her dreaming with another guy about Paradise Found."

While Tom was in Burlington I went out to the Gilbraiths' only once. I found Carlotta and Francis Trait and a couple of carpenters all very busy. I couldn't see any harm in them widening the driveway, but when they talked of cutting down those birches I got sore.

"Look here, Trait," I said, "I'm warning you that trees are pretty sacred to a tree expert. Tom Gilbraith is likely to knock you for a row of Chinese pagodas."

Francis Trait said good-naturedly, "I'm just doing what Carlotta wishes."

"But how about Tom's wishes? I don't think you should have done any of this while he was away."

"We had to do it while he was away," argued Carlotta innocently. "Or he wouldn't have let us. He's been cross as an old bear lately. And when he sees the gorgeous view he won't miss a few white birches. He has hundreds!"

"If you had a lot of children," I muttered, "you'd still miss a couple if they got killed, wouldn't you?"

"O, Hank, you're a sentimental old thing!"

He Offers to Help Smooth Things Out

That made me really angry and I wouldn't stay for supper. I didn't like anything about the whole setup.

All the same I didn't believe the gossip that started around in the village even tho Mrs. Hapgood did.

"I'm terribly worried," she told me. "It's one of those wretched triangles you read about. I wish that Mr. Trait had never come up here. He says that my house is impossible and could never be quaint or cozy unless I tore the whole thing down. Such insolence. The truth is, he hasn't thought of anything but Carlotta Gilbraith ever since he met her. Poor Tom!"

Soon after Tom got back, he came up to my office. He sat in the straight chair by my desk as if he were a client.

"Well, Hank," he said abruptly, "I guess we're on the rocks."

I said sharply, "What nonsense!"

"No, it's serious. Not just a little quarrel. It's like a tree split apart by lightning—nothing you can do about it. We're going to get a divorce."

I lit a cigar, thinking hard.

"Tom, I'll go to Carlotta and I know I can straighten this thing out. I can well imagine how you heard the gossip and became jealous and suspicious and——"

HILLS OF FEAR

By Frederick R. Bechdolt

"You don't think we'd two time you, do you, chum?"

What Has Gone Before

Marian Farley is driving out to Gold Center, Nev., to settle the estate of her brother Bill. He wrote her he was in a venture that would bring him a fortune—then she received news of his death in an auto accident. From her hotel window in Tonopah she sees Red Warrington tinkering with his auto on the street below. Altho she doesn't know him, he looks up and blows her a kiss. Then she hears the voices of three men floating up from the floor below. From their conversation she learns that two of the men are called Bennie and Oscar. The other seems to be a soft spoken older man. They speak of "the Turk" placing a certain sack to the right. Later she sees them on the elevator, recognizing them from their voices. The older man has a corn-colored beard. Bennie and Oscar are wearing pinch-back coats. From Tonopah Marian drives by Beulah's tavern, where Steve, a Turk, is a waiter. At the counter she sees Red again. While she is explaining the purpose of her trip to Beulah, the owner of the tavern, three mail sacks are delivered, and Steve places one to the right. Then Bennie and Oscar appear in the doorway, masked. With drawn guns, they steal the sack Steve has placed to the right of the others and make a getaway, closely followed by Red. Beulah phones the sheriff's office and reports that a mail sack with its $20,000 pay roll has been stolen.

INSTALMENT II.

DURING that morning while Marian was driving southward from Tonopah to Beulah Smith's tavern at the crossroads, Gold Center was lacking its two most prominent citizens.

The justice of the peace, who constituted its one man chamber of commerce, and the local deputy sheriff, who was proprietor of its single tourist attraction, were absent on separate business projects whose natures they were keeping strictly to themselves.

With or without the two of them, there was not much of Gold Center. Two rows of wind blistered wooden buildings whose false fronts had long since lost their paint, a few vacant lots sprinkled with empty bottles which were turning purple in the sunshine.

It was just about the time when Marian was sitting in Beulah Smith's rocking chair speaking his name, that Herbert Billings, Gold Center's justice of the peace, returned to his bailiwick. Aside from the plate glass window of his own office, which was adorned with aggressive gold lettering, the service station where he stopped was the only sympton of modernity in the whole place. Its proprietor emerged from a battered sedan where he had been reading last week's Tonopah Gazette and stifled a mighty yawn behind a sunburned hand.

"How many, Judge?" he asked.

"Fill it up," Herbert Billings bade him and added "Check the oil."

The lean face of the service station proprietor brightened. He glanced over the car's exterior.

"She'd stand a wash," he suggested hopefully. "That white lava dust eats paint something fierce."

The Justice Seems to Be Irritated

The justice of the peace was getting out. He was a little man with shallow brown eyes which were never still, and he was wearing one of those huge felt hats which have become so common thruout the country between the Continental divide and the Sierras. He shook his head to the suggestion. He said:

"Forget it, Skeet." There was a note of irritation in that rebuff which the other did not miss. He was watching the small back as it passed up the wooden sidewalk.

The street was three blocks long, and in the middle of the second block there was a little metal sign whose white lettering and blue background looked out of place on the dingy façade of Gold Center's general merchandise store. The sign said "Intermountain Telephone Company." The service station man saw Herbert Billings bustle into the doorway. Billings plunged into the cubicle and said over his shoulder:

"I'll make the call and get the charges." He closed the door behind him and the elderly woman, who had stepped out of the shadows in the rear of the store to attend upon his wants, retreated before that broad hint of desired privacy. He was some time getting his party at the other end, and, when he had the connection at last, his shallow brown eyes were sparkling, his face was twitching with excitement.

"I got the assays in last night's mail," he announced. "It runs $7 a ton. I went over the ground again this morning. There's five hundred thousand tons lying there if there's a pound—ready to mill." He waited for a few moments while the voice at the other end asked questions.

"Yes, I'm sending the assay reports in the mail." His voice was shaking a little. "Yes. I've got the property sewed up." He paused again and then, "No. You don't understand. You see, I'm handling the estate. He's the deceased. She's in New York. She doesn't know anything about this property and she's the only heir. I've offered to take the whole thing off her hands for the price of the equipment that her brother left. I'll have her consent inside of the next day or two. Then we're set to go." He waited again, and when the other voice had finished, he said good-by. After he had hung up, he drew a long, deep breath and bustled out of the store.

In the meanwhile Henry Piper, who served Gold Center in the capacity of special deputy sheriff, had attended to that portion of his own engrossing affairs where an incognito was desirable. His badge of office was now restored to its place on the khaki shirt beside his corn colored beard. The green sedan which Marian had noticed in Tonopah a few hours before was tooling along the crossroad which left the highway at Beulah Smith's tavern.

Nearing the sunbaked little town of Gold Center, the road hung to the serrated flanks of tawny hills. Piper's blank brown eyes watched the narrow gullies as they unfolded ahead of him. Taking the sharp curve which followed the contours into one of these gulches, he caught sight of his wife and slowed down. She rose from the lava boulder on which she had been sitting. She was a rawboned woman. Her calico dress and sunbonnet had been pink once but they were faded nearly white now.

In the recess between the folds of the brown hills, there was one of those bare spaces beside the narrow strip of macadam which heavy ore trucks use for turnouts. Piper eased the green sedan to a stop here. Then he reached into the back and picked up a leather sack with two handles. It was a perfect replica of the sack which Steve had handed to the bandits. The woman had followed and she was standing beside the running board when he climbed out. He said:

"Okay. Keep out of sight where you can watch for Bennie and Oscar till they go by. By the time you've got the car started they'll be in the clear. Drive slow, and when you've gone half a mile, be sure and sound your horn. You know the place where you're to pull off and wait for me after you've passed us."

She said, "I know."

Her voice was dull, her lean face was without expression, but her eyes were hard and bright and eager.

"Watch the speedometer. Be sure and sound the horn just where I told you."

She made no answer as he walked away. It was hot on the surfaced road and he was walking fast. By the time he had gone three-quarters of a mile his big blank face was beaded with perspiration. The gully into which he turned was wider than the one where he had left his wife, and there were tire tracks in the loose gravel here. He followed them up the gulch and came upon the car which had left them. It was a shabby old car of a model which dated back 10 years. Its paint was gone, it lacked one fender. He stowed away the leather sack beneath the wornout cushion of the driver's seat and sat upon the running board to wait.

Piper and Holdup Men Get Together

He had been here for more than half an hour when the roar of an approaching motor brought him to his feet. His movement had been sudden, but before it was completed the bandit's sedan was heading up the gulch. Gravel spurted from the wheels as it came to an abrupt stop. He said:

"You'll have to pull over further if you want to get this car out." His voice was as bland as oil, and if he were suffering anxiety lest this necessity spoil the timing which he had planned, his face at least betrayed no sign. While the sedan was swinging to the side of the gulch, he stepped over to the ancient car. He plucked two grease stained pairs of coveralls from the space between the seats and passed them thru the sedan window. He said:

"I'd like a look at that sack while you're changing. Just to make sure, Bennie." The bandit beside the window took the coveralls and handed one pair to his companion. He smiled unpleasantly and shook his head.

"You wouldn't be getting ideas, would you?" he asked.

"I always like to make sure," Piper replied softly. "Twenty grand is a whole lot of dough." He took the leather sack which Bennie handed him and scanned it with intentness which was studied but not too great to prevent him from noting that their hard eyes remained upon him all the while he was handling it. He nodded as if he were satisfied.

"You could," he suggested smoothly, "shoot off that padlock and give me my cut right now before you go." Their refusal was as profanely vigorous as he had known it would be. He said, "Okay," and laid the sack upon the worn cushion of the old car's front seat, then waited indifferently while they drew the greasy coveralls over their flashy suits. The change had been completed and the driver was opening the door on his side, about to step out when a horn sounded on the road.

"Car coming." Piper's voice had an edge. "Sure you're out of sight there?"

During the moment while they were looking toward the road, he took the stolen sack from the front seat where he placed it, and dropped it at his feet. He kicked it beneath the sedan in which they were sitting, withdrew its replica from beneath the seat cushion where he had hidden it, and laid it where the original had been. The noise of the passing car had grown louder and was receding now. The two bandits had recovered from their brief alarm. Both pairs of eyes went to the leather sack immediately. Piper said:

"I'll be looking for my cut within three days." They were climbing into the old car while he was speaking. The smaller man, the one called Oscar, who had been driving the sedan, settled himself behind the wheel. His companion raised his voice above the whine of the starter.

"You don't think we'd two-time you, do you, chum?" Piper shook his head.

"No, I don't think so," he murmured softly.

The old car shot down the gulch. If any one had seen it then, he would have said its passengers were a pair of mechanics from a small town garage. Piper reached under the abandoned sedan—it was, of course, a stolen car—and recovered the leather sack. He was sitting on it beside the road when his wife drove by to pick him up a few minutes later.

"It went all right," he told her. "You couldn't of timed it better than you did. I would like to see those two punks when they open that sack in Los Angeles tonight."

"How soon do we get out of this?"

"Three or four days. A week maybe. We'll wait long enough for the news of the holdup to quiet down." He smiled at her and his voice took on assurance now. "They won't show up again. Don't worry. Magnesite company will offer a reward."

"It's not them that I'm afraid of," she said. "It's Billings. That man's had something on his mind for the last two weeks or so. You don't suppose . . ." Piper laughed softly.

"He's probably on the track of a new sucker. That's all he thinks about."

"If he got it into his head that you was mixed up in these stickups," she persisted, "he'd turn you up. He'd rat on his own mother if there was a reward out for her. He drove away into the hills this morning again. Suppose he knew about this side line of yours? And found out where the plant is?"

"He's too busy thinking up cheap promotions to figure on a play like that," Piper said. "And anyhow, he'll never rat on me. Not Billings. I've got too much on him. Well, here we are." They passed the highway sign which proclaimed the limits of Gold Center. "I'll drop you now. I'll be back home in half or three-quarters of an hour."

Piper's Discovery has him worried

But his placidity vanished when he turned into the narrow road which led into the hills a few miles beyond the town, and his big face was no longer blank as he scanned the tire tracks in the shallow ruts ahead of him. When he reached a stretch of soft earth where the imprints showed more plainly, he climbed out and examined them closely.

Apparently his serenity was restored when he returned to Gold Center within the hour, but this was merely external, and his pale brown eyes took in the white coating of dust on Herbert Billings' sedan before he brought the green car to a halt in front of the service station pump.

……

The sign beside the road midway between Beulah Smith's tavern and Gold Center had been fashioned from a bit of pine which had once been a portion of a canned goods box. It had been whittled into the shape of a crude arrow and its maker had painted upon it the legend: TOMCAT MINE FIVE MILES. But the sign was insignificant and Marian did not notice it as she drove by.

Nor did she notice the by-track to which the sign called attention.

When that by-road—which she had passed without seeing—topped the summit, it descended into a gulch. Where the gulch reached the flat lands on this further side, there was a grove of cottonwoods. Red Warrington's topless car was parked beneath the trees and Red was seated on the running board.

NEXT SUNDAY—"AND THERE WAS BATTLE," A SHORT STORY BY DENNIS MORRISON

War Stimulates History Courses at Indiana U.

Enrollments Show Big Gain Since Dec. 7

By the Rev. John Evans.

American history as a university classroom subject is one of the greatest beneficiaries of the war. This was reported by Indiana university which has noted an extraordinary revival of American history interest since the attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7.

Starting with the spring semester which opened less than two months after the country's declaration of war, enrollments in courses of American history and also in the study of government took a sudden upward swing. The rise continued on thru the summer semester to the fall registration.

Dr. Ford P. Hall, head of the department of government, and Dr. A. L. Kohlmeier, head of the history department, report that 11 per cent more students are taking American history and 16 per cent more are taking courses in government than a year ago. The percentages would be even higher, it was announced, if accommodations in classes were available to all applicants.

As it is, the department of government has the largest enrollment in the history of the university, with 1,120 as compared with last year's 934. Thirty per cent of all undergraduate students are studying in the government department.

With the latest map to prove it, Dr. Kenneth E. Caster of the University of Cincinnati shows that South America is three continents instead of one. It should be explained that he is a paleogeographer and the new map is of South America during the paleozoic era, 300 million years ago. The present outline of South America, Dr. Caster said, is very young—only a matter of a few tens of thousands of years.

Dr. John A. O'Brien of the University of Notre Dame, who has written a great deal on the intimate relationship of science and religion, now points to a feather as one of the clearest evidences of a Supreme Designer. A single eagle feather, Father O'Brien said, is one of the most perfect structures in the world, with nearly a million coördinated parts. His article, "A Feather Speaks of God," appeared in the September American Ecclesiastical Review.

Yenching university, Peiping, China, closed last December by the Japanese, has joined the ranks of China's valiant universities in exile and has opened its doors in Chengtu, in western China. Financial help given by the board of trustees of the university and by numerous friends and alumni, made the pilgrimage financially possible. Finance Minister H. H. Kung gave $10,000 and asked military commanders to smooth the way for students journeying to the new home.

But the saddest part of the story of the university's pilgrimage is that only 10 per cent of students desiring to enroll could be accommodated. The reason: Books and laboratory equipment for only 300 students could not be stretched for all 3,000 applicants.

The University of Michigan has salvaged 62 tons of scrap iron and about the same amount of paper during the last three months. For the fiscal year ending last June, the university salvaged 77 tons of steel and iron, a ton of copper, and 156 tons of paper. The building grounds department also salvaged nearly 75 tons of old tin cans.

Approximately 2,500 University of Wisconsin alumni are now in the armed services with 300 in overseas units. Twenty-seven have died or lost their lives in the service and seven are missing. Government awards have been given to three alumni: The distinguished flying cross to Maj. William R. Bradford of the class of 1918. Capt. William N. Donovan, class of 1932, and now a prisoner in Japan, was given the distinguished service cross, and Lieut. Richard A. Knobloch, who was with Gen. Doolittle over Tokio, was given the distinguished service cross.

Grace George Talks of Crosswords and an Old Play

She Considers Reappearing in 'Kind Lady'

By Claudia Cassidy.

Grace George. [Vandamm photo.]

"What, do you suppose," said Miss Grace George, "is the onomatopoeic name for the lapwing?"

Now while that may sound like the ominous beginning of a question aimed at John Kieran in hope of investing the Georgian library with the Encyclopaedia Britannica, both junior and senior sizes, it was merely the faintly weary protest of a lovely lady confronted with a British crossword puzzle not only whimsical, but to the Irish eye, downright inimical.

To make it worse, this particular puzzle, duly clipped from the London Telegraph—with a fringe of such wartime items as offerings of demolition cranes, requests for donations of gold and diamonds to the Red Cross, and storage available in "nonvulnerable" areas—had been worked out neatly, and as neatly erased, by Miss George's distinguished co-star, C. Aubrey Smith of the Selwyn's "Spring Again" and points west to Hollywood.

Mr. Smith, having a Britisher's control of the so-called English language, had worked the puzzle with glee and gusto—or so he told us. Miss George couldn't work it at all, so she gave it, with her blessing, to me. I am stuck hard and fast on a word in five letters meaning "the 13 across of the 14 across, perhaps." My trouble, or at least a part of my trouble, is that I don't even know the 14 across, perhaps or otherwise. It is another five letter item, and doubtless a quaint one, meaning "if you are doubtful whether this material will suit you it gives a sound answer." Is this negotiable double talk?

Having shunted this baffling whimsy on my none too grateful shoulders, Miss George was free to worry about coughing audiences, and about whether or not to bring "Kind Lady" to Chicago after the tour of "Spring Again." The two have more than casual connection.

That is, both plays have expository first acts which need skilled playing to hold audience attention. Miss George had a coughing audience at the Selwyn opening and she is too much of a trouper to try to deflect the blame. "Mr. Brady [her husband, the veteran producer, William A. Brady] told me years ago," she insists, "that if an audience coughs persistently, it's because the actors aren't doing their job."

But if Miss George wasn't doing her job, my judgment of acting is not to be trusted even from the second row. It seemed to me, a George admirer of positively historical vintage, that nothing more incandescent than her second act had brightened the theater since the saucier visits of the Lunts or bubbling Ina Claire. It was an outburst of skill buoyed up by a physical energy that took actual possession of the stage, the play, and the audience.

In "Kind Lady," says Miss George, nothing so spectacular is necessary. She has been acting the piece off and on since 1935, and she has a weakness for it, tho apparently none in it. If you remember the play as an adaptation of Hugh Walpole's story, "The Silver Mask," you know it as a clinical study in horror which permits a cynical scoundrel to spin charm like an icy prison around a woman who makes the mistake of being impulsively kind.

"Once I get that play started," admits its star, "I don't have to do another thing. The audience does it for me."

Altho this may sound like a rest cure after three acts that keep Miss George constantly on the stage in "Spring Again," write most of it off as engaging understatement of the rare gift which so embroils audience sympathies that the heroine has to be rescued, even if it means rewriting the story.

Miss George always had, and always will have, that unmistakable heroine quality. After more than 40 years on the stage she has lost none of her wayward charm, her rueful gaiety, or that glint in those beautifully set blue eyes. When she walks on a stage other women simply take a back seat. As long as you retain that priceless quality on the stage—and no doubt off the stage—no one is going to question your right to be the chief concern of the audience as well as the playwright.

I first saw Miss George in a revival of one of her greatest successes—as Cyprienne in "Divorcons"—a memory cherished along with that of Ina Claire and Roland Young in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney." Even when she was supposed to be miscast in "The Road to Rome," she simply took the rôle in her own hands and made it, piquantly, hers. Do you remember McKay Morris, who played opposite her as Hannibal? Probably I was the only person in the audience who didn't know that curly black mop was a wig.

Besides being a busy actress and a play reader for her husband, Miss George has had time to be interested in other careers. Chiefly, of course, in that of her gifted stepdaughter, the late Alice Brady. But also in Helen Hayes', for it was Miss George who persuaded Miss Hayes to play Maggie in "What Every Woman Knows." It was a key to stardom and Miss Hayes knows who gave her that key. She still says, "I knew if Grace George said I could play it, I could play it."

Because great ladies of the stage are scarce and superior vehicles for them are even scarcer, it will be pleasant if Miss George does come back to town in "Kind Lady." Perhaps if she waits until we have spring again I may be able to confront her with that tantalizing puzzle triumphantly solved. I wonder how long it takes to get mail back from London? Or if C. Aubrey Smith could be depended on to keep a secret, once he returns to Hollywood?

Frances Langford, who is appealing for phonographs, radios, movies, and magazines for America's troops in the Aleutian Islands, following the morale building trip she made with Bob Hope, Jerry Colonna and Tony Ramono.

Play Presented at Camp Without Scenery, Props

In a recent performance for the soldiers at Fort Meade, Maryland, Eva Le Gallienne and Joseph Schildkraut acted in "Uncle Harry" without benefit of the regular props and scenery. Margaret Webster asked the soldiers to use their imagination, which they did after a few minutes of initial surprise. Morale officers were pleased to observe that a Broadway play could be presented successfully for a group of soldiers without having to transport scenery and properties.

Miss Langford Braves Perils of Aleutians

Hollywood, Cal., [Wide World].—Bob Hope calls her the "Queen of the Aleutians," and America's soldiers stationed in the icy coldness of the far northwest commissioned her an honorary sergeant major.

After reading her diary and listening to her tell of the adventure filled trip, it is no wonder that pert, throaty little Frances Langford came back loaded with honors and treasured souvenirs—and a yen to go back to the cold country.

Frances, Hope, Jerry Colonna, and Guitarist Tony Ramono made the trip—16,000 mile morale builder—to the remotest stations in Alaska and the distant tips of the forbidding Aleutian Islands.

All want to return this winter. But Hope is going to operate differently. He's going to demand a split of all the trophies, bracelets, and honorary titles bestowed on his singing star.

Scribbled entries in Frances' diary prove the trip has not been matched by any other group of entertainers, or was it a picnic. Not when you fly in weather where the pilot not only lands, but takes off by instrument; where you give shows to groups of laugh hungry soldiers huddled in lonely dugouts or squatting in rain and mud, or entertain off the back end of an army truck while snow beats in your face, or use tree stumps for a stage.

Situations came up that were like movie scripts, but they weren't scripts. This was not play acting.

There was the time in mid-September when all four donned parachutes and prepared to jump at 13,500 feet. It happened over Anchorage, Alaska. The big army plane was trapped in heavy soup, or zero-zero weather.

Radio communication snapped off and the plane circled for nearly two hours. Frances said Hope told her later that as they sat in their "cabin in the sky" all the bum jokes and bad shows he had ever said or done passed thru his mind.

It was Hope, too, who cracked—as tension mounted—about the parachute gag. It was the one he had been telling the boys in the camps, about instructions given the paratroopers. . . . Jump, count 10, pull the cord—and a station wagon will be waiting when they landed. The joke was that the man jumped, the 'chute didn't open, and as he fell he muttered, "I'll bet that d—— station wagon won't be waiting, either."

• • •

"There we were, just waiting for the final order to leap when Bob looked up and grinned, 'I'll bet that station wagon won't be waiting this time, either.' "

As a matter of fact, when they landed by ack-ack searchlights, no station wagons were on hand, but the airport ambulances were on deck, expecting a crash landing.

At some places, Frances continued, the ground crew had to run ahead on the landing field at a take-off to see that wolves were not sleeping on the runway. It was their favorite sleeping place.

Another time wolves howled outside their hut at an Aleutian outpost.

"Do you think I ought to answer them?" Hope inquired.

"Don't think the boys up there didn't do a quick 'retake' when our plane would taxi up," Frances said. "Bob and I always fought to get to ride in the co-pilot's seat, and I always won. I'd stick my head out and say, 'Contact off.' As soon as the boys would see it was a girl, they'd yell, 'Hey, fellows, look! A woman's here!' Bob said he'd never take a woman up there again. They got all the attention."

Frances laughed. You could see a close bond grew among the four on a trip like this. And she was proud of one thing: She was the first white woman who ever set foot on some of those islands.

She showed a letter one boy wrote just before they left one station. It thanked the four for coming, and added that if this was an example of the support they were getting from the folks back home, the war, and this desolate place were easier to stand.

"They didn't know we got a bigger kick out of seeing them than they got out of seeing us, or that we felt honored to be permitted to make the trip," Frances commented.

She lost count of the actual number of shows they gave, but they were on the go 24 hours a day.

MAESTRO

Henry King is the suave maestro of a good band in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Bob Hope, who jested even when he and his Aleutians cheer-up party faced the prospect of a parachute leap during a flight over Anchorage, Alaska.

CLASSICAL RECORDINGS

One of the minor bafflements of life in wartime is why the record companies, faced with a serious shortage of basic material, squander that precious stuff on inconsequential music. Columbia has issued Tschaikowsky's pot boiler, "Capriccio Italien," played by the New York Philharmonic Symphony under the direction of Sir Thomas Beecham [X-229, $2.50] and Glazounoff's Overture on Greek Themes, which is less Greek than Glazounoff even when conducted by Dimitri Mitropoulos at the head of the Minneapolis Symphony [X-228, $2.50].

Both albums are technically clear and concise. Sir Thomas misses the Tschaikowsky boat by playing a Russian's idea of an Italian fantasy with a strong streak of British reserve, but if you accept the insistence on dignity, the performance is smooth and alert. Mitropoulos has more feeling for the sensuous curvature of the Russian musical spine.

Columbia Singles: Bartlett and Robertson play a lacy performance of the waltz from the ubiquitous Arensky suite, and a bubbling one of the scherzo from Mendelssohn's music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream," arranged for two pianos by Phillip. . . . Jan Kiepura sings the Flower Song from Bizet's "Carmen," with Wilhelm Steinberg conducting, and "M'Appari" from Flotow's "Martha," with Robert Armbruster conducting. Both arias are in French, and both hold typical Kiepura virtues and flaws.

Art of Early Craftsmen Displayed by Antiquarians

Philip Young Collection at Institute Show

By Edith Weigle.

One of the most interesting exhibitions of furniture ever held here opened under the auspices of the Antiquarian society at the Art institute last week. Two galleries were redecorated especially for it.

The collection is that of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Young of Boston and is made up of household furniture of our American ancestors of the 17th and 18th centuries. None of the pieces has been on view to the public before; all come from the owners' home in historic old Louisburg square.

In the first gallery are items characteristic of the work of American cabinet makers of the 18th and 19th century, all of whom were inspired by the styles of Chippendale, Sheraton, and Hepplewhite. There is a very beautiful mahogany and satinwood desk with tambour slides, a type that is being copied today by our own craftsmen and that is so much more interesting than the slant top desk so often associated with colonial times.

This example, which follows the lines of Sheraton, was made in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, about 1800 and shows great skill in the combination of fine woods and light veneers. There are five drawers below the folding writing table.

Nearby is a charming and very elegant example of a Hepplewhite sideboard, probably made by John Seymour of Boston. Satinwood inlays, and tambour sliding doors which lock, give it great beauty, as does the graceful line of a curving front. A very fine mahogany framed mirror with shell inlay and gilded moldings, in the manner of Chippendale, hangs above it. This dates back to 1780-'90.

Also in this gallery is an extraordinary sofa, longer than any this writer has ever seen in any museum. Of mahogany with bird's-eye maple and satinwood veneers, it is unusually graceful and slender. The four front legs are turned and reeded. It was probably made between 1800 and 1810 and is said to have belonged to Gen. Knox of Revolutionary war fame.

The collection has an interesting example of the small, block front knee-hole desk, another piece of furniture frequently copied today by our own furniture manufacturers. This particular piece was probably used as a dressing table and was country made in the style of the famous John Goddard of Newport. Like all the items in the Young collection it has great individuality.

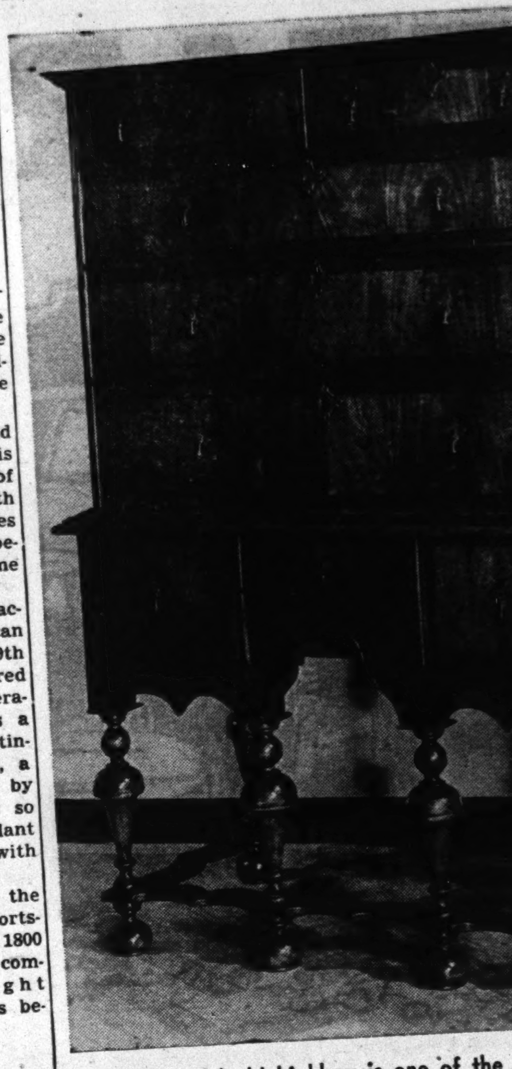
Earlier pieces are in the second gallery: a large, gateleg table said to have been in the possession of Benjamin Franklin's father in Boston; a curious old pipe box of maple; an armchair of elm, of the type named for Gov. Carver of the Massachusetts Bay colony; another of the Brewster type and dating back to 1615; a desk or "Bible box," the earliest form of desk [1680-1700]; a pine chest of drawers in the Jacobean style, and an unusual example of the "long chair," made between 1710 and 1725.

The picture today shows a handsome 18th century walnut and pine highboy in the Young collection. This was a forerunner of our tall chest, and was made up of a chest of drawers set on top of a low chest or a table. The inverted cup or "trumpet" legs with the curved stretcher and the "tear drop" brass drawer pulls were characteristic of the highboy of the 1700s.



This beautiful old highboy is one of the many interesting items in the current exhibition of antique furniture from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Young of Boston, on view at the Art institute.

Household Forum

by LOUISE BARGELT

[Have you some favorite household help that lightens labor or conserves materials? Is there some comfort you could enjoy? We'll be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers. Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune.]

Mrs. Clara G., Chicago: The nap wore off our rug in the basement game room, in front of the sofa. I mixed some dye the color of the rug and sprayed it on the worn spot, using an insect sprayer. This helped the looks of the rug.

Sadie M., Evanston, Ill. My family has shrunk in size, with one girl at school and two boys in the army, so now to keep a cake fresh longer I pin slices of bread to the cake with toothpicks. I do this, of course, after I have cut off the first two or three slices. Two thin slices of bread do the work, each piece laid against exposed sides from which cake has been cut.

* *

Mrs. Leonard C., Des Moines, Ia.: I keep bowls of water between my potted plants in winter time and this seems to give them needed humidity. And for my house plants, except those with fleshy crown or hairy leaves, I sprinkle them daily with a slight amount of water to keep the foliage from getting dust clogged.

* *

Mrs. G. F. S., Chicago: If you are bothered with soot collecting on the kitchen utensils you use on your open outdoor fire, try my method of rubbing utensils with soap. The soot still collects—but it is a lot easier to remove!

* *

Mrs. Harry G., Chicago: For some years I have kept my flower pots from marring window sills by slipping under each pot a discarded fruit jar rubber. This also kept the pots from slipping off easily, but this year I gave all my old rubber pieces away, and my "flower pot rubbers" along with them. Wonder if any one has a "help" which would serve the same purpose as those old fruit jar rubbers?

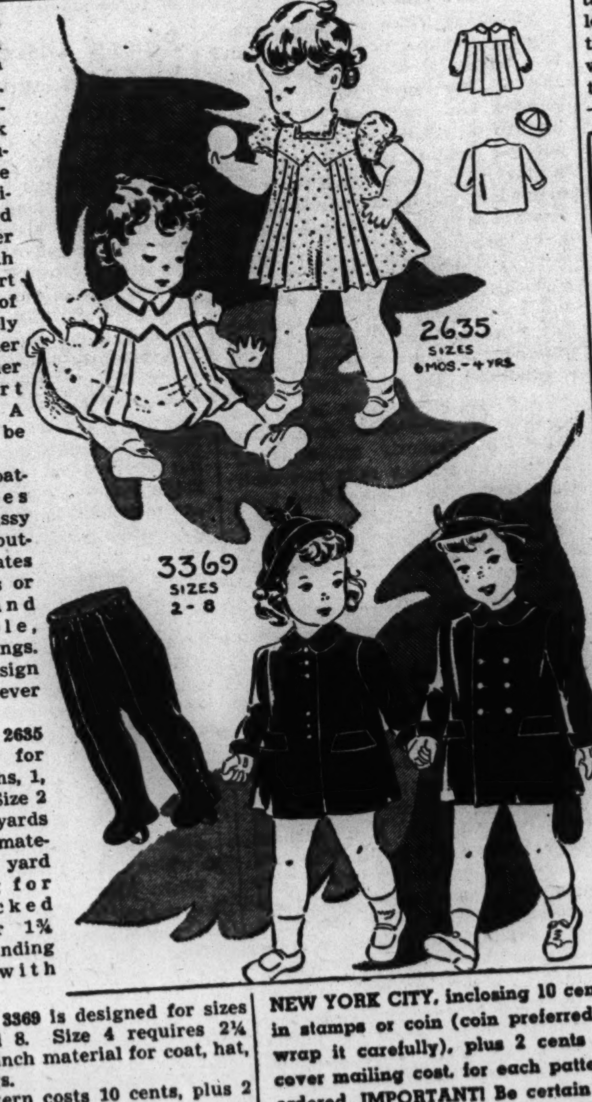
Clotilde Children's Patterns

The toddlers get consideration in the pattern offerings today. One design creates a party frock for the diminutive sub-deb. The dress may be tailored, or trimmed with lace or other edging. In both versions the skirt has two sets of plaits, a nicely fitted shoulder yoke, and either long or short puffed sleeves. A collar may be used.

The other pattern dresses Buddy or Cissy for a winter outdoors. It creates either a boy's or girl's coat and comfortable, warm leggings. This one design also makes clever little hats.

Style No. 2635 is designed for sizes 6 months, 1, 2, 3, and 4. Size 2 requires 1½ yards of 35 inch material, with 1 yard of edging for square-necked dress, or 1¾ yards of binding for dress with collar.



Style No. 3369 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8. Size 4 requires 2¼ yards of 54 inch material for coat, hat, and leggings.

Each pattern costs 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost.

Address orders for Clotide Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully), plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Home Owners' Queries

DETROIT, Mich. [To the Home Owners' Editor].—We have some unfinished wood bookcases of semihardwood. I'd like to give these a "walnut" look. How shall I go about it?—George F.

Answer: See your paint dealer for a chart on oil stains and select a "walnut" stain. Follow directions carefully, and then for the finish apply a good quality varnish.

CHICAGO [To the Home Owner's Editor].—How often should air filters be changed in a forced warm air heating system? And just what are the advantages of keeping these clean?—K. L.

Answer: They should be changed at least once a year, and oftener if necessary. Clean air filters will save a surprising amount of fuel by making it easier for the heating plant to maintain proper temperature.

CHICAGO [To the Home Owners' Editor.—We've moved into a house with a den which has oak trim. This trim is in need of revarnishing. Will new varnish darken trim? And should old varnish be removed?—James F.

Answer: Varnish will not darken your trim materially. You do not need to remove old varnish if it is in fair condition. Just wash it with a mild soap and water and after it is dry dull any gloss that remains by rubbing with a fine sandpaper. Follow up by wiping with turpentine and then apply your new varnish.

Holiday Cakes Should Be Baked in Advance

Fruit Cakes Are Better When 'Aged'

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

If you want fruit cake for Thanksgiving and the Christmas holidays, now's the time to make it. Most of the best fruit cakes are improved by aging for a month or six weeks at least, and many of them, especially those which are wined or brandied, need even longer.

The very elaborate, rich, and expensive fruit cake recipes will have to be tucked away for the duration in most homes. Out will come the economical recipes, many of them as old fashioned and homey as great-grandma herself.

DARK HOLIDAY CAKE.

[Eight pounds.]

1 cup vegetable shortening
1¾ cups firmly packed brown sugar
9 eggs, well beaten
½ glass any kind of jelly
¾ cup molasses
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
1½ teaspoons allspice
1 teaspoon mace
¼ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg
2½ cups sifted flour
¾ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup fruit juice
2 pounds raisins or raisins and currants
1 pound dates, figs or prunes, chopped
1 pound nuts, chopped
½ pound mixed candied peel, chopped

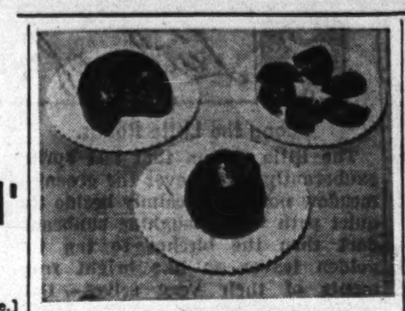
Cream shortening and sugar until very light. Add eggs, jelly, molasses, and spices and mix well. Add 1½ cups of the flour to the nuts and fruit. Sift soda and salt with remaining flour and add to first mixture. Add fruit juice. Then stir in fruit and nuts. Mix thoroly. Bake in greased, paper lined loaf pans [four] for 2½ hours at 300 degrees. If you wish to glaze these cakes, brush, half an hour before taking them from the oven, with a sirup made by boiling equal parts sugar, corn sirup, and water for 5 minutes.

CHRISTMAS FRUIT CAKE.

[Two loaves, 8 by 4 by 3 inches.]

5 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
2 teaspoons cinnamon
2 teaspoons cloves
2 teaspoons nutmeg
2 cups margarine
2 cups sugar
8 eggs, separated
1 tablespoon molasses
1 cup sour milk
1 cup grape juice
6 cups raisins
1½ cups currants
1½ cups chopped figs
1½ cups chopped citron or mixed candied fruit
3 cups chopped apple
4 cups chopped nuts

Sift flour, baking powder, soda, and spices several times. Cream margarine and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat egg yolks until thick and light, and add. Add molasses and milk. Add half the flour to fruit and nuts, mixing well. Stir remainder of flour mixture with shortening, sugar, and egg yolks. Add grape juice. Beat well. Add fruits and nuts with the rest of the flour. Stir until blended. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold them in carefully. Bake in two greased, paper lined loaf pans, 8 by 4 by 3 inches, at 300 degrees for 4 hours.



Individual fruit cakes steamed and baked in orange shells make wonderful holiday gifts. The cakes will keep as long as a year, too, only nobody ever wants to keep them that long. For a description of how to prepare these delectables, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BRANDY FRUIT CAKE.

[Two 8 by 4 by 3 inch loaves.]

1 cup margarine
1 cup sugar
6 eggs
2 cups sifted flour
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon mace
3 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
1 pound currants
1 pound raisins, chopped
1¾ pounds mixed candied fruit
2 cups cut dates
Juice of 1 lemon
½ cup brandy

Cream margarine and sugar thoroly. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Sift flour with spices, baking powder and salt. Pour lemon juice and brandy over mixed fruits. [Some cooks soak the fruit in the brandy overnight]. Add flour mixture and brandied fruits in alternate portions. Mix well and turn into greased, paper lined pans, 8 by 4 by 3 inches. Cover the pans with greased paper, tying the covers on tightly. Steam 4 hours. Uncover and bake in a 275 degree oven for 1½ hours longer, or until done.

How to Prepare Fruit Cakes for Baking.

Grease the pans well with an unsalted fat. Cut heavy brown paper to fit the pans and grease it well after lining the pans. Fruit cake batter usually doesn't rise very much, so it is all right to fill pans three-quarters full except in the case of some of the light fruit cakes. Oven temperatures must be kept low, as fruit cakes scorch easily.

How to Store Fruit Cakes.

You need an airtight container of some kind. Wrap the cooled cakes in waxed paper and store in the closed container. If you wish to wine or brandy them; open the container every week or so and sprinkle a spoonful of wine or brandy over the top of each cake. Don't use more than 2 tablespoons of the liquor for each cake at one time. If you don't brandy the cakes, do not open the container until you're ready to eat the cake.

• • •

Glazed fruit cakes may be decorated with large pieces of fruit and nuts. To glaze, brush warm baked cakes with a sirup made by cooking ½ cup sugar, ½ cup corn sirup, and ¼ cup water until it thickens, but not long enough for it to spin a thread. Press fruits and nuts into the glaze.

• • •

For more fruit cake recipes [all of them thoroly tested and all of them favorites of Tribune readers], see "Holiday Cookies and Fruit Cakes," a mimeographed booklet which will be mailed to any person upon receipt of 5 cents in stamps. Address Mary Meade, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt.

Decorative insulating boards of various types now available are as useful in repair and decoration of a single room as in the conversion of a large old house into small apartments for defense workers. Often an entire room can have its walls and ceilings completed in a day or two. And in connection with this type of structural insulation there's a free booklet available, "The Magic of Insulation" which illustrates in color various interesting rooms which have resulted from combining insulation and decoration in the building of walls and ceilings.

When it comes to ceilings: if you're looking for a different and colorful finish for the ceiling of a basement or attic recreation room there are alternating rectangles of insulation board in contrasting colors. These small panels come ready cut and, when installed, give the ceiling a tile-like appearance.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Production of the new alloy nickels was started on Sept. 18 and by this time specimens no doubt are in the hands of some collectors. These coins will show the letter "P" for Philadelphia directly above the dome of Monticello. It is assumed that the Denver and San Francisco mints will place their initial letters in the same position. This is the first time the letter "P" has appeared on a United States coin and its use in this case is to distinguish these silver content nickels from those made of the nickel alloy. The new nickels are 35 per cent silver, 56 per cent copper and 9 per cent maganese while the alloy in use prior to this change consisted of 75 per cent copper and 25 per cent nickel.

Effective Oct. 15, permits must be obtained in order to send United States stamps and philatelic material to addresses outside the United States. Eligible persons may obtain permits from the Philatelic control unit, United States Postal Censorship station, 244 Seventh avenue, New York, N. Y. Exception is made to mail addressed to service men and sent thru the army postal service, or other service mails.

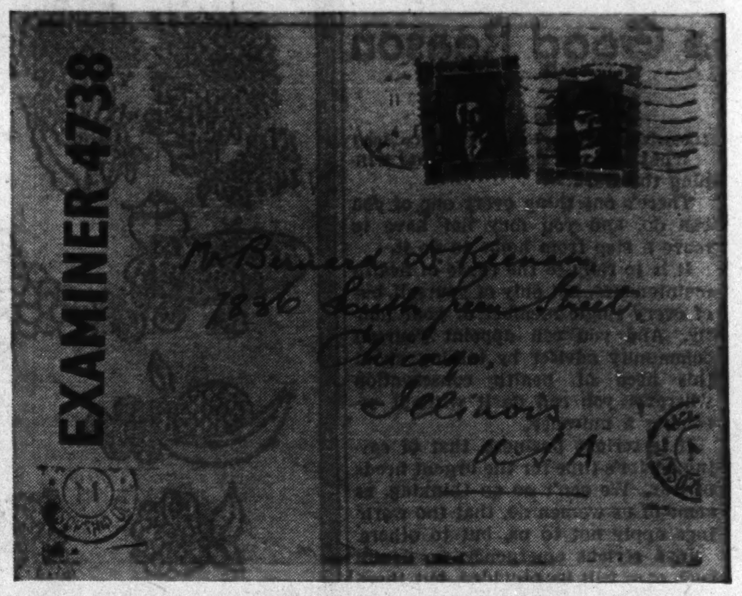
Ralph A. Kimble, editor of the American Philatelist, who has maintained a reserve status in the United States army since the World war, has entered the service in the inspector general's department. The work of editing and publishing this very fine monthly stamp magazine will be handled in the future by Lester G. Brookman, of Minneapolis.

Mr. Brookman is well known to readers of the magazine and members of the American Philatelic society for his interesting and instructive handbooks on the bank note issues and the grilled issues of United States stamps which ran serially in the American Philatelist and for his study of the United States 1847 stamps which was recently concluded in the same publication.

The Stamp Collector extends its wishes for the success of both these ardent philatelists in their new undertakings.

This department dislikes very much to critize other philatelic writers, but feels obliged to call attention to a gross error in an editorial in Linn's Weekly Stamp News for Oct. 8, 1942. The editor of this paper has been in the stamp game so long that there seems to be no valid reason for his confusing the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the Government Printing office.

If as he says printers thruout the country know the bureau as the GPO it is time that the printers wake up. We doubt if he speaks for very many printers. As every beginning stamp collector knows the Bureau of Engraving and Printing is a part of the treasury department and its work consists chiefly in preparing the intaglio engraved stamps, notes and other securities of the government. The great Government Printing office while not equipped to produce engraved work is responsible for the million and one pieces of printed matter which issue from the various departments.



Bernard Keenan of Chicago has lent this Egyptian cover for illustration. It shows the mark of the Egyptian censor as well as the British label used to reseal the opened envelope.

Much of the work of the latter office could be farmed out to smaller printers during this emergency which is what the editor of Linn's Weekly Stamp News is trying to get at.

Whether the government printer knows it or not some portion of his work is now being handled by small job printers. There never seems to be enough copies of the various forms which must be filled out in order to buy this or do that and local printers supply the deficiency.

Philatelic publishers are to cooperate with the USO "Stamps for Service Men" campaign and have agreed to send their publications to the service clubs. More than 700 clubs will receive weekly from one to four magazines provided by Stamps, Mekeel's Weekly Stamp News, Weekly Philatelic Gossip, Linn's Weekly Stamp News, Chambers' Stamp Journal, the American Philatelist, the Western Stamp Collector; the Collector's Bulletin and the Cover News. Gifts of stamps and philatelic accessories for service men should be sent to USO Stamps for Service Men, Empire State building, New York, N. Y.

Jere Hess Barr, 533 Penn street, Reading, Pa., announces that the eighth annual book of the American Philatelic congress will contain 10 papers and will be ready for distribution in November. This annual congress of stamp collectors, scheduled at Cincinnati, was called off to assist the transportation program, but the officers see no reason for depriving collectors of the material prepared for the event.

The Knights of Columbus will sponsor a cachet in connection with the third annual Boy Hobby show, Nov. 9, 1942. Send covers ready to go to G. H. Hamilton, RCD 264, 54 Hooper street, Pittsburgh, Pa. Postage must be prepaid at first class rates and each cover must be accompanied by one cent for forwarding. Deadline Nov. 30.

The Original Order of Zunks will sponsor a Thanksgiving day cachet. Send covers ready to go and accompany each with one cent for forwarding. Address G H. Hamilton, RCD 264, 54 Hooper street, Pittsburgh, Pa. Deadline Nov. 10, 1942.

Must Your Daughter Risk Happy Marriage on Half-Truths?

Many a mother, reared in days of false modesty, dreads to "tell her daughter." Little wonder so many young wives unknowingly risk happiness by using over-strong solutions of acids for feminine hygiene which can actually burn, scar and harm delicate tissue.

Today such doubts and unhappiness, such risks are needless. Science has given womankind Zonite. So powerful, it kills instantly all germs and bacteria with which it comes in contact. Deodorizes—by actually destroying odors. Protects personal daintiness. Yet! Zonite is non-caustic, non-poisonous, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles bought. Wartime Fashions Appear to Set Back the Clock

Best Designers Plan Changes in '43 Styles

By Bettina Bedwell.

One of the things that happens to the styles in wartime is that they mark time. At least this is what has happened in other wars. Big fashion changes may happen just before war, or right after, while during hostilities there is little change. The clock stops. But I observe that, in this war, things will be different, that is, they will be if certain prominent designers and fashion houses have their way. What is going to happen this time, in World War II. is that fashions are going to set the clock back. If women over the country vote "yes," the styles will go back to something like what was worn during 1917 and the years right after the first World war.

I think you ought to know about these proposed fashions so you can make up your minds about them. Some of you have taken up the peg-top, harem and hobble skirts, which also were a set-back of the clock to before World War I., and you may do the same with the sheath dress and the knee length, low necked evening gown. The sheath dress is, as you can see by looking up old fashion books, if you are too young to know, is a narrow, nonshaped dress that slides over a body and ends around the midcalf or below. One argument for this kind of dress is that it looks all right without a corset, but that depends on what you think is "all right." It was the forerunner of the short, chemise dress, also without shapeliness, and was worn in the last year of World War I., 1918, until around 1924.

In the 1942 winter edition the sheath dress looks much the same. It is for evening and has no sleeves, a lowish neckline, and is about eight or ten inches from the floor. They make it of sheer material, bead it, and put it over a short, tight slip of satin or crêpe. I think it is going to look very queer to most girls, and women, too, for that matter. After more than 20 years of trying to make our body lines look shapely, of promoting long, slim curved lines, suddenly to see a woman in a dress that makes her into a tube between shoulders and midcalf is rather startling.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

With your real perfume something to be used carefully, sachet powder comes into its own as a supplementary perfuming agent. Tiny bags filled with it—in a beautiful fragrance—can be worn at the neckline of one's dress; it can be sewed into shoulder pads, worn as a dry perfume daily, or used in a number of ways to scent your person and your possessions.

Powder sachet, with its scent highly concentrated, seems to us and to many others to be one of the most important perfuming agents of the future. It can be produced in unlimited quantities, which is more than can be said for most other scenting agents as things stand right now, and it is actually one of the most charming aids to subtle, feminine grooming.

Some months ago a house that makes fine sachets asked its consumer jury, women who try their new preparations before they go on the market, for opinions about sachet and the diversity of its uses. It developed that fastidious women can and do use fine perfume suspended in powder form in a number of ways, some of them little known. The jury's suggestions, assembled in a booklet, are invaluable to those who want to be dainty and sweet scented, to walk in fragrance, and to achieve the ultimate in performance from one of the most delightful perfume forms we have.

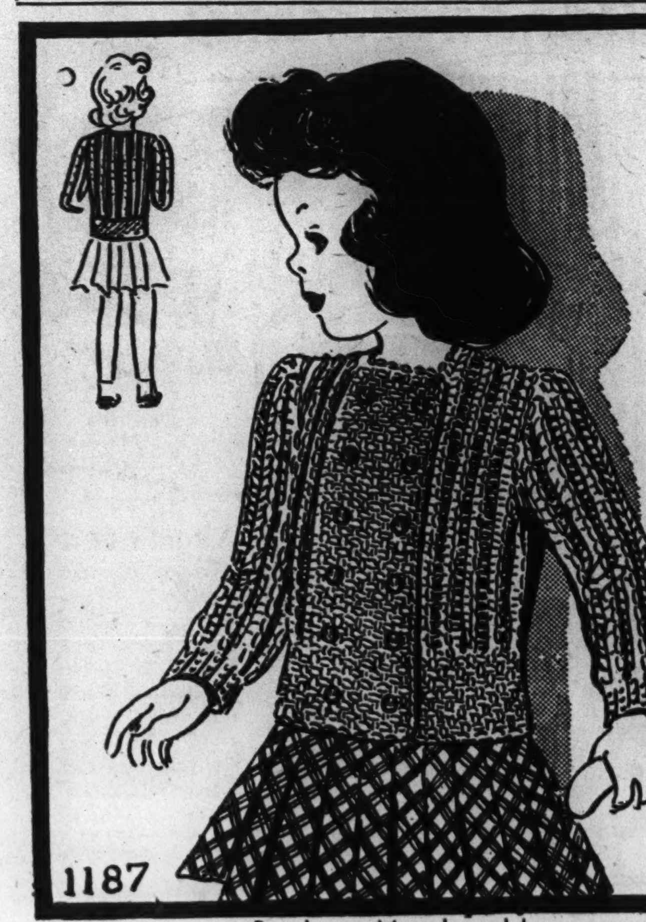
With permission, we are able to list some of these novel ideas. First, a basic procedure for filling sacheted articles, such as pillows or lingerie bags: Use absorbent cotton, cotton batting, lamb's wool or flannel, in a thickness desired by the desired size of the finished piece. Split this filling in two layers and sprinkle the scented powder thru the center, sandwich style. Then encase the filling in whatever manner of container you desire.

Sachet containers may be of almost any fabric, be fluffy or tailored, depending on their use, your taste or perhaps your skill with a needle. Quilted coat hanger covers, handkerchief cases, lingerie cases, and little novelties of one kind and another are sachet Christmas gifts any woman can make.

Sachet powder can be used artfully as a dry perfume, of course, but the women who were surveyed on sachet uses came up with supplementary ideas that are delightful. You can wear small sachet pillows [one woman suggested sprinkling powder in between and then sewing two of the little "disposable" powder puffs together] beneath your clothing. Or use the powder inside the shoulder pads of dresses. Or tack a tiny pillow in the lining of your hat to scent your hair delicately.

One woman has a sachet bag for each of her purses, an excellent idea. One suggested sachet pillows for the pockets of suitcases; another sifts the powder itself between the paper sheets that line her dresser drawers and closet shelves. Others sprinkle a few grains of the perfumed powder between mattress and sheet when the bed linen is changed, sachet in a fresh, clean scent. Three women said they use those tiny, porous paper tea bags for sachet. These can be worn or tucked in with one's clothes, hung in closets or even hung in unobtrusive corners of one's room.

Girl's Knitted Sweater



1187

By Jean Macdonald.

A cunning double-breasted sweater knitted in an interesting pattern is ideal for the girls 2, 4, and 6 years of age, especially when worn with a plaid plaited skirt. This jacket requires little time to make and, the wool, of good quality, creates a snug, warm protection against winter weather and fuel rationing.

For instructions in knitting the girl's double-breasted sweater, No. 1187, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Booklets on Etiquet Solve Many Problems

By Helen Bartlett.

Not every one has a large book of etiquet on his library shelves for ready reference when the problem arises. Or, if he has, too frequently it is a very old edition that does not record the recent changes in customs and practices that have taken place since its date of publication. The present revival in the popular interest in etiquet for army officers and their wives is an example.

That's where our little pamphlets on etiquet come in handy. They will give you reasonably complete information on the specific subject under discussion insofar as is possible in the limited space of a mimeographed booklet or will act as supplements to other material you may have on hand.

Up until the time this present war made it necessary to so vastly increase the army personnel [and likewise the ranks of army wives] etiquet for army wives remained unpublished, for the most part. To help fill this need our new booklet, "Etiquet for Army Wives," is now ready for distribution. Send 7 cents in stamps or coin if you would like to have a copy mailed to you. Or you can pick one up for 5 cents at the Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

Another booklet that has been popular with the readers of this department and which we would like to bring to the attention of those who have not already sent for their copy is "Maid Service for the Average Household." This is also 5 and 7 cents, depending upon whether you purchase it at the counter or order it by mail.

Address your requests to Helen Bartlett, Etiquet Editor, Chicago Tribune. And inclose the price of the booklets you want in stamps or coin with your letter.

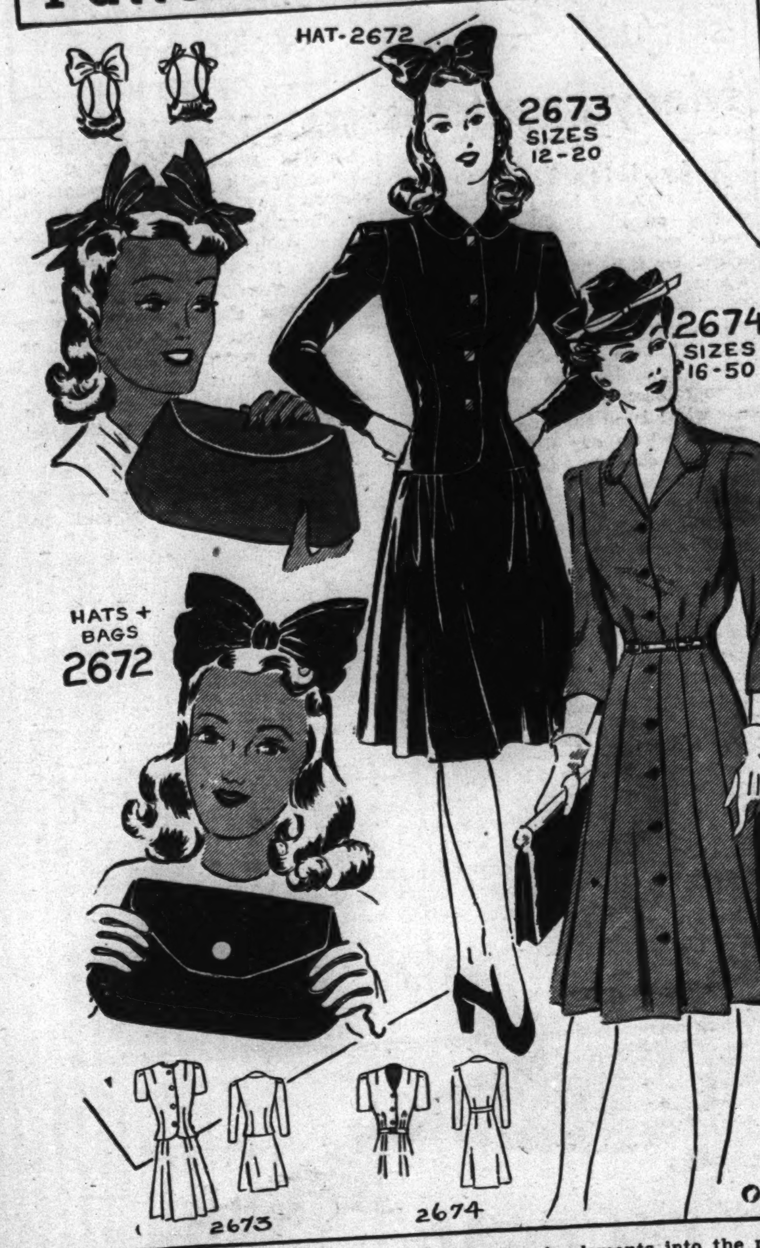
Child's Slow Speech Nothing to Worry About

Patterns by Clotilde



By Clotilde.

To judge by current fashions, dresses will be simple, sensible, and wearable, and the accessories will furnish the fillips. Today's patterns illustrate this trend.

Pattern No. 2672 makes two kinds of tiny hats and a roomy purse for all the things you carry these busy days. Bows play the major rôle. In one version of the hat, which is a skull fitting, behind the pompadour affair, two bows are perched at either brow. In the other version, the bow influence is concentrated in one large one atop your curls. The bag is the handy envelope style.

The first of the dress designs has a two piece effect with buttons used on the jacket portion. The skirt is softly shirred. A Peter Pan collar does neckline honors.

The second frock is a buttoned down the front model with open rever neckline and contrasting belt. Shallow plaits, as ruled by priorities, gave the illusion of far greater depth.

Style No. 2672 is designed for one adaptable headsize and requires, for the hat, ⅜ yard of 35 inch material; for bag, ⅝ yard of 35 inch fabric.

Style No. 2673 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards of 35 inch material.

Style No. 2674 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material.

Each pattern costs 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost.

Three Letters Will Reassure Other Parents

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

If you have a small son or daughter who is not yet talking, you probably remember an article I wrote on the subject of slowness in acquiring this power. It quoted a letter from a mother whose child was much behind the children of her relatives, and who felt not only worry, but chagrin over the situation. I was reassuring in that column in my reply, having first-hand reason for being so. But I know from some of my correspondents that the testimony I sometimes print from ther mothers, with difficulties similar to theirs, is very comforting. With that in mind I want to let you read three letters that came in my mail after that article appeared.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"This morning I read your article about a 23 month old baby not talking. My little girl said only a few words up until about two and one half years. In about three months' time she has learned almost every word a child of that age can say.

"My girl was slow, we think, because we let her learn by showing us what she wanted, and because she never played with other children. Older people made remarks about her not talking, but I knew, if she pronounced the few words she did so plainly, her vocal chords were all right. Her little 1½ year old sister speaks twice as much at her age, and imitates every one.

"My older girl is smart and never forgets anything. I don't think any child is 'dumb' at 23 months who never says much. In fact, it is, to me, a sign that child is very intelligent when she can make a person understand without words. Tell this mother to forget what people say about her baby."

Here is the second:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"Your recent article carried a portion of a letter from a worried mother, whose little 23 month old child wasn't talking. May I, as a mother, grandmother, and a matron in a children's home, tell her not to worry over the child's slowness in talking? Said husband no doubt will be wishing within a year that the child talked less!

"In the home where I'm employed at present we have a baby boy who will be 3 in November.

"Last fall, for three months, I conducted a little nursery school in the home because we had so many preschool age children. He went along with us, but I doubted that he was getting anything out of it. So, imagine my surprise, about two months ago, when I was ready to tuck him in to have him say all of 'Baa, Baa, Black Sheep.' Since then I've discovered he knows a number of nursery rhymes.

"Not long ago I spent four and a half years with a dear little boy. He was slow in talking, too. His mother worried about it, but I didn't because I knew the few words he said he spoke clearly. By the time he was two he had an understanding vocabulary of 500 words. He talked before he was three, using splendid English. One day, while on an errand, when he was just 4, I left him with a neighbor who was amazed at his conversational ability and enjoyed him greatly. So to the worried mother I say, be patient, use good English yourself, and you'll be rewarded in the end."

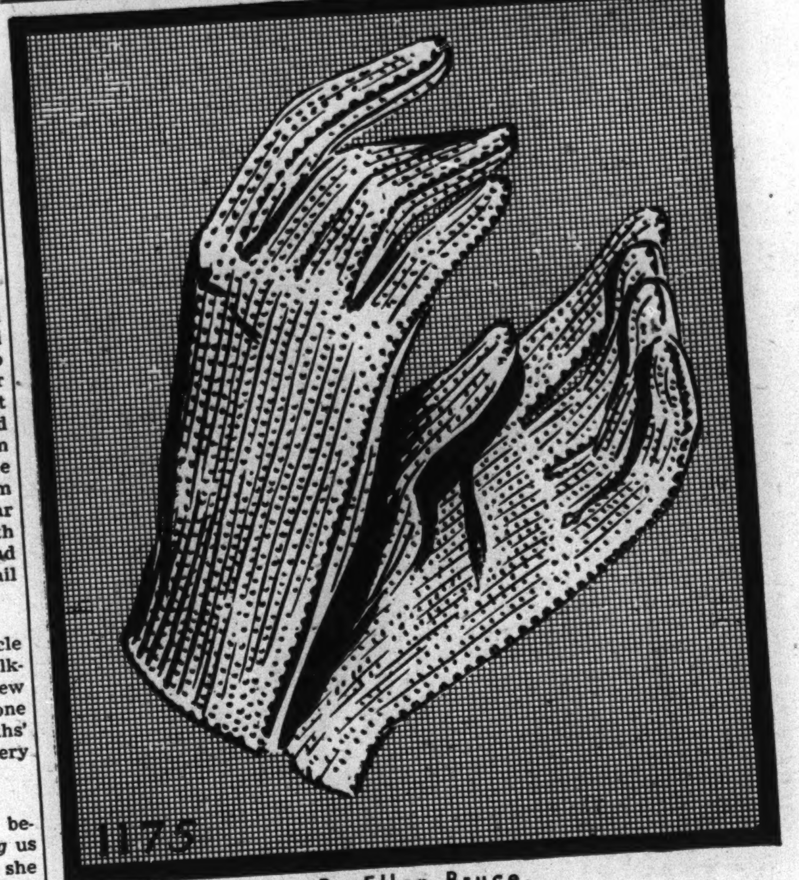
This is the third:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"In answer to the mother who wrote about her youngster being slow in talking, I'd like to tell her about our baby. He is 34 months old, and up until three months ago had a very limited choice of words. Every one told us there was something wrong with our baby because my husband's nephew [the same age as our boy] had been speaking sentences since he was a year and a half.

"Well, I wish you could hear our son now. He talks in sentences and repeats everything. I could go on for hours telling you how good he is and how he repeats things now that he heard before he could say them. Please tell this mother to take her baby to a doctor to satisfy herself, as we did, but to stop worrying after he tells her there's nothing wrong with her boy. Remember, once he starts talking, people soon forget how slow he was."

Crocheted Women's Gloves



1175

By Ellen Bruce.

These new, short crocheted women's gloves are a popular fashion item for busy fall and winter days. They require little time and prove an excellent suggestion for a gift item. Crocheted of wool or cotton, gloves may match or contrast with one's ensemble.

For instructions in crocheting the short gloves, No. 1175, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

June Waughop Married to Lieutenant G. S. Ward

Miss June Waughop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond F. Waughop of 9349 Justine street, and Lieut. Greig Stanley Ward of the army air corps were married on Oct. 6 in the Trinity Methodist church. Lieut. Ward, who is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Stanley Ward of Sullivan, Ill., has taken his bride to Albany, Ga. Both he and his bride were graduated from DePauw university.

Maintaining the Health Is a Wartime Duty

The Scarcity of Doctors Is a Good Reason

By Doris Blake.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

What can you do, to facilitate winning the war?

There's one thing every one of you can do, and you may not have to move a step from home to do it.

It is to rally to the cause of health maintenance, not only of yourself, but of every single member of your family. And you can appoint yourself community adviser by talking about this need of health conservation wherever you can do it without becoming a nuisance.

It is serious business, that of saving doctor's time for the urgent needs of war. We can't go on thinking, as some of us women do, that the warnings apply not to us, but to others.

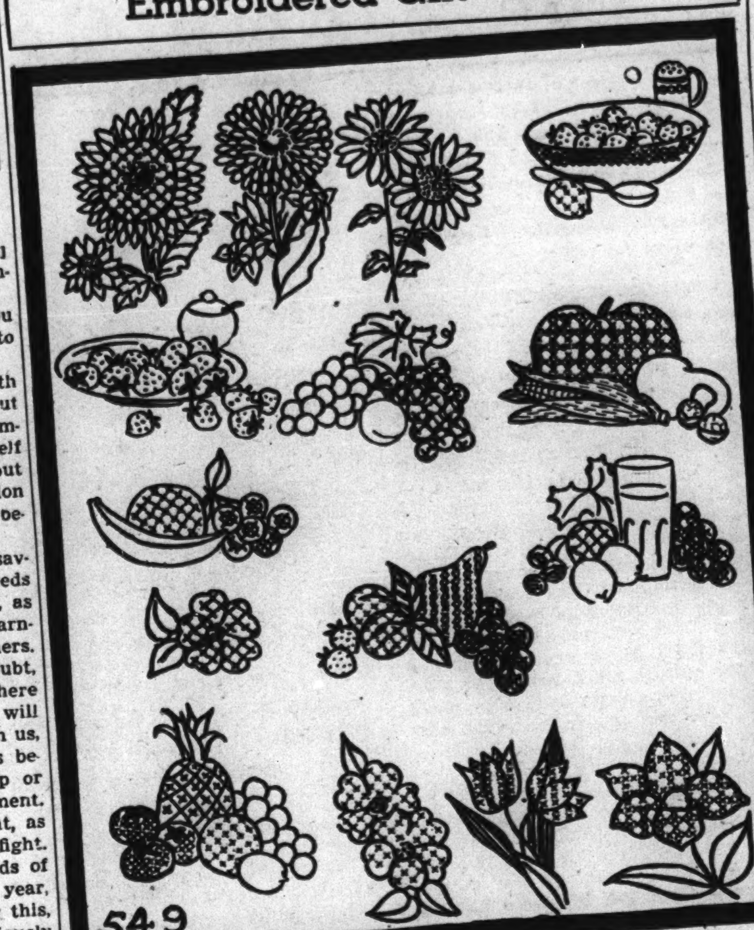
In a serious emergency, no doubt, such care will be provided, but there is a question whether doctors will have time for us, or patience with us, if we go ringing their doorbells because we have lost our old pep or have developed some minor ailment.

However, that is not the point, as much as helping in the big fight. The army wants many thousands of doctors before the end of this year, and more after that. You know this, of course, but do you take it seriously enough to study diets, say, so that the maximum of efficiency is obtained from the foods you eat? You know of the doctor shortage, but do you take extra precautions with the youngsters? Do you see that they get their vitamins, their rest, their outdoor exercise? Do you see that you, yourself, adopt a program that protects you against illness, insofar as the layman may be expected to protect himself, barring accidents, and what we choose to call act-of-God illnesses?

But even the accident problem may be looked into and preventive measures studied carefully so that, as far as is humanly possible, you've done your stint to prevent them around home. You know, of course, that outside of industrial service, home accidents are most frequent. If our memory serves us rightly, home accidents exceed in number those in any other department of work and living. So, to know what causes the home accidents and to prepare against them becomes not only an individual health measure, but assumes the more serious phase of helping to win the war.

You are hearing daily of how the hospital walls thruout the country are bursting with maternity cases. These cases, naturally, should have preference unless you or your family's illness is a life and death matter. And you have heard how the new, young mothers are encouraged to leave the hospitals as quickly as is deemed safe for them. Presently, we believe, women with fancied ills of emotional, rather than of physical, cause, will have hospital doors closed in their faces, as they should have under our present circumstances.

Embroidered Gift Towels



549

By Nancy Cabot.

Fruit and flower embroidery motifs are favorite designs to be stamped on gift towels. Cross-stitch and outline stitch are two of the simpler embroidery stitches used in this type of needlework. The hot iron transfer pattern contains 15 motifs measuring from 2 by 4¼ to 3 by 4½ inches.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the 15 fruit and flower motifs, No. 549, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Lady of the House

Along the Little Roads.

The little stream that last spring exuberantly spread over the greening meadow now flows calmly beside the quiet path where laughing sunbeams dart thru the birches to tag the golden leaves—so like bright fragments of their very selves—that swing lazily down to the placid stream.

The bright meadow, turned to umber now, still wears a gay fringe along its edge, where the giant maple that broods over the old farmhouse showers down its ruddy gold. It is long since I have walked this leafy way and now I come upon a familiar ancient punt among the rushes of a tiny inlet. I am greatly tempted to push off and pole down the winding stream to where those ducks float sleepily in a pool of dappled sunshine, and on to who knows what stirring adventure!

But I sit on a mossy bank under a golden canopy and let the rays of the westering sun flicker about me, and pray that very, very soon now all the world might know peace and quiet like this.

Nature Receives.

In Autumn, with pumpkins all gathered
And corn fodder piled in the shock,
My farm is a hall of enchantment;
Each tree wears a frost-tinted frock.
The grass weaves a carpet of verdure;
Green cedars are tall cavaliers;
The cobwebs spin filigreed etchings;
The sun lights the cloud chandeliers.
Those hills form a galleried setting,
With roads as the long winding stairs;
The campfires glow on the hearthstones;
It's one of those gala affairs
Where guests do not need invitations
But come for the beauty alone,
The Spirit of Indian Summer
Is receiving today on her throne.

Lady, Stay Young.

You are not old who still can dream of days to come; can work and plan and love and laugh at everything. [But most of all at nothing.] Tho your hair be white, your step be slow, your fingers tremble, your voice so low—if to your cheek there comes a glow at children's play and young folks' love, your heart is young. You are not old.

Greetings.

The owl sat in the walnut tree
And he said to the moon, to the moon said he,
"On the path there are footsteps, seems to me.
Who? Who? Who?"
The moon drew near so the path gleamed clear,
And they heard a voice that was soft and dear,
"Do you forget in one short year?
I remember you!"

There a lady stood in purple hood
And silver slippers, in their wood.
The owl and the moon murmured,
"This is good!
It really can't be true!"

"Yes, the year moves fast, and the summer's past,
And I am October, a sure forecast,"
Said the lady, "of Autumn, that's come at last.
My friends, how do you do?"

The Graceful Mannequins.

Once more the trees are trailing
In Autumn's red and brown;
A gold and scarlet veiling
Is draped upon each gown.

They'll trek the sylvan dais,
These graceful mannequins,
And vie in subtle chaos,
Till Winter disciplines.

For soon he plans to damage
Their vain, conceited show;
He'll strip their leafy plumage
And hide them deep in snow.

But in that hoary tether
Their chastened hearts will cling;
They'll dream of days together,
In verdant bliss, NEXT SPRING.
JEWEL McCABE BRENNEN.

Navy day [Oct. 27], and our boys sailing the turbulent billows of the restless deeps of the seven seas and the turbulent heights of the skies. O would that the sounds winging from those distant ships, "far, far o'er the foam" were just the voices of "absent ones singing of home!"

According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

In average bridge circles you will find more games lost thru underbidding than large penalties due to overbidding. This, of course, is just another way of saying that the average player is inclined to be too conservative—except perhaps where competitive bidding and "saving" are concerned. In these latter cases the conservatism often turns into mad aggressiveness.

Consider the following deal, which strikingly illustrates this point.

Rubber bridge.
Both sides vulnerable.
South, dealer.

NORTH
♠ J 7
♥ 10 7 5
♦ A K 6
♣ Q 9 8 6 3

WEST
♠ Q 10 6 3
♥ K J 6 4
♦ Q 10 8 4
♣ J

EAST
♠ K 9 8 5
♥ Q 9 3
♦ J 7 5
♣ 10 5 2

SOUTH
♠ A 4 2
♥ A 8 2
♦ 9 3 2
♣ A K

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
1 no trump	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
Pass	Pass

In the matter of games lost thru underbidding, it is usually the responder who is at fault. Unless he, too, has the equivalent of an opening bid, or at least a long and strong suit of his own, he is apt to underrate the potential value of minor honors in connection with the major honors announced in partner's opening bid. Also, he has a tendency to make the same responses on hands which are in no sense equivalent to each other. The average responder seems to feel that the opening bidder, just because he was the opener, should carry most of the burden; that he, if any one, should do the "pushing" and should make the vital decisions for the team. Thus an inexpert partnership is heavily handicapped by a fallacious philosophy. For the fact is, of course, that after the opening bid has been made it is the responder who is usually in the best position to name the final contract or, failing that, to supply his partner with information that will clarify the selection.

This is the bidding that we would be likely to hear at a million bridge tables. Indeed, it is the bidding that actually took place at a far better than average game. North-South ended in a two club contract, making an extra trick, whereas three no trump was absolutely cold.

The fault in this case was almost entirely North's. His one diamond response, tho not in itself a bad bid, turned into a second-round trap. For, when South's one no trump came around to North, the latter felt constrained to "slow down" precisely because his first response had been semi-psychic in nature. Thus at this point North had to choose between an aggressive double raise in clubs and the conservative, uninformative single raise which, from South's point of view, was not really a raise at all, but a sign-off.

If North had made the normal response on the first round, namely, two clubs, the bidding would have flowed smoothly thereafter. South, with four honor tricks, would have tried two no trump and North, with an excellent club fit, two tricks in diamonds, and some help in the majors, would then have been well justified in bidding three no trump. North's great error was in bidding his hand exactly as tho it had been ♠ J x ♥ 10 x x ♦ A Q x x ♣ J x x x This, the sort of hand that South naturally visualized, could not possibly produce three no trump.

Purely as an incidental point, it is worth noting that South might have saved himself and the partnership by opening with one no trump instead of one club, but this would scarcely be a valid criticism. The one club bid would have worked out just as well if North's responses had been truly responsive.

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

There is no trump. South leads and must win six tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads a heart to North's king. North returns a diamond. If East plays the ten, South wins with the king and leads a low diamond. East must win, but now South has two good diamonds and North has a good heart and a good club.

If, on the lead of a diamond from North, East puts up the diamond queen, South ducks, thereby preventing West from ever gaining the lead.

If South originally leads a club instead of a heart, East can discard the diamond queen. Now West cannot be kept off lead with the diamond jack and he has the good spade to cash.

New Fashions Help Remove Winter's Chill

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass.

Mrs. Arthur T. McIntosh Jr.

Sparkling touchdown weather, so mild that many of the spectators were able to leave their topcoats at home, brought Mrs. Arthur T. McIntosh Jr., in a smart wool dress and jacket, out to one of Northwestern university's recent football games. The dress was of alternating blocks of hunter's green and oatmeal color, and the jacket over which the casual lapels were turned back was of the monotone beige shade. Her little felt bowler exactly matched the dark green squares in the dress. Mrs. Solomon B. Smith, to whom dresses with princess lines are especially becoming, sometimes wears an attractive fitted gown of pistachio green crêpe with green velvet ribbon threaded thru the bodice from each shoulder to the waist, forming a large "V." The hat which she adds to this costume is a confection of russet and pink cabbage roses and veiling. No matter how tailored Mrs. William H. Mitchell's costumes are, one usually sees her wearing fetching little flowered hats. Her latest fall version of this appealing style is a small toque of chrysanthemum petals in pomegranate colors, swathed in veiling. She often wears this feminine chapeau with a fall suit whose beige jacket has careful dressmaker details, including hand picked lapels and self buttons. A brace of sables around her neck and another over one arm match the suit's brown skirt.

Miss Eleanor McClurg, applauding the entrants in the recent Galloping Hills hunter trials at the Louis F. Swifts' farm in Wheaton, wore a gay suit of yellow plaid ruled in caramel brown and matched by a yellow silk shirt. Miss McClurg frequently models in fashion shows around Chicago, and in one of her most recent appearances she showed a casual coat and suit blending unusual shades of pine green and tomato red, with brilliant parrot feathers spicing her hat. Miss McClurg's mother, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, watched her from the sidelines in a dark dress and high crowned white felt hat with a cascade of shiny black coque feathers spilling over the crest. The opening of the Chicago Symphony season one Thursday night brought forth the largest number of evening gowns that have yet been seen. Mrs. Telfer MacArthur, who heads the woman's committee of the symphony, was wearing a toast colored dinner gown with matching long sleeved jacket under a silver fox jacket. Mrs. Walter Paepcke was a striking figure in a cloth of gold full length evening coat over a gold dress. She sat with Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw, whose evening wrap was of dark green plaid wool, also floor length. Her gown was of flame silk. One of the prettiest of the younger symphony goers was Mrs. Otho S. A. Sprague, a dark haired, fresh complexioned young woman. Her sleek coiffure was dressed with a single talisman rose. Her dinner dress combined a black slipper satin top with a finely striped black and gold skirt of stiff satin. Mrs. Charles Atherton of Boston, sitting in her parents', the junior Edward Richardson Bacons', box also was in gold. Her long sleeved, full skirted gown was simple as could be, decorated only by a scroll of the gold satin material of which it was made outlining the bottom of the long waist line. Miss Helen Gurley was a distinguished figure in a clinging black dinner gown with short sleeves. Two gardenias were pinned to one lapel. Mrs. Thomas Furness' evening wrap was a short, boxy cape of brilliant rose wool with jet bead trimming about the neck and shoulder yoke.

Mrs Walter Paepcke.

What the woman earning money in defense work this fall wears is something colorful and eye catching rather than functional. Take the tale of two slips, priced the same, as told in the Fashion Group's latest bulletin. One has lace from the top practically down to the waist, and from the bottom nearly up to the waist. The other is a simple pure silk. The lace trimmed ones are going like hot cakes. Miss and Mrs. Defense Worker are going for a purple crêpe dress with two rows of 10 inch silk fringe on the skirt; for a purple peg topped crêpe dress; for a two piece purple velveteen dress; for an aqua silk jersey dress with surplice neck line, all of which have eye appeal and which look different from what was worn last year, according to Madelyn P. Coe, fashion coördinator of a Detroit store.

Wool, Nylon and Cotton Do a Good Job

By Rea Seeger.

[Illustrations in color on back page of this section.]

Outwitting the various restrictions on heating supplies is going to be easy, even fun. Far from necessitating spending the winter shivering and shaking, zero and subzero temperatures outside and limited temperatures inside will cause little panic and no discomfort with the newest warm fashions for such a winter ahead. Everything available has been passed by the board of experts, so any one can buy without a twinge of conscience.

Starting from the inside out . . . wool and cashmere winter lingerie, sufficiently good looking to earn the label of lingerie, comes in flesh color, bright red, and the natural tones for the cashmere. The stuff is anything but the scratchy finds of long gone eras of itching discomfort, wool as thin as gossamer, but warm as any heating pad, and not an inch of it will scratch. The finds come in sleeveless shirts or the long-sleeved, high, rounded neck models, and there are shorts and the long affairs.

Petticoats and slips, shorts, separate vests and shirts also are available in the woollies for warmth and a winter of comfort, and don't think it's sissy to wear them and keep warm and minus the sniffles this winter. All smart people are going to wear them.

Wool and cashmere stockings, wool socks, wool and nylon mixtures in neutral shades, heather mixtures, bright red and green, brown and beige provide lots of leg comfort and the promise of chilblains deferred. Knitted and crocheted bed socks, the same sort of things for indoor lounging are featured in good, husky, high colored models, not the pastels for invalid use. Grownups, as well as small fry, go for the eye-catching lure of bright red and green, full length wool stockings. Nothing could be smarter for your heavy duty tweeds and woolens.

Winter duty tweeds and woolen costumes of suit with companion coat are plentiful, both the high colored and the neutrals. The imports are still available, tho a bit high in price, but worth every penny as they go thru wind, rain, snow, sleet, and subzero temperatures without lessening a single unit of comforting heat. Separate jackets and skirts are easily mixed and matched to make varied costumes for any demand. Mufflers, wool sweaters, wool mittens, woolly hats, and many fine wool blouses are other finds for the shivering shoppers out to assure a supply for the season to come.

Many persons are definitely allergic to wool, so the clever designers have launched this year one of the biggest showings of other kinds of heating comforts . . . the padded and quilted ideas. Velveteen and corduroy are padded and quilted and come by the yard, too, in every desired color. This is the superwarm stuff that lines coats, makes jackets, even skirts, swagger coats, hats, bags, and vestees. Satin and jersey are other materials quilted and padded for heating duty. Next on the list are all the fascinating fleeces made of cotton, nylon, or rayon. Not a whiff of wool in a half inch of the stuff, but every yard of it is as warm as toast and looks twice as warm. There are fleecy rayon gloves, handsome whipped stitched along the outside seams, in every street or daytime color.

There are jackets and lounging robes, muffler ascots, shirts and blouses that look like jackets, dresses, and suits, but the smartest finds are those featured in the housecoats and lounging outfit collections. Thick fleecy stuff makes the supercomfortable housecoats. Not-so-thick materials are used for trimmer house robes and the street apparel.

Sketched in color on the back page of this section, are a few of the finds for a cold winter, each a definite comfort. For information call Rea Seeger, Superior 0200.

The nation needs scrap for the war effort. Why not turn in your discarded buttons, buckles, and metal costume jewelry, not those you need, but articles beyond repair which can do their bit in the salvage drive?

These Hints Prevent Shrinkage of Woolens

To reduce shrinkage when laundering woolen hose, do not soak them but wash out quickly, by gently squeezing in warm suds. Rinse in water of the same temperature. Carefully pull hose into shape and let dry on a towel. Never place hose to dry near artificial heat.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

Logical successor to the time-honored shirtwaist dress, I call this new model I concocted especially for career girls. It's the sort of dress which may be worn at the office and get a new lease on life after five. Especially if it's made in wool or some other material in a bright color, it's just right for informal dates and hostessing at the USO.

It's a priority-wise little dress, with its smaller-than-usual pockets, its slim skirt with just enough fullness, no more, and its slender sleeves. I have a dress made from this pattern, and created it in bright red with fabric covered buttons.

Sensible Wartime Fashions in New Clotilde Book

Wartime fashions are sensible fashions. Useless frills and excessive adornments are in poor taste and a waste of important money. These style truths are illustrated in the autumn edition of the Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Patterns, your budget's worth at 15 cents. There's no priority on variety, however, as this 24 page collection of pattern designs further attests. All phases of a complete wardrobe are covered, from intimate apparel to evening clothes.

Sketched in color in the book's two dozen pages are frocks for every hour of the day, children's clothes, maternity clothes, suits, sports things, and fashions reflecting the good neighbor policy. Clotilde also has incorporated helpful articles on fabric conservation and remodeling.

To obtain the pattern book, call at either of the Chicago Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn street, or Tribune Tower lobby. The cost will drop from 15 cents to 10 cents if you order the volume at the same time you order one or more patterns. In this case, address your order to Chicago Tribune, Clotilde Patterns, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, New York City. Each pattern costs 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost.

Splendid Cough Relief Is Easily Mixed at Home

No Cooking. Makes Big Saving.

To get quick and satisfying relief from coughs due to colds, mix this recipe in your kitchen. Once tried, you'll never be without it.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This makes a full pint of splendid medicine and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is amazing. You can feel it take hold in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

BUY AND SAVE ★ Advice for the Careful Shopper

Fashions........ By Angela

Little girl fashions follow close enough on the heels of general grownup fashion trends to risk the stubbing of a toe if it is not carefully placed. What big sister finds captivating, little sister finds more so. And some of the most successful and popular styles that little girls have helped to immortalize are youthful adaptations and reflections of what her more adult sister is wearing.

Girls' sizes 8 to 14 can be fitted in the little two piecer dress at the top of the column. It is a brown checked wool skirt, plaited all around, with a brown velveteen top trimmed in the checked material to match the skirt. It is a dress that can go to school or Sunday school. Under $8.

The miniature peasant skirt on the second figure is a gray flannel with gathered fullness in the front and large square patch pockets appliqued with a red and green felt floral design. The placket is in the middle of the back. With it she wears a classic long sleeved red sweater of 100 per cent wool.

The station wagon coat is natural color cotton gabardine with brown saddle stitching around collar and pockets. It is water repellent. Unlined.

Dress occasions for the 8 to 16 year old will be faced appropriately with a simple girlish velveteen. The slot pockets give a peg top look to the gathered skirt. Comes in such solid fall colors as brown, navy or black. The little dickey is removable and washable.

Winter sports enthusiasts can actively engage in skating and skiing if a ski suit is part of the wardrobe. This one is a light blue cotton gabardine with the raccoon-edged hood lined in red. Knitted cuffs. And a complete lining in the pants and coat of 100 per cent wool flannel.

The classic box coat comes in small sizes, too, with all the tailoring details faithfully repeated. It is a red fleecy wool on a cotton backing with just the right bulky look. Fully lined. Under $14.

Chicago Girl Creates Dolls of All Periods

By Claire Winslow.

Altho they're called dolls, they are really little works of art. Avis Lee, young Chicago wood carver, has created 35 figures of children, each with an historical background or one of great human appeal, and seen singly or in a group they are even more fascinating to adults and to collectors than they are to the youngsters, for they are done with such perfection of detail and fidelity to period.

From a block of pine or tupelo about 1½ inches square Miss Lee carves the head of each figure. The bodies she fashions from an armature of wire around which she puts padding. Adult figures, and she makes many representing historical characters and "types," have also hands and shoes.

Their costumes are also made by the artist. She knows, too, how to give true expression to each little boy or girl's face. One child has her mouth wide open in a gleeful grin; another looks as if she had suddenly stopped crying, being distracted by something; a small face looks up, "holding wonder like a cup."

There is Tiny Tim, with his crutch and his warm muffler. There are Topsy with her little pig-tails, and Eva in a lovely hat; a pair of small English Christmas carolers, the boy playing a flute, the girl singing from a book; there are a boy and girl in Amish dress, and another in Hutterite. Jolly little peddlers carry miniature baskets of flowers and fruits. And there are boys and girls in the quaint costumes of 1876 and 1812, as well as a 1942 pair. One figure represents Stephen of Cloyes, small leader of the Children's Crusade.

You'll recognize Hansel and Gretel, the Puritan boy and girl, and you'll delight in the pickaninnies, Rastus and Digitalis.

For the group of adult doll figures Miss Lee has carved likenesses of Lincoln and Washington, reproduced a small wooden doll found in the stockade after the massacre at Fort Dearborn, and made a number of character dolls: an old coachman, a granny with her knitting, and the three marchers in "The Spirit of '76."

The artist is largely self-taught and, altho she is only 25 years old, she has been doing this interesting work for years. She started as a child, when she was first given a knife as a gift. She spends about 10 hours on each figure and she never "makes them up." She models them from real children or grownups and in the case of historical figures she does much research work beforehand.

So lifelike are they that people looking at the children's figures exclaim, "Doesn't that look just like little Sally?" or "That little boy is the very image of my nephew." And this always pleases Miss Lee, for, after all, her dolls are people.

Many Services Performed by Mending Tape

By Angela Petesch.

Mending is an odious chore, if I may say so. Yet it has to be done every now and again. We can't toss in the trash basket every stocking, piece of lingerie, sheet or towel that happens to be torn.

The cheerful bit of news is that there is on the market an ingenious little cotton tape, so modest looking that its powers and variety of uses could never be guessed by the casual observer. It is a mending tape which has only to be pressed on to the frayed edge or the three-cornered tear to make the garment strong and dutiful again. The tape, about an inch and a half wide, comes with its 90 inches of length wrapped around a cardboard wheel. The colors are numerous so that fabrics can be matched. There are, too, the standard black and white.

All that is needed to make it stick to the fabric forever and ever is a moderately hot iron. Or should the tear be inconvenient to reach with a pressing iron, a curling iron will do the trick. Any kind of material at all can be so mended . . . that is, any material to which a hot iron can be applied.

Here are some of the miracles it performs.

Rips and tears are easily and quickly mended, and reinforced at the same time, in sheets and pillow cases, uniforms, shirts, blouses, dresses, linens, curtains.

Holes that have been burned in fabrics can be repaired by cutting away the frayed edges, fitting a scrap of the same material into the hole matching the pattern if there is one, and pressing the mending tape over it all.

Stockings and socks can be mended, or the heels and toes can be reinforced with the tape before they become worn and in anticipation of the fine disregard the great toes have for the present cost and scarcity of fragile stockings.

Hems can be pressed in place where they will remain without a stitch being made. Likewise seams can be reinforced so that they will not yield under the pressure or strain they may be placed. Plaits too can be held in place.

Precious trouser cuffs will prolong their normal life span if they are treated before the ravages of wear have proceeded too far.

Manufacturers claim that any garment so mended is stronger than it was before. And, what's more, laundering and dry cleaning in no way undermine the effectiveness of this modern method of repair. It is an economy to keep our clothes and household linens in repair—more so now than ever before. This is an easy and economical way to do it. Ninety inches of tape will cost you 25 cents.

How to Salvage Yarn from Outmoded Garment

Those smart individuals who bought good quality wool yarns are receiving dividends now, since they are unable to buy the variety of materials once available. Women can ravel a hand knitted garment which is outmoded, wash the yarn, and use it to knit a current styled sweater or blouse and have a smart outfit. In preparing the wool for laundering, wind raveled wool in skeins. Tie skein in four places with wool to hold the shape and prevent snagging. Dip in cold water, then plunge up and down in lukewarm soap suds. Do not rub or in any way stretch wool. Rinse in water of the same temperature and press water out gently. Roll skein in bath towel to further eliminate water. Fluff out and place on towel to dry. When thoroly dry wind redeemed yarn into balls.

Antidote for Fatigue

Long associated with the Victorian and quaint, smelling salts have come in to their own as an antidote for the busy tempo of today.

New Table Lamp

This interesting table lamp has a base of painted tin, the motif of which is repeated in the parchment shade. It is seen in the living room of a newly furnished budget house.

A Feather Pillbox

A feather pillbox to tuck behind your fashionable pompadour. Two feather tipped hatpins are standard equipment.

Rug Without a Border Makes Room Look Big

You may have observed that in recent seasons a greater number of rugs without borders have made their appearance. Their use is an advantage in the smaller rooms of today's houses. Unbordered, figured patterns or plain colors carry the eye out toward the walls and thus make both room and rug look larger. On the other hand, a border so definitely defines the size that the room appears smaller.

Black-White Linoleum.

One hard surface floor covering that never goes out of style because it is always good looking and can be worked into any color scheme is black and white checkerboard linoleum. In marbleized effect, with the squares of very generous size, it makes one of the smartest kitchens any woman would want to work in. And it's good for an entrance hall, too, or for a breakfast nook or small dinette. Keep it waxed and highly polished.

Stuffing for Dolls.

With kapok on the priorities list, try stuffing dolls and toys with cotton batts like those used for quilts. If the cotton batt rolls are preferred for quilts, stuff toys and dolls with cast-off rags and hosiery.

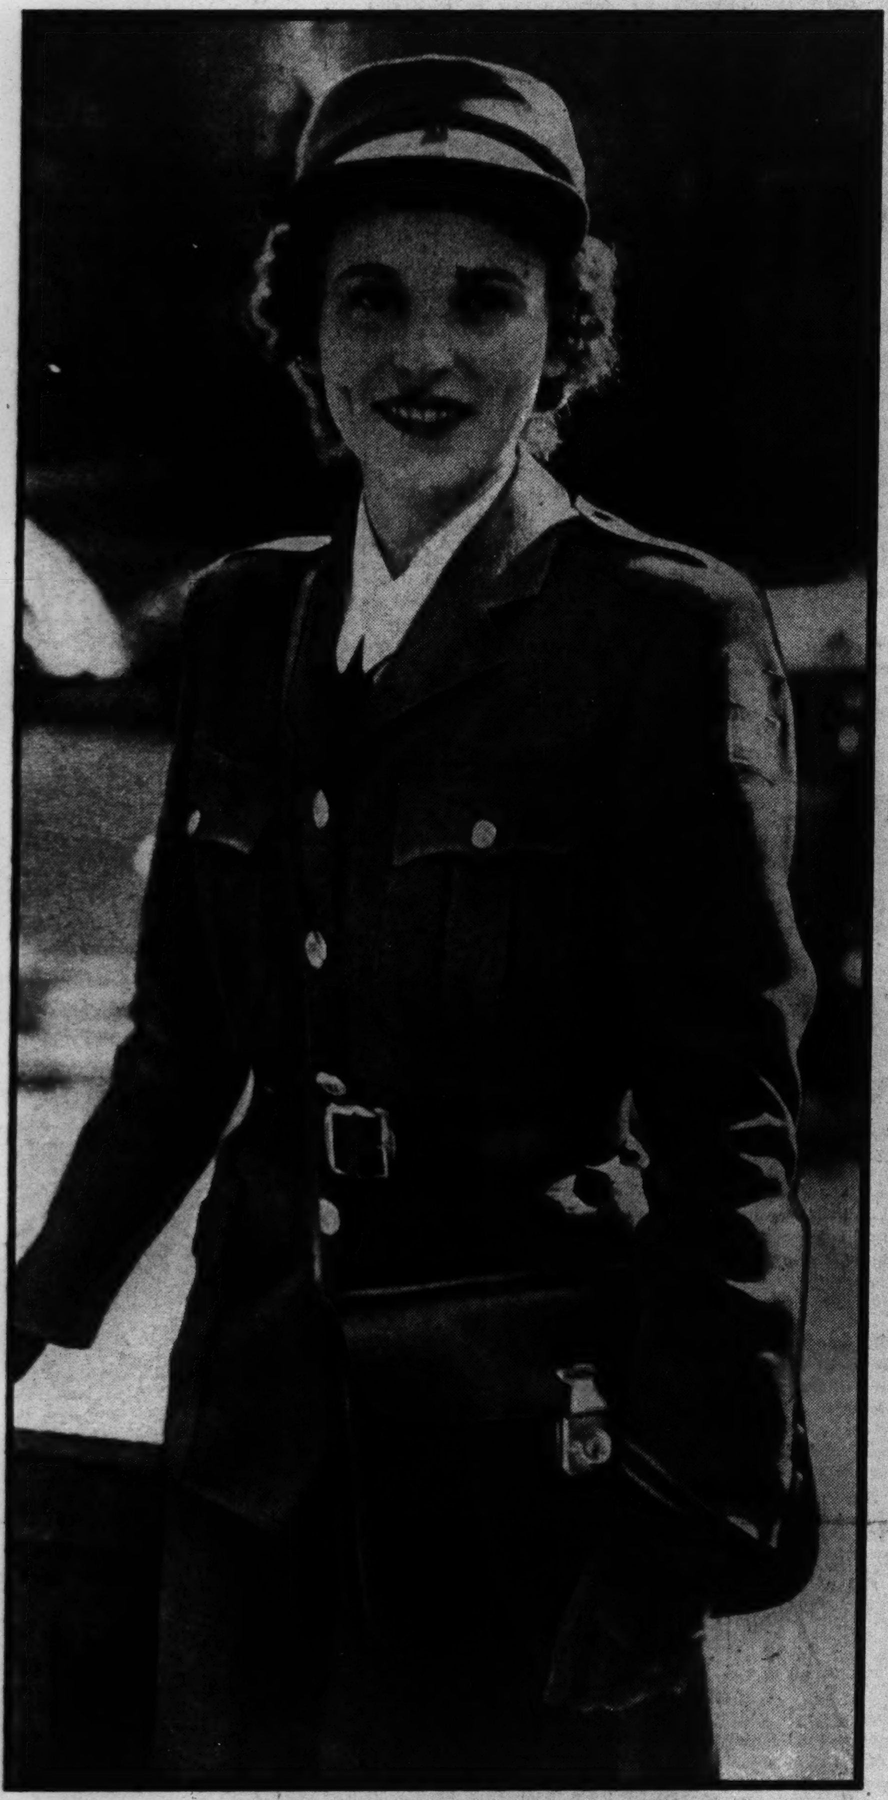
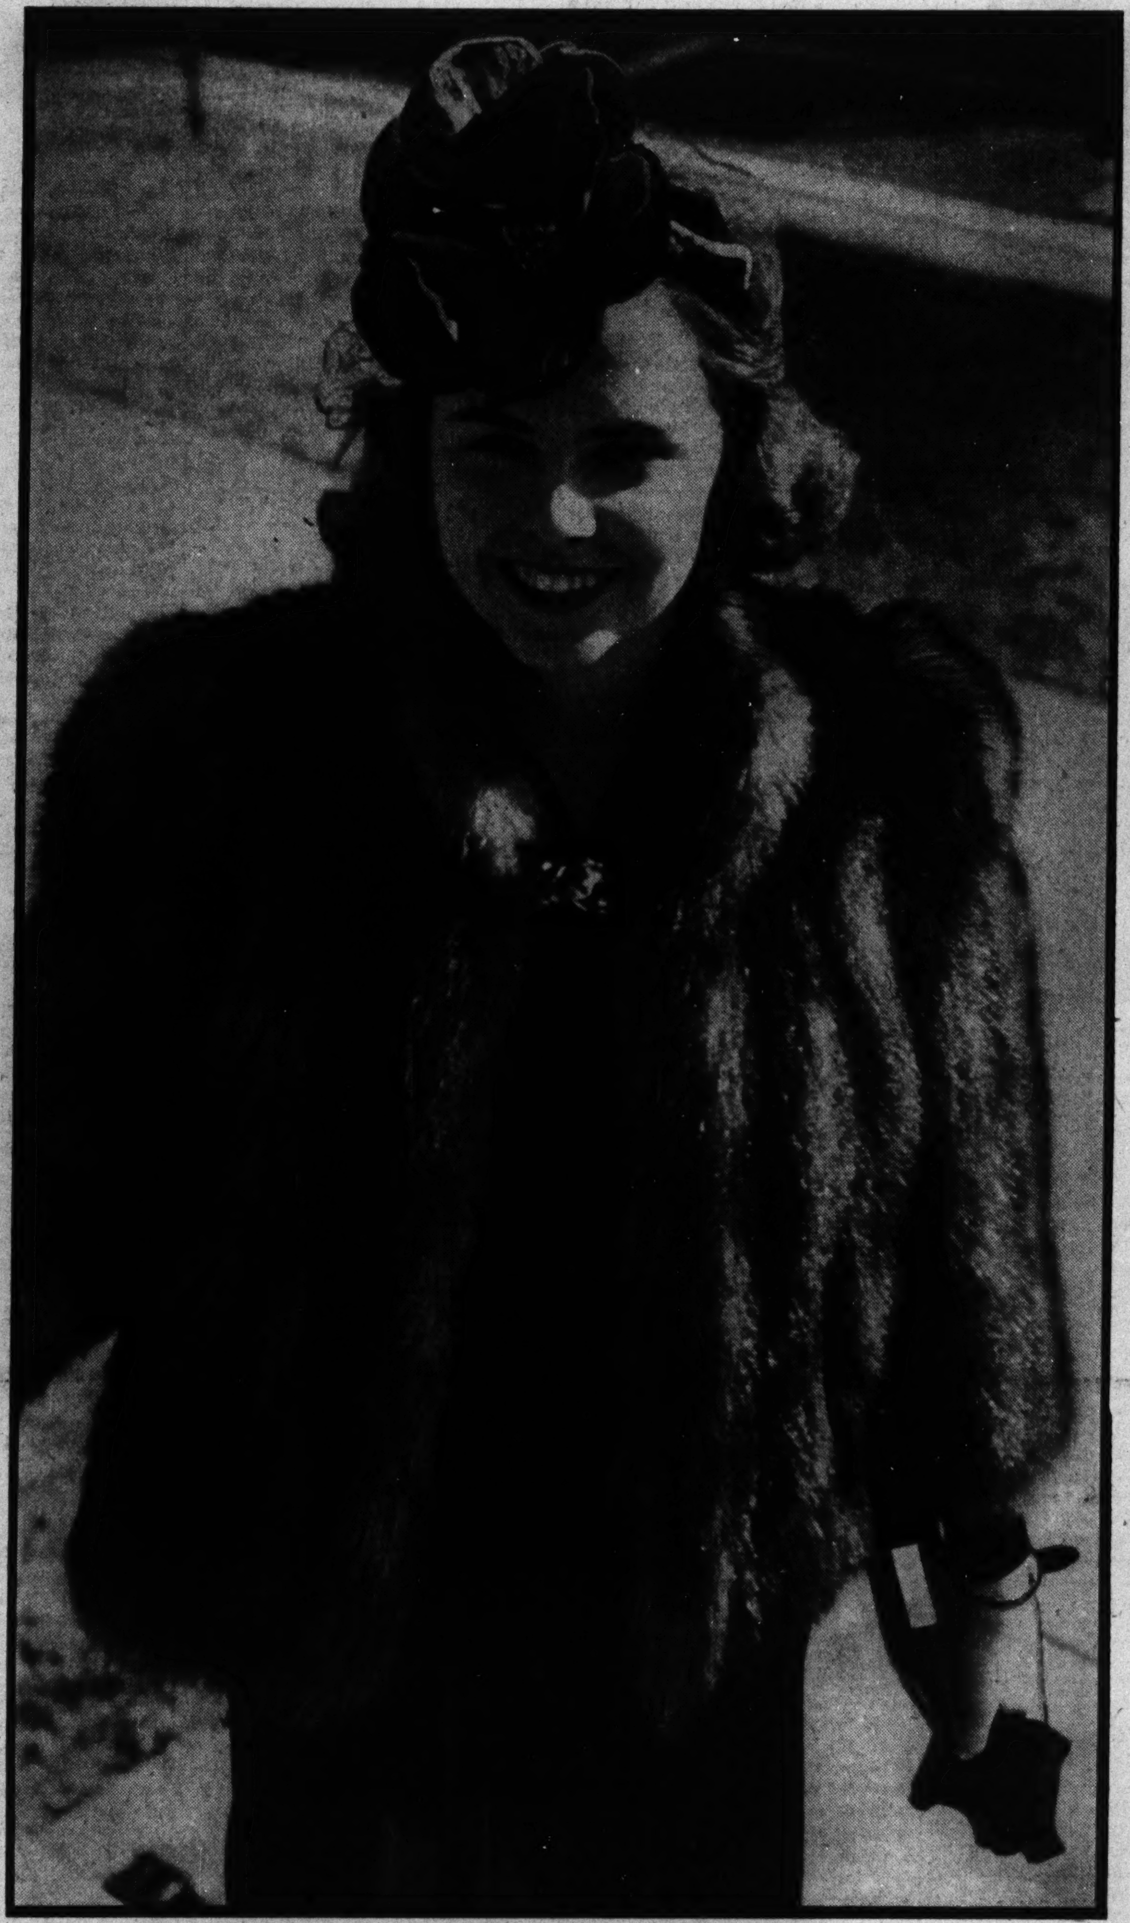
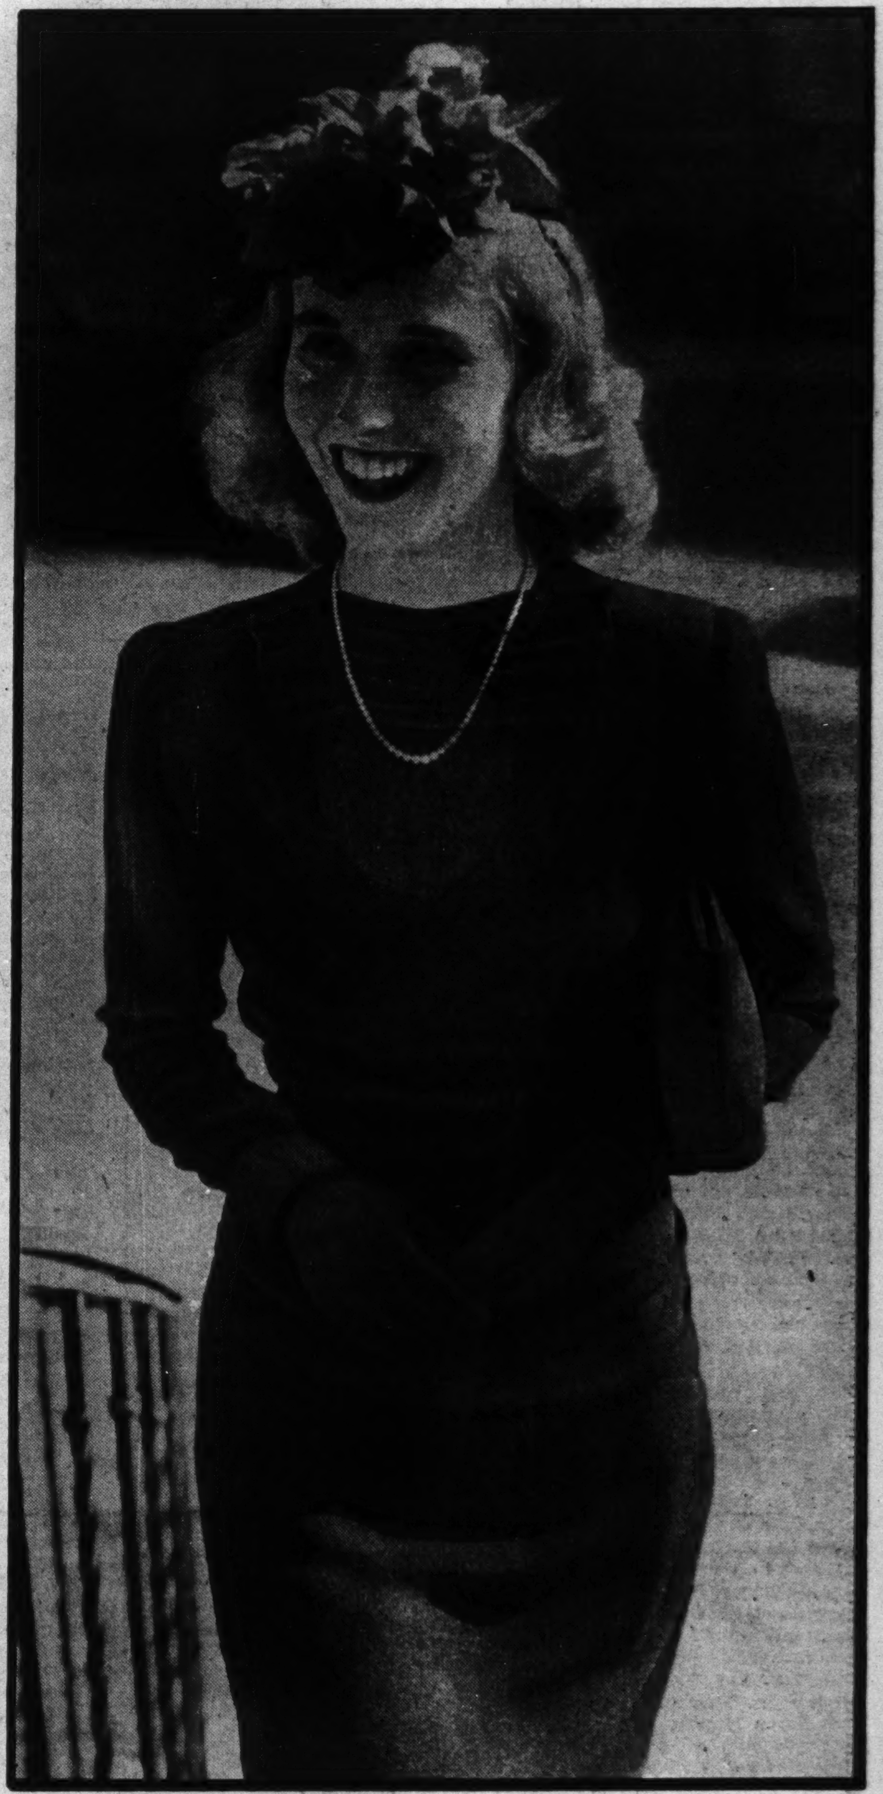
Annual St. Luke's Fashion Show to Be Held Wednesday



Mrs. Clinton E. Frank will be putting aside her American Women's Voluntary Services uniform on Wednesday to don "civilian" clothes as a St. Luke's model. She is the former Frances Price of Winnetka.

Below: Miss Dudley Winston's winsome smile should make her a popular mannequin in the 16th annual fashion show Wednesday of the woman's board of St. Luke's hospital. This year for the first time the show, one of the most elaborate annual benefits in Chicago, will be presented in the Civic Opera house.





Mrs. John Quincy Adams Jr. is another St. Luke's model. Tickets are on sale at 10 South La Salle street (Cen. 2534) and at 906 North Michigan avenue (Sup. 3397). The theater box office will be open on Wednesday.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Miss Patricia McLaughlin (left) and Miss Virginie Washburne will be making their first appearance this year as St. Luke's models. They are debutantes.

Young as they are, Mrs. A. Watson Armour (left) and Mrs. Marshall G. Sampsell are St. Luke's "veterans," both as mannequins and committee members. This year Mrs. Armour is on the exhibitors' committee, while Mrs. Sampsell is assisting with publicity.

Miss Barbara Warner (left) and Miss Joan Monroe are others who will be seen in the two performances at 2:30 and 8 o'clock on Wednesday.

Antiquarians Give Tea, View Boston Relics

By Cousin Eve.

The week galloped by with variety aplenty in our daily bill of fare. There has been a little bit of everything, with strong overtones of politics. And one has seen many friends in pretty new hats.

The Antiquarians of the Art institute were "at home" Tuesday afternoon, according to the invitation, which was fancifully early 19th Century, with many curlicues.

The weather was so warm that day that we might have met in the open court with the stone lions, barbered trees, and bronze urns, not to mention the mirrored pool reflecting the azure sky. But it always rains if you plan an outdoor fête in Chicago, so we contented ourselves inside looking at a collection of early American furniture from sacrosanct Louisburg Square, Boston. The pieces were of the 17th and 18th century and Barbara Wendell arrived to give it the once over, and I never did hear her real Back bay opinion of it.

The collection had been made by the late Mr. and Mrs. Philip Young of Boston. One gallery was specially painted gray blue to receive the polished highboys, sofas, chests, samplers, fire screens, and massive gateleg table, coming down from Benjamin Franklin's family. One nice thing about admiring early American furniture, you don't have to sit on it or sleep on it.

A third gallery, still more interesting in a historic sense, has a collection of costumes and rare fabrics. Mrs. Potter Palmer steered us to some tiny gay little frocks that had belonged to two sisters, the Rozets, Petite and Beppie, who had their place in Chicago's life of the past. They were Philadelphia women of the Drexel family. Nearby in a case is a filmy ball frock worn by their cousin, Mrs. Mandeville, at a ball in Peking.

On the west wall is a respendent white matelasse velvet court train lined with satin and edged with diamante, worn by the late Mrs. Potter Palmer at the Court of St. James's. There are many frocks, many fabrics, and an array of bygone fashions that should be studied by stylists. All look so small and quaint.

Mrs. Philip Miller was receiving, assisted by Mrs. Palmer and Mrs. Frank Hibbard. In the center of each gallery was a tea table with a few flowers and a tea service, where Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. A. H. Patterson, Mrs. George Ranney, Mrs. Alfred Hamill, Mrs. W. McCormick Blair and several more took turns at canteening. It was one of the most charming teas the Antiquarians have ever had, perhaps because it was small and leisurely. Maybe because we hadn't met for 18 months on account of the war—and absence makes the heart grow fonder.

A few in the "assistance" were Mrs. Chauncey Borland, Mrs. Clive Runnells, Mrs. Cyrus Adams, Miss Florence Bartlett, Countess Cardelli, Mrs. Arthur Meeker and Arthur Jr., Mrs. Secor Cunningham, Mrs. Aldis Browne Jr., Mrs. C. B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Byron Harvey, Mrs. M. R. McCullough, Mrs. Allan Clement, Mrs. Jason Whitney, Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, Mrs. C. W. Dempster, Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, and Mrs. F. T. de Long.

Under cover of our Chicago war effort are those unsung heroines on the home front who wear no uniforms but carry on local charities. In these stirring days it's dull to be selling tickets and messing around with finances and other unglamorous matters. Last Saturday night the Arden Shore heroines had their annual ball at the Drake, which went off with the usual dash. Every autumn this group raises thousands to maintain their summer camps.

Last week members of the rummage sale wing of the Children's Memorial hospital lunched in merry conclave and framed up a new attraction for their next benefit. By jingo! it's bingo—Nov. 5, at the Casino. Tickets of admission are the usual white elephant. Ladies of this committee lunch weekly from September thru June and steer the affairs of the White Elephant shop, 27 East Ohio street.

This four story house doesn't look like a gold mine—but it helps support a hospital for little children. Some of the members are Mrs. W. B. Greenlee, Mrs. Charles Foster, Mrs. Farwell Chase, Mrs. P. A. Valentine, Mrs. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Nelson Barnes, Mrs. Joseph King, Mrs. Secor Cunningham, Mrs. Augustus Maxwell, Mrs. Phelps Hoyt, and Mrs. Frederic Upham.

The Council on Foreign Relations had a new dispensation all around a week ago last Saturday—lunch in the Sherman ballroom for a change; a new and erudite president in Dr. Frederic Woodward, retired vice president of the University of Chicago. And a new director in Mrs. Quincy Wright, a handsome blue stocking from regions of the Midway.

The pièce de résistance that day was Col. Hugh Knerr, a retired army officer and aviation expert [later recalled to active duty], whose text was "The Fight for Air Power." Mrs. Robert M. Adams was placed next to the speaker at luncheon. He was one of those wiry, hard bitten men who look as if they had seen service and had ideas.

They had a party at the Arts club Friday after the opening of the Symphony. Guests breezed in, happily unaware that they had heard "Papa Stock" conduct the orchestra for the last time. The great leader had merrily given "The Stars and Stripes Forever" as the concluding number. He had led out with the "Star Spangled Banner" in the gorgeous way that he above all others knew how.

The Arts club tea was described in gorgeous phraseology on the invitation as "the installation of the sculpture by Alexander Caldwell." The tea, as teas go, was very nice. But the sculpture, as sculpture goes at the Arts club, "was just another one of those things." You might call it a conversation piece, or a propeller blade from the Normandie, or just a souvenir from the junk pile at the corner. For the benefit of nonmembers of the Arts club, one might say it was a tall, rangy black creation with some little red objects like bleeding hearts dangling on a limb aloft. The money that bought it was willed the Arts club by the late Mabel Johnston Wakem.

The Arts club is one of our best liked clubs. Situated in the south Wrigley building it has a stirring outlook upon the Chicago river and the granite canyons of our city.

There have been four presidents in Arts club history. First was Mrs. Robert McGann, herself an artist; then Mrs. Rue W. Carpenter, another artist, and yet another, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, who carried on in the path of her predecessors, extending, however, the Arts club's sphere. She traveled often to London and Paris to meet the moderns in painting, music, and sculpture. The current president is Mrs. Alfred Shaw, a charming young matron and niece of the late Rue Carpenter. They catch presidents younger nowadays.

The woman to whom the Arts club owes its present affluent state is Mrs. Jacob Baur, chairman of the executive committee. She it was who put the financial affairs of the club in order and demonstrated the virtues of thrift against possible dark days.

The Casino was the scene of action last Tuesday at noon for a streamlined opera by Charles W. Cadman, "The Full Moon," given in the large ballroom, a delightful oval. The hosts of the occasion were Mrs. Helen Rend Clarke, president, and members of the American Opera society, who stayed on for luncheon.

I was late for the music, alas, but the general consensus was that it had much zip and was gay à la Gilbert and Sullivan. The artists were Mmes. Willa Dryden and Mae Barron, Messrs. Max Wilson and Leonard Huber, with Joseph Anderson directing.

The American Opera society under Mrs. Clarke has taken a new lease on life. Thirty members signified their intention of coming, but 70 came to the operatic luncheon. This was hard on the Casino chef, but it all passed off without a ripple, and there was broiled chicken for all. The guest of honor at Mrs. Clarke's table was Fortune Gallo, director of the Civic opera, who was asked to speak after the hot pear compote had been passed. Mr. Gallo gave a very enticing résumé of the coming season's bill of fare, the revivals, and particularly of the operas to be sung in English. "Tales of Hoffmann" is one. He also underscored the increased number of performances by Lily Pons, Lawrence Tibbett, John Charles Thomas, Gladys Swarthout, Grace Moore, and Richard Crooks — the great stars.

It was such a nice talk that several Saturday boxes were sold on the spot, and the American Opera society is toying with the idea of taking over a Saturday matinée as a benefit. Also at the musical luncheon were Mrs. Archibald Freer, Mrs. Joseph Rend, Miss Louise English, Mrs. Joseph Otis, Mrs. Charles Reed, Mrs. Ralph Winston, Mrs. Jones Jarrett, Mrs. Albion Head, Miss Alice Gerstenberg, and Mrs. Lyman Walker.

The invitations said it was a kitchen shower for Nancy Coleman, and it turned out the liveliest hour of the autumn, a foretaste of Christmas. It was in Mrs. George Ranney's living room high up in the sky in Astor street, a lovely room, with French windows letting in lots of light.

The hostess received a continuous string of guests, each with a snappy package, and Nancy herself sat like a queen in a marvelous new mulberry hat, which was all you could see so high was the barricade of boxes. No bride ever had a better start in life than she. On the floor at her feet with long scissors sat Dorothy Hibbard and Mrs. Johnny Stevenson snipping ribbons and string fast as they could cut.

Then out popped the presents—about 75 in all, and no duplicates. There was every kind of smart kettle, dish, and cooking gadget that goes to make life easy in the modern household, and all the newest tea cloths, papers, and whatnot that warm the heart of the housekeeper.

After the show was over, there was tea in the dining room, with Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick and Mrs. Herbert Schwarz pouring. Mrs. "Windy" Hasler came in from Lake Forest to help her mother with the shower—and really it was a shower and no mistake—almost a deluge of delightful things. Mrs. Charles Edward Brown's chic black chiffon nightgown with accompanying verse was the crowning glory. To name a few among the many, there were Mrs. Charles Pike, Mrs. Bertram Winston, Mrs. William Odell, Mrs. Ralph Shaw, Mrs. Harold A. Howard, Mrs. Walter Kirk, Mrs. Silas Strawn, Mrs. Leon Steele, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Ralph James, Mrs. Charles Foster, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, and Mrs. Bruce Borland.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

Miss Phyllis Gail Rosenbaum's engagement to Jack T. Rosen is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Rosenbaum of North Sawyer avenue. Mr. Rosen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rosen of Gunnison street, is a graduate of Northwestern university.

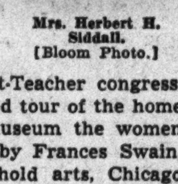
TO BE WED NOV. 11

Miss Carole Frances Kral, whose engagement to James John Riha, son of Mrs. Anna Riha of Berwyn, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bohimul Frank Kral of Chicago. Miss Kral was graduated from Stephens college. Her fiance, a graduate of Culver Military academy, attended Northwestern and Southern Methodist universities. The wedding is planned for Nov. 11.

Chicagoland PTA to Have an All-Day Meeting Thursday

Chairmen of homemaking committees from Chicago and suburban Parent-Teacher associations will gather at 10 o'clock Thursday morning at the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park for an all day meeting, called by Mrs. Herbert H. Siddall, state chairman of home and family life with the Illinois Parent-Teacher congress.



Mrs. Herbert H. Siddall.

After a conducted tour of the home exhibits in the museum the women will hear a talk by Frances Swain, director of household arts, Chicago Board of Education, on "The Home Economics Program in Chicago Schools" and view a "Grandmother's Quilt" pageant, presented by Mrs. Karl Treen, with Mrs. Harold Miller, Mrs. Paul Gadwin, and Mrs. Earl Choate, all of Harvey, assisting.

The afternoon program will include a talk on "Meat Grading and Its Advantages to the Consumer," by J. S. Campbell of the United States department of agriculture, and an exhibit of 300 dolls collected by Doris Hamer, a Chicago high school student.

Omicron Gamma Chapter to Entertain Tomorrow

Omicron Gamma alumnae chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota, national music fraternity, will entertain members and rushees of active Chicago chapters at a gathering tomorrow evening in the Fountain room of the Medical and Dental Arts building, 185 North Wabash avenue.

Care of Garments.

Clothes that are kept clean wear longer than soiled clothes. Garments that are to be stored for the winter should be washed or dry cleaned before they are stored.

Women in War Work ..... By Kate Massee

Helping in actual war production or taking part in some of the many volunteer services actually connected with the war effort are the general impressions of being in war work. However, there are hundreds of women in Chicago coöperating in a program that functions without the drama of machinery, uniforms, or identification cards.

They are members of ladies' aid societies and other church women's groups working thru the Christian refugee department of United Charities of Chicago to help European families from Nazi occupied homelands find new homes, jobs, medical care, and other services here.

Refugees who are without friends or relatives to help them thru the first few months in a new country are met in New York by a representative of the American committee for Christian refugees. After an interview, the representative decides where the newcomer would find the best opportunity to reëstablish himself. He is given help to get there.

Refugees coming to this area thru that service are given the name and address of Mrs. Elsa Englander, director of the Christian refugee department of United Charities. She in turn puts them in touch with local organizations and individuals who can help them. This is where the church groups function.

Mrs. Arthur H. Compton, member of the women's coöperating commission of the Federal Council of Churches and one of the active volunteers in refugee work, said of the women's efforts in this program: "There is so little we can do these days to help the refugees who are still abroad that it seems all the more important that we should do everything we can to be of practical help to those uprooted by war who have managed to reach this country."

Ways in which Mrs. Compton and other women help vary in detail. They may buy pictures from an Austrian artist, or they may make items for a church bazar and use the proceeds to buy books for a stranded Iranian student.

A timely project which was retroactive in that it helped this country the moment the refugee was assisted was undertaken recently by the woman's society of Christian service of the Normal Park Methodist church. The women simply raised money at their circle luncheons to contribute toward some orthopedic shoes needed by a Polish nurse who could not work until she had them. Getting the shoes, of course, meant another nurse available for duty.

Mrs. Englander found a woman who would act as both employer and mother to an 18 year old girl who, altho an American citizen, had lived in Holland for 14 years. Emaciated and frightened, the girl came here in need of reassurance and friendship as well as food and shelter.

The girl gained eight pounds in one week on her new job, and her employer says, "Our friendship with Mary and other refugees has been an enriching experience. We have gained much more than we have given."

The women in refugee work find that they must break down public prejudices about newcomers with foreign accents. Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence, chairman of the United Charities refugees committee, is outstanding in this task. She does this by talks and letters and by promoting actual acquaintance between club and church groups and refugees. The friendship and service committee also functions in this capacity and has given teas and parties for refugees in 15 churches this year. Miss Anna Heistad of Marcy center is leader of this committee.

Mrs. Arthur H. Compton, member of the women's co-operating commission of the Federal Council of Churches, which is aiding refugees.

The entire program in the Chicago area depends for much of its support upon members of the 150 missionary societies, women's auxiliaries, and other church women's groups contributing money from their small budgets. Their aim is to make each newcomer self-sufficient and a good future citizen.

Mrs. Englander says, "Often these people bring us crafts we did not have before. Many of them are valuable additions to our cultural and professional life. We try to help them find places in which they can best fit, according to the training they have had."

The majority of the women who do this particular kind of war work are housewives with families. It is a matter of doing a little, but doing it regularly. The women who helped to buy the shoes for the Polish nurse simply paid a 25 cent luncheon fee to attend a circle lunch, and the woman in whose home it was held donated the lunch.

"Another Worker" writes about her experiences on the job in war production. Her letter is in answer to one printed in this column some time ago, also from a woman worker. . . . She says:

"After reading your letter on the problems of a 'defense' worker I am unable to resist the urge to offer some of my experience which may may help you overcome the monotony of it all.

"First of all I am not a 'career' woman by instinct nor training. I have been of the idle rich too many many years and only work because as yet they have not made it legal to shoot women past 40.

"My experience in getting into this type of war work is similar to your own with the exception that the man who hired me did so to get rid of me. I am sure that he had that in mind as he gave me the worst hours possible—1 a. m. until 8 a. m. In other words, seven hours work with eight hours pay, but even that does not floor me.

"The nearest I had ever been to a foundry was in passing it unnoticed. However, I went thru the usual procedure and reported that night for work. They took me on a tour of inspection of the plant, explaining the various steps. I was completely fascinated by it all and was just as completely let down when it was all over and I was placed at a table with a group of young girls [young enough to be my daughters, yet not exactly from my station in life].

"They were examining queer gadgets which all looked alike to me. I made up my mind then and there that action was what I wanted, not only to keep me interested but to keep me awake.

"Since then I have found that a foreman has an uncanny way of discovering just what each one of his group is best suited to do. I have learned to operate many of the large machines and can produce along with the men, thereby gaining the respect of all the workers who at first viewed me with suspicion, as they instinctively felt I was different and could not be there for any good purpose.

"I have made a game out of each night's work and set a standard to work for—such as so much done by lunchtime, etc. The night passes quickly and by the last whistle I turn off the switch with a sense of satisfaction that not only have I made money [on piece work, those are magic words], but with a degree of luck I have contributed to the sudden death of a few thousand of the enemy.

"Midnight finds me on my way to the first job I ever had that I did not have to give myself a mental whipping before I left the house. I wear all of my old clothes, tie my well groomed head in a scarf [which acts as a disguise as well as a protection] kiss the dog good-by, park my personality at the door, and with my thermos of black coffee and a sandwich in a brown paper bag in my hand, I go forth to another interesting night with a lot of people whom at first I thought queer—the only difference is that their background is different—inside we are all more or less alike. . . ."

Volunteer Visiting Corps Is Expanded

By Irene Steyskal.

This generation has all but lost a wisdom that did honor to a less hurrried and more reverent past—the wisdom of veneration for the aged. There is more poetry than truth today in the picture of the gentle patriarch, "old and gray and full of sleep and nodding by the fire"; of the benign matriarch, content with her dreaming in the quiet hour of folded hands.

Our organized and businesslike philanthropies maintain homes and institutions for the poor and incapacitated but few are the persons troubled by this day's lack of grace that relegates old age to a bleak loneliness of spirit.

Special interest, therefore, attaches to an announcement from Joel D. Hunter, general superintendent of the United Charities, that a volunteer visiting project for the aged, begun on a samll scale several weeks ago, has attracted more workers and is to be expanded.

The Volunteer Visitors to the Aged are organized for personalized service in a restricted field. Mr. Hunter has many legal wards. These are the needy old people who, because of the mental infirmities of advanced age, have been placed in state institutions. Now faced with a growing problem of overtaxed facilities, the mental hospitals, to make place for the acutely ill, are obliged to return to the community the elderly men and women whose eccentricities or confused thought processes are only natural to their age cycle.

Since the law prohibits the paying of old age pensions to persons who have been judged incompetent to handle their own affairs, Mr. Hunter assumes legal guardianship, becomes the conservator of their estates. By this means he is able to procure public assistance for the needy and place his charges in suitable nursing homes, with relatives, or in other satisfactory quarters.

But after their physical well being has been provided for, there remains the important problem of morale, and this is where the volunteer visitor enters, the friend who drops in regularly to chat; to listen attentively to those oft' told tales that every one else is too busy or impatient to hear; to arbitrate differences with the family; to open avenues into pleasant and useful occupation; to restore confidence and dignity by the simple magic of friendly interest.

Happily, there is nothing of maudlin sentimentality in the attitude of the 17 women visitors in the original corps towards the 25 oldsters they thus far have taken under their wings. A scientific preparatory course of study has given them a clear perspective on the problems involved, and the old folks themselves are proving subjects for lively interest and giving their new friends many an amusing moment.

There is, for example, the charming old gentleman whose life has been a model of circumspection, but who, in his eighties, is fascinated by accounts of gangsters and holdup men in the papers. Each time another crime story appears in the news, he turns up at the police station to assure the authorities that he is the culprit.

And there is the frail little lavender and old lace lady who is up and out like a flash, eager for the excitement, every time the fire alarm shrills in her street and the bright engines clatter by. One of the visitors, noted for her tact and irresistible persuasive powers, has met a supreme test for her ingenuity in the firm old lady who refuses to see her son because he does not go to church.

Forty new volunteers have enlisted for the visiting service. They will take their preparatory course Tuesday and Wednesday in the conference room of the Cook County Bureau of Public Welfare in the Merchandise Mart.

Dr. Jack Weinburg, chief psychiatrist with the Chicago Community clinic, will instruct them in the behavior patters of the aged, outline the scope of treatment for old age infirmities in hospitals and the possibilities for home care treatment. Mrs. Florence Worthington, chief of social service at the Chicago State hospital, will lecture on fears and prejudices common to mental illness, discuss the constructive use of state hospitals, and give case histories illustrating social aspects of home care for convalescing aged.

The interviewing process and the psychological reactions of the old to tolerance, understanding, and patience will be explained by Miss Jeanette Hanford, assistant general superintendent of the United Charities.

Mr. Hunter will discuss the structure of the United Charities family service and legal aid bureaus in relation to the old people for whom he acts as conservator, and the need for volunteer visitors. Mrs. Clara Paul Paige, public assistance division director of the Cook County Bureau of Public Welfare, will explain the structure of her division, old age assistance services, administration of state and federal funds, and volunteer visiting as an auxiliary service.

• • •

Directing the volunteer visiting project and serving as consultant to the volunteers at United Charities headquarters is Mrs. Frances Higgins, member of the charities staff. Mrs. George Dovenmuehle of Winnetka is chairman of the visitors' corps.

With Mrs. Dovenmuehle, the original company of volunteers is composed of Mrs. Pierce Atwater, Mrs. Katherine O. Anderson, Mrs. Samuel Banks, Mrs. Reid M. Bennett, Mrs. Olga P. Brame, Mrs. Martin Chapman, Mrs. Jane K. Goldsmith, Mrs. Emma Crossman, Mrs. Augusta Johnson, Mrs. Emma Kreisheimer, Mrs. Lena McLemore, Mrs. Lucille Newcomb, Mrs. Raphael Van Tassel, Mrs. Bennie Vidal, Mrs. Alice Nelson Payne, and Mrs. Francis E. Broonell.

Mrs. Ethel R. McDowell, director of the social service department of the Municipal court and a board member of the Protestant Woman's Protectorate, will speak Tuesday afternoon at the protectorate's benefit smorgasbord luncheon in the First Presbyterian church, 64th street and Kimbark avenue. A musical program will be presented by Mrs. Jewel Martin Lovejoy, vocalist. Mrs. Charles Palmquist is chairman of the luncheon. Mrs. Fred W. Waterman is president.

• • •

The opening session of a course in human relations, which will be sponsored by the Jewish Big Sisters in their headquarters at 203 North Wabash avenue, will be held at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. Two other sessions will be conducted the same time during the two following weeks. Mrs. Philip Goodman is chairman of the case advisory committee and Mrs. Betty Krause is case work supervisor

Rosary College Auxiliary Heads to Meet Tuesday

The executive board of Rosary college auxiliary will meet at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. William H. Lewis, 5448 Washington boulevard, to make plans for the organization's annual party on Dec. 5 at the college.

City Club Plans Rodent Eradication

The rodent is in for his annual dose of public opprobrium again at the hands of the Woman's City club. This is "Rat Control week" on the municipal calendar and the civic minded City club has no intention of permitting it to pass unscored. Men and women whose efforts in rat eradication have given them expert's rating have been invited to speak before a conference tomorrow morning in the organization's rooms in the Fine Arts building.

G. C. Oderkird, district predator and rodent control agent of the federal fish and wild life service, will report on new developments in rodent control. Mrs. Walter J. Hedrick, the Beverly Hills housewife and clubwoman who has captained a major campaign in her community; Miss Charlotte Carr of Hull House, and Mrs. Hilda Gitlin, who is directing a new eradication project from Newberry center, will be heard.

William McDonnell, publisher of the Southtown Economist, will review a public program directed by his paper in Englewood by means of "before and after" pictures, and Frank Reynolds, president of the Ridge Civic council, will tell of a successful purge carried out in his section.

Tomorrow afternoon at the club Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley's clothing clinic will give a demonstration in salvaging last year's hats.

The City group has been giving a series of evening parties for government employés who have moved to Chicago from Washington, D. C. Thursday night the men and women of the fish and wild life service will be entertained. Dr. Ira N. Garrielson, director of the office, will speak.

Mrs. John Sharpless Fox, president of the club, will receive the visitors, and Mrs. Bradley S. Carr, vice president; Miss Ruth E. Moore, corresponding secretary, and Miss Louise Ramsey, chairman of the municipal citizenship committee, will give brief talks on civic life, recreational facilities, and voting requirements in Chicago.

A preëlection survey is scheduled for 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. Candidates for the United States senate and house of representatives will appear or send representatives to speak for them. Sample ballots will be distributed and the "little ballots" will be discussed.

Reveal Engagement of Sidney Meeker and F. W. Keith Jr.

Of especial interest is the announcement Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Meeker of North State parkway are making of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sidney Page Meeker, to Frederick W. Keith Jr., son of Lieut. Comm. and Mrs. Keith of Sarasota, Fla., formerly of Chicago. Miss Meeker, who attends Vassar college, was introduced to society in the winter of 1939. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. George W. Meeker of Chicago.

Mr. Keith attended Yale university. He now is engaged in business in the east.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Oct. 25, 1894.

Mrs. Albert Dewey.

Dear Julia: Just in from an afternoon of calling, on the south side, I am dashing off a hasty letter to you, to say that I've sent you, by express, a crocheted "tidy," which I bought, partly to help a worthy woman in our church who does this handiwork; partly because I thought it lovely. It is for the back of the easy chair in your library. Do you remember when we used to call these articles "antimacassars"?

I don't feel so tired as usual after a round of calls, perhaps because I visited ladies I enjoy very much. Prairie avenue was the scene of my social movements today, and I stopped first at the Byron L. Smith home, at 22d street, but found Mrs. Smith was out of town. I was disappointed, for I haven't seen her lately. Then I went on down to that lovely section of our famous avenue beginning at 26th street. Mrs. Chauncey Keep, Mrs. Henry A. Blair and Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson were all in and offered tea to the wayfarer, as did Mrs. Albert B. Dewey, at 2631 Prairie avenue.

I know you've met Mrs. Keep, Mrs. Hutchinson and Mrs. Blair, but Mrs. Dewey was in New York when you were here lately, so she didn't attend my reception for you. She's a delightful little lady, with sparkling dark eyes, and she always looks as if she had just stepped out of a bandbox. Her costume was especially attractive today, a dark velvet gown, with flowers at her shoulder.

Her housekeeping is a marvel and her Brussels lace curtains looked so fresh, I ventured to inquire how long she left them up before they were washed. She told me she had them washed every six weeks, without fail, sometimes oftener. Chicago is a much dirtier city than New York, and soot settles on everything.

Mr. Dewey came in while I was there and we had a little chat. He is a friend of Will's, as both are former soldiers. Mr. Dewey ran away from home to join the Union army when he was only a boy. Dear me! What mothers went thru in those terrible days! It was bad enough to let Will, a grown man, enlist, but to see a young fellow in his teens go off like that! Yet Will reminds me that wars have mostly been fought by youngsters.

The Deweys are great travelers and have been in Europe often, as well as in other far corners of the world. Mrs. Dewey is a devoted Presbyterian, but her home seems to come first. They have two children, both boys. While I was there the eldest, Charles, aged 7, entered, bearing a note from his teacher. He had been dipping the ends of a little girl's hair in his inkwell, her braids hanging temptingly in front of him, as he sat at his desk. Teacher intimated, in no uncertain terms, that this must not occur again. When the youngster had shaken hands with the callers and had made his exit from the parlor, Mrs. Dewey sighed and said she thought perhaps he would have to be allowed to go to the Harvard school, not far away, which only boys attend, as he rebelled at finding himself in the company of younger and gentler spirits. I had to laugh, because it's exactly what Martha has been hearing from her son. The masculine spirit asserts itself early.

And now, with love, I am
Ever yours,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES

Congressman Charles S. Dewey in 1894 was a recalcitrant small boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Dewey.

Definition of a Gentleman.

In the issue of Sept. 20 the editor of this column invited readers to submit a definition of the word gentleman, which has fallen into disuse in these modern days. Many responded and we thank every one who sent in an entry. After much consideration, the prize, a copy of "THE VICTORIAN KEEPSAKE," has been awarded to Mrs. Pearl M. Garrod, at present a patient in the Women's and Children's hospital, 1600 Maypole avenue. Mrs. Gerrod has been confined to the hospital for eight months, but hopes to be out soon, when she promises to send this column some choice old poems from her scrapbooks. Her prize winning definition follows:

"A gentleman is a man who, when he speaks to a woman, makes her feel like a lady."

There's much in this definition. The gentleman brings out the best in others, which is a finer thing than putting one at ease [a definition sent by two friends]. Several readers defined a gentleman as a man who did "the kindest thing in the kindest way," an excellent definition, but offered by so many that it could not be awarded a prize.

We commend to your attention the little book, "In Praise of Gentlemen," by Henry Dwight Sedgwick. Beside being delightful in style, its historical and classical lore illuminates the subject and a number of perfect definitions of the word in question will be found.

The Encyclopedia Britannica is another good place to look when searching for light on the word "gentleman." It quotes previous editions, and one sees how the word has changed its meaning in course of time. In the fifth edition [1815] a gentleman is said to be one who "without any title bears a coat of arms or whose ancestors have been freemen." At one time the wearing of a sword on all occasions was the outward sign of the gentleman, this custom surviving in the short sword worn with court dress. The current meaning of the word varies, says Britannica, with every class of society that uses it, but it always implies some sort of excellence of manners and morals.

Art Institute Reviews Work of Grant Wood

By Eleanor Jewett.

The formal opening of the 53d annual exhibition of American Paintings and Sculpture will be held next Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 28, with a reception from 3 to 7 o'clock. The exhibition will be open to the general public on Thursday. This year a memorial showing of paintings by Grant Wood is a feature of the exhibit.

Grant Wood's work is familiar to most art enthusiasts but a reviewing of many of his most important pictures will be a welcomed occasion. Naturally the Art institute's "American Gothic" will be hung in this retrospective show.

According to word from the Art institute Potter Palmer and Chauncey McCormick will speak at the dedicatory program on Wednesday and among the important guests who will be present are Lieut. Gov. Bourke Hickenlooper of Iowa [Grant Wood's native state], Mr. Wood's sister, and John Steuart Curry, one of his most intimate friends among contemporary painters.

The American exhibition this year, as last, is an entirely invited affair. The prize awards, which will be announced on Wednesday, were made by a jury.

To step for a moment outside of the usual run of galleries and still find one's self at an exhibition in which skill and taste predominate is a pleasant experience, which should fall to the lot of many people these autumn days, while Lincoln park is still a place of autumn beauty in which to wander. One hears altogether too little about two of the fine buildings in the park and their exhibits. One of these buildings is the Chicago Historical Society [and it is always worth a visit], which this summer housed the annual Chicago Camera club show.

The second building is the Chicago Academy of Science, known more familiarly as the Museum of Natural History, and it is on Clark street and Ogden avenue in Lincoln park. The Museum of Natural History now is presenting one of the most attractive and exquisite of exhibitions, a group of pressed plants.

"For sheer artistry in composition, these compare very favorably with the best flower prints I have ever seen," writes Donald M. Hatfield, curator. "To be sure, the petals have faded to a delicate brown for the most part, but the greens stand up well in most of their gradations."

The exhibit was prepared by Anna M. Kummer, wife of the Chicago artist. Mrs. Kummer is an authority on Chicago plants. Panels six and seven are particularly good but the entire exhibit is well worth seeing. It is something that every one can enjoy.

A stunning exhibit is now hanging in the Club Woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers. It is a memorial showing of the water colors and oils and drawings of the late Ben Silbert and so fine is the work that time and again the visitor is forced to a pause and the silent statement: "He was a great painter." Ben Silbert was with the armed forces in the last World war, and when it was over he settled in Paris, but his was a restless spirit and after a few years he traveled far and wide over the continent painting beautifully wherever he chanced to set up his easel. There are paintings from Finland and France, Italy and Spain. The entire earth was so much copy for his brush.

Ben Silbert painted exquisite portraits; they are beautifully delineated, tranquil, serene, and somehow of an early Italian atmosphere. One can almost feel Romeo and Juliet breathing in the background of his canvas; the setting and time are right. These are poems of lovely women written in color with the sensitive and delicate touch of an old master.

But his genius had many sides. The landscapes of Ben Silbert fill one with excitement. The spirit of spring is in the fruit trees in bloom; the challenge of fall in the scarlet leaves. Hill towns of Italy, Sienna and Orvieto throw their spell. Winding roads, laughing travelers, houses like jewels, and trees that dance and sparkle make of the finest of these landscapes pictures which one hopes never to forget.

Mr. Silbert met with great success in Chicago, in New York, and in Baltimore. In 1934 his exhibition in Baltimore was one of the important events of the day. His death was untimely, like that of Grant Wood. For those who care to follow up the suggestion, we have in these two memorial exhibitions next week some of the finest American painting that this century has produced. A comparison of the two exhibits will be an adventure worth making.

The Ben Silbert exhibition, unfortunately, closes Oct. 31. Do not miss it; it is well worth seeing.

The miniature etchings exhibit opens the first week in November to continue to Dec. 1 at the Club Woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers. This is always one of THE shows of the fall.

Myrtle E. Frankovitz has an attractive exhibit of water colors at the Esquire theater on Oak street. The exhibit opened Oct. 18 and will be on view to Oct. 31. Miss Frankovitz had an exhibit in the same gallery last year. Her work is vivacious and sparkling and her choice of subject covers a great deal of ground, from Mexico to our north shore Skokie. "Wild Sunflowers," "Mexican Farmyard," "Autumn on the Skokie," and "Early American" are among the enjoyable pictures.

A charming exhibit has just opened in the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street, of paintings by Mrs. John O'Connor. The exhibit is there by invitation of the art and literature department of the club, of which Mrs. O'Connor is past president. Among the paintings are scenes of Gloucester, the White mountains, and Cape Cod. The more recent work gives us several paintings of Saugatuck, where, at Ox-Bow, the Art institute has its summer colony of artists.

◆

Woodcuts by Max Weber are on view in the print department of the Art institute and may be seen to Jan. 1. There are 35 prints with plates, shown for the first time in Chicago, in the display. The exhibit includes abstractions, figure pieces, and heads. Each print is small, but Max Weber has surprised us before by the amount of suggestion and effect he can get into extremely limited quarters. These woodcuts are in color.

A new exhibition of "Art in War" will open Nov. 6 in gallery 53, Art institute. The material will include photographs, cartoons, water colors, oils, and drawings. The pictures all deal in some way with army and navy life. Soldiers and sailors are the artists. The exhibit promises to be timely and interesting.

There will be a free autumn concert at 3:30 p. m. today in Blackstone hall, Art institute. The Art Institute Glee club will give the concert.

◆

Miss Helen Parker is speaking next Thursday at 6:30 p. m. in Fullerton hall, Art institute, on "Shores of Dalmatia."

"PAT AND PET"

The outstanding exhibition in Chicago in October was, beyond a doubt, the brilliant show of portraits and paintings by the celebrated artist, J. W. de R. Quistgaard, at the Roullier galleries, Fine Arts building. This charming portrait was one of the most popular of the canvases. Mr. Quistgaard is staying in town at the Blackstone hotel and a few of his portraits may still be seen at the Roullier galleries.

Women Taking Cowboy's Place Out in Arizona

If the cowboy doesn't watch out the gals will steal his stuff. They are proving to be just as able as the cowboys in rounding up or driving cattle, riding the fence, etc. And if they will only learn the cowboys' line of talk—which is something—the romance of the range may be centered around girls in high heeled boots, a wide brimmed hat and a pair of faded levi's. With so many of the boys in the army the work of the ranch has had to fall on the shoulders of women. And a very creditable job they are doing of it.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

Riding is no new venture for Ida May Minotto, but getting up at sunrise and working until dark and assuming the responsibility of a working ranch is a man's size job which she has been doing most successfully. Since early summer Ida May and her cousin, William Swift Jr., have been in full charge of the horse ranch, Z Triangle, of her parents, the Jimmie Minottos, in central Arizona. Ida May will return to Phoenix for the winter where she takes an active part in the motor corps and Red Cross. Mitri Minotto is at Great Lakes Naval Training station.

Not far from the Z Triangle is the Diamond 2 ranch owned by the Ben Alexanders of Lake Forest. As they, too, have been shorthanded all fall, every one has had to pitch in and work, including Mrs. Robert Dunham Jr. and her two children, who are visiting the Alexanders. It's roundup time now which means that the alarm goes off at 4 a. m. and there are always a few strays on top of the highest and rockiest mountain. The real life of the range is far different from the Hollywood version.

Other Chicagoans ranching in the Walnut Grove country are the George Tysons, who have also enlisted every member of their family in order to keep the ranch functioning properly. In spite of hard work and long days life in the Walnut Grove country is good and the city man is proving that he can "take it."

Most city bred men dream of a farm or ranch where they can some day retire to make their dreams come true. For years they accumulate every bit of available material on how to raise cattle, horses, sheep, pigs or a garden. They have their pet theories and very definite ideas. Few men, however, ever have the courage of their convictions, a lot of intestinal fortitude and a wife who is willing to make the sacrifices that are inevitable in any sort of pioneering. Success, to these men, is not measured in dollars and cents but in living fully.

Back in Winnetka the Frank Octigans had dreamed, talked, and studied farming for years. Last November they threw caution to the winds and took the plunge and came out to Phoenix to raise pigs. Pigs certainly don't sound romantic or even interesting, but after you have talked with the Octigans and listened to the story of their success in experimenting with cross breeding, and have seen the really beautiful litters of baby pigs and the scientific care and feeding they receive, you will realize that there is plenty of romance and adventure in pig raising. Watching the pigs eat that are being fattened for market will bring forcibly to your mind the saying: "pigs is pigs."

The Octigans' ranch is out Camelback road about 10 miles from town. It seems that pigs have a roundup time, too, and Monday starts the roundup of the pigs at the Octigans. Their range is the citrus grove and they veritably are "pigs in clover." Mrs. Octigan is just as enthusiastic as her husband and to stay here thruout the summer is proof of their genuine interest and willingness to work hard, which makes for success anywhere.

• • •

Every day sees return of the winter residents out in Arcadia, that most attractive desert community at the foot of Camelback mountain. Mrs. Chester Chapin and her sister, Miss Annette Chapin, arrived on Friday and on Saturday the Burridge Butlers from Hinsdale returned. The Butlers were among the first Chicagoans to winter in Arcadia. Mr. Butler owns the local broadcasting station, so Phoenix is almost as much home to them as Hinsdale. The Clarence Lillyblades are vacationing at Camelback Inn and John Roberts of Kenilworth will arrive on Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. James W. Hill, who have been in Phoenix for the last three weeks where Mr. Hill is recuperating from a serious illness, will return to Chicago within a few days. The warm fall days have done wonders for him and he is returning much benefited by his Arizona visit.

School days certainly seem to be a lot of fun out at the Judson School for Boys in Paradise valley. Due to the labor shortage and the gas rationing the boys are planting and taking care of their own vegetable garden this year, with carrots and spinach aplenty. The school has always been popular with Chicago boys and the Judson polo team has an enviable record thruout the southwest. Hugo Delmar of Evanston, son of Mrs. Hugo Delmar, is there this year. Mrs. William Mackenzie of Lake Forest has a home near the school for the winter and her two sons, David and Bill, are attending the school. Both Hugo and Bill are out practicing polo daily. Herbert McAllister visited the school over the week-end. Herbert was graduated in June and is now a freshman at the University of Arizona.

Mary Hardwick will be the tennis pro at Jokake Inn this season, and will arrive later in the month. Miss Nora Carney, who has spent the last 14 winters at the Arizona Biltmore has arrived earlier than usual this year to spend the fall months at Jokake Inn.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

Chilean Lake Country Has Rare Beauty

[This is the 58th article in a series on South America. The next will appear in an early issue.]

By Mason Warner.

We did not enjoy our week in Buenos Aires as much as we should have because we were worrying about getting home in time for Mason to enroll in his high school. Ships were becoming scarce.

CHILEAN LAKE COUNTRY

We had planned to sail around Cape Horn to the western coast of South America, but the first sailing to Valparaiso was 10 days away, and the voyage from Buenos Aires would require 22 days. So that was out.

We could have taken the easy, five and one-half hour trip by plane over the Andes to Santiago, but we wanted to go the hard way, so we decided to detour 600 miles south to Viedma, Argentina, and cross the continent by way of the Chilean lakes, traveling by rail over the Patagonian pampas, and then going by boat and motor car thru the famous lake country to connect with a railroad again at Osorno, Chile.

Uncertainty about our steamship passage home was ended by Cook's procuring for us a second class cabin [all first were booked] with first class meals on the Chilean liner Aconcagua, sailing from Valporaiso. So we started for the Chilean lake country.

Altho the road was rough, the 42 hour rail journey down the coast and over the pampas was not unpleasant. The sleeping compartment was commodious and comfortable, and all meals—two breakfasts, luncheon, and dinner—in the dining car, were satfactory, especially the steak and roast beef.

The pampas were monotonously flat, covered with scrubby green bushes, used by the natives for fuel. One can describe the complete topography of the 250,000 square miles of the pampas by listing only brush, sand, and bits of marshland. They are so flat one can see a horse and rider on the horizon five or six miles away. Fine dust drifted thru closed car windows, nothwithstanding unusual rains and standing pools of water. Scattered herds of cattle here, and flocks of sheep there, with now and then a gaucho, relieved the scene, but nevertheless the population seemed so limited in number as to indicate a new and unsettled country, which was far from the truth.

At 10 o'clock in the morning of the second day, our train arrived at Bariloche, on Lago Nahuel Huapi, the first and largest of the Chilean lakes, which happens to be in Argentina. Then began our baggage wrestling.

No porters were to be had so we carried six handbags from train to bus. A short ride took us to the pier. We hustled our baggage to the waiting boat. Then a four hour sail on beautiful Nahuel Huapi brought us to Puerto Blest where we had an excellent lunch. Then we conveyed baggage to a bus. A 20 minute ride took us to Porto Alegre, where we struggled again with baggage to a motor launch. A 10 minute sail, and we arrived at Laguna Frias, where we toted baggage to a bus. Two hours of fast driving took us to Peulla, where we delivered, in person, our six handbags to a good hotel, and were pleased to put up for the night.

I want to record an incident on the boat trip from Bariloche to Puerto Blest. An Argentine immigration official was on board to check all outgoing travelers. We had entered Argentina by the back door from Brazil, away up north, at Porto Aguirre on the Rio Parana, a seldom traveled route. Upon examination of our passports, the official declared he could not approve our exit because we had no official record of our entrance into Argentina.

• • •

Having observed how successfully foreigners in the United States resort to "Me no spik Inglis," I simply shrugged my shoulders and responded, "Yo no hablo Español."

Our fellow passengers were friendly and took our part. They grew excited and apparently asserted in strong language that we were in Argentina, record or no record. We let them do the talking as we figured it was Argentina's fault if our entry had not been properly recorded.

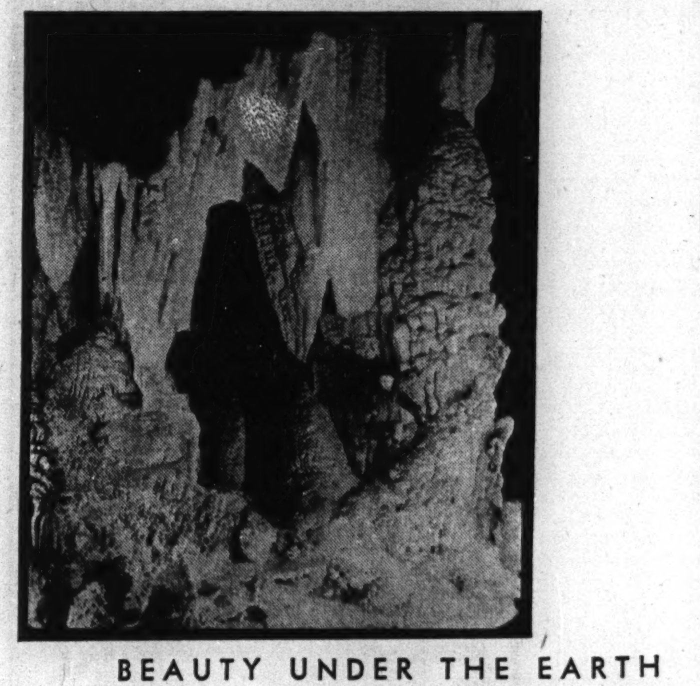
Overwhelmed by our friends, the official finally consented to make a special note on our passports that we had entered Argentina and were entitled to an exit visa. By his gracious action he saved Mason and me each a fine of 27 pesos for the failure of the Argentina officials on the frontier to record our legal entry into the country.

• • •

We were awakened early at the hotel in Peulla to board the steamer at 8 to take us for the three hour sail thru the Lago Todos los Santos to Petrohue. We transferred our baggage and boarded a bus bound for Ensenada, arriving at noon in time for lunch at an excellent hotel owned and operated by a German. All the hotels in the Chilean lake country are owned and operated by Germans and the German language is heard on all sides, more often than is Spanish.

World travelers say Lago Todos los Santos is the most beautiful lake in the world, and that the Chilean lakes surpass Switzerland's in beauty. I do not know.

The Lake of All Saints affords a glorious cruise. The water is emerald green in color. It sometimes is called "The emerald lake." Three hours of magnificent, scenic panorama pass in review. Fascinating peninsulas and lovely inlets come and go, with silvery waters cascading down mountain sides. It is a veritable fairyland for adults. Nearing the western shore, the volcano Osorno, nearly 9,000 feet high, looms into view with its snow covered peak lost in the mist and the clouds.



BEAUTY UNDER THE EARTH

Curtains of onyx, stalagmites and dripstone achieve strange beauty in "Queen's Chamber," Carlsbad Caverns, New Mexico.

MAGAZINE FOR SHUT-INS.

Chicago.—To the Travel Editor: Some time ago there appeared in The Voice of the Traveler mention of a magazine for shut-ins. I have written to the editorial office in Charlotte, N. C., but have received no answer and, having tried local stores without success, I thought, perhaps, a reader who knows the address of the publication could arrange to have it forwarded to Billie Fabris, Maple Park, Ill. M. F. BONILLA.

SHUT-IN MADE HAPPY.

Berwyn, Ill.—To the Travel Editor: The family of Mary Louise Burke, who passed away on Oct. 15, wishes to thank the many who sent letters and gifts to her during her long illness. I am sure each one would be happy to know how much every card, letter and present was appreciated. Let us all continue writing and remembering the shut-ins.

War Recalls Isle of Sark's Feudal History

By Arthur W. O'Neill.

The little island of Sark, one of the Channel Islands close to the coast of France, now German-occupied, recently was raided by British commandoes. This incident of war recalls the interesting history of the island. It is the sole remaining, purely feudal state in the world, where the laws of the old Norman fiefs still exist. The domain is ruled by Sibyl Hathaway, officially la Dame de Serk, and her American born husband, Robert Hathaway, is officially the seigneur, lord of the isle.

French is the official language on the isle of Sark, but every one speaks English, also a patois, never written and unintelligible to outsiders. The Anglican church service is read in French.

Occupation of Sark began in the stone age, the written records dating from 565 A. D. A monastery was established in the sixth century, flourishing until 1412. The isle often changed owners, was deserted and the haunt of pirates. It was given by Queen Elizabeth in 1565 to a seigneur from an adjacent island, on condition that a colony of 40 farms be established, never divided, and never sold, so it often is referred to as "the island of the 40."

A man with a musket for defense must always inhabit each farm. The only access to the picturesque interior is by means of a 200-foot tunnel from the single harbor, which is dry at low tide. A barrier of precipitous granite cliffs girdles the island. When it was sold in 1732, possession passed to the great grandmother of the present hereditary owner, but because the fedual law gives a husband everything which his wife possessed before her marriage, Hathaway became the seigneur.

• • •

These are some of the queer laws enforced by the lord and his dame: Only the seigneur can keep pigeons, grind corn, or have a mill; no dogs may be imported; neither motor cars nor divorces are permitted; no seagulls may be killed because, in a fog, their cries warn fishermen; no farm may be sold without the lord's approval and, when sold, one-thirteenth of the price goes into the ruler's pocket; tithes called "dimes" are levied on all farm produce, as farm rental; land bequeathed and lacking an heir within the fifth degree of affinity, reverts to the seigneur.

La Dame once described her bit of farm and garden within its fortress of granite, thus: "little feudal paradise of peace and quiet."

What of the idyllic Sark now?

Week's Events of Chicagoland Women's Clubs

Miss Mary H. Burris. [Du Bois Photo.]

Gen. George L. Carpenter, international commander of the Salvation Army, will speak on the Army's war work Tuesday afternoon when members of the Chicago Association of Commerce meet with members of the Alliance of Business and Professional Women at a luncheon in the Medinah club. Mrs. Carpenter, also a leader in Salvation Army work, will present a woman's picture of the Army's endeavors. Nathaniel Leverone, chairman of the association's public affairs committee, is in charge of the meeting.

"The Women of China Contribute to Victory," is the subject which will be discussed Saturday afternoon at a meeting of the Chicago branch of the American Association of University Women in the Fine Arts building, 410 South Michigan avenue. Speakers will be Miss Florence Kirk, who will speak on a student trek from east central China to Chengtu; Dr. Theresa Woo, who will tell of life in occupied North China, where she was assistant pediatrician at Peking Union Medical hospital, and Miss Rose Hum Lee, Chinese social worker and vice president of the Women's International club in Canton, China.

Kay Farrell Havran, a resident in Honolulu at the time of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, will speak on "Hawaii—Yesterday and Today," at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when she addresses members of the Chicago Woman's club in the auditorium of the club's headquarters, 72 East 11th street.

Dr. Ernest W. Burgess, who recently completed a three year survey on juvenile delinquency in Chicago, will speak at 11 o'clock the same day on, "Juvenile Delinquency in Wartime." While Dr. Burgess is speaking in the Lobdell room, Dr. Anne Bohning, director of children's heart service at Presbyterian hospital, will address a group of women in Zeisler hall on "Arteriosclerosis and the Electrocardiograph." Speaking at the same gathering will be Dr. Bertha M. Shafer, who will address club members on, "Civilian Responsibility in Venereal Disease Control."

Mrs. John O'Connor, a past president of the club, has a group of her paintings on exhibit at the Tudor gallery. The board of managers of the club has announced that arrangements will be made for a tea in honor of Mrs. O'Connor.

Mrs. Edith Renneckar, field representative of the consumer division of the Office of Price Administration, will speak on problems on the home front Wednesday noon at a meeting of the Chicago Woman's aid in the organization's clubrooms, 185 North Michigan avenue.

Olga Rosenova will be presented in a reading of "The Moon Is Down" at 12 o'clock Friday in the clubrooms when members meet for a breakfast.

Mrs. Bentley F. Ramsdell of Geneva, Ill., will be hostess tomorrow afternoon at the first meeting this fall of the Mid-Western Antique association. Marcia Sperry will speak on "Spode." Mrs. John A. Clements, president, will be in charge.

Mrs. D. J. Heffernan. [Du Bois Photo.]

Mothers of senior and sophomore pupils will sponsor a dessert bridge party at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in the Marywood School for Girls, 2128 Ridge avenue, Evanston. The party will benefit the chaplains' aid work activities at Fort Sheridan and Great Lakes Naval Training station. Mrs. Denis J. Heffernan is president. The party is planned by Mrs. Thomas E. Maloney, with Mrs. Sidney Gregersen and Mrs. James V. Duffy assisting.

Mrs. John Edward Cooke, traveler and lecturer, will exhibit gems collected from many parts of the world Wednesday afternoon when she speaks at a meeting of the Colonial Coverlet Guild of America. Mrs. Roy Davis will be hostess to the group in her home at 2672 Stewart avenue, Evanston.

The Chicago section of the National Council of Jewish women will sponsor the first of a series of open house parties at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the council's clubrooms, 185 North Wabash avenue.

Juniors and seniors of the council will join with the career women's group to hold a "get acquainted" party Wednesday evening for women war workers, recently transferred from the nation's capital to Chicago. Mrs. Henry Melin is chairman of the recreational committee.

Members of the public affairs department of the council will gather in the clubrooms Wednesday afternoon to hear Horace Cayton, director of the Good Shepherd Community center, speak on "Fair Labor Practices and the Negro in Relation to the War."

Gen. Henry Dearborn chapter of the D. A. R. will hold its first fall meeting at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street. Mrs. Herbert E. Torrance, regent, will preside. The chapter will present a large American flag and staff to Tamassee, a southern mountain school, to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Scottish Clubs' Benefit to Aid Service Center

The skirl of Scottish bagpipes will call the McTavishes and McDonalds, the Campbells and Stewarts from all the "airts and pairts" of Chicago to the Medinah club, 505 North Michigan avenue, Friday night to a benefit concert and dance for the Chicago Service Men's center.

The musical evening is sponsored jointly by the United Scottish Clans of Chicago and the Daughters of Scotia. Mrs. Edward J. Kelly, wife of the mayor, is to be present as a special guest. Mrs. Kelly is chairman of the canteen at the center.

Every Scottish kiltie band in the city will turn out for the occasion. Appearing on the concert program will be Miss Lilias Sims, the young soprano who took second place in the women's singing contest in the 1942 Chicago Music Festival; the Metropolitan quartet from The Northers, with Walter Stevenson conducting; Louise Murray, 14 year old Chicago singing star; William Rankin, violinist, and the Dinning Sisters of radio.

Gandhi's Friend to Speak at City Club Luncheon

Tarina P. Sinha, former secretary of the All-India Congress party and a close friend of Mahatma Gandhi, will speak tomorrow afternoon at a luncheon in the City club dining room of the La Salle hotel. Mr. Sinha, now assistant professor of economics and political science for Central YMCA college, will speak to members of the club on "Freedom for India Now."

Arts Clubs Offer Varied Fall Programs

Highlight in a week of outstanding fine art programs in many Chicago clubs is the concert by Harry Swanson, baritone, and Miss Florence Henline, pianist, at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Goodman theater. The concert, which is sponsored by the American Daughters of Sweden, will benefit army and navy relief funds.

Mr. Swanson will include in his program numbers of operatic and concert fame, as well as a selection of Scandinavian tunes. The soloist has appeared in productions of the Chicago Opera company and has been heard in concerts and festivals in many parts of the nation. He will be accompanied by Harry T. Carlson, director of the Swedish Choral club and the Swedish Glee club. Miss Henline is pianist with the Chicago Women's Symphony orchestra and is known as a guest artist with other Chicago musical organizations.

• • •

The sponsoring organization, of which Mrs. George E. Q. Johnson is president, is made up of women of Swedish birth or descent. The purpose of the association is to further projects of civic or cultural nature. One Chicago high school graduate of Swedish descent is selected each year by the organization to receive a year's scholarship to the University of Chicago.

• • •

The three winners of the 1942 Chicago Woman's Musical club scholarships will be presented in a recital Wednesday evening in Kimball hall. Those who will be heard are: Lawrence Davidson, baritone; Howard Gottlieb, violinist, and Richard Feinberg, pianist. The event marks the first time in the 25 years of the club's practice of presenting scholarships that all three winners were young men.

• • •

The past presidents' assembly will be honored this afternoon in the Woman's City club at a meeting of the 1st district of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs. A program of instrumental music will be presented by the organization, of which Mrs. James Allen Young is executive chairman.

• • •

The Municipal Art league will entertain members and delegates Wednesday afternoon at a tea at the Cliff Dwellers, 220 South Michigan avenue. Dr. Dudley Crafts Watson will speak on the history of the famed art center. The meeting is the first in a series of teas and tours to be sponsored by the organization, of which Paul Schulze is president and Mrs. Maude Merritt is first vice president.

• • •

Vincent Starrett, author and literary critic, will speak Wednesday afternoon at the first luncheon this year of the Friends of American Writers. The event will be held at the Chicago Athletic association. "Are Authors People?" is the subject on which the speaker has elected to talk. Other writers who are scheduled to appear at future gatherings are: Helen Kirkpatrick, Elizabeth Pickett Chevalier, Ely Culberton, Frederic Prokosch, and Maxine Stetson. Mrs. George Burnett Van Buren is president.

The woman's division of the Chicago Urban league has announced plans to sponsor a benefit performance of George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" early in November, when the production opens in Chicago. Mrs. Robert Biggert, chairman of the ways and means committee, announced that special tribute will be paid that evening to Miss Etta Moton, a Chicago actress, who plays the rôle of "Bess."

Women who have been members of local No. 10 of the American Federation of Musicians will present the program Tuesday evening when members of Organized Women Musicians meet in the union headquarters, 175 West Washington street. They will demonstrate music as it was played 20 years ago in Chatauqua, vaudeville, and for theater pits during silent motion pictures.

TO BE MARRIED

Miss Betty Boyle, whose engagement to John Walton Cooper Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Cooper of Chicago, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Boyle of Wilmette. Miss Boyle and her fiance are graduates of DePauw university. He is now attending the army air forces officer candidate school at Miami Beach, Fla.

Missionary Society to Hold Christmas Box Tea Tomorrow

The Woman's Missionary society of Fourth Presbyterian church will sponsor a Christmas box tea tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Harry Cotton, 858 Chalmers place.

Contributions received at the affair will go toward the purchase of Christmas gifts for Presbyterian missionaries who will spend the holidays in foreign fields. The Cotton home is on the grounds of Presbyterian Theological seminary, of which Dr. J. Harry Cotton is president.

Mrs. George Murison, chairman of the tea, will be assisted by Mrs. Irvin L. Young and Mrs. Rudolph Ohlson. Mrs. James Wilson is president of the society.

Alliance to Honor Robert McCormick, and Fortuno Gallo

Fortuno Gallo, general director of the Chicago Opera company, and Robert Hall McCormick, chairman of the board of governors of the opera company, will be honored tomorrow afternoon at a tea to be given by the Southern Woman's Educational alliance in the Evanston home of Mrs. Harvey B. Lindsay.

Freda Draper, radio and concert soprano, and Antoinette Zebrowska, concert violinist, will be presented by Mrs. Beulah Christian Mayher.

Mrs. William Murdoch Riach, past president of the chapter, is now a member of the national board. Mrs. Samuel P. Whiteside, president, will attend the Washington, D. C., conference in November. Work of the alliance includes assisting rural school teachers, superintendents, and other educational workers in directing the nation's young people in educational and vocational pursuits.

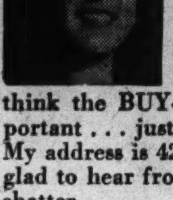
BUY-LINES • by Nancy Sasser

A Weekly Sponsored Column of Things Advertised and Interesting



New York, Oct. 24th. Pardon me if I go very personal today,—but I DO want to tell you what a thrill it gives me to hear readers' reactions to the products I recommend through BUY-LINES! Thank you for these letters,—they give me a close feeling of neighborliness with you . . . just as if you and I were a-gossip over the day's shopping "finds"! Somehow I think the BUY-LINES we use in everyday living are very important . . . just suppose you had to do without these products? My address is 420 Lexington Avenue, New York, and I'm always glad to hear from you . . . and so on to this week's BUY-LINES chatter . . .

Waste is a tragedy today,—and the war is teaching us to extract the last bit of use out of every purchase! So no wonder SWAN soap is serving so many millions of homes . . . an all-purpose soap that's equally useful for bath, laundry, baby's skin, dishwashing and woodwork! Reason SWAN performs so many chores is that it combines castile-purity, rich and sudsy lather and baby-gentle mildness in a snap-in-two bar that gives one cake for bathroom, one for kitchen! Ask your Grocer for this soap BUY-LINE that's useful in so many ways right down to the last rich sudsy bubble!

I'M ANTISEPTIC

Honestly, how do you go about buying baby powder? Do you regard it as sort of a cosmetic, figuring "smell" and "feel" are the important qualities? That's not only old-fashioned, it's ALL wrong! There's a new baby powder that's a real health aid, keeps baby's skin safer! How? MENNEN Powder is antiseptic, helps protect against harmful germs. 3 out of 4 doctors say baby powder should be antiseptic! MENNEN Powder is smoother, finer, because of the exclusive "hammerizing" process,—so more effective in preventing painful chafing, irritation and "breaks" which may admit germs. I know you'll never again be satisfied with any other powder for your baby,—MENNEN Antiseptic Baby Powder is also best for YOU! Delicate, delightful, delovely scent!

I am convinced that AMOLIN Personal Deodorant Powder is a MUST for discreet feminine protection on particular days. But you'll want AMOLIN Deodorant Cream, too . . . with the same effective deodorizing qualities which have made this Powder famous. AMOLIN Cream is a fresh-scented vanishing cream . . . just rub in underarms and see how quickly it disappears without harm to the daintiest fabrics. Get this cool, soothing cream deodorant to twin-up with AMOLIN Personal Deodorant Powder . . . ask your Druggist!

Winter Snow

Flash-of-genius white, greyed down and dusted over. And you cast your lot with it because it's impulsive, witty. It gives a sharpened apertif effect to winter's dark furs, evening's dining out blacks. Walter Florell accomplishes it in a snubbed brim . . . crown with black braid and a reckless gold velvet ribbon. 37.50
